NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Bay City, Mich., Feb. 1—(AP)—Hope waned today as watchers on the shores of Saginaw Bay sought in vain for traces of four fishermen borne out toward Lake Huron Wednesday noon on a crumbling ice floe.

Throughout the night coast guardsmen and volunteers led by Charles King, father of two of the marooned men, kept a vigil on the shore, lighting flares at intervals in the hope that those on the ice floe would find their way ashore.

Johnstown, Pa., Feb. 1—(CP)—Leonard Price, 11 months old, was learning to walk with the aid of a "stroller", a sort of wheeled seat. One of the wheels became caught in a hot air register on the floor of the home and before the boy's father could release him the child was so seriously burned he died a few hours later.

Miss Helen O'Brien, society secretary, treated her for lacerations while a crowd captured the attacking dog and took it to the pound.

Detroit, Feb. 1—(CP)—Fire broke out last night in a Detroit Neighborhood Theatre projection room. The manager made a speech asking the 150 patrons to file out slowly. None budged. He pleaded with them, and finally in desperation offered to readmit them after the fire was out.

The customers left reluctantly. The manager told police who were called later to prevent a riot that 600 "patrons" sought to enter the theatre.

A number of locomotives and cabooses have also been transferred to eastern lines where it is reported that railwaymen who have not worked since 1929 are being re-employed.

U. S. Dollar Features Financial Markets, is Called 1934 Model

Stocks Whirl Upward in Early Trading at New York

TICKER WAS LATE

British Banker Discusses Roosevelt's "Bold Revolution"

New York, Feb. 1 (AP)—Uncle Sam's new—and cheaper—dollar made its debut today amid boisterous applause from the stock market.

Shares swept $1 to more than $4 higher under successive waves of buying which embraced all the major groups, putting the industrial average at the highest point since September, 1931. Rails and utilities rallied, too, while some of the largest gains occurred in metal stocks.

Meanwhile, high confusion ruled in the foreign exchange market. American dollars, opening fairly steady against the leading currencies of Europe, soon began an advance which was contrary to what might have been expected in view of the momentous step President Roosevelt took yesterday when he devalued the currency.

1934 Model

Washington, Feb. 1 (AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau today described the new United States monetary situation as a "1934 model of a gold bullion standard."

Meanwhile Professor Irving Fisher testified before a House of Representatives Banking Sub-Committee that the existing Federal Reserve system "will now be lucky if it escapes destruction altogether."

British Apprehension

London, Feb. 1 — AP—Colin F. Campbell, chairman of the National Provincial Bank told stockholders at their annual meeting today that the future of the international money market will depend largely upon the result of the United States' monetary experiment.

The necessity of a stable monetary standard was stressed by the speaker in discussing President Roosevelt's "bold revolution" which he said was "regarded with some apprehension by those with long experience in financial affairs."

Canadian Gold to U.S.

OTTAWA, Feb. 1. —(CP)— The most important immediate effect upon Canada of President Roosevelt's new monetary policy which went into effect yesterday, will be that Canadian gold will now go to the United States, whereas it has for nearly a year, been shipped mainly to London. This was the only positive comment that could be secured here today.

WORKERS QUARANTINED AT DENBIGH CAMP

Meagre reports emanating from the camp of road workers near Denbigh, where a number of Belleville young men are quartered, indicate that illness in the form of Scarlet Fever, which is said to have broken out there several days ago has been responsible for a quarantine of the workers. The cases have been light ones, and no actual danger or suffering among the men is reported

Strenuous denial that Belleville boys had been connected with or aided in any way the trouble which started near Denbigh some time ago when fifteen workers were taken from camp by Provincial Police, was contained in a letter from one of the Belleville boys, received by a local relative today.

"It wasn't the Belleville boys who were mixed up in it," vigorously stated the writer. "It was the camp of the Toronto-Hamilton men who started the fuss. There wasn't a Belleville man mentioned at all."

INDUSTRY MUST BE REGULATED

Only Way For Business Units to Survive Says Meighen

Ottawa, Feb. 1—(CP)—Regulation of industry is inevitable if the great complex business units of today are to survive, Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, former Prime Minister and now government leader in the Senate believes.

Mr. Meighen looks with favor on the industrial code feature of the National Recovery Act in the United States but cannot endorse other features of the recovery programme south of the line such as curtailment of production and extensive public borrowing.

The United States was to the fore in the Senate yesterday as debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne continued. Hon. Raoul Dandurand, Liberal leader and former president of the Assembly of the League of Nations, urged the entry of the United States into the League. He revealed he had laid the League's position before President Franklin D. Roosevelt after the latter's election had been favorably received.

No Solution in Sight

Great industrial units could only destroy themselves if left to unrestricted competition said Senator Meighen. He believes times were getting better but could see no adequate solution of the unemployment problem in a return to more prosperous conditions. It would present an even greater difficulty to the next generation than to the present.

The House of Commons today has before it a new resolution against the granting of titles, drafted along the lines, which Prime Minister R. B. Bennett has stated would be binding on the government and no affront to the crown.

It is presented by Humphrey Mitchell (Labor Hamilton West) who yesterday withdrew his former motion following Mr. Bennett's recent speech. The new resolution is a direction to the Prime Minister not to recommend the granting of titles to Canadians, whereas the former resolution was not directed to the Prime Minister but to the King.

Legislation Coming

Left-wing Farmer and Labor members will press their arguments for national control of credit and finance, when the new bank act and the legislation to create a Central Bank is before the House.

Yesterday after a brief debate W. T. Lucas (U.F.A. Camrose) withdrew his resolution on this subject after assurances from the Prime Minister of Finance, the pending Minister and Hon. E. N. Rhodes, legislation would provide ample opportunity for debate.

FORTY YEARS AS BANK MESSENGER

Forty years ago today Mr. Frank C. Sharpe entered the employ of the Bank of Montreal at its Belleville branch at the corner of Pinnacle and Hotel (now Victoria Ave.) Sts. The late Robert Richardson was then local manager here. Faithfully with punctuality and courteousness Mr. Sharpe has been messenger for the Bank of Montreal, under a number of branch managers, with all of whom he found favor, as well as with the numerous merchants and others of this town it is his business to call on daily.

Co-Operative Plan Sponsored by Farmer Produces Large Returns

Capac, Mich., Feb. 1 (AP)—Howard A. Smith, St. Clair County farmer with his own ideas about agricultural relief, today enjoyed a $7,500 laugh at the neighbors who last April scoffed at what they called his "foolish experiment."

The $7,500 was Smith's share of the $15,000 crop raised on his 400-acre farm after he had invited 280 unemployed Detroiters to go in with him on a co-operative basis.

Of course not all the $7,500 was profit. There was an item of $2,500 for seed bought with Federal funds and Smith still has a quantity of produce to sell, but he says he is satisfied.

Asking the city folks out to the farm got a big laugh from some St. Clair County farmers but Smith went ahead with his plans.

"It was in April when we reached an agreement," Smith said. "My neighbors laughed at me when those city fellows came out to farm. They advised me not to make a foolish experiment."

Before the city dwellers came out to Smith's farm much of the land was idle. "A person could not make enough to pay taxes because of labor conditions," he said. "If I'd been required to pay those 280 I couldn't have made a go of it."

The city farmers got $7,500, half the proceeds, for their labor and expenses.

SENATOR LITTLE AND BROTHER INDICTED

Senator E. S. Little

Arthur T. Little

True bills were found against Senator E. S. Little and his two brothers, Arthur T., and Walter, by the grand jury of the Middlesex, Ontario, assizes as a result of the collapse of the London branch of the firm of Robinson, Little and Co., Ltd. The bill was found when it was alleged that Senator Little and Arthur Little overdrew their company account by amounts in excess of $100,000 each. Arthur Little, chairman of the board of governors of Western Ontario university and in 1919 was rated as a millionaire. In all seven charges of theft, fraud and conspiracy have been laid. The amount involved is stated at $336,044.53.

CUT PARTYISM SAYS CROMIE

Population of 200 to 300 Million Possible For Canada

Toronto Feb. 1 (CP)—"Our older financial and political statesmen have over-worried themselves about high interest rates on Canada's $9,000,000,000 debts," said Robert J. Cromie, editor of the Vancouver Sun, addressing the Empire Club here today. "They have underworried themselves over the minds and lives and futures of our 10,000,000 people. They must now realize a change is inevitable."

Urging adoption of some definite national plan for the Dominion's future, the Vancouver editor said Canadians should "ruthlessly adjust finances; cut partyism to a quarter of its present importance; and concern themselves not so much with money and debts as with the lives and futures of the people."

"If we do this, we cannot miss occupying a favored position in world affairs and an enjoyable living in Canada," he said.

Canadians were worried and uncertain at present, apparently unable to "snap out of their trouble" That was the fault of political leadership, Mr. Cromie thought. That was where Germany, Italy, Russia and the United States "had it over" Canada.

Leadership Blamed

But Canada would have to "come to it." Her people could not go on telling boys there were no jobs or futures, which meant no marriages or futures for girls. This should not be so in a young, productive country like the Dominion.

Mr. Cromie, who returned recently from a trip to the Soviet republics, coupled advice not to fear Russia with the words: "Don't fear for the future of Canada." He urged Canadians to study Russia's soil productivity, technological standards and psychology and learn how aptly Russians adjusted themselves to newer trends.

"The secret of Russia's success is her policy of planning," he said. Russia was having hardship and privations, but people endured hardship willingly when they understood it was the foundation for a better future.

Russians lived as normally as Canadians, except they had not yet reached the same standard. The key to standards of living was found in soil, technology, and ability to meet new conditions.

Canada's technological standard equalled that of the United States, far in advance of Russia. Her soil productions assured a food supply for 20 or 30 times present population.

"Canadians should concern themselves with a plan that will create and distribute the work and wealth of our new rich Dominion," the speaker said. "Neither the political stratagems of Mackenzie King nor the financial obsessions of Premier Bennett indicate they will put Canada back on its feet."

TROUBLE ON RURAL LINES OF HYDRO

Lights in homes of rural residents immediately north of the city flashed on and off at intervals throughout the night and early morning owing to wire trouble on the rural electric lines, caused, it was reported at the office of the local Hydro today by a breakdown in the wires from the heavy snow. Trouble shooters were still at work today tracing the defection.

HOPEFUL OUTLOOK FOR CITY INDUSTRIES

Commissioner Sounds More Cheerful Note in Interview

A cheering note was sounded by Industrial Commissioner, Mr. J. O. Herity, today regarding industrial expansion in the city during the coming year.

"Things look hopeful for local industries, and already considerable gains have been made by several local concerns," added the commissioner.

Although it is a little too early yet to forecast with accuracy, what might be expected in regard to new industries during the coming year, signs are hopeful that this city will be among the first to experience trade revival and derive the benefits of the location of branch plants from the Old Country and United States firms.

"We can look upon this year with more hope than for the past several years," stated Commissioner Herity.

DISTRICT ROADS BLOCKED BY SNOW

Plows Out on Highways Early After 5 Inches of Snow Fell

Five inches of snow on the level and piled into almost impassable drifts by high winds, which swept the district throughout the night called government hired snow plows out at dawn today in an attempt to open highways and roads throughout the county, which had become almost closed to traffic.

On No. 2 Highway west of the city, almost to Cobourg drifting was especially bad and considerable work was necessary by the plows in order to open a sufficient passage for the stalled trucks and cars. North of the city trouble again was experienced by bus and stage drivers while on the Picton-Belleville highway, high drifts there almost blocked passage.

Railway snow plows were also busy on rural lines throughout the section it was reported at the office of the Canadian National Railways today, although on the trunk lines little difficulty was being experienced in keeping the trains on schedule time.

Thirty extra men were called out by the city works department on the job of clearing the walks from the drifts which were piled and banked almost breast high. On Zwick's Island two hundred more men returned to the job again after the lay-off on Wednesday caused by the stinging winds and flying pellets of snow. Travellers marooned by the failure of their cars to buck the drifts out of the city were forced to stay in Belleville until reports of all clear ahead were received. Scores of cars were left in the down town sections throughout the night stalled with snow piled half way to the window glass. Hotels reported one of the busiest days and nights of the season. At midnight along Front Street, lone wayfarers fought their way homeward through a blinding whirling mass of flying snow clouds, which almost obscured buildings but a few feet away.

Temperatures rose swiftly during the night with the downfall. On Thursday they still continued to rise, packing the snow into heavy drifts and making the job of clearing the roads a difficult one for the snow plows.

COUNTIES ARE ANXIOUS FOR BETTER ROADS

Depression Is Over As Far As Highways Are Concerned

ROADS ASSUMED

Three Delegations Visit Minister Asking For Highways

TORONTO, Feb. 1.—(CP)—The depression is over, so far as Ontario's Highways are concerned. Counties which had appealed to the Highways Department two or three years ago, not to take over their roads as part of the King's Highway System because they would have to contribute part of the cost are now asking for the improvements.

Hon. Leopold Macaulay, Minister of Highways, declared today, in briefly amplifying a reference to the Highways in the speech from the Throne at the opening of the Ontario Legislature, that his department is now considering the taking over of several stretches of County Road to link them up with the system, and in addition was preparing to open a definite campaign for improving Highways which had been postponed for the past three years.

Three delegations had visited his office in the past few days, he said.

VERNE SANKEY IS ARRESTED

Desperado Will be Questioned on Lindbergh Kidnapping

Chicago, Feb. 1—A solution of the long standing mystery of the kidnapping and slaying of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., was sought today through questioning of Verne Sankey, 42, one time Canadian railroader and ranch man who allegedly turned to the "snatch" racket.

Sankey, described by authorities as "America's Public Enemy No. 1" was seized late yesterday afternoon by Federal agents and city detectives in a barber shop on information furnished by an anonymous source, and confessed, Melvin H. Purvis of the Federal Bureau of Investigation said, that he had participated in two kidnappings—that of Haskell Bohn, of St. Paul, and Charles Boettcher II, the Denver capitalist.

The former Gann, S. D., ranchman and one time railroader of Melville, Sask., denied he had any connection with the Lindbergh kidnapping, or the abduction of Edward G. Bremer of St. Paul, and William Hamm, Jr., also of St. Paul, but the authorities pushed their grilling of him in the hope of uncovering some new light on these "snatches", particularly the Lindbergh case.

E. O. BUTLER IS NEW HEAD

Holstein Breeder's Club Hold 23rd Annual Gathering in City

For the twenty-third annual meeting, members of the Belleville Holstein Breeders' Club met in the Chamber of Commerce building on Wednesday afternoon for the purpose of electing officers for the coming year, and discussing problems relative to that association. It was one of the most representative gatherings of the club in years.

Officers elected for the year were as follows:

President —E. O. Butler, Brighton

1st Vice President—Fred Hubbs, Bloomfield.

2nd Vice President—Percy Vanblanc, Napanee.

Secretary P. B. Nelson was unanimously re-elected to that office for the eighth term.

Auditors for 1934, will be W. C. Dempsey, Belleville and Mr. Fred Hubbs. Mr. Hubbs has also been appointed a Director of the Holstein Fresian Association of Canada. Sales Manager will be Dunam Foster of Bloomfield.

The one day sale this year will be held on Wednesday, April 4th. Differing from previous years, there will be a bull show on the same day, April 4th. Two regulations will also govern the sale of animals this year. All cattle must be inspected, and if sold a negative blood test must be given the purchasers, it was the unanimous agreement of members.

Trade in Good Condition

Two addresses, delivered by agricultural representatives of the district were delivered at the meeting.

Mr. W. C. Buchanan, representing Napanee District spoke briefly on conditions in the northern section of the Province, and outlined the problems connected with dairying in that section. A fertile field existed in this newer section of the Province for local export breeders he stated.

Another address by Mr. F. J. Webster, agricultural representative of Picton, drew attention to the fact that Holstein cattle were the favorite breed in Prince Edward County. Out of the 54 accredited herds of cattle in that county, 49 of them were of Holstein breed, he pointed out. In 1929 a census the first one taken of bulls in the county shows that only 40 per cent of them were pure breed animals. In the spring of 1933, when another census was taken it was shown that the percentage of pure bred bulls had increased to 55 per cent.

Calf clubs would do more to create interest in live stock farming than anything else, stated Mr. Webster. "In Prince Edward County the small boys' clubs are gaining favor rapidly. The smaller boys buy the animals and raise them themselves. These are the men, who will make good dairy farmers", declared the representative.

HOPE GERMANS WILL RETURN TO LEAGUE

British Memorandum Would Abolish Certain Arms

EQUALITY

Security No More Essential Than Equality of Rights

London, Feb. 1 (C.P. Cable) —The government of the United Kingdom waited today for expectation it might help heal the breach between German demands for equality and French insistence on security.

The British plan, revealed yesterday by publication of a memorandum sent to the government of France, Italy and Germany, suggests adherence by the powers concerned to a 10 year scheme of actual disarmament, coupled with recognition of the German claim to equality in arms and acceptance of further means to security, and insistence on Germany's return to the League of Nations.

The memorandum urged that heavily-armed powers abandon some classes of weapons and reminds its recipient that Chancellor Adolf Hitler declared Germany renounces any claim to "offensive" weapons, limiting itself to normal "defensive" weapons required for the army. With these Germany would be provided under terms of the arms convention.

It says, however, that Hitler assumed heavily-armed powers were not prepared to abandon under the convention any of their existing armaments and adds:

"His Majesty's government, entirely unwilling to accept this last assumption must insist that the only agreement worthy of the name disarmament convention will be one which contains a reduction as well as a limitation of armaments."

Should Hitler's assumption prove incorrect, it says, "the measure of Germany's need will necessarily be reduced . . . A positive contribution to disarmament by the heavily-armed powers will, therefore, help to bring down the scale all around and should, as His Majesty's government conceive, reduce the demands which Germany might otherwise be disposed to put forward."

In connection with the principle of equality of rights the memorandum says:

"His Majesty's government do not hesitate to declare that the principle of equality of rights is no less essential in the matter of armaments than the principle of security. Both must have their practical application if an international agreement about armaments is to be reached."

COAL IS STOLEN FROM WAREHOUSE

Gaining entrance by breaking off a padlock on the southeast door of a warehouse at the government dock robbers are said to have stolen one-half ton of hard coal some time Tuesday night. The robbery was discovered by Robert Goudy, harbormaster, while making his rounds at the dock yesterday afternoon. Plainclothesman Constable Isard investigated. How the burglars made off with such a large amount of coal is unknown.

WILLIAM LAFFERTY NEW PROPRIETOR

A deal of considerable interest locally was consumated yesterday with the purchase by Mr. William Lafferty, well known resident of this city, of the billiard hall and tobacco store on East Bridge Street from Mr. Norm. Hall, former popular proprietor. Questioned today Mr. Hall stated that the deal had been carried through satisfactorily. "My plans for the future are uncertain," he stated when questioned.

HOT WATER BOILER AT PICTON EXPLODES

With a heavy explosion that scattered fragments of metal throughout the office, a section of the hot water boiler of the furnace used to heat the Canadian National Railway station at Picton burst yesterday. Fortunately the office was deserted at the time and damage was slight. It is expected that a heated caboose will be placed at the disposal of the agent and assistants until repairs are effected.

ONE BLDG. PERMIT FOR $300 ISSUED

One permit for the alteration of a store on Front Street at a total cost of $300 saved the month of January from being a total loss as far as building permits issued by the city engineer are concerned. The month of December just previous however, was a total blank. Not since January, 1930, has new construction in the city fallen to such a low level. During January, 1930, not a permit was issued, while the previous and succeeding months were also slim ones. Highest total for the month of January during the past five years was recorded in 1932 when a total of $2500 was issued in permits. For 1933 it was $600, and for 1931 it had dropped again to $300.

SCHOOL TRUSTEE YET TO BE NAMED

"Has anything been done yet about the appointing of a School Trustee for Bleecker Ward," Mr. Wilfred Holmes, city clerk, was asked today.

"Nothing yet, although I believe the matter will come up soon," stated Mr. Holmes.

Three members from that ward had been named for the School Trusteeship some time ago but all three had withdrawn, leaving a vacancy on the Board of Education. Informed that no appointment had been yet, Secretary [illegible] Findlay of the Board of Education, expressed the hope that a move in that direction would be made soon.

"The member, whoever he or she will be will have several vacancies on committees to fill, and besides that I've got to have printing and other things done as soon as I find out who the representative will be," stated Secretary Findlay.

MOOSE DANCE AND EUCHRE ENJOYED

A large crowd graced the Moose Auditorium on Wednesday evening on the occasion of the regular weekly card party and dance held by that organization. Gentlemen winners in order named were Mr. H. Ryan, Vince Bennett, W. Gibson and Geo. Osier, with a special prize being won by Mr. H. Ryan. Dancing followed the cards.

LOCAL CITIZENS FRACTURE WRISTS

Two local citizens sustained broken wrists following falls on the city streets yesterday. Thomas Kelly, Harriett St., fell on the icy pavement near the corner of Harriett and North Front Streets early yesterday afternoon breaking both bones in his wrist. Mr. Kelly was taken to the surgery of Dr. J. J. Robertson, where the fracture was X-rayed. Due to the seriousness of the injury, Mr. Kelly was removed to the Belleville General Hospital, where the fracture was reduced.

About 4.30 p.m. Willett Scrimshaw, aged 72 years of 232 Coleman Street, fell between the track at the intersection of Bridge and Pinnacle Streets breaking his left wrist. Mr. Scrimshaw was carried into a nearby office, where he fainted. The city ambulance was later required to convey the injured man to the hospital, where the fracture was reduced by Dr. G. S. Cronk.

MOTOR CAR SKIDS INTO TRANSPORT

A slight motor accident happened near the corner of Dundas and Front Streets, late yesterday afternoon when a car driven by Charles Smith, Frankford, collided with a parked Bursford transport. Mr. Smith had just turned off Front Street into east Dundas, when his car skidded on the icy pavement and struck the transport, that was parked on the north side of Dundas Street. Constable Taylor investigated and found only fender and running board damage had resulted. The matter was amicably settled between the parties concerned as the incident had been purely accidental.

CONTRIBUTION TO SCHOOL LIBRARY

The purchase of 5,000 copies of "Cry Havoc" by the Department of Education for distribution among schools of Ontario was commented upon today by Lt.-Col. E. A. Geen, chairman of the Board of Education of this city.

"While I have been a little too busy lately to get a chance to read the book I believe from all accounts it is an excellent one for the youth of the country to read. It should be an important contribution to the school library," stated Lt.-Col. Geen.

LECTURE COURSE OPEN TO WOMEN

How much attraction an opportunity for self improvement has for the majority of residents of all classes in this city is indicated by the number of applications that are being received this week at the office of the Chamber of Commerce for the business lecture courses arranged in conjunction with Queen's University by the local Chamber.

This course, it was explained today, not not meant for men alone; ladies of the city are entirely welcome to attend.

THE DOMINION BANK 63RD. ANNUAL STATEMENT

DEPOSITS PRACTICALLY UNCHANGED

EXCEPTIONALLY STRONG LIQUID POSITION - CURRENT LOANS HIGHER

The 63rd Annual Statement of the Dominion Bank which was presented to the Shareholders at the Annual Meeting in Toronto on Wednesday the 31st instant, was very satisfactory in several important particulars. Deposits showed practically no reduction during the year ending December 30th last. Net profits were well maintained at 16.29% of the Paid-Up Capital, and the Bank's liquid position is particularly strong with immediately available assets at 55.82% of Public Liabilities.

The net earnings for the year were $1,139,202 as compared with $1,179,931 in the previous year. These earnings amply provide for the payment of $700,000 in dividends, a contribution of $50,000 to Officers' Pension Fund; $214,631 for Taxes, and writing off $50,000 from Bank Premises Account; leaving a balance of $435,343 carried forward in Profit and Loss Account, $124,000 more than at the end of the previous year.

Cash assets total $16,427,000, of which over 50% is in gold and Dominion of Canada notes.

Immediately available assets stand at $58,557,698, or 55.82% of liabilities to the public.

The Bank's total investments are in excess of $33,700,000 and consist chiefly of Dominion and Provincial Government Bonds. Investments were increased during the year by $3,700,000.

Current Loans amount to $54,091,417. This is an increase of $446,515 over the figures of the previous year.

Deposits have remained practically steady and appear in the Statement as $95,571,620 compared with $96,060,646 at December 31st, 1932.

The Bank's circulation at $6,261,000 has expanded by nearly $500,000 during the twelve months and can be accepted as an indication of increasing business activity.

The Bank Premises Account stands at $5,930,000 as compared with $5,980,000 at the close of 1932, this reduction of $50,000 was written off from the year's profits.

The statement is a particularly satisfactory one as it indicates a slight trend upward in business activity.

OBITUARY

LATE JUDGE J. F. WILLS

To accord their last tribute of respect to the memory of an honored citizen and personal friend, hundreds of residents in Belleville from all walks of the city's activities, were Wednesday afternoon in attendance at the funeral of the late John Franklin Wills. County officials and members of Hastings' Law Library Association attended in a body and representatives were present from the various organizations of which the late Judge had been a member. To do honor to the late chairman of the Police Commission, Chief Kidd and members of the police force acted as bearers and a detachment of Ontario Provincial Police were also in attendance.

From his late residence, 38 Queen Street, the cortege proceeded to St. Thomas Church, where the Vicar, the Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne conducted the funeral service at 2 o'clock. Hymns chosen for the service were those favorite of the deceased, "Nearer My God to Thee" and "On that Resurrection Morning." Interment was made in the Belleville cemetery where the Rev. Mr. Payne officiated at the committal.

Acting as honorary pall bearers were members of the Bench and members of the Bar of this city: Judge G. E. Deroche, Judge E. H. McLean, and Messrs. Malcolm Wright, E. J. Butler, K.C., B. C. Donnan, K.C., and C. A. Payne, K.C.

The active bearers were: Chief Kidd, Sergeants Harman and Booth and Police Constables Evans, Taylor and Thomson.

LATE H. M. MORDEN

Hubert McMechan Morden, whose death occurred in London, England, last week was well known by Belleville residents and others throughout the district. He was born in Picton, the son of the late Dr. J. B. Morden and was educated in Picton and county schools. He served in the Great War with a Prince Edward County unit, and upon his return was connected with a large electrical firm, which he represented in England. Surviving are his widow in London, two brothers, Dr. G. W. Morden of Napanee, and Harold J. Morden of Winnipeg. The burial took place in London.

$1,200 FIRE DAMAGE DURING MONTH

Firemen of the local department chalked up a "good" January on the record book today for the month just ended. During the month a total of only twelve alarms were answered. Fire damage, lower than for an average month was set at $1200 by Fire Chief Lynch. "A pretty good record, considering the fact that January is one of the big months for alarms," commented the Chief.

UPSWING IN USE OF HYDRO

Hon. Robert Cooke Tells of Progress as Shown by Energy Use

TORONTO, Feb. 1.—Vigorous defense of the Abitibi deal; citation of statistics showing that Hydro has saved $844,000 "on exchange costs," and the declaration that financial results of the Hydro undertaking for 1933 would reflect "not only improved circumstances that obtained toward the end of the year, but also the relatively adverse business conditions of the earlier months," were among a number of outstanding points stressed by Hon. J. R. Cooke, Chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission, yesterday.

Mr. Cooke addressed a luncheon meeting of the Electric Club of Toronto and among the guests of the club were delegates to the convention of Ontario Municipal Electrical Association and the Association of Electrical Utilities.

Discussing "primary load," the Hydro Chairman stated that statistics showed that for the calendar years 1930 and 1931 the general trend had been downward, but during 1932 it had been checked. "In the early months of 1933", he said, "the load again slumped somewhat sharply, but the important point to observe is that before the close of the spring the trend turned decidedly upward and soon recovered the lost ground. This upward swing, when measured as the sum of the lost ground which was regained and the actual load increase made thereafter, is of the order of a 10 per cent. gain.

Seven Per Cent. Increase.

"The actual gain at the close of the last fiscal year," the speaker emphasized, "may be further judged from figures for total energy consumption for primary power in Ontario for the month of October, 1933, which shows an increase of nearly 7 per cent. over the corresponding month of 1932."

"It is gratifying," remarked Mr. Cooke at another point, "to be able to point to the fact that the general upward trend of load has been such as to take up in other industries these losses that have occurred in the past year and even to show some increased consumption."

Coming to the Abitibi, Mr. Cooke declared that it was a matter about which there had been "rather widespread misrepresentation." "The association that the Commission has with the Abitibi Canyon power plant and its transmission lines is not—as is the case with our main Hydro undertaking—as trustee for the municipalities, but as the specially experienced and technically qualified agent of the Government," he stated.

The undertaking, the Hydro Chairman declared, had in its favor the fact of having been acquired at exceptionally low cost. "In view of the undue prominence that has been given by some to a ratio of 90 per cent. involved in one element of the transaction, I may remind you of the fact that the bond exchange terms included not only a 10 per cent. reduction of principal, but also waiver of interest arrears, elimination of exchange premiums and sharp reduction of interest rate on even the reduced principal."

Large Premium Avoided

Mr. Cooke outlined in detail the manner in which the Commission had retired debenture stocks in Britain and the United States and effected a net saving to the municipalities of Ontario. "In the case of the transaction in New York funds," he explained, "the situation is that a large payment of premium has been avoided rather than that a large discount was obtained."

"As was intimated in the Commission's annual report for 1932," observed the Hydro Chairman at one point, "the existence during the depression of idle and semi-idle industrial plants in its territory creates a necessity for the Commission to maintain extra reserve power capacity in addition to the reserve capacity ordinarily required to meet operating contingencies and guard against the risk of power interruption. Unless the special power reserve capacity is maintained in times such as the present, idle and semi-idle industries could not resume operation, and they would be definitely prevented from re-employing their temporarily idle workmen."

Used to Produce Steam

Mr. Cooke pointed out that the principal method of utilizing reserve power had been to effect its employment in the production of steam required by the pulp and paper mills on the Niagara and Thunder Bay systems. "It should be clearly understood," the speaker emphasized, "that none of these special measures to obtain revenue from employment of system reserve power capacity is in any legitimate sense a sale of power at less-than cost."

He also reminded his audience that the Commission now served 757 Ontario municipalities, including 27 cities, 95 towns, 269 villages and police villages and 365 townships, while the total investment in the Hydro undertaking was "no less than $399,000,000."

THROUGH MANY YEARS

In historic Halifax, over sixty years ago, seven merchants founded The Royal Bank upon sound and conservative principles. To these principles the Bank has steadfastly adhered. Changing conditions have only established its strength and experience.

THE ROYAL BANK OF CANADA

HEAVY ROADS DUE TO SNOW

City Visited by Four Inch Fall of Snow During Night

Residents of the city bent an elbow at the task of snow shovelling today following the four inch downfall, which was carried into the city on strong gales from the west throughout the night and early morning.

The stinging snow flakes caused an adjournment of outside relief work activities in the city, piled into high drifts on roads and highways throughout the district, and created difficulty for early morning workers who were forced to bow to the swirling gusts which blew in near zero weather.

Although the backbone of the severe cold snap of the first few days of the week was broken by the rising temperatures, for the third day of the week weather men of the district were able again to record zero temperatures. The lowest point reached during the early morning Wednesday was just two below. A rapidly rising thermometer at noon, however, showed a maximum registration of just twenty-one above.

Stage drivers entering the city reported travel difficult but entirely possible. Only on the section roads did the drifts, piled against the rail fences, reach troublesome proportions. Tweed, Madoc, and other main roads were all reported fairly good. Long distance transport drivers stated that eyes were weary and muscles tired from holding the huge vehicle on the roads which were partly obscured by the flying flakes.

Twenty-six extra men were hired by the city works department to clear streets and crossings, while offsetting this, two hundred relief workers were forced to discontinue work on the island for the day.

The snowflakes were welcomed by farmers of the section whose wells have gone dry and creeks frozen to the bottom. As a covering for the frozen land it will also prove beneficial.

MARKED DECREASE OF TRANSIENTS IN CITY

To Date 381 Have Been Accommodated at Station

Statistics acquired from the local police station show that a marked decrease, in the number of transients to require a night's lodging, is daily being shown in 1934. This decrease has been more clearly exemplified during the recent cold snap, when weary travellers, applying for a warm bed, have almost reached the minimum.

For example on Sunday night but three transients took advantage of the warmth of the police cells, on Monday night four applied at the sergeant's desk, while on Tuesday night five slept all night at the police station. To date this year (1934) there have been 381 transients afforded a warm night's lodging in the local police station. This figure is much lower than in previous years.

When asked his opinion in the matter of the present decreased numbers of transients, Chief Kidd explained, that it was due to the recent continued cold weather coupled with the fact, that the local "soup kitchen" had been discontinued. "The local relief canteen apparently had a tendency to encourage transients to loiter about the city," pointed out Chief Kidd.

THE ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER

THE DAILY ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER is published every afternoon (Sunday and holidays excepted) at The Ontario Intelligencer Building, Front Street, Belleville.

W. H. MORTON, Publisher.

CANADA 1934

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics announces the publication of the 1934 edition of the official annual handbook dealing, in convenient and handy form, with present conditions and recent progress in the Dominion.

The publication opens with a foreword by the Hon. H. H. Stevens; an introduction of eight pages touches on the world situation as it affects Canada and summarises the Canadian internal situation as it stands at the close of 1933. Chapter 1 deals with the Physiography of Canada and its influence on the settlement of the country and Chapter 2 surveys the salient features of Canadian history. Treatments of all phases of national endeavour including Population, Wealth and Production, Agriculture, Forestry, Mining, Water Powers, Fisheries, Fur Trade, Manufactures, Transportation, Trade, Finance, Labour, Education, etc., follow in sufficient detail for the general reader and so far as the 192 pages of matter permit.

The book is designed to give a concise but well-rounded picture of the current Canadian situation to those at home and abroad, and the provide a better basis of information for the discussion of Canadian affairs generally and in particular for dealing with the business problems of 1934. It is freely illustrated.

Throughout the handbook the latest available information is included in each section, the figures in many cases extending to the end of 1933.

TRADE IDEA "TAKES"

How potent is the power of an idea if it is founded upon reality and common sense!

Not long ago Mr. W. E. Schuster began a campaign to reciprocate with Wales for coal by sending Bay of Quinte products of the farm across to the Welsh colliery companies.

Today that idea is adopted by Welsh and U. K. authorities on trade and by business men. Those who read yesterday's issue of the Ontario Intelligencer know how the people of Wales have taken up the question of the two-way trading.

This work of the Commerce Crusaders is in line with the recent announcements in regard to means to stimulate and increase trade with Britain.

Those members of the organization known as the Crusaders have been alert and have ably supported the work of Mr. Schuster. The results are now very clearly shown.

EXPLORATION

Britishers must be in the van of progress. British exploration opened up in two centuries what have since become Dominions of vast resources, playing a large part in the policies of the world. Those who look at British exploration history know what the spirit of the explorer has meant to Britain.

The spirit is not dead. There is an organization of school boys in England whose ideal is exploration. Soon there will be an outing to Newfoundland.

The form of exploration and discovery may change. No longer does a hero like Drake have to sail to the West Indies, the explorer uses a plane. Exploration to the interior of unknown lands is a new phase. What will Africa mean when it is fully opened up? There is a continent which has been a sealed book except about the borders and coasts, which have of course progressed. But when the interior is civilized, those who live in that day will have a much different world to look upon.

There is the scientific explorer also who is called upon in this age to do no small task to bring new facts to civilization.

Young Britishers are going to play their part in this great exploration age. The mighty age of discovery which opened up with the trend which urged Columbus to set out for the west and which continued up to the times of Elizabeth and James was the age of awakening in Britain and the rest of the world. Just such an age is ahead of us and perhaps part is behind us. But it remains a great age for the dauntless intrepid hearts now beating in the breasts of British schoolboys and doubtless of Canadian schoolboys.

It is a fact worth noting that His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales is playing his part in this work. He has accepted a post on the directorate of this schoolboy organization in England. Like Alexander, the Prince knows there are worlds yet to conquer, not the worlds which may be won by the sword and gunpowder and bayonet but the worlds of discovery of science, the worlds which can be won by dauntless hearts of Englishmen, Canadians, Americans, Frenchmen, Russians and the brave men of all other races.

Genius is exactly the opposite of what the clever people of today think it is. It arises in great simple persons and masters them and urges them on to ends that are beyond any that the conscious mind can aim at or attain.—Noyes.

ADVICE

You will be old and cautious soon enough
When the swift years have cooled your ardent blood,
So, now, remember youth is priceless stuff
And do not cheat your heart of one wild mood.
Think not you can regain this ecstasy
Each time a crescent moon drifts down the west;
Think not a smile ten years from now will be
So brimmed with poignant power to pierce your breast.

To every season certain things belong,
Age has its own peculiar traits, and youth
Is like the morning; give it light and song
That it may flower into fullest truth.
You will be very calm and wise some day,
So ride life's cresting wave, through sun and spray!

"SCOTTY" WRITES from Shannonville as follows: "I read the editorial on Burns in Saturday's edition of your paper. I also read the two verses of the poem "A Man's a Man for a' That." I do not think you did the poet justice by giving only the two verses. I also think the words "hings," "dare," "world," should be "hangs," "dour," "warld," as that is the way they are written in an old Scots copy I have. I would be glad to see in your paper if I am right or wrong." We agree with friend "Scotty" that two verses of that famous poem is not enough, but there are limitations in the space we have at our disposal, and in giving just the two verses the thought predominant was that all lovers of Robert Burns had a copy of his immortal poems and could read the whole poem at leisure. As to spelling of words, used by Burns in his poems, the office copy of Burns was a rather late edition, printed in Glasgow, and it modernizes many of the words from the original spelling. We have a copy of Burns with the original spelling and real Scotch words, with a glossary attached which explains the meaning to readers unfamiliar with Scotch terms as commonly used in the day of Robert Burns.

WHAT KIND OF WORK IS BEST FOR WOMAN?

(By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph. D.) Famous Authority on Health and Psychology)

(Copyright 1934, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

The physical well-being of a woman, as in the case of a man requires that she should work. What kind of work, however, is best for her?

What sort of activity should she indulge in, for instance, so that she may get the best out of her work as well as develop the best in herself?

The mere fact that a woman is able to perform e certain kind of work without showing any marked impairment of her health does not prove that that particular job is as good as any. Women must always be careful not to tax themselves too much.

In considering the work best suited to the feminine make-up one must necessarily consider the outstanding biological characteristic of the female, namely motherhood.

By nature women undoubtedly find great satisfaction in motherhood activities, not only in the rearing of the child itself, but also in such correlated motherhood activities as household management, cooking, cleaning, mending and the like.

There are those, on the other hand, who claim that motherhood types of work hold no attraction for them. Especially is this point of view to be met with among young girls. To a few of these indeed, the idea of motherhood, and all that goes with it, seems distinctly distasteful.

It is a great pity, to be sure, that such views are held by any woman whatsoever. That they jeopardize the future of the race goes without saying. Yet it is to be noted that when girls who are antagonistic to motherhood marry, and have children of their own, the instinct of maternity somehow takes care of the mental attitude and soon such girls are found to take a real joy and pride in all forms of motherhood activities.

Nowadays all sorts of household devices, run by electricity or gas, reduce the drudgery of the work in the home to a minimum. Many varieties of washing, cooking and cleaning machines can be bought, even on the installment plan. Yet, strange as it may seem, really comparatively few women avail themselves of these benefits. Many a woman would rather buy a new dress or hat than an electric iron.

It must be admitted, however, that not all women are liable to marry. Those who do not marry are prevented from fulfilling their inherent motherhood urges. For such women work that carries with it what might be termed substitute motherhood activities is advisable. To be sure, actual housework may be carried on by such spinsters, but the care of other woman's children, teaching, school nursing, or settlement work, offer opportunities that prove most gratifying.

What every woman should remember in particular is that nature has endowed her with creative ability on the physiological level that has its definite influence on the mind. Thus we mind that feminine gender finds real joy in work where the imagination is brought into play—in other words, where the woman can actually plan and build something all her own.

Dressmaking, millinery, weaving and the like are therefore fascinating occupations to women. Embroidering, book-binding, research work in science or statistics, jewelry work— these offer outlets for woman's creative nature.

In accepting too quickly any kind of work that offers remuneration a woman makes a great mistake. She had better be more patient and find the right kind of activity best fitted to her individual nature. Her work is really as important to her as is her health.

SAYS POWER COSTS LOWER

Nesbitt Claims $3,770,000 Saved to Belleville And Trenton

Toronto, Feb. 1—Consumers of electrical energy in Belleville and Trenton have been saved $3,770,000 in rates since the Hydro took over the Trenton Water Power and Electric Light Company, Russell Nesbitt, M.P.P. for Bracondale, told Ward Five Women's Conservative Association Tuesday night in reply to a statement made by Dr. J. Albert Faulkner, Liberal candidate in West Hastings, in a speech to Ward Five Liberals on Monday night.

The tremendous saving represented the difference in the rate charged during the past few years and the rates charged prior to 1916, Mr. Nesbitt said. Consumers in Belleville had been saved $3,150,000 and those in Trenton, $620,000. Coupled with the Conservative member's explanation of the state of affairs was an attack upon the Liberal speaker's expressed attitude towards the members of the Hydro Commission and their salaries.

"Let me show you just what has happened to Hydro rates in recent years" said Mr. Nesbitt. "The rate in Belleville prior to Hydro was eight cents per kilowatt hour. In 1930 the average cost was 1.7 cents. In 1931 it was 2 cents and in 1932, 1.8 cents. In Trenton the rate prior to Hydro taking over was seven cents. In 1930 it was 2.9 cents; in 1931, three cents and in 1932, three cents. In the rural power districts it was eight cents per kilowatt hour prior to 1929. In 1930 it was 5.13 cents.

In 1931 the cost per kilowatt hour was 5.27 cents and in 1932 it was 5.22 cents. These figures show more clearly than anything else how the Hydro has saved millions for the power users of this province."

Takes up Charge

Mr. Nesbitt took up the charge of Dr. Faulkner that the cost of Hydro service to an ordinary workingman's home in Trenton, as shown on a contract which he had displayed, was more than twice as much as it was under the operation of the privately-owned utility. According to Dr. Faulkner the cost under the Trenton Water, Power and Electric Light Company, was $10.90. Under Hydro it was $29.16.

"The contract and rates referred to are presumed to be for rural service in the Belleville rural power district and the yearly bill of $10.90 prior to Hydro would be based upon a net rate of eight cents per kilowatt hour and the consumption would be 136 kilowatts," said Mr. Nesbitt. "The statement shows that the cost of this consumer is $29.16 per annum. Without data to show how this is arrived at it may be assumed that a class 2B for rural consumers was used. Taking this class and adding a consumption of 136 kilowatt hours at four cents an hour, the total amount quoted by Dr. Faulkner would be obtained. This case is designed for the use of lighting and small appliances, and in addition, the use of an electric range. Owing to the small amount of consumption, it is quite apparent that no range is in use in this case. If a range were used the rate under the present rural plan is two cents per kilowatt hour less a prompt payment discount of 10 per cent."

"Dr. Faulkner attacks the salary paid Mr. Cooke, the chairman of the Hydro Commission," continued the Conservative member. "He says Mr. Cooke receives $18,000 a year. If Dr. Faulkner had taken the trouble to ascertain the truth he would have found out that Mr. Cooke's salary is $13,200. But of course a discrepancy of $5,000 doesn't mean much to a Liberal speaker when taking about the salary of a Conservative cabinet minister.

Has Big Investment

"Let it be remembered that Hydro has an investment of 390 millions of dollars," declared Mr. Nesbitt. "I would like Dr. Faulkner or anyone else to give me the name of any executive of a corporation having an investment of millions who is in receipt of less than the amount paid Mr. Cooke. And as proof of Mr. Cooke's popularity in his own riding of North Hastings I have only to say that he has been a member of the Ontario Legislature since the days of Sir James Whitney and has received three acclamations at the hands of his constituents. I am sure Dr. Faulkner will be pleased to tell the people of Belleville and Trenton the true facts about Hydro and its relation to the consumers of those districts."

Speaking of general provincial affairs, Mr. Nesbitt predicted a revival in the building trades industry, pointing out that numerous large buildings were contemplated for the Spring, and thousands of workmen, plumbers, carpenters, bricklayers, masons and mechanical men would be employed. The time was ripe for a huge building program and several banks were preparing to erect large office buildings he stated.

HON. JUSTICE WM. H. WRIGHT DIES AT 73

In Failing Health For Some Time And at Home For Weeks

APPOINTED IN 1923

Conducted Noted Trial, When Communists Sent to Prison

Toronto, Feb. 1—Mr. Justice William H. Wright of the Supreme Court of Ontario, and widely known as an educationalist, died at his home, 25 Parkwood Avenue, Wednesday afternoon, after an illness of several weeks. He was in his seventy-third year.

In failing health for some time he relinquished his duties at Osgoode Hall only last month and since that time was confined to his home. His condition became steadily worse, and on Tuesday night he suffered a relapse.

The funeral service will be held Friday afternoon at 2.30 in Eaton Memorial Church, with interment in Greenwood Cemetery, Owen Sound on Saturday.

Appointed in 1923.

Mr. Justice Wright was appointed to the High Court in 1923. He had practiced law prior to that in Owen Sound since graduation from Osgoode Hall in 1891. While his career there in his profession was distinguished, he having been President of the Grey County Law Association and also a bencher of the Law Society of Upper Canada, his services to the community were not limited to legal activities. For eighteen years he was a member of the Owen Sound Board of Education and had also served as chairman of the body.

One of the most celebrated trials in Canadian history, that of the seven Communists, was presided over by Mr. Justice Wright. It resulted in the outlawing of the Communist party in Canada and the conviction and sentencing of the accused. His Lordship was also a member of the Royal Commission appointed by the Dominion Government to inquire into the enforcement of Customs regulations throughout Canada.

Firm on Court Conduct

Mr. Justice Wright, from his early days on the bench, stood firm on court conduct, and at one time would allow none to enter or leave the court-room while evidence was being heard. He observed the strictest rules in regard to court procedure and would not tolerate contempt or any action that might reflect on the dignity of the Bench.

Before his elevation to the Bench Mr. Justice Wright, who was a Liberal in politics, took part in many election campaigns. He unsuccessfully contested his home riding in the interest of the party in 1917.

He was born on a farm in Grey County in 1861 and attended Collingwood Collegiate Institute. For a time he was a school teacher in Peterboro County before taking up the study of law.

In his youth he was a prominent athlete, and played lacrosse, football and baseball. Retaining his interest in sport in later life, he took up curling and golfing. His team at one time held the curling championship of Ontario. After his elevation to the Bnch he was elected President of the Ontario Curling Association.

He married Miss Agnes Green, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Green, pioneers of Owen Sound. Mrs. Wright predeceased him in 1917. There were no children. He was a member of the United Church of Canada, of the York Club, the Toronto Golf Club and the Masonic Order.

T. G. BOWERMAN, LIBERAL CHOICE FOR P. E.-LENNOX

Reeve of Athol And Ex-Warden of P. E. to Contest New Riding

PICTON, Feb. 1—(Special)—One hundred delegates from Prince Edward County and forty-three delegates from Lennox County convened at the Parish Hall, Picton, on Wednesday afternoon and unanimously selected Mr. T. G. Bowerman, ex-warden of Prince Edward County as their candidate to contest the riding in the next Provincial election. At three o'clock the meeting was thrown open to the public and the Hall was packed for the addresses that followed.

Others receiving nomination were—S. W. Tripp; Rev. Mr. Sharp of Lennox Co., Dr. G. Allison; Dr. Roblin; W. H. Benson; Alva Bowerman; W. S. Blakely; Jas. W. Clark, (ex-Warden of Lennox); Grant Sprague of Mountain View, and Homer White. Each of these made short addresses and withdrew in favour of Mr. T. G. Bowerman, who then delivered an able address full of sincerity and conviction. Mr. Bowerman pledged himself to follow Mitchell Hepburn only in so far as he will legislate in the interests of the citizens of Prince Edward and Lennox Counties. He stated, that the tax rate in the last three years in Prince Edward County had been cut almost in half. Had the same policy of economy been applied at Toronto thousands of dollars would have been saved. He spoke of his health not being of the best but asked each one present to stand and pledge him whole-hearted support and promised that if elected he would see that as far as lay in his power they would get value for every dollar spent.

Warden Amos McDonald spoke in support of Mr. Bowerman calling him, a real man and a self-made one with a fine personality.

Exhorted to Organize

Mr. J. J. Duffus, of Peterboro, President of the Central Ontario Liberal Association gave a very comprehensive and compelling address. He told the delegates, that each must organize in his own sub-division so that the Liberal party will get the support of every voter possible. Mr. Duffus blamed not the Tory party but the administration at Queen's Park and at Ottawa for the terrible debt that had been piled up—over $600,000,000.00 for which 3,300,000 people were responsible. The Conservative platform in 1923 had been "economy" but they had betrayed the people. The debt was only $291,000,000.00 when they came into power. Mr. Hepburn has promised if elected that Prime Minister and Cabinet Ministers will drive only their own cars. The Tory party has too many hangers-on—employees in Parliament Building Toronto, increased 800 in last few years. There must be a reduction in taxes and spending by the government. Mr. Duffus spoke of Prime Minister Henry addressing the people at Canadian National Exhibition and admonishing them to buy "made in Canada goods" while he drove to the exhibition in his foreign made car. He said the platform of "beer by the glass" was a cry to attract the people's attention from the major issue of economy which had been ignored. "The Liberals" said the speaker, "when last in Power in Ontario left no debt. From 1896 to 1911 they brought prosperity to Canada at Ottawa and again prosperity from 1921 to 1930." He spoke of the premier trying to disclaim knowledge of the $50,000.00 given to John Aird Jr., for no service—when $66,000.00 had been passed in cabinet and $50,000.00 used thus.

Attacks Agreements

If Mr. King had been returned to power in 1930 he planned committees to see that the surplus of the farms, orchards and gardens would have supplied the poor. He said Mr. Bennett's brow-beating manner in his visit to Great Britain caused him to accomplish nothing in the way of a trade agreement but if Mr. King had gone on the same mission in his diplomatic way he felt sure he would have accomplished much. The speaker again urged the delegates to check lists of voters and to furnish officers and vehicles in their polling divisions and to work in every way to elect the candidate they had selected.

A collection was taken to defray expenses and the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

"HEROES FOR SALE"

AND

"MY WIFE'S MOTHER"

A daring screen record of these hectic times gives Richard Barthelmess the material for his latest First National production, "Heroes for Sale," which opens today at the Capitol Theatre.

Considered one of Barthelmess' finest characterizations to date, "Heroes for Sale" also boasts a cast of highly competent supporting players each of whom is given a chance for splendid work. Loretta Young plays the leading feminine role, while Aline MacMahon, Gordon Westcott, Robert Barrat and Berton Churchill play other important roles.

On the same program a screamingly funny comedy "My Wife's Mother", a story full of mix-ups and merriment enacted by Gene Gerrard Camilla Horn (beautiful German actress) and Nancy Burne.

On the eve of his marriage to Nancy Burne, Gene is forced to shelter in his new home the ravishing Camilla Horn, who takes the part of a flighty young married woman who has been locked out of her house in a terrific storm, clad only in pajamas. Complications arise involving the young woman's husband, Gene's fiancee and his future mother-in-law, admirably portrayed by that brilliant character actress Amy Veness.

AT THE BELLE

"DESIGN FOR LIVING"

When seven accomplished artists collaborate on a motion picture the result ought to be gratifying, and it is, as revealed in Paramount's "Design for Living", now at the Belle Theatre.

The seven who contributed their great skill and enthusiasm to the comedy drama are Frederic March, Gary Cooper, Miriam Hopkins, Edward Everett Horton, Director Ernest Lubitsch, Noel Coward the playwright, and Ben Heckt, who transcribed the play for the screen.

The story is unique and absorbing. An American girl falls in love with two young musketeers of art in the Paris Latin Quarter. The men are life-long friends. A strange love affair is inevitable, and the principals resign themselves to whatever joys, jealousies and agonies may result from a three-cornered love.

But she crosses them both up by marrying a third man who offers her his heart and his name. He, unfortunately is too obsessed by his affairs to give her the love she needs, and when she realizes her mistake, she leaves her husband for her two musketeers.

"The Cracked Ice Man" is the title of the new Charley Chase comedy to be exhibited on the same program with an interesting Grant Rice Sportlight, and a clever Vaudefilm.

TREASURE NIGHT

Tonight is "Treasure" gift night at the Belle and sharp at 9 p.m. a beautiful and useful electric appliance will be given away. Nine other useful gifts will also be distributed at this time.

Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy are appearing at the Belle Saturday in their new full-length feature, "Sons of the Desert". Buck Jones in "Thrill Hunter" is the second feature offering.

HOG PRICES INCREASE IN THIS DISTRICT

Farmers of the district are seriously contemplating the formation of a glee club, with the theme song of the organization being, "Happy Days Are Here Again." All the joy that is practically spilling out of the farm houses throughout the district during the past week or so can be traced to the sudden and gratifying rise in the price of hogs, with the added expectation that beef and other commodities will also start up the incline.

According to one well known rural resident who was questioned while in the city today, the present prices for the lowly porkers are the best in three years or more, and they may still climb before they finally stop. Many of them, it was reported, are holding their animals for the expected higher prices.

"But don't take my say so that prices will go up. I'm only guessing," stated the rural dweller. "At that it would be a pretty good guess, though."

Lack of feed is bothering many of the farmers of this section, and the purchase of grain has been necessary to see the livestock through the winter. Most of the sting has been taken out of even this thorn in the side, however, by the fact that everything else looks all in the farmer's favor this coming spring.

Honor Bride and Groom

A very pleasant event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Reid, Front of Thurlow, on Friday evening, January 5th., when neighbours and friends numbering about eighty-five gathered together to honor Mr. and Mrs. Jay Purdy (nee Miss Aletha Reid), who were quietly married May 20th.

The early part of the evening was spent in social chat, games and music after which the bride and groom were presented with two large overflowing baskets of gifts and the following address was read by James Maidment.

"Dear Aletha and Jay:

Being informed of your marriage
Only just recently,
To show our appreciation
We snatch this opportunity.

Tonight many true friends
Have all gathered here
Both young and old
To wish bon voyage and happy good cheer.

We trust that your future
May always be bright,
Life's voyage be joyous
Your troubles be light.

If shadows should come
Just whistle and sing
'Twill make the clouds vanish
Untold happiness bring.

Aletha to your husband be
An amiable trusting wife
And love will ensue
The rest of your life.

Jay be a good companion
Don't get cranky or pout
Without doubt she'll be happy
When you are about.

Now on this occasion
We have brought you tonight
Several little gifts
Which we hope you will like.

Just accept these please
As slight tokens we pray
Of the love and esteem
We wish to convey.

Just kindly unwrap them
And we will stand by
To watch with delight
While each gift you untie.

(Signed on behalf of the community) James Maidment, Keith Garbutt, Roy Clazie.

Amid much merriment the different parcels were unwrapped, including silver, china, glass, linens, blankets, kitchenware and cash.

Noticeable among other valuable gifts was a hand-painted tea set from the Sherry Welding Co., of Belleville, of which the groom has been a valued member for some time, and last but not least a substantial check from the bride's father.

In short fitting speeches both the bride and groom thanked the donors and invited all to visit them in their new home. "For they are jolly good fellows" was then sung with great enthusiasm and a bountiful lunch was served by the ladies.

A second shower of a similar nature was also given the same couple on Tuesday evening, January 9th at Herchimer Hall by the friends of Belleville and Sidney when many more beautiful and costly gifts were presented and addresses read.

Lunch was also served and dancing and cards concluded the evening's entertainment.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York, Feb. 1.—Stocks greeted the new American dollar with a jubilant cheer today and intermittent buying rushes sent prices of many issues hurtling upward to the best levels of the past year or more.

All categories drew some of their best followings since the 1933 spring summer boom and gains of 1 to 3 or more points were scattered over a broad front.

The ticker tape lagged frequently. Profit-taking flurries occasionally halted the pace, but realizing was quickly absorbed and the climb resumed. Secondary bonds were bid up vigorously, although the other groups were mixed.

Shares of Homestake Mining spurted 10 points at one time. Numerous equities advanced a point or more, and those up 2 to around 3 included American Telephone, N. Y. Central, American Can, Case, Du Pont and National Distillers.

Canadian mining stocks were active in the early trading but later turned quiet. Dome and McIntyre reduced initial gains of 1 to 2 points. International Nickel and Canadian Pacific improved fractionally. On the curb Hiram Walker and Lake Shore firmed fractions to a point. Dominion government 5's moved a shade higher while other maturities were steady. The Canadian dollar was 1-8 of a cent lower at 99.37 1-2 cents.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Feb. 1.—After weeks of drifting, most of the time towards lower levels, the big gold shares broke into action on an upward trend today on the Standard Exchange, heartened by President Roosevelt's announcement of a $35 an ounce for "any and all gold". The market apparently interpreted the situation as favorable for the Canadian gold producers and practically all gold issues advanced.

Nickel moved up 30 cents to $23.50 but at noon was selling around $23.25, for a net gain of 5 cents. Noranda held better, retaining a gain of 25 cents.

The turnover in Dome, Lake Shore, Hollinger, McIntyre, Teck and Hargreaves was heavy in the first two hours and net gains up to $3 were boarded. Dome was up $2.30 to $34.80 and was holding $2 higher at $34.50 at noon. Lake Shore advanced $1.50 to $44.25, McIntyre 75 cents to $40.75, Hollinger 30 cents to $12.50, and Teck, Hargreaves and Bralorne were up 10 to 20 cents each and Pioneer 50 cents to $11.75.

The upward trend was maintained from the opening with oil, beverage and construction stocks holding a majority of gains over losses. Volume was substantial in these groups and also in Nickel, Ford A, and the distillery and brewery shares.

Developments in the gold situation were interpreted as bullish by the New York market and Toronto listings trailed along, registered gains however of more modest proportions. Goodyear Common advanced to 114 in the first hour but held a one point gain at 112 this afternoon.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Feb. 1 (CP)— Gains were general but of modest proportions on the Toronto Stock Exchange today, the market leaders refusing to get excited over developments in the gold situation although the New York Board interpreted the move as inflationary. Part of the early gains were lost in a wave of profit-taking in the second hour but at noon 39 stocks were above the last close and 12 were lower.

Interlisted leaders responded to Wall Street market's rally, Ford A added 3-8, C.P.R. 1-8 and Nickel 30 cents.

Nickel had an early rise to $23.65 but weakened to $23.35 before noon. Walkers common held a small gain while Industrial Alcohol held unchanged and Distillers Seagram traded unchanged.

The boost of 55 cents in the price for par gold gave the market an active early start and shot prices up better than $2 in some cases and while the trading in the leaders was heavy in the first two hours, it eased down later and some of the gains was forfeited.

The tendency of the U.S. dollar to firm following an early sag inspired a note of caution and the market turned dull in the afternoon. Base Metal leaders retained only about half their morning gains and in the silver group there were mild net recessions.

PROVINCIAL GOVT. BONDS

The recent Province of Ontario 4½% bond issue was taken up by investors in a few hours. The Province of Quebec, whose credit is equally good, will probably be in the market any day now with a new issue. Orders should be telephoned in to us promptly, to ensure being filled. We also recommend the bonds of the Western Provinces which can still be purchased to yield over 6% interest.

McLARNIN AND ROSS TO MEET

Bout May be Held on May 23rd With McLarnin's Title at Stake

(By George Maguire)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—(CP)—Storm clouds are gathering ominously in the hitherto rosy trail followed by Barney Ross of Chicago.

The world's lightweight boxing champion has dived headlong into negotiations for a bout with James Archibald McLarnin, welterweight titleholders from Vancouver.

The bout seems assured. It will likely be held under the auspices of a milk fund charity here on or around May 23 with Jimmy's title at stake.

Action of Ross in clamoring for a joust with Shamus immediately after whipping aging Billy Petrolle here a week ago and Manager Pop Foster's speed in indicating James will welcome the scrap, have lifted Fistiana to a new high mark since the present era of fighting depression set in.

New York boxing experts are unanimous in agreeing the bout is a "natural" and probably the best setto in sight outside of a Max Baer-Primo Carnera heavyweight brawl.

Expect Big Gate

Irish Jimmy vs Jewish Barney—"wow", the experts chorused and immediately proclaimed the fight would draw a gate of close to $250,000.00.

Columns have been and are being written about the joust even though it is months away and not definitely settled. One important step was taken when the New York State Athletic Commission heartily approved the match with a fervent wish for more like it.

However, there is one side of the matter the experts have not yet recalled. It is the fact that Jimmy has been beaten only once in his colorful career by a man who gave him weight.

Ross will likely be at a disadvantage of ten pounds for so eager was he to meet McLarnin he asked for no weight restrictions on Jimmy. The latter therefore, the bout being slated as "for the world's welterweight crown", will be permitted to weigh in as heavy as 147 pounds. Ross' fighting weight is around 134.

BASKETBALL

The Belleville "Y" intermediate basketball squad won their initial game of the season, when they downed the group leading Kingston "Y" team at the local Collegiate gymnasium by the score of 26 to 24 last evening. The game was undoubtedly the most thrilling and exciting ever played on a local basketball floor with the final result never being assured until the final whistle. In the first game of a twin bill to be presented the local Deacon A.C. Juniors experienced little difficulty in downing the Napanee kids by a 34-11 score.

The intermediate fixture, which incidentally was a regular scheduled E.O.A.B.A. game, the locals forged to the front in the first half to lead by the small margin of four points, the scoring being 8 to 4 at the half way mark. Both squads battled at even terms the second 20 minutes with the Morden-coached outfit being able to hold their advantage under the terrific strain set-up by the Limestone City cagers.

Led by Vic White, who scored 9 local points, Smith, Page, Faulkner and Wickerson all played a stellar game for the local "Y" team with Bob Elliott and Thompson carrying the scoring punch for the losers. Both squads worked themselves into a state of exhaustion during the terrific pace set all evening. The win elevates the Belleville squad into a threatening position in the group, while the losers still enjoy top place in the group standing.

In the exhibition preliminary Deacon A.C. defeated Napanee easily by the score of 34 to 11. Ostrom Cole, Henry, Faulkner and Martin shared the points for the locals, with Callaghan and Webster best for Napanee. The teams:—

Kingston "Y"—Forwards, McMahon, and Thompson; centre Currie; guards, Elliott and Shepherd; subs, Drew, McLaughlin and Pollock.

Belleville "Y" — Forwards, Smith and Faulkner; centre, Page; guards White and Wickerson; subs, Cather Weir, Atkins, Burley and McFee.

Referee—G. Laughlin, Belleville
Scorer—R. L. Brown.

Baptists—B. Orr 495; Miss B. Doolittle 470; L. Andrews 581; M. Cook 523; F. Cook 689—2758

KI-Y LEAGUE

Bagging four big goals in the initial frame the Black Hawks coasted home to a 5 to 3 victory over the O.S.D. in a regular juvenile game played in the Ki-Y League at the Arena last evening.

The winners showed more speed and combination than their student rivals during the opening canto only to have the boys from the O.S.D. stage a belated rally and all but even the count during the dying moments. Pepper, Storms and Hanna looked the best for the winners while Bostnari and Haist played well for the losing sextette.

The line-ups—O.S.D.—Rolando, Lethbridge, Hawthorne, Kowalewicz, Bostnari, Thorburn, Haist, Gallinger, Kooti, B. Hawthorne.

Black Hawks—Salisbury, Hanna, Bross, W. Pepper, Storms, Pringle, Pepper and Philps.

Referee—Cliff Howie.

TECS. ON WAY UP

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 1 (CP) — Only one point separated third, fourth and fifth place teams in the International Hockey League standings today. London's 4-0 defeat of Windsor last night left them in fifth place, one point behind Windsor who rested one point behind third-place Buffalo.

Windsor Bulldogs were blanked by Tecumsehs at Windsor in a game that showed the visitors the better team offensively and defensively. Herb. Stuart had a big night in the London net as he held the Bulldogs scoreless with the aid of the tight Rockburn-Fusie defence.

DAY BY DAY

Let's see just what may happen if the Dohertys pull through with a win over Benny Bowen's Trenton intermediates tonight. A local win will elevate the "Oilmen" into a tie with the Campbellford Maroons, thus necessitating a playoff for first position. The loser of this series would then meet the Cobourg Waverleys and providing the losers of the first playoff outscored the Waverleys they in turn would, as second place winners, again meet the Maroons for the group championship. Looks as though the boys may get out of the trenches by St. Patrick's Day.

Of course if Trenton win tonight Campbellford will be in the driver's seat, Belleville second, while Trenton and Cobourg will then be tied for third place, thus necessitating a playoff between these two clubs. So you see no matter how thin you cut it, it's still a lot of "boloney." The significance is merely this — the Maroons can be eliminated by the locals in the playoff for first place and come right back to win the group or vice versa; if you get the gist of the thing.

Naturally both clubs will be hotfoot after victory tonight as a defeat for Trenton will eliminate them while a defeat for the locals will drop them two points below Campbellford. When Belleville played in Trenton they were forced to the limit when they won 3 to 2. To date the L'Heureux-coached team have scored 16 goals to their opponents 11, having lost but one game, that being their opening home stand to the Maroons by a 2 to 1 score. Of late they have been accumulating a little more scoring punch as was demonstrated in the two Cobourg games.

At the present time Roy Covert has seven scoring points, four goals and three assists; Pete Morgan has six points, three goals and three assists; Carl Morgan has bagged three goals and given two passes, while Alex. Weir has three goals with Harry Morgan counting two. Jimmie Ethier and Jimmy McGuire have the other two counters. Recently we heard some the players making reference to their scoring records and would like to make mention of the fact that a goal tender never scores a goal, but gets plenty of praise and credit for his endeavours... "Get it, boys?"

Rainbow has been chosen as the name for the new America's Cup yacht under construction at Bristol, R.I. The British challenger for the cup series, to be sailed off Newport next September, is named Endeavour.

Instructor Ralph Morden has started another volley ball league over at the Y.M.C.A. with five local teams entered and a sixth from the R.C.A.F. Games are being played every Tuesday night. Apparently the boys are becoming 'airminded,' judging from the names adopted: There's the Eagles; Hawks; Swallows; but no Sparrows. The other three teams are called the Maroons; Golds, and 'Y' Purples.

On the surface it looks as tho' everything is not so "hotsy totsy" in baseball circles up around Oshawa. The Dukes' desertion of the C.O.B.L. has been "glared at" by the Queen City baseball authorities as they seemingly can't cut the wide swath they expected to up around "Hog Town."

As a matter of fact the Toronto baseball moguls are considering an amalgamation whereby there will be but two or possibly three senior loops operating in Toronto next summer, all within closed parks and under floodlights if you please. The Ulster Stadium crowd and the T.A.B.A. are nearer reconciliation than they have been in the past two years, 'tis said.

For the past few seasons senior baseball in Toronto has operated at a loss in their open parks. A recent movement was started in Toronto to move a senior baseball league into the Oakwood Stadium, bag and baggage. Of course there are flood lights at Oakwood, thus giving the balisters a dual break, artificial lights and an enclosed park. The same may hold good for Conboy Park. But getting back to the Oshawa aggregation it looks as though the Dukes may be glad to get back into the C.O.B.L. and before warmer breezes do blow. As a matter of fact a large manufacturing concern in Oshawa may step in and tell the Dukes where and how they're to play baseball this summer.

If such comes to pass we feel sure that the C.O.B.L. will be graced with at least five teams next summer. Maybe our guess is a little premature but there it is for the asking. And then again if five senior clubs are procured before May 1st, don't be surprised if the loop enjoys a sixth. These predictions are only following a lengthy discussion we recently heard regarding C.O.B.L. possibilities. The officials should soon swing into action on the subject, however.

Ralph Morden's cagers broke the ice last night when they downed the group leading Kingston "Y" squad. It has been many a long day since such a cage fixture has been staged locally. Both teams travelled at top speed all evening with the result that the fastest and wildest basketball game ever staged in Belleville was seen at the Collegiate gymnasium. A few struggles like that and the entire town will be talking basketball. The local Deacon A.C. juniors held a practice at the expense of the Napanee juniors, however. The score of 26 to 24 about indicates the play of the E.O.A.B.A. tilt won by Ralph Morden's Belleville team.

The B.C.I. Interscholastic hockey team won in Trenton last evening, 6-4. They look like group champions.

No More Piles

You Can End Your Awful Misery Quick Without Cutting or Salves

Thousands of Pile sufferers do not know that the cause of Piles is internal—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel.

This is the scientific truth about Piles—the real reason why salves and suppositories do not give permanent relief, why cutting does not remove the cause.

Your itching, bleeding or protruding Piles will only go when you actually remove the cause—and not one minute before. External treatments can't do this—an internal medicine should be used. HEM-ROID, the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, sold by good druggists everywhere, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, drives out congested blood, heals and restores the almost dead parts.

So why waste time on external remedies or worry about an operation when J. S. McKeown invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID with guarantee of money-back if it does not end their Piles, no matter how stubborn the case.

W. HUNTINGDON STILL ON TOP

Defeat Bethel 3-1 While Zion Hill Blanks Minto 5-0

Stirling—In spite of the extremely cold weather conditions quite a number of fans were on hand at the local rink on Tuesday evening to witness the West Huntingdon vs. Bethel encounter and the Minto-Zion Hill game. West Huntingdon, on the top rung of the group, put over another win, taking the game from Bethel by a 3-1 count, while Zion Hill blanked the Minto boys 5-0.

When West Huntingon and Bethel took the ice for the first game the chill was soon taken off the atmosphere. The game was fast throughout and was fairly clean, three minor penalties being handed out to Hudgins, Wright and Cronkright in the third period.

Scoring was opened in the initial stanza, when Mott slipped the puck past Sills, minding the Bethel twine, for the first West Huntingdon counter of the game. Although Bethel continued to threaten, the period ended with a 1-0 score.

At the opening of the second frame, referee Dainard announced that Bethel were protesting the game on the grounds that Kerby, playing on the West Huntingdon line-up, is a member of the Stirling junior O.H.A. team. The play continued and although West Huntingdon repeatedly menaced the Bethel nets, J. Fargey of the Bethel aggregation skated right through the opposition to beat the goalie, Searles, for the only Bethel counter.

Mott and Kerby worked hard and Mott added another tally before the period closed.

The third stanza [illegible]ed on with Bethel testing the [illegible]st Huntingdon nets with a regular fusillade of shots. For Bethel the forward line of Earl Dickey, Ray Dickey and J. Fargey was outstanding while Kerby and Mott were the most effective players for West Huntingdon. Mott registered his third tally of the evening before the gong sounded to wind up the game with a 3-1 score for West Huntingdon.

Line-ups:

West Huntingdon— T. Searles, goal; J. McGowan and E. Murray, defence; H. Mott, centre; Chas. Wright and S. Kerby, wings; subs, Murney Wright; F. Murray; E. Post; S. Cook; J. Bray.

Bethel—Sills, goal; E. Hudgins and Cronkright, defence; Ray Dickey, centre; Earl Dickey and J. Farsey, wing; subs, Bill Brough, Gordon Kennedy.

Referee—Ernest Dainard.

In the second game, the Zion Hill scions blanked the Minto entry by a 5-0 count. The game was a lifeless affair, lacking the zip of the previous battle and neither side seemed to get going for a real exhibition of team play.

The game opened with Zion Hill as the aggressors and they continued to press the play for the remainder of the night. Both goalies were called upon to make many saves and the period ended scoreless.

Scoring was opened in the second period by Parks who registered the only tally of that frame. Minto worked hard but failed to put their combination play into effect while Zion made many futile attempts to add to their one goal lead.

The final stanza opened with Zion raining a regular bevy of shots on the Minto nets, Parks leading the attack. Four counters were notched on the helpless Tanner in the Minto nets, three by Orley Parks, the leading marksman of the team and another by Caverley. Minto seemed likely to score on Seeley in the Zion nets at different times but the Zion goalie acquitted himself most favourably, covering himself with glory by holding Minto to a scoreless game. The play ended 5-0 for Zion Hill. The Zion team played a good game with Parks and Caverley the most effective men. As for Minto, the performance they turned in was not nearly up to their usual standard.

Line-ups:

Zion Hill—A. Seeley, goal; R. Sills and K. Denyes defence; Ross Caverley, centre; Harry Ketcheson and O. Parks, wings; subs, H. Palmer, A. Hall, R. Hays.

Minto—M. Tanner, goal; defence, H. Henderson and Jack Ketcheson; centre, George Gibson; wings, Don Reid and N. Tomlinson; subs, Jack Gibson; "Curly" Gibson.

Referee—Jim Hulin.

KITCHENER HANDS THE CATARACTS DEFEAT 3-2

Now Changes in Standings as Empires are out of Running

Niagara Falls, Ont., Feb. 1 (CP)—Out of the running as far as a playoff berth is concerned, Kitchener Empires of the Senior Ontario Hockey Association had a 3-2 decision over fourth-place Niagara Falls Cataracts to their credit today. Empires displayed some real hockey despite their occupancy of the cellar position in the standings and the win left them one point behind Varsity in second last position.

The husky defenceman Kampman was responsible for Empire's victory in the last minute of the game when he broke a 2-2 tie, scoring the winning counter on a lone dash down the ice.

Kitchener lost their tricky wingman Mackie in the tussle. Mackie went off the ice in the second session with a foot injury when only about a dozen shots were fired by the team.

A return match was planned for last Sunday but weather conditions made it impossible.

PLANS ON VIEW FOR ALL CITIZENS

"Excellent", enthusiastically commented Mr. H. J. Moore, landscape artist of Islington, Ontario, following his visit to Zwick's Island for the purpose of surveying the amount of work that has so far been carried out under his direction.

"I hardly expected, that you would have so much done", said the expert following his examination of the work.

Mr. Moore was accompanied to the island by Mr. Chas. Symons, chairman of the local Board of Parks Commission, Mr. R. D. Snell, Commissioner the Rev. Harold Reid and City Engineer Chas. A. Mott.

Following the plans outlined by Mr. Moore, the workers have succeeded in levelling the greater part of the island on the south side and will now commence the final work as outlined by the plans drawn by him. On the trip Tuesday afternoon over the island each detail was explained to the deputation, which accompanied him.

Complete plans drawn by Mr. Moore at the request of the city are at present at the office of the city engineer, where citizens are freely invited to inspect them.

LOVE'S LOTTERY

— by —

Katharine Haviland-Taylor

"Well," he answered, and roughly. He moved toward her; he gathered her into his arms; then his kisses were on her face, her throat; for a moment she tried to push him away, then she was crying hard and his face was wet from her tears. She was clinging to him; she managed to whisper, "I'm——engaged——Geoff!"

He held her away from him at that to laugh down at her——in his laugh the note of a conqueror and almost a sneer.

"To me," he stated. He went on. "As for the other—I heard. That's why I'm——here. Hedges let me in. It didn't take much bribing either. Hedges and I——know what's right for you. And I——am right for you! Know it?"

She felt, listening, that she did know it. ("Poor Terry!" she thought.) She clung to Geoffrey more fiercely. He picked her up to settle with her in a chair.

Miss Ella came in, to make a trembling, moaning exit from the room; her small, pudgy, bejeweled hands over her outraged eyes.

Terry, that night, heard the story very patiently.

"So——" he remarked, as he crushed a cigarette to nothing on a silver tray, "you say it is over?"

"It——it has to be——Terry."

"I will come to talk with you of this," he promised, "tomorrow afternoon, or——evening. If I am delayed I will telephone."

"But there's nothing to see me about, Terry, there's nothing to talk over." Cicily said surely.

"We shall see about that, child. Meanwhile, I shall run along. Pleasant dreams——"

He bowed, stiffly, from the doorway. That, from Terry, hurt her oddly. He might, she felt, have given to her hand that warm, strong pressure that it had learned from his.

After he left she sat for a long time, silent. Miss Ella, after her discovery, had gone to her room to lie there in the dark; an eau de Cologne-soaked handkerchief upon her swollen eyelids and throbbing brow. And Miss Ella, calling in Cicily had said—babbled rather—a mixture of accusations and appeals and a history of Terry's family and position, and all between hard, harsh sobs. It touched Cicily. But—her heart hardened when Miss Ella whimpered out, "You will never learn love until you have—for one moment—forgotten yourself!"

Marriage could not be based on forgetting self, Cicily retorted unsteadily. It must be started by remembering yourself and the man you would marry, or else——misery.

Now——she sat by the fire in misery; the look of Terry as he had bade her adieu, lingered. A memory of Geoff would rout it; then again it would come back. She had never thought of Terry as so hurt that he would show it. She had never imagined that she must think of him—wanting to or not.

Terry the next morning, went to Geoffrey's office. Geoffrey admitted him (after he had read the message Terry had written, in a small, round hand with those gaps made by generosity between the letters), and Geoffrey greeted Terry "as decently as possible" when he entered.

Terry laid a stick and his hat and gloves on Geoffrey's desk and Geoffrey frowned on these, the cane especially, symbol of a fop and an idler!

"Will you forgive me, Sir Terrill," he began, "for putting you off? I haven't a moment for anything beside business this morning. I'm up to the ears in work——"

"Always business in the morning?" Terry questioned suavely.

"Always," Geoffrey answered inflexibly, sternly.

"Forgive my delaying you, but——that stand, quite your code, what?"

"Absolutely."

"No use for a slacker of my type, who does a bit of business and then lives—or would live—to make his wife and children—er—happy and—to know them?"

"Frankly, no," Geoffrey answered.

"I see. Well—when, then, can we arrange to meet?"

"Certainly not until I have things out of the way here," Geoffrey stated pointedly.

"I have come to have a bit of a chat with you, you know, about Miss Eden?"

"So I surmised. But——I don't talk socially in business hours, Sir Terrill."

"Er——quite. You've not told me when you do talk, if you can—er take time for it and—er—can."

Geoffrey gave to Terry a sharp look. Englishmen, seen through his United States vision, were reputed to be slow, humorless, but he had an idea that Sir Terrill was enjoying a muted, small joke.

"Certainly I can talk!" he barked.

"Well, then—that being the case. Mr. Field—let me hear when you can talk and see me—so that I may hear you—talking you know? Talking socially!"

Geoffrey (reddening and setting his teeth—one did not knock a man down in one's own office), rang for the small creature who was still called Miss Miggs by the office, and elsewhere Mrs. Duggan.

"Please read me my schedule, Miss Miggs," Geoffrey ordered heavily. Terry put his hand up to his chin to tug downward upon it, as people sometimes do, cajolingly, when reprehensible lips have a tendency to upward twist.

Jove, the bally chap sounded like a Herod ordering that the first-born be slain, he thought.

Miss Miggs read the appointments and reminders: "Dale, one; Harkness and Fulmer, one-thirty; order flowers, Miss Eden——"

Terry smiled, and—too quickly—erased the betraying smile.

"Omit the personal," Geoffrey barked. Miss Miggs went on.

Terry sat with a masquerade of patience, which was the acme of insult. Geoffrey felt the importance of his office tottering a little and just because he realized, just because this no-good, idle, parasite of a Britisher implied that he should—actually—pause in the middle of his business day to expend his energy upon a purely personal matter!

"I am waiting," said Terry, after the disclosures had been made, "to ascertain, you know, the hours at which you talk——er, socially, I think you said?"

Geoffrey set his teeth; again he wanted to knock Sir Terrill down.

"I will meet you, where you say, at five this afternoon," he promised through set teeth.

Terry stood up to raise his cane from the desk and to swing it. "The Broadmoor, then, if I might suggest it, at five? I'm stopping there. I hope it's not out of your way?"

Grimly Geoffrey said that it was not out of his way.

"Er—by the by—might I brush around your outer office a bit on my way out? Eager, you know, to learn of methods here. Have a bit of a business of my own; nothing like the sort you chaps have here, but——a sort of business——"

"A damned lying brand of boasting," Geoffrey thought this, as his chin hardened. He knew Terry's worth and what Terry had made of a bar of soap that had been left him by his father. But, although Terry had not boasted, he had lied. He wanted to pry in Geoffrey's outer office in order to learn Geoffrey's methods of life and not his methods of business.

"Help yourself," Geoffrey stated shortly, picking up a letter and beginning to read it.

"Rotten cad,——" Terry thought, leaving, to hear his unanswered, "Er——I say——good day," echoing in the inner office.

He wandered around outside; the girls looked at him, first with interest, then with admiration. Luther, the office boy, came up to join him.

INSTALMENT 22.

Inquiry was upon Luther's engagingly frank face. The office boy had thought, sensing the Bond Street clothes and the British boots, "Where's the Prince of Wales heading?"

"Anything I can do for yuh?" he questioned and without the "sir" to which Sir Terrill accustomed used from underlings as well as from many persons who trod his own level in life.

"Your chief," Terry answered, "told me that I might look about a bit."

"Sure, help yourself. It won't cost us nothin'."

"I have a small business myself, in England," Terry went on to explain, smiling at himself as he did so. The Americans, he realized, got what they wanted and often without even expressing the want; this freckle-faced youngster had told him he was impeding traffic and had made him explain his idling.

"Guess they could take some lessons from us over there in making things hump," Luther stated surely.

"Doubtless, but we are a slow race!" said Terry, and he added, casually, "I'll wager your chief keeps his ear to the ground!"

"Say! Don't he? Look here, mister, nothin' comes between the big guy and his business. Just nothin'! See?" (Luther made an expressive Bowery gesture which brushed from the air everything but business!) "Mebbe his best friend dies on him, does he set around and sniffle in his hank'chief? Not that boy! 'Hell, that's tough,' mebbe he'll say, but the next second he's up and doin' just the same. Take it from me, pardner, he works harder'n anybody else in this here little office! He's a hog fer work. Some men they gets mixed up with the ladies, that way, you know——"

"Ah, quite!" Terry admitted.

"Not him!" said Luther. "No, sir: business first and everything else after, if there's time. If there ain't, that's all there's to it! If his girl phoned him she was dyin in the middle of a big deal, he'd let her die——"

"I believe that, you know!" murmured Terry.

"Say, bo, you'd better! There ain't no flies roostin' on my chief."

Terry quitted Geoffrey's office after having learned a good deal about Geoffrey: his helping Luther to support "the old woman", his giving "a swell wedding present to little Miggs and Duggan"; his giving to old Bleaker's daughter, her wedding——"a swell one," Luther said, which the office force had attended en masse.

Terry telephoned Cicily to tell her he would not see her until that evening, when he wished, please, to see her alone. She said, chilly, that she "presumed" she could arrange it.

Miss Ella coming into the room, elevated her first, second and third chins, to stalk past Cicily without a word. Never before in their years of closeness had her aunt refused speech to Cicily. Now, very obviously, at table she communicated what she must to Cicily through the medium of a conversation with Benson.

Cicily's eyes had brimmed often that day; they were all she thought (meaning Terry and Miss Ella), doing their best to hurt her "horribly", and for something that was not her fault.

Geoffrey was shown to Sir Terrill's sitting room at his hotel at five that afternoon. He sank sullen into a chair.

"I have been wondering off and on" (it had been mainly "off", Geoffrey's brag about his absorption in business being built of truth) "why you felt you should have the—well—right to interview me," Geoffrey began.

Sir Terrill, who had not been able to sit down—he was "a bit edgy, nervy" he owned to himself—stood with one arm on a marble mantelpiece. "It's because," he answered with disarming gentleness, "I care——well——so very greatly for——ah, Cicily, you see, Mr. Field"

"Sorry," Geoffrey stated, and less sullenly, "but you see she happened to be mine first."

"Which does not mean she will be your last," Terry said, then. There was a moment's silence.

"Would you have the goodness," Terry said, slowly and appealingly, "to outline for me your ideas of—well—fair play in life—your code, rather, you know? It will, I'll confess, influence my further conduct. If I am satisfied with your—ah—decency, we'll say for lack of a better term, I'll step from the ring, Mr. Field."

"That's infernally nervy."

"Quite, I'll admit. But, you see, I am considerably older than you and Cicily. I have for her, mixed with a deep regard, a feeling that perhaps you will indulge without comprehension; it is rather paternal, you see. Today I am looking at her as I would look at a very much younger sister, or even a daughter; she is, you know, nearly twenty-five years my junior. If I am satisfied, my heart ill smash, but—— I'll dance at your wedding and force to my lips a grimace which fools will read as a smile. And now—I wonder whether—you can be so good, so generous in this matter, as to indulge me?"

Suddenly Geoffrey was liking the tall Englishman who looked down upon him as he appealed for mercy and generosity, an Englishman who seemed at least a scant fifteen years Cicily's senior, because he had lived both carefully and well. Because perhaps, too, there is truth in that adage which says that "the light of the gods we serve shines in our faces."

"I'll answer any question you care to ask of me, Sir Terrill," Geoffrey promised.

"You are more than kind," said Terry, and very soberly. He settled into a chair facing Geoffrey's.

"What do you read?" Terry questioned. Geoffrey laughed suddenly, loudly. "My God," he confessed, "I thought we were going into my past!" The laugh wrinkles stood out about Terry's steady, gray eyes as he smiled. "No," he answered gentley. "I do not rob tombs; and, married to Cicily, such dead would not stalk for the least decent man, to suggest his making of further such memories. That sort of thing she will be saved, married to a man of any degree of fineness, but she may not be saved boredom in marrying a man who is unafraid to face his physician."

"I've been decent as men go," Geoffrey stated. "Of course there are many things I wish—undone—but as men go——"

Could Hardly Get Upstairs For Pain

Mrs. Symons Suffered So From Rheumatism

But Dodd's Kidney Pills Soon Made Her Well.

Horning's Mills, Ont., Feb. 1—(Special)—"My Kidneys were in bad condition and I had Rheumatism in all my joints, especially at the knees," writes Mrs. Alfred Symons, a well known and respected resident of this place. "I was so bad I could hardly get upstairs, but continued taking Dodd's Kidney Pills until I had used eleven boxes, and I must say they helped me in every way. I live on a farm where there is lots of work to do, and might say that Dodd's Kidney Pills have been a real Kidney medicine in our home for years, and I highly recommend them."

Rheumatism is caused by the presence of uric acid in the blood. If the kidneys are functioning properly they will strain all the uric acid out of the blood and there can be no more Rheumatism.

TARZAN AT THE EARTH'S CORE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Down into one of the gloomy aisles of the forest, Tarzan of the Apes dropped as from heaven into the astonished view of ten stalwart warriors. For an instant they stood looking at him in unbelief, then they ran forward, threw themselves upon their knees about him, kissing his hands as they shed tears of happiness. "I have work for you, my Waziri," said the ape-man. "The lizard-people are coming and with them is a girl they have captured."

"Thank fortune you are armed with rifles," said Tarzan. "Have you plenty of ammunition?" "Yes, Bwana," replied Muviro. "We have saved it, using our spears and arrows whenever we could." "Good!" exclaimed the ape-man. "We shall need it. How far are we from the ship?" Then to his dismay Tarzan learned that the Waziri also were lost, the dirigible gone and Jason Gridley evidently swallowed up in the mazes of Pellucidar's mountains or swamps.

Before Muviro could finish his story, Tarzan's keen ears heard a distant sound. "They are coming!" he warned. "I hear them," answered Muviro. "Have you seen them?" questioned Tarzan. "No, Bwana, we have seen no people for a long time; only beasts—terrible beasts." "You are going to see some terrible men now," Tarzan warned them, "but do not be frightened by their appearance; your bullets will bring them down."

"When, Bwana, have you seen a Waziri frightened?" asked Muviro, proudly. The ape-man smiled. "One of you let me take his rifle," he said, "and then spread out through the forest. Shoot to kill, but be careful of the girl who rides in front of one of them." He had scarcely ceased speaking when the first of the Horibs rode into view. Tarzan and the Waziri made no effort to seek concealment and at sight of them the leading Horib gave a shrill cry of pleasure.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 2, 1934

ACCREDITED FARMS FORECAST BY KENNEDY

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Kane, Pa., Feb. 2—(CP) — An old enmity—the eternal feud between the lobo wolf and the timber wolf—broke out at the wolf park near Kane.

New York, Feb. 2—(CP)— If groundhogs at the Bronx Zoo see their shadows today it will not mean a thing says Dr. Raymond L. Ditmars, groundhog authority. Steam heat and three meals a day have made hopeless decadents of the zoo rodents, he opines, and because of their lack of outside interest they are no good as weather prognosticators. Many believe that a shadow cast by a groundhog on Candlemas Day means six weeks more of winter weather.

Messengers Held Up and Robbed of $130,000 Near Bank in Pennsgrove, N.J.

Two Sacks of Money in Payrolls Taken at Gun Muzzles

BAND OF ROBBERS

Men Carrying Sacks Forced Against Wall of Building

Pennsgrove, N.J., Feb. 2 (AP) — Four men stole $130,000 from two bank employees today as they were entering the Pennsgrove National Bank with the money in two mail sacks.

The cash was to be used to meet the demands of the employees of E. I. Dupont, De Nemours and Co., which pays its men by cheque.

The four men escaped. The bank gong and fire siren were sounded and within five minutes 50 automobiles carrying residents of the town and vicinity started in search of the robbers.

Snow covered the roads, making travel difficult and no trace of the robbers' car could be found.

Shortly before 9 a.m. Harold Anderson, bank teller, and W. H. Waddington, bank runner, walked to the post office and obtained the two sacks.

Stepped from Car

As they reached the sidewalk in front of the bank an automobile drove up and three men, all with pistols, got out, while a fourth man stayed at the wheel of the car.

The bags were seized and tossed into the back of the car, which quickly sped away.

The license tags of the robber's car, were stolen two days ago in Camden from the car of Mrs. Bertha Jones while it was parked in front of her home.

The holdup was one of the biggest in the history of this section.

FARMPRODUCE FOR SCOTLAND

Opportunity of Shipping Back Produce on 250 Ships

It is estimated that 250 ships will load British Anthracite at United Kingdom ports for Canada during the 1934 season of navigation and the Commerce Crusaders of Belleville are now collaborating with the Minister of Shipping at London to have Canadian farm products, such as cheese, bacon, canned goods and apples served on the tables for the officers and crews on such voyages that are made to Canada with British Anthracite.

The Scotch Anthracite Coal Company of Montreal, which is owned by the Marris Export and Trading Company of London, England, has definitely assured the Trade Crusaders that they will use every effort to extend the markets for farm products in Scotland.

It is hoped the cheese makers and exporters will get ready to take care of the increased demand which will be created by these valuable contacts.

A complete list of the Crusaders will be published in a few days.

ROBERT FORKE SENATOR DIES AT WINNIPEG

Suffers Heart Trouble and in Grave Condition For Month

VARIED CAREER

Born in Scotland and Rose From Farm Boy to Statesman

Winnipeg, Feb. 2.—Senator Robert Forke, former Minister of Immigration and leader of the Progressive party in the House of Commons, died here today. He was 73 years old. The distinguished statesman had been suffering from a heart ailment and was in a grave condition for the past month.

The illness developed while he was enroute to his farm home, near Pipestone, Man., for the new year's holiday. He was immediately rushed to hospital where for four weeks he waged a stubborn battle for life. He had been in a critical, semi-conscious condition for days until the end came today.

From farm boy to statesman epitomizes the career of the man who became the outstanding figure in western agrarian movements. As an emigrant youth he left his home at Gordon, Berwickshire, Scotland, in 1882 to seek his fortune in Canada. Shortly after he arrived at Pipestone where he was to make his home.

Public life soon called him and he became a prominent figure in the little municipality that adopted him. Various political activities occupied his attention until 1921 when he entered the House of Commons.

Progressive Leader.

While he had previously experimented in provincial politics as a Liberal candidate at Brandon, in 1921. It was the general elections of 1921 that brought him to Ottawa and launched him squarely on the path that led him to cabinet rank and the senate.

In that year he was given leadership of the Progressive party in the Federal House following the resignation of Hon. T. A. Crerar. Independent support was accorded Liberal policies and in 1924 one of the chief results was maintenance of the Crow's Nest Pass rates.

In the general election of 1925 Brandon again sent him back to the Dominion House with an increased majority. He was appointed Minister of Immigration in 1926 in the Cabinet of Premier King. In the field of immigration he negotiated an agreement for extension of a reduced Atlantic rate agreement and accomplished important colonization work.

Mr. Forke resigned his portfolio on December 30, 1930, and was appointed to the Senate.

Played Quiet Role.

In the upper chamber he played a quiet role, spending much more time at his beloved Pipestone than he had been able to do during his active days as a member of the Federal House.

In 1892 he married Miss Elma C. McGregor. Three daughters were born of the union, Ethel May, Marjorie Isabel and Mary Gertrude. All were at the bedside when the end came today. Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

Woodchuck and Bear See Their Shades

Two Winters in One Year Expected After Today's Sun

"If Candlemas Day be fair and clear
There'll be two winters in the year."

Button up your overcoat. Call up the coal man and order another few tons of coal. Winter isn't over by a long shot. According to official statements today from the den of Johnny Bear and Jimmy Woodchuck, who emerged blinking into the bright sunlight which flooded the district throughout the whole day on Friday, there's going to be more winter. Just six weeks of it, according to their reliable prophecy. Then, after delivering this disheartening and sad news to a district that has been shivering through one of the coldest and longest winters on record, they turned tail and went back to their respective dens for another long and uninterrupted sleep until some time along about the middle of March when they'll again come out —for good.

JUNKERS AT 75

Dr. Hugo Junkers, famous inventor and aeroplane constructor, who celebrated his 75th birthday on February 2, still continues his daily routine of ice-skating for physical training. He was the first who built aeroplanes of sheer metal. In 1919 he established his works at Dessau, the "Junkers Flugzeugwerke A. G." which soon made his name one of the best known in the world of aviation. Junkers is one of the most powerful families in Germany.

3RD RELIGION AS PAGANISM

Fears Philosophic Dictatorship in Germany Injury to Christianity

(By Louis P. Lochner, Associated Press Foreign Staff)

Berlin, Feb. 2 (AP)—Appointment of Alfred Rosenberg as virtual philosophical dictator for the Third Reich was regarded in church circles today as foreshadowing new conflict between Nazism and church fundamentalism.

Chancellor Hitler named Rosenberg, head of the Nazi party's foreign policy division and a bitter anti-Semite to supervise the "Welt Anschauung" (world viewpoint) philosophy which is to prevail thruout Germany by government decree.

He will supervise the training of all organizations, including church bodies, taken over by the Nazi party, and opposition in the Church sees Rosenberg's appointment as a prelude to official recognition of a third religion, added to Protestantism and Catholicism.

That "third religion" in their opinion, will be a pagan one, having its roots in a Germanic cult which has been growing rapidly in the last few months.

Rosenberg is known not only as an uncompromising anti-Semite but as the author of a widely-read book "The Myth of the 20th Century" which abounds in strictures of the Christian religion.

RIGHT NAME GIVEN—IS SAMUEL ANDERSON

Sentenced to 2 1-2 Years in Kingston Penitentiary

Kitchener, Ont., Feb. 2.—(CP)—Samuel E. Anderson, resident near Belleville, was given two and one half years in Portsmouth Penitentiary in police court here today by Magistrate Weir for forgery and uttering involving about $40. Anderson, who pleaded guilty in court last week and asked for a term at Kingston if he could learn a trade there, at that time went under the alias of Donald Smith of Toronto. Today he voluntarily told the Magistrate his true name.

MILK WARRING DAIRIES MUST PAY OWN COST

Province of Ontario Won't Let Producer be Mulcted

LICENSING SALE

All Cities Must Have Pasteurized Milk Under New Plan

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 2.—(CP) —Ontario Farmers, distributors and dairies who want to indulge in milk wars will have to pay their own war debts, instead of passing them along to the long-suffering farmer, under legislation to be introduced at the present session of the Legislatur, Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture, stated today.

A system of provincial licensing of the sale of milk will be sought, he said, and under the plan all cities will have pasteurized milk. The farmer retailer will no longer be allowed to enter the city with his cans and peddle milk from door to door, to the danger of the consumer.

Problem of Health

From a health viewpoint, there is a grave danger in unpasteurized milk, Col. Kennedy said. Herds may be tuberculin tested and found free of that disease but on the other hand may be afflicted with the more virulent contagious abortion which brings undulant fever to humans. Too, the farmer peddler often undersells the dairy which is protecting the consumer by pasteurizing the dairy in turn, to protect itself turns around and cuts the price to the consumer but to the farmer too.

Naturally, this is decidedly unfair to the farmer who is selling his milk to the dairy, said Col. Kennedy, and under the legislation he is going to be granted protection. If the dairy and the others want to fight, then they must pay for their battle and not make the farmer pay the shot.

HELD FOR A $6,000 THEFT

Allegedly Appropriated to Own Use Collections Made

Collingwood, Ont., Feb. 2 (CP)—A police search, which led Provincial Constables over the greater part of Ontario ended here today with the arrest of Victor Swick, wanted in Thorold on a charge of theft of $6,000.

It was alleged, that Swick left Thorold some time ago after his employer, H. J. Dougherty, wholesale butcher, of Fonthill has discovered a shortage of $6,000. The shortage, it was claimed, arose from collections allegedly made by Swick over a period of months.

Swick was trailed by police to Niagara Falls but he managed to evade them. It was reported he had attempted to cross into the United States at Niagara Falls and Detroit but had been turned back at both points.

Soviet Balloonist Crashes

Crashing to earth from an altitude of more than 10 miles in the air, three Soviet balloonists were killed in attempting to land after they had established a new altitude record of 12 1-2 miles into the stratosphere. One of the balloonists was M. Fedoseemko, noted Soviet aeronaut. It is reported that the balloon became detached from the gondola and that the men were horribly mangled as they struck the earth at a speed of more than 200 miles per hour.

STEEL ENTERS KNEEJOINT

Piece of Drill Breaks Off And Pierces Knee-cap

George MacLaren, C.P.R. section foreman at Lens, sustained a painful accident early yesterday when a piece of steel penetrated his right knee. Mr. MacLaren was brought to Belleville on the C.P.R. afternoon train, and later successfully operated on by Drs. J. J. Robertson and Chas. Adams, who removed the metal from the knee joint.

Mr. MacLaren was following his usual duties of laying ties when a piece of steel from a drill broke off when struck with a hammer in in the hands of a fellow workman. The steel flew piercing Mr. MacLaren's knee and imbedding itself under the knee cap. The injury was first X-rayed at the surgery of Dr. Robertson, where it was ascertained that an operation to remove the metal was needed. The operation was completed at the Belleville General Hospital.

W. H. IRELAND M.P.P. TO RETURN MONDAY

Returning from St. Petersburg, Florida, where he has been resting for the past few months, William H Ireland of Trenton, M.P.P. for West Hastings, is expected to arrive home on Monday next.

The first sessional caucus of the Conservative party in Legislature, held in Toronto on Thursday missed Mr. Ireland for the first time. Mark Vaughan of Welland is acting chief whip until Mr. Ireland's return.

"Blue Ribbon" Farms with Best Cattle, Poultry, Sheep, Pigs Foreseen

Toronto, Feb. 2—(CP)—A system of "Blue Ribbon" Farms on which cattle, poultry, sheep and swine are disease-free and of top calibre is seen by Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture in the Ontario government as a solution of many of this provinces difficulties.

At present, Mr. Kennedy declared today, many farmers have their cattle tested for tuberculosis, but the more dangerous disease of contagious abortion is overlooked. Last year contagious abortion cost farmers $17,000,000 in milk supply. The disease is more dangerous to humans, causing undulent fever, although the public "hears more and sees more of tuberculosis and hence is more afraid of it," the Minister said.

The system of accrediting complete farms, instead of just the herds of cattle as at present, would bring a new standard in farming, he declared. Under the plan which he is now considering, sheep would be protected from parisiter, hogs against cholera and similar disease and poultry from ailments of any kind.

People will eat more meat, drink more milk and eat more eggs if they are certain the produce is safe he continued. And Ontario farmers are finding out daily there is a great demand for more or less certified products of the farm.

Behind Recovery of Sight is Triumph of Modern Surgery

Cardiff, Wales, Feb. 2 (CP Cable) —Henry Watson of Newcastle, 29 years old and blind since he was two looked wonderingly today on a world he had seen but forgotten. Behind his recovery was a triumph of modern surgery.

Watson lost his sight when disease attacked the corneas of his eyes, the transparent shell that protects the exposed surface. His case remained apparently hopeless until Dr. Tudor Thomas, noted Cardiff specialist, became interested in him. From his sightless eyes Dr. Thomas peeled the diseased corneas, replacing them with healthy corneas from the eyes of two persons whose sight had failed from other causes.

Widespread interest in the case brought many famous surgeons to see Watson while he lay in hospital.

450 MILLION DOLLARS FOR DIRECT AID

Huge Sum Recommended to U. S. House of Representatives

NEW SITUATION

Many Who Won't Ask Money Will Take Work

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(AP)— (AP)—An immediate appropriation of $450,000,000 to carry on the Civil Works programme and its 4,000,000 employees and $500,000,000 for direct relief was recommended to the United States House of Representatives today by its appropriations Committee.

Simultaneously, the committee released an account by Harry L. Hopkins, C.W.A. and Relief Administrator, that even with the Civil Works request $100,000,000 higher than originally intended it was improbable the C.W.A. programme would last through May.

Hopkins told the committee that unless immediate action was taken the $400,000,000 originally allotted for the C.W.A. would be exhausted on Feb. 9, and there would be no funds for that huge payroll.

The present rate of expenditure he said, had decreased to 2,650,000. week.

The Administrator testified as the head of the Federal Relief Organization that last March there were 4,560,000 families in the United States on public relief rolls representing "something over 20,000,000 people or one person out of every six."

The number of families on the Federal Relief rolls in December, he said, had decreased to 2,650,000.

In describing the Relief situation, Hopkins said:

"A strange thing happened in connection with work relief. We had been taught to believe in the study of the poor laws that, the way to get people off the relief rolls is to offer them a job, because if you give them work they will duck and run, and they will not want any relief.

"Well, just the opposite happened. We found that when we started work relief many people, fine people who could not come to us for direct relief would come for work relief, because they said it was a job."

ICE HARVEST IS NEARLY COMPLETED

Ice dealers of the city, harvesting the thousands of tons of their clear blue product from the frozen Bay of Quinte are finishing the tag end of the season this week, with only a few days more to go before their storage facilities are cramped for lack of space. One of the best seasons in years has produced a crop that for quantity and quality has not been duplicated for a lengthy period. The season and the work will end without a mishap among workers and equipment on the bay.

JANUARY NEARY SUNLESS MONTH

Not for twenty-four or twenty-five years, it is indicated by old records, has this city and district experienced such a dark and sunless January as the one which has just gone down into history on written records. Some 35 hours and 40 minutes of filtered sunshine was all that had been registered for the month. Eighteen days out of the month were a total blank as far as the sun was concerned, and were distinguished by low hung clouds, which brought a hazy darkness to the city, and sent electric light bills soaring skyward.

NO MARRIAGES DURING JANUARY

Lindsay, Ont., Feb. 2—(CP)—For the first time in several years the vital statistics for Lindsay during the past month failed to record a single marriage. Birth and deaths were average and approximately the same as in December when six marriages were recorded.

MORE WORK FOR LOCAL UNEMPLOYED

Forty extra men hired by the city works department were at work today in the business section of the city clearing the streets of Thursday's heavy snowfall. Loaded trucks were dumping their white tons in high piles on the ice of the Moira from the west embankment.

LACK OF SUNLIGHT HOLDS UP GROWTH

Plants Made Little Progress in Hot-House During January

T. Givins and Son of this city, florists, conducting one of the largest greenhouses in the city, can count a loss in their business for the month of January—and the reason was an unusual one. It was caused by the lack of sun.

"Our growing plants simply stood and drooped, standing practically dormant. We need all the sun we can get," stated Mr. Givins today.

The month of January was the dullest in years, it was pointed out.

Simple Rules prevent INDIGESTION
Eat in moderation; work and sleep with windows open; take daily exercise in the fresh air, not forgetting recreation. Do not worry. Go to bed in decent time, and enjoy a sparkling glass of Andrews Liver Salt once or twice each week.
These simple, sensible rules should keep you free from indigestion and the headaches and body weariness that go hand in hand with this disorder. They will help you to become really healthy and stay healthy, for this very natural reason:
Even though you may be regular in your habits, you may be the unconscious victim of incomplete elimination. Thousands of people suffer from periodic headaches and digestive trouble because they do not realise that regularity alone does not indicate complete functioning of the eliminative organs.
The Andrews Health Rules do assure this complete functioning. Follow them faithfully. Go to bed early to-night after a refreshing, sparkling glass of Andrews Liver Salt or take your Andrews first thing in the morning. Then bid goodbye to recurring indigestion, headaches, and body weariness, for Andrews helps Nature to purify and invigorate the whole system. All druggists sell Andrews—35c and 60c in tins—75c for the new, large bottle. Sole Agents: John A. Huston Co., Ltd., Toronto. 5

ROADS BETTER AFTER PLOWING

Belleville Leads Cities in Matter of Snowfall During Storm

Belleville led the list of cities in this district for amount of snow received during the past twenty-four hours, with an officially recorded fall of four inches, while other nearby cities lagged behind in the amount received, according to the latest report of the Ontario Motor League.

Kingston reported a one inch snowfall, Toronto one quarter inch, Ottawa one half inch, Montreal two inches, and London less than one half inch. Mount Forest and North Bay, Ontario led the Province, with a total of 6 inches downfall.

In the report the following highways were said to be blocked by the heavy drifts of snow: No. 6 Arthur to Owen Sound; No. 10 Orangeville to Chatsworth; No. 17, Arnprior to Pembroke; No. 23, Listowel to Teviotdale; No. 26, Owen Sound to Stayner; No. 4, Clinton to Grenock; No. 4 and 9. Durham to Kincardine; No. 9, Shelburne to Cookstown; No. 9, Arthur to Walkerton; No. 8 Stratford to Goderich.

Roads throughout this immediate section were reported passable today by stage and bus drivers.

MARKED DECREASE IN NUMBER OF TRANSIENTS

Long Cold Snap Keeping Many Off The Highways

The recently released statistics from the local police department show that during the month of January 1934 there was a marked decrease in the number of transients to require a night's lodging over the same period of one year ago.

In January 1933 exactly 520 transients were afforded warm quarters in the local police station for sleeping purposes. The same month January, this year shows that but 403 transients applied at the sergeant's desk asking to be quartered for the night. In the first month of the year these figures show a decline of 117 weary travellers.

Thus far this year the majority of those to apply for warm sleeping quarters in Belleville have been British subjects, either being born in Canada or the British Isles. A marked falling off of foreigners has been noted of late.

On the night of February 1st., 15 cold and shivering transients were given warm quarters in which to sleep. This number is the largest of the present week. All during the recent sub-zero weather the numbers of transients roaming the highways has diminished to a point where but a few were afforded a night's lodging earlier in the week.

CONSOLIDATE TOP POSITION

Tweed Juniors Defeat Madoc 8-3 For Fourth Straight Win

Tweed—Tweed Juniors consolidated their position at the top of the Trent Valley Junior League by virtue of a clean cut 8 to 3 victory over Madoc juniors on Wednesday night. This win gives them a standing of four wins and no losses to date, with a total of 25 goals for and 6 against. The locals looked smart in their new sweaters and sox, a uniform made possible largely through a generous donation from Tweed Foundries, Limited. The crowd was augmented by a large number of the fair sex, who because of the policy of the management to admit them free to all gams in which the juniors participate showed their appreciation by their attendance.

The game was probably the best seen at the arena this season.

The line-ups:

Madoc—Goal, Nickle; defence, West, Ashley; centre, Alexander; wings, Armstrong, Akey; subs Keller, Tebury, Hailstone, Ross.

Tweed — Goal, McCutcheon, defence Arber, LaFontaine; centre, Rashotte; wings, Maguire, Cotton; subs, H. Leal, W. Leal, Marsh, Shanques, McCrea.

RURAL MAIL CARRIERS STUMPED BY DRIFTS

Horses Used to Make Rounds On Very Bad Roads

King Winter scored the second goal of the season over rural mail carriers in this district on Thursday. Almost beaten by the high drifts, which piled and banked on the concession roads, many of the carriers were hours late in covering their routes, it was reported. Side roads even now are almost impassable to traffic, except for the sturdy teams or single horse hitched to a light cutter.

Cars have been useless since the start of the storm so the faithful couriers have parked the machine and depended on the less temperamental horse to make the rounds. Added to their official duties at the present time are other ones. The majority of their customers have been almost isolated in their farm homes for the past day or so and have been depending on the mail carrier to bring them not only tobacco, papers and magazines, but bread and other groceries besides.

POLICE COURT

No arrests were recorded at the local police station during the past 24 hours. A local resident paid a fine of $15.00 and costs for a breach of the L.C.A. while another similar charge was enlarged for one week when both parties appeared before His Worship Magistrate Mikel Friday morning.

A slight motor accident was reported by the Traffic Officer on duty and happened about six miles west of Belleville early yesterday morning when a large transport skidded into the ditch after striking a large snow drift, that had obstructed its path. No damage was reported but it necessitated the use of a tow truck to remove the transport from the ditch. No motor accidents were reported in the city during the past few days. Harry Mooney, of the Trenton Airport was charged with the malicious destruction of property yesterday afternoon. His case was enlarged for one week.

Flint, Wallbridge, Robertson Favored as Names for Park

Former Leading Citizens Recalled by Present Day Resident

A citizen of Belleville for many years has offered the names of three former Belleville residents as worthy of having public places named after them. He says in regard to Zwick's Island Park:

"If it is to be called after the citizen, who did most for the city and district it would be after Hon. Billa Flint. More than 70 years ago he built a home for himself that in appearance and surroundings has not been equalled to this day and is practically the same as when built.

"He built a saw mill, wharf and docks in the west harbour and gave employment to many men.

"He built up the village of Bridgewater, its large boarding house, stores, milk, marble church and school.

"He also built the village of Flinton, store, mills, shops, etc.

"He was the first merchant in this district to pay cash for produce.

"His place of business was the large three storey building on Bridge Street East.

"Next I would place the Wallbridge family, who built and worked mills at Shannonville, Plainfield, Holloway, The Rapids, and also built the foundry and machine shops on Pinnacle St.

"Another citizen who did much for Belleville was Ex-Mayor Alex. Robertson, M.P. He removed a number of small, unsightly frame buildings and erected the East and West Robertson blocks on Front Street and the block adjoining."

LARRY GAINS MAY GET BOUT

New York, Feb. 2 (CP)— Larry Gains, the Toronto negro heavyweight, is a leading candidate for a bout with Primo Carnera in Rome next Fall. Louis Richard Soresi, manager and financial adviser to "Da Preem" let that much be known today.

When the mountainous Italian took his heavyweight title into the ring in the ancient capital last October against Paulino Uscudun 70,000 fans, including Premier Mussolini, flocked into the stadium. The crowd set a record for Italy and the take at the gate, what in Italian lire would amount to $100,000 set another record.

Mussolini was so impressed with the spectacle, which included the chopping down of Uscudun by Primo, that he said he would like to make it an annual affair. And Carnera having grossed the equivalent of $34,000 to his afternoon's punch-throwing, Signor Soresi was very willing.

Soresi's present plan is to have either Gains or Max Schmeling meet the Ambling Alp in Fascist Stadium this Fall.

124 Gallons Per Day Used Per Person from Waterworks

Annual Report of Department Given by Manager

Let your mind stray for a moment and conjure up in fancy a very black and a very imposing pile of coal, weighing somewhere in the neighborhood of 3,000,000 tons. Let it wander further and figure out how long it would take to walk around it—to climb it. It is more coal than the average man sees anywhere in a life time.

Or if you like statistics: Figure for yourself a tank towering two miles into the air, one hundred feet square. Turn on an ordinary tap and see how long it would take to fill it with water.

But, don't check too closely. These are only approximate figures. They merely show the approximate—also—quantity of water that has been sent through the taps to boil the morning coffee, bathe the baby, do the family wash and a few other odd chores in local homes during the year 1933.

Belleville residents must do a lot of washing or a lot of drinking, where water is concerned. Even with figures far lower than last year than in previous years, just 124 gallons per day were used per person during the year. And they washed less or drank less in November, 1933, which was registered as the lowest month. July over-reached itself, however, in the matter of consumption and set the record for the year. It was hot in July!

In the annual report of the Belleville Waterworks Department for the year 1933 submitted by Manager E. T. Austin other interesting figures are given.

Enough Pumped to Make Lake

For example last year was the lowest year according to pumpage, probably on record. During the 12 months of one year not long ago over one billion gallons were pumped through city mains. During 1933, if you like figures, the total number of gallons were given at 659,945,000. Enough water to make a fair sized lake.

That tangy taste you might faintly notice in the water some times, madam, is merely chlorine. A total of 5,980 pounds were sifted into the supply during the twelve months, just to make sure that lurking germs were disposed of before they reached you. The total sounds big, and that's a lot of chlorine, but when compared with records of waterworks departments of other cities it appears almost negligible. Belleville uses less than many cities in the Province and just about half of what the other cities need to create a safe supply—Ottawa, for example is far ahead of this city in chlorine usage.

The other compound you know is in the water, too—or didn't you?—but can't taste, is alum. In order to hasten precipitation, and allow heavier particles in the water to settle, a total of 73,981 pounds were used. But it is tasteless and harmless, and necessary.

We get down to fine figures again on these substances. The main reason you can't taste the chlorine in the water, except at certain seasons, when considerable surface drainage from the land may discolor and contaminate the water of the Bay of Quinte, or there is considerable algae present, is because the chemicals are used so sparingly. Chlorine, for example, is used at about the rate of 8 pounds per million gallons. You taste the alum less because for the same number of gallons, according to the report, only three-quarters of a grain of that substance is needed.

Wash Filter Beds Often

There is one more operation at the local filtration plant which guarantees your water pure and sparkling. Attendants at the plant are very careful about the manner in which they care for the filter beds. They're particular about back-washing them—clearing them of all the foreign matter which is [illegible] after each filtering. During the year the filter beds were washed 959 times. This is an operation in itself.

If you'd like to view the exact pumpage by the month during the year figures are reproduced below:

	Gallons
January	57,455,000
February	53,369,000
March	57,141,000
April	49,169,000
May	52,632,000
June	65,920,000
July	71,172,000
August	55,853,000
September	50,389,000
October	47,958,000
November	45,193,000
December	53,387,800
Total for year	659,945,000 Gallons
Average daily consumption	1,806,069
Per capita consumption	124
Highest daily consumption, July 31	2,829,000
Lowest daily consumption, Nov. 5	1,188,000

BANDIT PAIR LOSE MONEY ON HOLD-UP

Guelph, Ont., Feb. 2—A pair of bandits who are actually out to the extent of $8 as a result of the holdup of McCloskey's Service Station on the Elora road last night were still the object of a police search today, after a hunt for them in a raging blizzard last night proved unsuccessful.

The bandits armed with three revolvers, held up Joe McCloskey, after they had purchased five gallons of gasoline. They tendered a $10 bill in payment, and had only received 72 cents of their change when McCloskey's brother, Tom drew up with his car, and the thugs fled. Joe McCloskey picked up a hammer when the bandits told him to "put the money in a bag and hand it over," and apparently the hammer, and the sight of a huge police dog kept in the service station, discouraged the pair.

They drove 25 yards in their car, when it turned around, and shot into a fence. Tom McCloskey drove the nose of his truck against the running board, and the men jumped out, fleeing to the C.P.R. tracks and disappearing into the blizzard.

MISS ELSIE CARVER IS PRAISED BY OFFICIALS

Telephone Operator Gives Efficient Service in Capture of Bandits

Memories of a daring daylight attempted hold up of the Wellington branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce on October 11, last, are revived with the following tribute paid Miss Elsie Carver, telephone operator at Wellington, reprinted from the current issue of the official organ of the Bell Telephone Company "The Blue Bell":

"Efficient service on the part of Miss Elsie Carver, telephone operator, resulted largely in the capture of two bandits who unsuccessfully attempted to rob the Canadian Bank of Commerce at Wellington.

"Miss Carver remained coolly at her post during the exciting events of that day. Police were on the scene a few minutes after the hold-up occurred, thanks to prompt telephone service. In the subsequent manhunt that followed, this clever young lady upheld all the company's traditions by maintaining direct communication between police and local officials. Too much credit cannot be given Miss Carver for the important part she played in the capture of the bandits."

LITTLE BROTHERS TO BE TRIED IN SPRING

Arraigned But Did Not Plead and Released on Bail

London, Ont., Feb. 2. — Trial of Senator E. S. Little and his two brothers, Arthur Little of London and Walter H. Little of Winnipeg, against whom true bills involving seven charges of theft, fraud and conspiracy were returned by the grand jury here, will take place at the spring assizes opening here on March 12.

The three men were arraigned before Mr. Justice Patrick Kerwin at the winter assizes yesterday afternoon and remanded for trial. The accused reserved their pleas until their trials and were granted bail of $10,000 each.

The grand jury returned the true bills Tuesday. The charges result from the operations of the Robinson, Little and Company Limited. The bills charged conspiracy to defraud the shareholders of the company and conspiring "to steal the property" of the firm.

A. T. Little is charged with theft of $80,000; E. S. Little with theft of $150,000 and Walter Little theft of $80,000, alleged to be the property of the company.

CITIZENS WARNED TO CLEAN WALKS

Second warning of the year was given today by the office of City Engineer Chas. A. Mott to tardy residents who neglect to clear their walks of snow after each fall. Consistent offenders in this matter have taken little heed of past warnings, and it is indicated that strict measures will be taken. Under a city bylaw, it is pointed out, this work may be done and the costs can be assessed against owners of lots and homes.

Attention was also called to the fact, that curling snow caps on the eaves of downtown buildings are also included in the above bylaw. Owners of downtown buildings were warned today by the city engineer to take action in this respect.

A REAL GOD-SEND says GASTRIC SUFFERER

A London, Eng., Specialist's Formula

"Maclean's is a real God-send, and I who knew what agony it was to suffer with stomach trouble recommend it as the finest thing in the world for this complaint." This heartfelt tribute comes from a Stratford, England, man, who had been reduced to "a bundle of nerves" from years of suffering with Gastric trouble.

The remedy to which he refers is the formula of a famous London, Eng., stomach specialist. It is called Maclean Brand Stomach Powder. To thousands of chronic sufferers from Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Flatulence, Gastritis, Acidity, Heartburn and stomach trouble generally, here in Canada as well as in England, Maclean Brand has brought blessed relief.

HOUSE STANDS ADJOURNED

Honor Memory of Five Members Who Died Since Last Session

(By Jack Hambleton)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

TORONTO, Feb. 2.—(CP)— The Ontario Legislature stood adjourned today in memory of five of its members who have died since the last session. Premier George S. Henry, Dr. George A. McQuibban, new Liberal House Leader and Harry C. Nixon, Progressive Chieftain, joined yesterday in paying a striking tribute to the memory of Hon. J. D. Monteith, Minister of Labor and Public Works; Hon. E. A. Dunlop, Provincial Treasurer; F. W. Elliott, Liberal Financial critic; Fred Skinner, Conservative, of Leeds, and Phil Henry of East Kent.

Formal debate opened with Arthur Ellis, Cons. Ottawa South, moving the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne with a defence of the Hydro Electric Power Commission and of the Government in its actions on behalf of the unemployed and the people generally. He was followed by the seconder, Dr. H. J. Davis, Cons., East Elgin, who paid tribute to the Department of Agriculture for its efforts in obtaining wider markets for Ontario's farmers.

Referred to Change

In passing, Mr. Ellis referred to the recent change in Liberal House Leadership by complimenting W. E. N. Sinclair, K.C., former holder of that position, for standing by the courage of his convictions and "putting the people above his party". Mr. Sinclair was removed from leadership recently because of his failure to come to an agreement with Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P., Provincial Party Leader.

There had been repeated criticism of Hydro, ever since its inception, said Mr. Ellis, twice investigations had been held at the request of Opposition Groups, and each time the results had proved Hydro's affairs were being administered in the best interests of the people. Rates to consumers had been cut drastically, and the commission had saved millions of dollars for the people.

Dr. Davis pointed to the strides which had been made in marketing Ontario goods in England, and declared a wide market still existed for bacon. However, there should be changes in grading, he thought, in order that Ontario farmers should get the best possible prices.

Marmora, Feb. 2 (Special) —In the early hours of Tuesday last Mrs. Maria Doyle, relict of Bernard Murphy entered into rest at her home in Marmora township at the advanced age of ninety years. The late Mrs. Murphy was highly esteemed by a large circle of friends for her many fine qualities. Despite her advanced years, she was able to take an active interest in things in general and retained a keen sense of humor.

She is survived by her five children, Ira at home, John of Edmonton, Mrs. Della Quinn at home, Mrs. J. P. McGuire of Lawrence, Mass., and Mrs. James Arthurs, Vancouver. A sister, Mrs. Martha Doyle resides in Belleville.

AEROPLANE BECOMES AN AIR AMBULANCE

Indian Girl, Badly Burned is Rushed to the Hospital

PORT ARTHUR, Feb. 2.—(CP) —The moth aeroplane of Father Coulture, Northern Ontario's "Flying Padre" was transformed into an air ambulance today and little Vernik Wawie has a chance for life.

The 13-year-old Indian girl was painfully scalded on arms, back and head when hot water spilled at her Gull Lake home, on Northern Lake Nipigon.

John Vasseau made the mercy flight in one hour and 20 minutes. Under normal method of travel, by dog team, the journey would have taken a week.

His Shadow Controls the Weather

"Hello, folks and friends . . . This is Johnny Woodchuck addressing you . . . in the most approved fashion this time. It's just the little annual talk I'm supposed to give each year on my forecast of weather conditions for the next six months . . . although why they pick on me all the time, I'm sure I don't know. Well, stick around for a minute and I'll make it brief. I'm tired . . . and sleepy . . . and I want to go back into that cosy little den for a few weeks' more sleep . . . There! I gave it all away in one breath! Well, I suppose, friends, that you're glad I came out and didn't see my shadow. Confidentially, it's all a joke . . . It doesn't mean a thing, but I have to go through with it each year or I'd get in wrong with the people and newspapers. So I'll predict that the worst of the cold weather is over . . . We might, however, get more snow . . . Then again it might get cold . . . I'm not one of your Belleville city hall weather experts, so I can't really say . . . Ho, hum . . . I'm sleepy and tired . . . That's about the best I can do, folks . . . Well, so long . . . I'll be seeing you in about six weeks . . . ho, hum . . ."

Confectioners Protest Sugar Tax as Heaviest Food Burden

Sugar Costing $1.50 in Cuba Costs $6.60 in Canada

Sugar bears the greatest percentage of tax burden of all Food commodities, according to Canada's leading confectioners, who met in Toronto recently to register objection to the excessive taxes and duties on their principal raw material. It was pointed out that refined sugar can be purchased at $1.50 a hundred pounds in Cuba, but that it would cost the Canadian manufacturers around $6.60 a hundred pounds to lay it down in their factories. The difference of nearly 350 percent is made up almost entirely of duties, dumping duties, the special sugar tax, and sales tax.

It was pointed out that to load such high duties and taxes on a fundamental food product was particularly unjust, both to the sugar-using manufacturer, and to the Canadian housewife. The high duties, totalling nearly 200 percent, aimed to protect Canada's few sugar refiners, have always been borne philosophically, but the additional two cent excise tax placed on sugar when the 1933 budget was brought down, is regarded by the Confectionery manufacturers as a gross injustice and imposition. It is working a terrible hardship on many Confectioners. Chocolate bar and penny goods manufacturers, with products of uniform size and price, find it impossible to pass any of the additional cost on to the customer, and are obliged to absorb the loss. Many confectionery houses have been losing money, or barely breaking even, during the past four years, and the sugar tax has aimed an additional blow at a very important group of Canadian Industries, that is having a disastrous effect.

The Confectionery, Biscuit and Chocolate Industries of Canada, National association of the industry, has decided to ask the Government to remove the Excise Tax on Sugar when the 1934 Budget is brought down. It will be suggested that if the government feels it must secure revenue by excise taxes it should do so by distributing the tax load in a more equitable and less burdensome manner among several products.

Those present at the meeting included F. T. W. Saunders, J. S. Fry and Sons, Limited, Montreal; E. Littler, Walter M. Lowney Co. Limited, Montreal; Wm. THREE APPEAR FOR VAGRANCY

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 2. — Harry Banwell and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stenson will appear in police court next week on vagrancy charges, placed by police in connection with their alleged failure to report the death of five-months-old Doreen Stenson, suffocated in bed.

A coroner's jury under Dr. Geo. A. Hassard last night found the child's death was caused "by either Mrs. Stenson or Banwell lying or rolling on the baby while in bed."

Police alleged that they failed to register the death and burial of the baby. The child died on or about Nov. 21, police claim. The body was removed from a shallow grave in the yard behind the home of Banwell's parents.

Banwell is alleged to have taken the baby a week after its death and buried it in his yard. Mrs. Stenson testified at the coroner's inquest she went to bed with the baby. She said she awoke to find Banwell under the covers, clothed. Mrs. Stenson said she then went into another room. The next morning she discovered the baby dead, the woman testified.

It was testified the baby's body was kept in the Stenson home a week before buried. Difficulty in explaining the baby's death was given as the reason the facts were not made known at the time.

STORMY SESSION OF O.M.E. CLOSES

C. A. Maguire Re-elected Despite Efforts to Have Him Removed

Toronto, Feb. 2—(CP)—Delegates to the annual convention of the Ontario Municipal Electric Association were homeward bound today after one of the stormiest meetings in the organization's history. C. A. Maguire, veteran Hydro Commissioner of Ontario, still held the President's post despite attacks made by delegates during the three-day meeting.

During the course of the convention when discussion of a new constitution was before the delegates a suggested change in the resolution would have barred Mr. Maguire from the association and also caused elimination of the veteran secretary, T. J. Hannigan. This change, however, was not approved.

Last night H. O. Hawkes charged Mr. Maguire with controlling the nominating committee of the association. Mr. Hawkes further charged Mr. Maguire had called an executive meeting "to pass a resolution sent by the Hydro Commission supporting the commission in the stand, that Hydro salaries should not be published." Mr. Maguire denied Mr. Hawkes' charges.

Mr. Hawkes, a Galt Commissioner, was dropped from the executive of the association by the nominating committee.

A. E. Willard, another Galt Commissioner, read a letter written by T. J. Hannigan, secretary, which Mr. Hawkes and Mr. Willard described as "a dirty slur and a deliberate insult." The two men also declared the letter apparently was "the kind of stuff we pay a man $5,500 to write."

PROVISIONAL BOARD OF DIRECTORS NAMED

P. E. County Hospital Board Will Now Frame New By-laws

At a special general meeting of original subscribers or members of Prince Edward County Hospital on Tuesday evening last, a provincial Board of Directors was elected whose duty it will be to frame a set of by-laws to be submitted as soon as possible for the approval of the "original subscribers or members." At this subsequent meeting, permanent Hospital Board (for one year) will be elected in accordance with the provisions of the by laws which shall have then been adopted.

The above procedure is in line with the advice of Solicitor F. [illegible] Ward. He explained the necessary steps of re-organization, which are those followed in the organization of all Companies, as set out in the Ontario Companies Act and its amendments. This Act applied to the hospitals of the Province which are also covered by a statute with the title of the Public Hospitals Act. By-laws adopted must receive the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, said Mr. Ward which is a special provision applying to hospitals.

Those who constitute the provisional Board of Directors and who will have the task of framing the by-laws are Magistrate A. E. Calnan, chairman, W. H. Benson, E. B. Purtelle, Dr. Morley Currie, H. D. Cleminson, W. Alex. Wright.

PARRY SOUND MEMBER DIES

Toronto, Feb. 2—(CP)—The Ontario legislature, honoring the memory of five of its members who died during the recess, today counted the loss of another, Dr. George Vernon Harcourt, Conservative member for Parry Sound. Dr. Harcourt died suddenly last night from heart disease.

Dr. Harcourt was present at yesterday's meeting of the legislature at which it was decided today should be set aside as a period of morning for those who had died since the last session. He was preparing to leave for his home in Powasson, when he suffered his fatal seizure. Before a doctor could reach him he was dead.

Elected first in 1923 for the constituency in which he had practiced medicine for almost 40 years, Dr. Harcourt had represented Parry Sound ever since.

He was born at Port Hope 59 years ago, receiving his education there and at the University of Toronto. He established his first practice at Elk Lake and later became one of the most widely-known physicians in Northern Ontario. His sister, Mrs. Sarah Storey of Port Hope survives him.

COLDS

Some people wonder why they have a cold nearly all the time, while other people seldom contract a cold. The answer is simple, the people who are subjected to colds are in a run-down condition and the people who do not take cold easily, being in a better state of health are able to resist colds.

If your present state of health is not as good as it should be, a course of chiropractic treatments will restore your health and you, too, will be free from colds.

LOST 13 POUNDS OF FAT

In Nine Weeks

Lost Puffiness Under Eyes —Found New Health —Kruschen Again!

The insidious thing about fat is its nature to creep on steadily . . . stealthily. Here is a woman whose weight card was a saddening record of ever-increasing poundage. She writes: "I was nearly desperate." There is the dark side of her story. Now you will be interested to hear the happy sequel. Read her letter in full:—

"I do not usually write letters of this sort, but I am so pleased and happy that I simply had to let you know about my reduction in weight after taking Kruschen Salts for only nine weeks. I had taken various pills and tablets without any satisfactory results, and now I have lost 13 lbs. of fat and also regained my health—which had suffered greatly by my previous experiments at reducing. I was 155 lbs. and nearly desperate about it. I simply cannot diet and have not done so; instead I have squeezed the juice of a lemon into the glass of hot water and taken it with Kruschen Salts on rising. Now I am delighted to see the weight card has registered 141½ lbs., not only a reduction of weight, but it seems a new lease of life. I have already lost the puffiness under my eyes and my skin is clear and fresh; Kruschen Salts should take the place of tonics and all skin beautifiers too."—Mrs. F. P.

The formula of Kruschen represents the ingredient salts of the mineral waters of those European spas which have been used by generations of over-stout people to reduce weight.

Kruschen combats the cause of fat by assisting the internal organs to perform their functions properly—to throw off each day those waste products and poisons which, if allowed to accumulate, will be converted by the body's chemistry into fatty tissue.

Kruschen Salts is obtainable at all Drug Stores at 45c. and 75c. per bottle.

S. J. HUNGERFORD

Appointment of Mr. S. J. Hungerford to the presidency of the Canadian National Railways after a period of eighteen months as acting president, comes with great satisfaction to the seventy-five thousand men who are employed on the National system, who respect and honor him.

His story is the rise of a man who has been thoroughly "through the mill." His accomplishments during the past year and a half in the vice-presidency are such as to create confidence that the gifts he has displayed in the past years of service with the lines will find the fullest opportunity in their presidency.

There are executives and there are executives and Mr. Hungerford, while possessing the qualifications of all good executives has something many of them lack, a thorough acquaintance as a result of hard work with every detail of the system. In 1886 he trudged along with his dinner pail to the Southwestern Railway shops in Farnham, Quebec, when he began his career as an apprentice. In time he became a machinist and for the next forty-eight years he was climbing until today he heads the largest railway system in the new world.

Little did the boy of tender years earning eight cents an hour for ten hours a day or four dollars and eighty cents a week realize that his study at night or at lunch hour would lead him to the presidency, but that is what has happened. When other men unknown to the world today were playing football or baseball in those early days, young Hungerford had his book open, learning the details of the system. Today he knows the story from the days of the wood-burner locomotive to the present giants.

Wherever he went it was the same story—thoroughness in the job. Today Mr. Hungerford is sixty-one years of age, he looks back on a past rich in labor and satisfaction and forward to greater achievements.

In 1894 Mr. Hungerford was a changeman for the C.P.R. at Windsor Station, Montreal.

In 1910 Mr. Hungerford joined the Canadian Northern Railway at Winnipeg, as superintendent of rolling stock, and five years later he moved to Toronto in the same capacity. Two years later he became general manager of eastern lines for the Canadian Northern and in 1918 when the Canadian National system began to take form through the joint operation of the Canadian Northern, Canadian Government and National Transcontinental Railways, Mr. Hungerford was appointed assistant vice-president of the operating, maintenance and construction department.

In 1920 when the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway was brought into the Canadian National fold, Mr. Hungerford was appointed Vice-president, operating and maintenance department, and in 1922 the title and duties of general manager were added to those he already carried. In 1923 Mr. Hungerford came to Montreal as vice-president in charge of operation, maintenance and construction of the present Canadian National system, and on the retirement of Sir Henry Thornton in 1932, he was appointed acting president, effective July 20th.

Thus in 48 years Mr. Hungerford climbed the ladder from apprentice to president of a railway system with more than 23,000 miles of line in Canada and the United States, with its telegraphs, hotels, steamships and other services, the largest railway system in America.

IMPROVING THEIR IDLE TIME

Educational influences have been among the good results of the hard times of the past four years. The large number of unemployed men congregated in the larger cities of Canada in recent winters has presented an unusual opportunity for organized educative and recreative activities. The Day Shelter at Montreal is an example and during its second year of operation its success brought direct inquiries from sixteen states of the United States and five provinces of Canada.

The shelter's work began in an old school, renovated for the purpose. It is open from October to May and is used by more than 10,000 men. Rough tables and benches were made by the men and on the ground floor were games, on the second reading rooms and library and classrooms, and the third floor as a theatre.

Performers for the theatre were drawn from the men themselves, among them many skilled artists. In the spring the grounds were used for games. Classes have been held daily in French, English, arithmetic, bookkeeping, drawing, show-card writing, first aid, mining and geology. The shelter paid postage on the letters written by the men.

Boot-repairing, clothes mending, and first aid were taught in the second winter. Donations provided material for the first two departments. Of the 5,000 men examined in the first aid department 128 were sent out for hospital treatment. A "barber" college nearby was glad to receive customers from the shelter for the student barbers to practise on.

THE PURPOSE OF LIFE

Through all the universe it runs,
From atoms up to stars and suns;
By time's vast changes undeterred,
By floods unquenched, by flames unseared,
Still strongly pulsing through all strife,
The purpose which is back of life!

Along earth's earliest rocks it crawled,
And in the warm slime crept and sprawled;
It glimmered through the mud and steam
Of that strange Palaeozoic dream,
In later fossils left behind
The record of its growth we find.

And now today in creatures proud
Who seek the truth with heads unbowed,
Out of the night of aeons gone
The purpose struggles toward the dawn;
More clearly still we trace its course,
That lifts man nearer to his source!

DURATION OF WINTER is said to be decided by the bear and his shadow, if any. The bear or groundhog, or woodchuck, according to what section of the continent you happen to be in, has a definite date to wake from his hibernation sleep and stroll outside for a look at the weather, hoping no doubt for an early spring. Likewise circus folks wake from their hibernation period, but have no definite date, consequently the voice of Dexter Fellows, Prince of Publicity Agents for the Big Top, floating over the air Tuesday evening in the Lowell Thomas broadcast was as a breath of spring and a whiff of sawdust to his many friends all over the Big Time. Dexter's voice was sure and certain assurance that the "Show must go on" and those who feared that the day of the Greatest Show on Earth had ended need fear no longer—whether it is Barnum or Bailey, Forepaugh or Ringling, or some other name, the Big Show goes on forever, and Dexter Fellowes is getting his big stories together to be ready for the Grand Opening in the Spring at Madison Square Garden when the hockeyists vacate. Clyde Beatty is already making publicity for the Big Show, and at Cleveland this week where he is appearing at the Shrine circus two of his big cats fought to the death in the steel arena in full view of the cash customers, while Clyde risked his life trying to separate them and keep the rest of his class of lions and tigers from starting a free-for-all. Clyde lost a full grown lioness and also his shirt but added considerably to his reputation for fearlessness and premier animal trainer of the world. Also the customers who had nerve to watch the fight sure had the thrill of a lifetime.

BELLEVILLE CHEESE AND APPLES are making a hit over 'Ome, just as British coal, Scotch and Welsh is making a hit with us. Strange that we should have been strangers so long. Only recently have we become acquainted with the superior quality of British coal, which is certainly wonderful fuel. Strange also that some parts of England, Scotland and Wales where the good coal comes from should never have heard of the high quality of Belleville cheese and apples. However, they are hearing about us now as a result of the Central Ontario Commerce Crusaders campaign, and our brothers overseas are willing and anxious to trade us all the coal we can use for cheese and apples. Rather odd combination, cheese and apples, eh, what? but who has not heard of apple cider, cheese and doughnuts?

"A CANADIAN APPLE A DAY, keeps the doctor away," is a very good slogan for British people, said Sir Edward Cope, as reported in the Swansea (South Wales) Evening Post. To which we might add from this side of the water "British coal every day keeps the Canadian winter chill away."

INVESTIGATE MORBID IDEAS IN CHILDREN

Do Not Consider Children's Trials and Worries Unimportant

By LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health And Psychology

(Copyright, 1934.)
(King Feature Syndicate)

We are so accustomed to thinking of childhood and youth as a happy time of life that we are necessarily astonished when children claim they are unhappy or sometimes even do away with themselves.

But as a matter of fact, childhood is in many ways the most difficult time of life there is. Stop and consider how helpless and dependent children are.

Concerning happiness the child really has all the odds against him The world is bigger and more powerful than he. His parents are in control of his destinies. He must continually hold his instinctive primitive, animal desires in check.

"Don't" is hurled at him at every turn. He has to study at school when he wants so much to play. He is continually told that the things he craves doing are naughty, bad or "not nice".

His whole childhood existence, in effect, is one continual conflict with his elders and his environment.

Then, again, consider how sensitive and shut-in many children are. They are timid, afraid, fearing to let themselves go. They feel they are misunderstood. They suffer emotional ups and downs of all sorts. Now the world seems charming and inviting; now it seems foreboding and repellent.

Whether the reading of suicides in the newspapers by children suggests to a youngster who is thus mixed up an easy way out of his difficulties, is open to question. We do, of course, know that children are very suggestible.

It has been stated scientifically that suicide in children under fifteen is rare, but that after puberty the tendency toward self-destruction in the female develops rapidly.

Fear seems to develop strongly in children about the time of adolescence. Fear, in this connection is undoubtedly an important factor.

At any rate, parents, teachers and guardians should not brush the trials and tribulations of children aside as being unimportant. Sympathetic understanding and companionship is what is needed above all else. This is the best antidote for the suicide impluse. It is also the very best way of bringing up children and of strengthening them for the battles of life.

Besides, plenty of out-of-door exercise, in which large muscle groups are employed, is excellent stress being laid upon competitive sports in which the child does not merely serve as an onlooker but in which he actually takes part himself.

Motion pictures may likewise help to make the child "forget himself", so to speak, provided such pictures are carefully selected. Sentimental, gangster or love themes should be avoided. The best screen plays for morbid ideas deal with adventure, beauty and scenes of nature; the worst have to do with an individual's struggle with himself.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

It would be well if everyone would try to partake of alcoholic beverages only in moderation. Beer and light wine are excellent and may even promote health and strength if not overdone. Too great quantities of beer sags the lower stomach wall and finally causes chronic distension. If whiskey or brandy is indulged in it should be well diluted. Cordials or sweet wines, taken at the end of a meal, should likewise be taken in small quantities.

WHOLESALE FARMING PLANS ARE OPPOSED

Relief Commission Head Sees Risks in Proposal

Detroit, Feb. 2.—(AP)—An objection to large scale plans to rehabilitate unemployed industrial workers by establishing them on farms was raised today by John P. Ballenger, head of the Wayne County Relief Commission.

Ballenger envisaged the following obstacles to any wholesale back-to-the-land movement of urban employed:

A lack of farming knowledge. Tax problems which already have caused abandonment of large farming tracts. Difficulties inherent in farm management and financing.

"Few will quarrel with the general idea of seeking to care for a part of our surplus industrial indigent population by placing them on so-called subsistence homesteads," the report says.

"Nothing can be further from the truth, however, than the old idea that anyone can farm. To raise farm crops successfully requires about as much knowledge, experience and skill as any occupation that can be named."

FARM SYSTEM IS EXPOSED

No Player in Cardinal Chain Released Until Thoroughly Inspected

St. Louis, Feb. 2 (AP)—The approaching 1934 baseball season finds the St. Louis Cardinal management watching its farm hands—rookies to you—with the same careful attention that through the years spells winning teams and financial gain.

Branch Rickey, Vice President of the St. Louis National League Club, today explained the little-known working of the famous farm system.

"Seven or eight managers, several scouts and club presidents form a board which carefully sifts the material," Rickey said.

"We have an elaborate card index system and each player is on a list and each of our managers, scouts and club officials at the camp has a list.

"We inspect the players and after a session on the field we hold a meeting, each man with his list in his hand. We go over each player and do not release one until all scouts, managers and officials agree, that he won't make good.

"And there must be good reasons for releasing."

Use of Word "Roman" In Private Bill Likely

Toronto, Feb. 2 (CP)— The Mail and Empire today said it had learned the first move when the "Catholic diocese" private bill originating in Hamilton comes before the Ontario Legislature will be insertion of the word "Roman" in the name of the "Hamilton Catholic Diocese."

The draft of the bill, published some time ago, gave rise to considerable controversy. Most Rev. J. T. McNally of Hamilton, contended when the bill was submitted that the reason for dropping the word "Roman" was to render less cumbersome the title "Roman Catholic Episcopal Corporation of Hamilton in Ontario."

Sounded Alarm Bell

"Mrs. Martin E. Gaykan, a bookkeeper managed to sound the alarm bell and as the bandits backed out, taking McIntosh and Riordan with them, Forbes McLeod, one of the policemen came running toward the bank and they shot him down."

McIntosh said that after being forced to stand on the running board of the car for a mile or two he was pulled inside the car as it drew near Needham Heights where Haddock and Coughlin were shot.

A short distance away the bandits pushed him from the vehicle.

AT THE BELLE
"SONS OF THE DESERT"

If you are interested in the grief ou will entail should you lie to he "Little Woman" in order to get way for your lodge's convention, ee Laurel and Hardy's full-length eature comedy "Sons of the Des- rt" at the Belle, Saturday and Monday.

It's a funny story and the comic air make it even funnier. As the usbands who have to deceive their ives in order to attend the "Sons f the Desert" convention in a dis- ant city, Laurel and Hardy keep heir audience convulsed as comic ituation after comic situation un- olds to their extreme discomfort n each case.

Hardy's meeting with his prac- ical-joking brother-in-law, effec- ively and humorously played by harley Chase, a star in his own ight, creates laugh provoking situa- ions that add considerable life to he film.

Mae Busch, as Hardy's hard-boil- d wife, and Dorothy Christy, as he [illegible]tiful, if nagging, souse of [illegible], prove perfect foils for he buffoonery of this inimitable uo of comics.

Buck Jones Thriller

Buck Jones, much acclaimed out- oor star, who has been dealing out hrills and action in his numerous estern successes, takes a pleasant ip into comedy in "The Thrill unter," the screens feature attrac- ion on the same program.

Dorothy Revier makes a charm- ng return to the screen as Marjorie ane, a famous Hollywood actress.

A special added treat is announc- d in the presentation of Rubinoff nd his orchestra, the further ad- entures of "The Three Musketeers" ill be introduced at the Saturday atinee only.

"Design For Living" Departs

Frederic March, Miriam Hopkins, ary Cooper and Edward Everett orton are appearing for the last imes tonight in "Design for Liv- ng."

AT THE CAPITOL
RICHARD BARTHELMESS AND "MY WIFE'S MOTHER"

Sound has added another major problem to motion pictures when it comes to filming scenes representing a battle in the World War. There can be no faking of explosions or shooting of cap pistols because too many World War veterans in the audiences would laugh the picture off the screen.

That was one reason why William A. Wellman, a flying ace and veteran of the war, was assigned to direct the First National picture "Heroes For Sale", which is playing at the Capitol Theatre till Saturday, starring Richard Barthelmess. Battle scenes figure in the early part of the film—and Wellman knows what a battle should sound like.

To the civilian, the noise of a battle is just a mixed lot of "bangs" and "booms", but a toughened soldier can pick out every different sort of noise and name it accurately.

Every type of shell has its own peculiar sound, and a shell that goes off with a "Bang!" is different than the shell that goes "Boom!"

Then there is the "tack-tack-tack" of machine guns, which has a far different sound than the "crack-crack" of many rifles going. Hand grenades, which were used prominently in the picture's battle scenes, have their own peculiar explosive sounds.

It was easy enough to get these effects with real machine guns and rifles shooting blanks, but when it came to shells and hand grenades—that's where the art of the movies came in.

Although "Heroes For Sale" starts out with a battle scene, it is a story of the present times. The introduction of the chief characters in the trenches is to show the effect the war had on those who served at the front.

Barthelmess has a strong supporting cast which includes Aline MacMahon, Loretta Young, Gordon Westcott and Robert Barrat.

Excellent comedy relief is provided with another feature entitled "My Wife's Mother". A story of the trials of a bridegroom-to-be who is compromised on his wedding eve by a ravishing beauty in the person of Camilla Horn. It's naughty but highly amusing to see the prolonged embarrassment of the comedian and bridegroom, Gene Gerrard. Amy Veness as the suspicious mother-inlaw, is perfect in her characterization. Look, whose coming next week, folks! Marion Davies—Bing Crosby and a host of prominent stars in "Going Hollywood".

The recent Province of Ontario 4½% bond issue was taken up by investors in a few hours. The Province of Quebec, whose credit is equally good, will probably be in the market any day now with a new issue. Orders should be telephoned in to us promptly, to ensure being filled. FINANCIAL MARKETS

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Feb. 2 (CP)—A little selective buying appeared in the Standard Mining market today both gold and base metal issues sharing in the demand. McIntyre took a $2 jump but elsewhere advances were moderate.

Recent developments in the gold situation have been accepted mildly by the trading fraternity and today's advance of gold in London by about 4 shillings received only casual attention. Dome remained unchanged at $34, Hollinger was up 10 cents to 12.40, Lake Shore gained $1 to $44, Pioneer 45 cents to $12, Teck Hughes 5 cents to 5.90, Hargreaves 15 cents to 7.15, Bralorne 25 cents to 22.50 and McIntyre 2.25 to 41.75.

Volume was heavier in Noranda today and the price held at 50-cent gain at noon at $35. Nickel in slow trading was up 15 cents at 23.40.

Secondary gold shares were volume leaders today and substantial gains were registered for Sylvanite, Reno, Siscoe and Ventures. Early gains of various amounts up to $2.25 in the big gold group were not entirely held but they were all on the up-side this afternoon.

A jump of nearly four shillings for bar gold in London brought in some new buying but outside of Hollinger, McIntyre, Teck and Hargreaves the turnover in the senior group was small during the first three hours.

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York, Feb. 2—(AP)—The new and smaller United States gold dollar acted temperamental in foreign exchange dealings today and stocks were inclined to stem their advancing enthusiasm.

Notwithstanding sizeable purchases of gold abroad by New York banks and the supporting $2,000,000,000 equalization fund of the treasury, the pound sterling dropped about 6 cents in terms of the United States unit and other leading European currencies were similarly heavy.

Bonds, paying meagre attention to stocks, again moved ahead vigorously.

Some of the metal shares, including U.S. Smelting, Dome and McIntyre were in demand for advances of 1 to 2 points. A few specialties found new followings. Most of the Alcohol group sagged 1 to 2. Merchandising issues were firm. Union Pacific lost a point and other rails were hesitant.

Aside from strength in Dome and McIntyre, Canadian stocks continued to reflect narrow trading Canadian Pacific and International Nickel were a trifle easier. On the curb Lake Shore Mines gained a point while Hiram Walker was a fraction improved. Dominion government 4s advanced 3-8 of a point but other maturities were unchanged. The Canadian dollar was 7-16 of a cent lower at 99 cents.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Feb. 2 (CP)— Scattered selling gave the Toronto Stock Exchange Board a substantial row of recessions in the morning operations today. Recent leaders coming in for considerable profit-taking. Losses and gains were about equally divided at noon with volume rather low.

Profit-taking gave Ford A a tilt down to 24 off 5-8 and C.P.R. and Brazilian also back-tracked narrowly. Smelters and International Nickel had gains at noon the former 1 1-2 to 1.35 and the latter 20 cents to 23.45.

Distillery issues dropped 1-8 to a full point, Walkers Common receding to 51 1-2. Industrial 3-8 to 16 5-8 and Distillers Seagrams 1-8 to 22 7-8. In the brewery issues Brewing pfd. and Canada Bud lost a little ground.

Trading proceeded at a more leisurely pace today and under the influence of the New York market, prices were barely steady. A stronger U.S. dollar appeared to be the [illegible]ef drag on stock price levels but other factors were a certain account of profit-taking on the recent rise and the lagging tendency of the commodity markets.

Ford A was depressed to 24 by a wave of profit-selling and Canada Dredge, Canada Malting the Distillery issues and some of the food shares lost ground.

Livestock

Toronto Feb. 2 (CP)—Receipts on all classes of livestock on the Toronto livestock market this week remained practically the same as the previous week's supply. Prices swung upward and gains ranging from 25 to 35 cents on cattle to 90 cents on hogs, were made.

Veteran Goalie Earns for Trenton Place in Playoffs by Defeating Dohertys 4-3

Locals Outskate Trenton But Outlucked Around Net

GOULD STARS

Trenton Now Tied With Cobourg as Schedule Finishes

With Joe Gould, their veteran goalkeeper in the starring role the Trenton intermediates came to town last night and took the local Dohertys into camp for the first time in over three seasons, by the score of 4-3. This completed the group schedule and Trenton finish in third place, a tie with Cobourg intermediates, and Belleville in second, with the Campbellford Maroons leading the parade. The game was witnessed by some 600 fans. At the termination of the game Convener Bill House of Trenton announced that he would get into direct communication with the executive of the O.H.A. in reference to the playoffs. He would make no statement as to any possibilities in the matter but said that a final decision would be arrived at this evening.

Manager George LaBrash trotted out the same team that were beaten by the locals in Trenton about ten days ago, and they were far superior to their home performance, especially on the defensive. Gould was undoubtedly the star of the night; his repeated saves all but broke the hearts of the Belleville forwards, who bombarded him from all angles. He was afforded excellent defence in York and Smith, who also covered themselves with glory, going both ways. Of the forwards Norm Johnson stood out, with Doug Powers close on his heels. Miller, and Kidd, a junior, looked the best of the alternates. The combination plays set up by them was their medium of victory.

Coach Absent

In the absence of Coach L'Heureux Manager Patterson guided the locals and used the same team that had met with marked success thus far, and no blame of the loss can be laid at the door of Rube Buskard, the goalie. Jimmie Ethier looked the best of the defence men, while Roy Covert stood out on the front line. Pete Morgan skated and skated and then skated some more, as did Carl Morgan, but their efforts were always thwarted by Gould. Alex Weir was tried on the front line as well as the defence. Showing a complete reversal of form the home team failed to impress as their shooting was far below par and was the sole reason for their defeat.

The Play

Play opened fast with both teams travelling at a terrific clip. Gould frustrated two attempts by Pete and Carl Morgan in succession. Repeatedly the Doherty forwards were in on Gould but could not beat him. Mid-way through the period Roy Smith carried the puck practically to the goal mouth, drew Rigby out of the play, passed to Bohan who coasted in on the unprotected Buskard to open the scoring. At the end of the first period the score was 1-0 for Trenton, despite the fact that Covert and P. Morgan brought the fans to their feet, but failed to beat the Trenton goalie.

Roy Smith opened the second period by carrying the length of the ice, passing out to Johnson who had a clear shot on the net and made it 2-0. Play literally raged around the Trenton cage for the better part of this period when the locals moved four men on the attack and bombarded the Trenton goal almost at will. Covert repeatedly streaked about but just could not seem to register. After a scramble behind the Trenton net Carl Morgan brought the puck out and rifled one between Gould and the goal post. Minutes later on a nice combination play, Covert raced in to whip home P. Morgan's rebound and tie the score. Just before the period ended Bohan passed out from the corner and Johnson scored to put the visitors one up again, and Utronki scored on a drive from the blue line when defence backed in on Buskard.

The Dohertys opened the final period purely on the offensive but despite the fact that play was kept in Trenton period, except when the visitors hoisted the puck from one end of the rink to the other, the "Oilmen" were repulsed. During the time the local pressure was being applied Roy Smith drew a penalty for throwing the puck. On the subsequent face-off Alex Weir batted the rubber in for the final goal. During the last few minutes of the period Gould was invincible and single-handed held the Belleville team at bay, the whole team being on the offensive. The ice was lightning fast but the locals did not take full advantage of this feature and played loose hockey, at times being completely disorganized. A little more combination on their part, especially at their opponent's blue line might have turned defeat into sweet victory. Who knows?

TRENTON TO FORM CLUB

Delegates Will Attend Meeting in Belleville When Called

The following concerning the yachting situation in this city is reprinted from the editorial column of the Trenton Courier-Advocate:

"We were premature in last week's issue in saying that a Bay of Quinte Yachting and Boating Club would be formed in Belleville on Friday night. The Belleville club was formed that night but it is the intention in a few weeks to invite district representatives to the city to form a Bay of Quinte organization. Meanwhile, Trenton yachting and boating enthusiasts have decided to form their own club and will appoint delegates to attend the Belleville meeting when it is called. This meeting will be held in the near future."

Current Sport

DAY BY DAY

This morning we found a note on our desk to the effect that the South End A. C. are planning a return in the local boxing world. The "South Enders" have already lined up five bouts for their card on which is included a go between Gorile Morris and that fiery little mite Bert Wheeler of the airport. Freddie Perry will meet the Vancouver Kid (Andy Cusack) while Art Angell fights Crawford of the airport. Other equally as good matches are in the making. The bouts are scheduled to be staged at the city hall around the end of this month. Hockey should be pretty well washed up locally by that time thus assuring the fight promoters of no serious sport competition. As was pointed out earlier in the week—the promoters do not need to bring in a host of outside talent as there is plenty of material in and around Belleville. All that is needed is the proper matching and the bouts will sell themselves.

* * *

During the progress of the junior O.H.A. game on Tuesday night we were reminiscing with Benny Bowen, coach of the Trenton club. Many will remember Benny when he starred in the local nets some ten years ago, or was it less? The funny part of the conversation was the story of Benny's first attempt between the goal posts. It may be news to many but Mrs. Bowen's little boy Benny started his hockey activities on the forward line as a centre forward. Either this was too much work or Benny was spending too much time in the penalty box, at any rate he decided to try his luck between the goal posts one bleak night when the Belleville juniors were playing in Trenton. It seems the regular goalie had become tired of being a human target so Benny donned the pads.

* * *

Now this particular game happened to be the last season in which Gunner Arnott played junior hockey and starred along with Stan Hagerman and others. The game in question was being played in Trenton. In Benny's own vocabulary he informed us that he never saw so many pucks in all his lifetime. "I'd make a dive at the puck and miss or Gunner would fake a shot and score just about as often as he came near me," said Mr. Bowen. At any rate the final score mounted until the 30 mark was reached, after that no record was kept. But Benny was not discouraged and returned to the nets season after season until he did not have to doff his cap to any of the goalies around these parts. "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again," is Benny's motto.

* * *

We merely tell this story to forcibly bring out Benny's possibilities as a coach. He took over the reins of the two Trenton teams "just to fill in" as he termed it and believe you us he has made a pretty fair job thus far this season. His efforts are more marked in junior circles than in the intermediate ranks. Why? Simply because he has more material of a promising nature at hand. Regardless as to the final results to be attained by the Trenton hockey clubs this season Benny Bowen has at least earned himself the right of heading the Trenton Hockey Club next season. Although neither Trenton team has what you might term stood out this season, they have undoubtedly improved over previous years. Much of that improvement is undoubtedly due to Benny's untiring efforts.

* * *

Last night's achievement of the black and white is just another feather in Benny's cap, although it must be admitted that Joe Gould had a little something to do in regards to the Trenton victory.

* * *

It is doubtful if one hockey team ever missed as many scoring chances as did the Dohertys last evening. Not once or twice did they muff golden opportunities to score the much-needed counters, but dozens of times the local forwards tore in on Gould to either miss the net or hit the pads, more often they missed the goal posts by inches. We are not trying to detract any of the glory from Joe Gould's outstanding performance by the above statement as Mrs. Gould's little boy was great, colossal, practically invincible all night. His efforts were secretly admired by more than one local fan.

* * *

The Dohertys were completely disorganized after the first period and played like a bunch of school boys at times. Coach L'Heureux was an absentee, owing to business, if that had anything to do with the situation. Besides Gould, Normie Johnson and Doug Powers were just as good as any or all on the ice. For the locals Pete Morgan skated miles and miles and was still in the arena when he finished. Covert was always in the game as was Ethier. That's all.

Blind Pass Tosser Must Have Big Hand and Receiver Needs to Be 'On His Toes'!

Written for Central Press Canadian and the Ontario Intelligencer.

By JACK LIPPERT

We are getting into the realm of fancy passing when we reach the passes thrown to a point where the passer is not looking—the "blind" pass. This particular type of backward pass, here illustrated requires a hand that can grip the ball without the help of the other hand.

A backward pass could of course, be dispatched by using both hands, but not many coaches would recommend it, and I doubt whether you can find any who will allow it.

As a matter of fact, fancy passing is not permitted by most coaches of school or college teams. A coach may have an exceptional player who knows just how and when to use fancy passes, in which case the coach might permit this player to use them, as long as they are not so fancy that they fool even his teammates.

After all, the object in passing the ball is to have it caught.

If it is passed so strangely that the receiver is fooled something must be done; either the receiver must be trained to anticipate the passer's peculiarities or else the time.

The professional players in the better leagues are often past masters of the fancy pass—catching them as well as throwing them. To be able to pass backward in the manner illustrated in the accompanying photograps is certainly a valuable weapon of deception in the attack.

There is much more of this trick passing nowadays than there used to be. This is because there are thousands of first-class ball handlers today where there were relatively few 10 or more years ago.

The touring Ottawa Shamrocks, who have been in Europe for the past six weeks or more demonstrating their superiority to European and English teams, are seen here as they upheld the victorious record of Canadian teams by defeating Munich 2-0. The game was played at Riessersee (Lake Riesser) at Garmisch in the Bavarian Alps where the 1936 Olympic winte games will be held. The picture shows Joe Shields o the Ottawa team in a drive on goal. He didn't score as the photo might indicate, but the picture shows that the Munich team certainly knows its hockey by th effective manner they are covering up in front of thei goal.

TRENTON SCHOOL TEAM DEFEATED BY B. C. I. 6-4

Les Shiels, Coach of the Locals, Has Team on Top Rung

TRENTON, Feb. 1.—(Special)—The Belleville Collegiate now hold the first place in the local Interscholastic hockey loop after defeating the local High School yesterday afternoon 6-4 at the Trenton Arena.

Coach Les Shiels trotted out a real squad of pucksters for the tricolour with no less than four of the Belleville O.H.A. Juniors. The game was fast throughout with not much to choose between them.

The first period ended 2-1 for the visitors with McElrath and Don Lee tallying while R. Fox notched the yellow and black counter.

In the second stanza the locals went ahead after Derry counted twice, the last one on a pass from Davis.

High evened the count, when he beat Gray on a pass out from Don Lee and later McElrath sifted one from centre to put the B.C.I. one up.

The last stanza opened with the Shiels-coached lads bearing down but Gray turned away many, that looked like real tallies. McElrath notched his third on a solo rush and High his second on the same route. Davis drew a penalty for slashing and while the locals were short handed Staples beat McKinney on a long drive from the blue line.

For the locals the second line of Derry, Davis and Dadswell looked best with Gray in the net having the most work to do.

For Belleville Collegiate — McElrath and Kokesh made formidable defence line with D. Lee, High and Hanna being the best of the forwards.

Trenton H.S.—Goal, Gray; defense, Thompson and Mitchell; centre, Fox; wings, Staples and Newton; subs., Davis, Dadswell, Derry and Heaney.

Belleville C.I.—Goal, McKinney; defense, McElrath and Kokesh; centre, D. Lee; wings, High and Hanna; subs., McCreary, Mattis, Ling, F. Lee.

Referee—Bill Miller, Trenton.

"LOVE'S LOTTERY"

— by —

Katharine Haviland-Taylor

"That," said Terry, "is a very ancient masculine lay— that 'I've been decent as men go'; it is an easing of conscience, an excuse, a half regret. But I have no notion, Mr. Field, as I said, of urging you to the confessional. I asked what you read—"

Terry paused a moment.

"I am thinking," he went on, "of the many calm years that follow those of passion; of those years when the flame rarely outleaps the ash and then—only mildly; most domestically, we'll put it. During those years a woman's happiness is made by finding her household a unit,...I think here you do not read the classics enough to have time to study your women.... The classics take time and we learn early that time given to a close study of a gone civilization teaches us to pause—enough —to study our civilization; particularly those of it whose elbows brush ours, daily.... The least of our public schools stress a study of the classics....There are men in America, hundreds, millions of them, I am aware, who know their wives as well as they know their ratings in Bradstreets or—their secretaries. But there are others who cannot—who will not —give the necessary time to so subtle a study. They would call it 'wasting time'. One reason why your States is such a writhing hotbed of woman's clubs is that women have to do something; you have noticed that the woman with a house full of children and a husband who calls for her, on getting home, does not have a frantic interest in Russian literature—uplift—asylums for deaf and dumb tomcats—we'll say?"

"Don't agree with you at all," Geoffrey answered, but he had laughed.

"And—what do you read?"

"Um—well—I don't get much reading done, Sir Terrill," he began uncertainly, and ended surely, "I haven't time!"

"Like poetry?"

"God no! I should say—not!" Geoffrey stiffened, erect in his chair.

Terry laughed. "Jove," he said, "I've insulted you—and without the least knowing I could—in that way. Forgive me!"

"Look here," Geoffrey leaned forward, his arms on his knees, "men over here, real men, leave that stuff to their women. They have to! They don't sit around on soft cushions and rot!"

"I catch the delightfully suave implication," Terry murmured.

"We fight!" Geoffrey went on without heeding the interruption; "it's a fight from the start to the finish and the best man wins!"

"Oh, jolly!" said Sir Terrill; he had been, at Geoffrey's words, sent back to the schoolroom and to his copy book. Remarkably naive, this young Field; and about fourteen, he judged, intellectually.

"Then you acknowledge," said Terry, "that the interests of your class, a class made of hard working business men and their women, must differ?"

"Surely, they must! Why, Lord, yes, Sir Terrill. Look here—you don't know about the American business man's day. I mean a man of my type who is going to be on the top before he checks in or—dead from trying!" (He brought his fist down upon the arm of his chair) "I start out early each morning—for my group; and I'm going to start earlier and earlier. Sometimes I haven't a moment for luncheon. I don't mind that—I think more clearly when I'm hungry, anyway—and I never have time to know I'm hungry, so it doesn't bother me. I keep at it —all—day. Fighting— losing— winning most of the time. I watch men, who have given less time to business than I, go under every hour. Well—I'm not —going under!"

He sat back, inflated by his vows and proud of them.

CHAPTER 23

"Sometimes I work after dinner," Geoffrey began again, less tense of body and voice, "meeting men socially with whom I want to have close contact. A year ago I met a group of bankers from the Argentine at a house party on Long Island; and I made a deal, playing golf, that netted me enough to start a new enterprise, and one that is now known widely and —respected. You see it is that way; we cannot play —and live—I mean—get on."

"Where," put in Terry, slowly, "is 'on'?"

"Is that British wit?" (Geoffrey flared this.)

"Not at all! Not at all! Quite the other way, in fact. You will, perhaps, indulge my racial stupidity?"

"On—?" Geoffrey was frowning, still a little suspicious of Terry's mood. "Why, you don't have to ask that, with your success. I mean—by on—at the top of the heap, and where I can make a man or break him by a turn of hand; where the stock market will know when I have indigestion by my frowning a little on a new venture; where I can open new countries with the capital I hold in my hands; where I can stand in a great station to realize that I could halt every engine on every track —with a touch of the button ——"

"You know," Sir Terrill commented crisply, "I think you will get—on. You have the stuff in you, as you all say here, to make progress. But you divagated a bit, if you'll pardon my calling attention to that. You began to say you could not read because you had no time for anything but—getting on. And you lost that thread. A study of the classics helps you, too, to keep in view the main artery. Many of you, over here, I find to be easily diverted. Your frantic speed and wish to make a million dollars in a half hour does not grant to you the necessary pause in which you can see the subject wholly—and so that it is impressed."

Geoffrey was nettled. "I do not get time to read," he stated tersely; "I am a man——"

He stood up. "Do I pass?" he asked with a little edge. He added, "My wife will have money at her command; I shall ask only her pretty presence at the head of my table, her smile upon those friends I entertain for business reasons; a little love and her rearing of the children—"

"That last, you know. A woman's job solely?" Terry broke in.

Geoffrey laughed yet again, but not pleasantly; the slight thaw he had felt toward Sir Terrill was past. "I do not expect," he said almost sneeringly, "to close my office when the tonsils come out. Yes, that and a good many other things I shall leave to my wife—"

"And God and the specialists help her!" said Terry.

At nine Cicily raised her face from a book she had been pretending to read, to see Benson at the side of a broad doorway, bowing.

"Sir Terrill Brown-Thrope," Benson announced loudly, and suddenly, he was homesick for the London he had not known for so many years.

Terry moved toward Cicily. "Well, child," he said briskly, "and how is quite everything?"

"Quite well, I think," Cicily answered coldly. "Will you sit down?"

"And you — usually so truthful and then—that 'Quite well'—and I won't settle, if you don't mind. And child, when prisoners take their sentence they rise to face the judge, I think? Anyway, you will please? I've seen your Geoffrey. He was good enough to come to see me a bit after tea time and to answer my impertinent questions most frankly." (Cicily had risen to stand before Terry.) "He is a good young man. He will get—on. You know where 'on' is, doubtless; 'on', is perched high on a bank account and after a life that has been given to the worship of making money; and there he will die before his time because he will not know how to do anything that will divert him from dying. As I said—he is a good young man of his type. Now you have asked me to release you from your promise, have you not?"

"Yes, Terry," she answered, low.

"I will not release you," he said slowly, loudly, his voice close to harsh.

His long hands, gentle, but with a strength in them that she had never felt before, had been upon her shoulders as he spoke. She drew away from him sharply, aghast, amazed.

"But, Terry, a gentleman must release a woman who—wishes release from— a promise," she pointed out excitedly.

"Sometimes being a man makes one hold a woman to a promise," he contradicted, and with the old calm she knew well from him. "And it is sometimes kinder to be a man than to be a gentleman."

"You would not do this!" she laughed unsteadily, uneasily; she was trying to make him pretend it had been a joke, he saw; trying to shame him to that stand.

"I will do it," he assured her and so gently and so certainly that fear was over her and in her, in a chilling, numbing flood.

"Come sit by me," he invited, as he pulled her down to a sofa before the fire, "and we'll talk it over—as calmly as is possible, my dear. In the first place, you can make our marriage what you like. I am thinking of the years ahead of you. Do you follow?"

She inclined her head.

"Your young man is going to make one thing from and of life—money. You are not money-mad. You have enough to feel that it is unimportant. So— the importance of his money will not make up to you for the lack of his devotion. Suppose you bore a child—and the market went bad. Where would he be? You know and I know. He is consumed by ambition. He has now—a hunger for you that will make him deviate a little from his road; but, with the hunger answered will he come to your most urgent call? No. He did not come to you when you called him from Italy he did not come because the market was unsteady."

"All this makes no difference," she said defiantly. "I can't marry you now!"

"Care to smoke?" he asked.

She shook her head violently. He looked down at her, rather whimsically. But —beneath his eyes and back of them was a deep trouble.

"I know your young man," he said slowly, after a puff of cigarette. "He lives in every country in this age of speed. At forty, his only vacation will be a hurried trip to St. Louis to meet Mr. Blenheim who has 'control' of some South American mines. He will keep up his golf, but he will count that day lost in which he does not make a 'pretty big deal' between holes. He will never stop making money for more than ten minutes. That is his matter. The side of the question that concerns me is the effect of him upon you, who are ordained to be lovely, crystal and flawless. Men go mad, remember, Cicily, who live alone through an arctic night. It takes two to make a joke, to make love, to make suffering bearable and —to make life real and—to make it go on. Married to Geoffrey Field, you would live alone, and, you would find, in shadow and in cold. And because humans go mad, alone, you would begin to temporize.... There would be a young poet and an artist and a young bond salesman who interested you.. ..only 'nicely' of course, but, you would temporize —and at fifty, if I lived to see you, I would look on you to know my final heartbreak. For the sake of all that you may be, think, dear, think!"

"I love him!" she said.

"You are loving him passionately —physically and from old habit; you are answering the call of youth to youth. You cannot love his mind. I have talked with him—".

"I do not care to hear anyone speak in that way of Geoffrey, please. I am sorry. You have been kind to me; but I can't let even you speak in that way—" she broke in with hauteur.

"Very well, my dear." Terry agreed smoothly, "the truth is not always pleasant, I know. But we will abandon that branch of it for the moment—or forever —if you like. I merely ask—pray—that you won't make a weak and colorless mess of your sweet life."

"I cannot make you understand, Terry," she answered, "what it is to love—"

He smiled at that, but mirthlessly. "Cicily," he said, "I have loved you as you have never dreamed of loving. If I had thought happiness, fulfillment, was for you through your marriage with this youngster, I would have hidden my pain with a smile to step—as gallantly as I could—in the wings; leaving you and your young man the centre of the stage and heaven. But I know Geoffrey Field is not the man for you. He has already neglected you and made you a joke in his office by this neglect; his secretary will select your birthday presents, when he remembers your birthday.... And that seems a small omission, and a small thing to harp upon, but it is not. It means that he will never give you the thing that a woman of your type needs most, which is time."

She nodded. Terry's words were almost Albion's. "Uncle" Albion, she had been relieved to learn, was in North Carolina, but would be in town again on the morrow. And with his return she would have another mortal to fight.

"I understand, Terry," she said slowly, "but what can I do about my loving Geoffrey IFeld? For, you see, I do love him—passionately, madly!"

Terry winced, but he said very steadily, "What would you do if you had contracted, through some long illness, the habit of taking morphine? Wouud you fight it or would you let it ruin your life "

"Oh, of course, with that—anything like it—I'd know it was wrong!" she answered.

"I'm not certain that you would," he stated slowly. "I am inclined to think, through the way you look upon this matter, that you would say, 'I need morphine; I love it and it will make me happy.' You are doing quite that in this case which is analagous."

She drew a deep, weary breath; she was baffled and balked by his erason and —unconvinced by it.

CHAPTER 24

"But Terry, if I married you, wanting to marry Geoff, I could not help but hate you."

"It would be better for you, far better to hate than to be a chattel for Geoffrey Field."

"You won't be convinced, will you, that I don't want to marry you and never will?" she asked. "Is this leading anywhere?"

"I hope so——" he said honestly, "but I don't know."

"You talk very well, Terry," she stated, "perhaps because — while most men work, you have bent your energy to learning to do that."

"Touche," he murmured. "However that's unjust. I worked hard early, yet—I always had time for luncheon. But then, having sufficient money and very good managers for my business, I stopped working all the time. I do not believe that heaven—if such exists—will be filled with houris, nor do I believe that I will have an office there. I have been gathering a collection, Cicily, of things I can take on with me if I go on; of such tastes as will make the last years more than a querulous waste during which I will wish for strength so that I might make more money."

She was silent a moment, then she said, "Geoffrey and I do not have to think so much of old age and heaven as you do, Terry. We are not so close to either as you are."

He went white; he stared down at the carmine tip of a cigarette from which a lazy smoke curled. She would not have said that, he was certain, if she had known how it hurt him to think of the twenty-five years that lay between them. He said slowly, and after a short cough which steadied his voice, as had hoped it would, "One never knows, Cicily, no matter what one's age, when death is coming; nor what's beyond death, if anything.. But assuming something is beyond, we know what we can take with us and what we can't. We do not take tickers, nor office desks; if there is going on, we must instead rely upon our tastes and the habits of thought we have built by living The man or woman who does not think of the collection that will make his and others' peace, before his death, and of the collection that may be taken beyond death, wastes a life. I suppose by now, my dear," he ended with an assumed lightness that sounded real, "you know something of my aversion to waste?"

THAT DEPRESSED FEELING IS LARGELY LIVER

Wake Up Your Liver Bile . . . Without Calomel, And Feel Like a Million Dollars.

Nothing can put your system out of kilter more quickly than your liver. All it has to do is stop pouring its daily two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels—and life certainly gets gray.

That sluggish flow of bile slows up digestion and elimination and makes you "feel punk". Your stomach sets up—gas, bloating, sourness, pain. Your breath is bad and the taste in your mouth is nasty. Your head aches. Skin is blotchy. All, of course, because your system is full of poisons.

Mere bowel movers like salts, oil, mineral water, roughage, laxative candy or chewing gum are not good enough to correct this condition entirely. You're livery and you must wake up your liver bile to be happy again.

Avoid calomel (mercury). The thing for you is a box of Carter's Little Liver Pills. They never upset you because they're purely vegetable, gentle and safe: but how they do change your view on life!

Don't waste your money on substitutes. Be definite. Ask for Carter's by name—and get them! Look for the name, Carter's, on the red label. 25c. at all druggists.

TARZAN AT THE EARTH'S CORE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Suddenly a rifle spoke and the leading Horib toppled to the ground. The other lizard-men, depending on the swiftness of their mounts, darted quickly toward the Waziri and the tall, white giant who led them. But swifter than the Gorobors were the bullets of the outer world. As fast as Tarzan and his warriors could fire, the Horibs fell. Never before had the lizard-men of Pellucidar known defeat and they went livid with rage.

So swiftly did the Gorobors move and so rapidly did Tarzan and the Waziri fire that the struggle was decided a few minutes after it began. The remaining Horibs, discovering that they could not overcome and capture gilaks armed with these strange weapons that launched death more swiftly than they could hurl their spears, turned and scattered in an effort to pass around the enemy and continue on their way. As yet Tarzan had caught no glimpse of The Red Flower of Zoram.

He knew she must be there, somewhere in the rear of the remaining Horibs. Then he saw her as she flashed by in the distance, borne swiftly upon the back of a fleet Gorobor. What appeared to be his only chance was to shoot down the beast. He swung his rifle to his shoulder but before he could fire, a riderless Gorobor struck him in the back and sent him sprawling upon the ground. When he regained his feet, Jana and her captor were out of sight, hidden by the tree trunks.

Now some of the riderless Gorobors started in pursuit of the Horib who had ridden away with Jana. Soon others followed and in their mad rush these savage beasts were a greater danger than the Horibs themselves. The Waziri leaped nimbly behind trees to escape them. Then to their horror and astonishment, his warriors saw Tarzan leap to the back of one of the great lizards as it passed him, and a moment later, ape-man and lizard had swept from view.

A talk on the life of Robert Burns given by Mrs. H. Rollins. This was most proper as the great Scottish poet's anniversary was on the twenty fifth of January. A vocal solo by Miss Lillian Smith accompanied at the piano by Miss Jane Moffat, and the topic delivered by Mrs. H. B. Disbrowe in which talk she dealt with the evils of too many parties, good times and such counter-attractions which are keeping our young people from attending their church meetings and services. The meeting closed with the repeating in unison of the Mizpah Benediction.

Miss A. Calow gave a violin selection, "Toselli's Serenade" accompanied at the piano by Miss Jean McCubbin. The contest was an author one in which the blue division carried off the honors. NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Pittsburgh, Feb. 3—(CP)—Mayor William N. McNair says he believes it better to sub-let one's apartment to a gambler and share in the profits than it is to starve. Sweeping Probe Into Mass Buying Receives Approval Both Parties

Premier Bennett Promises Full Investigation Into Subject

MANY COMPLAINTS

Reckless Financing Record is Charged by Leader

Ottawa, Feb. 3.—Somewhere between the farmer who raises a fat steer and the consumer who eats a juicy steak and between the factory worker who wears them a lot of money disappears. The parliament of Canada wants to know who gets it and why, moreover it proposes to find out.

Yesterday at the suggestion of Premier R. B. Bennett the House of Commons ordered the most sweeping investigation ever attempted in Canada into the methods of trade and industry and financial operations linked with them. A committee composed of eleven men, representing all parties will make the inquiry. It will be clothed with wide powers and to speed up its operations it may send commissions to various parts of the country to take evidence and report to it.

In part the inquiry was foreshadowed recently when Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, charged large department and chain store concerns were using their colossal buying power to force manufacturers to sell them goods below cost. This in turn, it was alleged, forced the manufacturer to pay his employees starvation wages. Mr. Stevens, it is rumored, will be chairman of the committee.

Seek Out Unfair Methods.

As Mr. Stevens put it yesterday the committee will seek out unfair and unethical business methods and try to devise remedies for them.

Mr. Bennett referred particularly to the milling and baking industries. It was well known, he said, that flour mills owned bakeries. The committee is specifically instructed to investigate both these industries. It is also specifically directed to study methods of marketing, livestock, animal and fish products of all sorts as well as labor conditions in various industries.

Not a murmur of opposition greeted the proposal. Criticism came from the Liberals to the effect the thing should have been undertaken before this and Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King thought the combines investigation act could have been used more freely to correct the conditions prevailing. But all lent their support to the move.

To Find Remedies

"What we have in mind," explained Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, is to try and find out whether or not the indulgence of unfair and unethical practises are prevalent in the country and to find the causes, to ascertain as far as we possibly can, what remedies can be invoked and to report to the House from time to time, its (the committee's) findings with the recommendation of such measures as, in its opinion, may be considered necessary to secure fair and just practices in the distribution and marketing systems of Canada."

The real purpose of the inquiry, said the Prime Minister, was to evolve means to prevent the engrafting of hazardous and detrimental business methods of Canada when economic recovery seemed imminent.

The motion passed without a vote but only after four hours' discussion. Led by Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, Liberals supported the inquiry but told the government it should have started two or three years ago.

Action Too Slow

"If we are to judge," said the Liberal leader, "by the length of time parliamentary committees and Royal Commissions usually take to do their work, so far as this session is concerned, we should hardly be able to look for much in the way of legislation that will help effec-

Anti-Foreign Feeling Dies Down after Rioting in Australia

Kalgoorlie, Australia, Feb. 3 (CP Cable)—The cause of the anti-foreign feeling which flared into violence earlier in the week, resulting in the death of two men and the virtual wrecking of the foreign quarter here, was believed to have been removed today when agreement was reached that foreigners who have not taken out naturalisation papers will not be employed in the local gold fields.

Representatives of the mine workers and the Chamber of Mines reached the agreement and the miners agreed to resume work on Monday. Out of a total of 3,177 local mine employees about 300 are foreigners and most of them, it is understood, are not naturalized citizens, altogether there is a foreign population of around 7,000, mostly centred in nearby Boulder City where most of the damage was done in the riots.

STEVENS MAY HEAD PROBE

Ottawa, Feb. 3 (CP)—The Committee to investigate the Distribution and Marketing Practices in Canada may be under the chairmanship of Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, according to reports here.

The House of Commons last night accepted the resolution setting up such a committee. During the debate Premier R. B. Bennett said that a Minister would be on it but of course it will be for the committee to decide whether the Minister would be chairman.

It was stated that most of the evidence to be submitted to the committee would be taken by commissioners and it was not expected many witnesses would be actually summoned to Ottawa. Commissioners would be appointed to inquire into the milling and baking business, the livestock and packing industry, the textile trade and the chain stores. The commissioners would take evidence in the various centres affected.

By means of several commissioners it is believed that much more rapid progress can be made in the investigation and they will submit the evidence they have taken from time to time for the committee to study.

The inquiry will be very sweeping and will include the charges of combines Harry Butcher (Lib. Last Mountain) launched in the Commons Thursday.

PROBE IN AIR MAIL IN U. S.

W. P. MacCracken Studies Answers to Senate Bar

Washington, Feb. 3 (AP)—Under arrest by the Senate but free on the personal bond of his attorney, William P. MacCracken, a cabinet figure of the Hoover administration, today studied the answers he will give when facing the United States Senate Bar on Monday.

Senate air mail investigators, up in arms at the refusal of the former Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics to open his fyles, probably would have summoned him to the Chamber floor today, but the Senate was in recess.

The arrest of MacCracken and the Senate order that his fyles be seized caused somewhat of a sensation in Washington. Not for years had the Senate ordered the arrest of an outsider.

PLOT TO DISFIGURE FACE OF ACTRESS

Los Angeles, Feb. 3—Vague rumors of a plot to disfigure the face of Mae West reached detectives today while a Superior Court jury was ready to determine the fate of Edward Friedman, accused of robbing the movie actress of $20,000 in jewels and cash.

The report that "underworld mobmen" might attempt to hurl acid into Miss West's face, thereby wreaking revenge on her for her testimony during the trial, was received by Detectives Jack Chriss and Jack Southard.

They said the report came from a Hollywood film studio. Chriss and Southard said they had posted additional men about Miss West's apartment house pending the conclusion of the case.

Chriss said that if such a plot was afoot it was inspired by Miss West's testimony two weeks ago of her encounter with a robber.

ONE INJURED AS MOTOR CAR HITS DITCH

Miss Helen Elliott of Brassey Street Severely Injured

THREE ESCAPE

Injured Young Lady Brought to Belleville Hospital

Miss Helen Elliott, Brassey Street, was seriously injured in an automobile accident which occurred about 3.30 a.m. today some two miles east of Trenton, when the car in which she was riding crashed into the south ditch. Miss Elliott sustained severe cuts and bruises about the face and head and was bleeding profusely. Her companion, Mr. Robert Graham, Jr., son of George K. Graham, hailed a passing motorist, who assisted in first aid and rushed the girl to the Belleville General Hospital where Dr. J. J. Robertson rendered medical attention.

Mr. Graham and Miss Elliott were returning from the Military Ball at Trenton, when, it is thought, the car went out of control. "The first I realized that anything was amiss was when the car left the road," said Mr. Graham, when he later reported the accident to the police. The car dove down a five foot embankment coming to rest nose downward. The windshield and the window on the right hand side of the car were shattered, striking Miss Elliott in the face and about the head.

She sustained an extensive scalp wound when a piece of flying glass struck her across the forehead inflicting a deep gash fully four inches in length. Another piece of flying glass was found embedded in Miss Elliott's forehead, having entered the bone above the right eye. Dr. Robertson removed the glass from the cut from which she was bleeding badly. Altho' Miss Elliott lost considerable blood she did not lose consciousness and took some nourishment early this morning.

According to the doctor Miss Elliott's injuries are of rather serious nature. Traffic Officer Byles interviewed Mr. Graham this morning in regard to the accident. Miss Jean Givins and Mr. Donald Carman, both of this city, who were rear-seat occupants in the car, escaped with a bad shaking up. The injured girl's condition showed some slight improvement late this morning.

BANKER REFERS TO PUBLICITY ON RADIO

Rimbey, Alta., Feb. 3.—A $50.00 cheque and a promise to "foot the bill" for live-stock feed for the winter was in the possession of Frank Rutledge, Rimbey district farmer.

It was a personal cheque from Prime Minister R. B. Bennett.

Rutledge, father of five children, could not get winter work; he lost his left hand in an accident, and faced the loss of his live stock. His children were without sufficient clothes and food, so the farmer appealed for aid to the Prime Minister.

A letter from Ottawa brought the cheque.

MILD SPELL STARTS FLOOD

Maritimes Are Ruled by Spring-like Weather

Halifax, Feb. 3 (CP)—Minor floods confronted Nova Scotia today as spring-like weather enveloped the greater part of the Maritime provinces.

The mild spell followed in the wake of a howling winter gale that swept the coastline in company with a beating rainstorm. Roads were inundated in some municipalities from melting snows and overflowing streams but no estimated damage was reported.

The steamers Svartisen and Jerfeld were safe in harbor at Saint John, N.B., after long, desperate battles to preserve their coal carwoes, brought from Scotland and Wales, respectively.

REMANDED WITHOUT BAIL

Sudbury, Ont., Feb. 3.—(CP)—James McInall, 23, was in the hospital, severely injured and Levey Lebonta 25, was held without bail by Sudbury police following a street accident here last night.

Levey was the alleged driver of an automobile which struck McInall. He was arrested and appeared in court today when he was remanded without bail until Feb. 5.

STEEL AND N R A BOARD

Parting of Ways Reached by United States Steel Industry

New York, Feb. 3 (CP)—The United States Steel Industry had come to a parting of the ways today with the National Labor Board of the NRA.

Endorsing the position taken by the Weirton Steel Company and other concerns, executives of leading steel companies issued a statement last night pledging themselves to "resist all attacks" upon their company unions, contending the unions comply with section 7-A of the NRA and that elections authorized by an executive order yesterday might violate it.

The executive order, issued by President Roosevelt, empowers the Labor Board to step into any faction and conduct its own way elections of labor representatives to negotiate with employers when a "substantial number" of workers ask it.

U. S. DOLLAR SELLS LOWER

Three Cent Loss Marked on Exchange at London

London, Feb. 3 (AP)—The revalued United States dollar played an unsteady role on the foreign exchange market today in contrast to yesterday's consistent firmness. It close at 4.93½ to the pound, a loss of three cents; after depreciating to 4.95¾ from an opening of 4.96½.

The French franc closed at 77.72 to the pound as compared with the overnight quotation of 77.50. It was somewhat weaker, as were the other gold currencies.

The price of gold, like that of the dollar, failed to maintain its recent rise. It was fixed one shilling, three pence a fine ounce lower than yesterday at 138 shillings, three pence—approximately $33.84 a fine ounce, as compared with the United States government offer of $35 a fine ounce.

This gold price was fixed on the basis of supply and demand, the demand being lessened, it appeared largely, because no more ships of suitable character for gold transport are leaving for the United States in the next few days.

JOB INSURANCE PLAN GOING BEFORE CONGRESS

Set Up Federal Tax on All Employers

Washington, Feb. 3 (AP)—Bearing what appeared to be an administration label, a bill looking toward establishment of a job insurance plan throughout the United States today was ready for introduction in Congress.

Drawn by Senator Robert Wagner (D.-N.Y.), in co-operation with Secretary Frances Perkins, of the Labor Department, the measure would set up a federal tax upon all employers. Each, however, would be given exemptions for contributions to approved State unemployment insurance systems.

Miss Perkins expressed the opinion that most past unemployment insurance methods have smacked of the "true dole and old fashioned handout." What is needed, she describes as:

"A technique for providing income for people who are laid off because of the great elemental changes that are bound to take place in industry."

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Feb. 3—The weather has been comparatively mild in the Western Provinces, decidedly cold in Ontario and Quebec, and it is becoming colder this morning in the Maritimes. Light snowfalls have occurred locally from Alberta eastward to Quebec, and moderate rains occurred yesterday in Nova Scotia.

Northern Ontario: Partly cloudy and somewhat milder; local snowflurries today and part of Sunday; then becoming colder again.

Ottawa and Upper St. Lawrence Valley: Fair and cold. Sunday: Partly cloudy and milder with some light snow.

Lake Superior: Fresh winds; cloudy and moderately cold with some light snow.

Manitoba: Northerly winds; mostly cloudy and becoming somewhat colder; light snowfalls or flurries.

ALLIANCE TO BE THWARTED

Secret Service by Order of President to Carry on Investigation

New York, Feb. 3 (AP)—The Daily News says President Roosevelt has ordered the secret service "to end the alliance of crooked government officials and the underworld."

Such action is without precedent since President Lincoln gave Allan Pinkerton, founder of the service, the double duty of spying behind the Confederate lines and tracking down enemies of the Union in official Washington.

Orders for the action by the secret service, whose duties are usually confined to protecting as intelligence officers for the state department, were issued by Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau the News says.

Already, the News adds, the Secret Service detail has evidence of customs frauds and illegal refunds of import duties that total $100,000,000; an underground railroad for transporting criminals in and out of the United States; a $50,000 bribe to a customs patrol which resulted in a camouflaged rum runner sailing unmolested up the Hudon River as far as Haverstraw, N.Y., where she went aground, and a traffic in smuggled drugs and alien girls.

SLEIGH STRUCK AND WOMAN IS KILLED

Sifton, Man., Feb. 3 (CP)—Mrs. John Litowitz, 26, was instantly killed and her husband severely injured when their cutter was struck by a train at a level crossing near here today. Driving in a closed cutter neither saw the oncoming train until it was too late to avoid a collision.

Demolished by the impact the cutter was piled up on the tender. Mrs. Litowitz fell beneath the wheels and her husband was thrown clear of the wreckage. He was rushed to hospital, where he was found to have suffered a fractured skull.

7 Billions New Dollar Value U.S. Gold Supply

Washington, Feb. 3 (AP)—The United States Treasury today, announced the new dollar value of its gold supply at $7,018,363,925.70. The profit on the gold was paid into the General Fund of the Treasury and put the net cash balance at a record figure of $4,340,713,155.18.

At this rate the profit on the gold by President Roosevelt's devaluation order approached $3,000,000,000, and may reach this figure as more boarded gold trickles into the banks.

Secretary Henry Morgenthau of the Treasury has stated repeatedly that he plans to meet recovery cost by orthodox borrowing methods but all the gold profit above the $2,000,000,000 fund was available for spending should the Treasury adopt this policy.

REDS CHEER WORLDWIDE REVOLUTION

Report Hailed Wildly by Congress at Moscow

WORLD CONQUEST

D. Z. Manuilsky, Executive Member, Makes Report

(By Stanley P. Richardson)
(Associated Press Foreign Staff)

Moscow, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Delegates to the All-Union Communist Party Congress cheered today when the Communist Internationale presented its report that a World Revolution and victory for Communism throughout the world was approaching.

The report was delivered to the Congress by D. Z. Manuilsky, a member of the Executive Committee of the Communist Internationale. He declared:

"The elements of a revolutionary crisis are growing everywhere although somewhat irregularly.

"The forces of a proletarian revolution are increasing but a great majority of countries are not yet ripe for an immediate revolutionary overthrow of capitalism. Meanwhile, however, mass strikes, peasant revolts, and military rebellions are lightning flashes in an electrified atmosphere heralding the coming revolutions.

New Imperialist War

"Feverish preparations for a new Imperialist war by the world Bourgeoise, its march toward Fascism, and an open terroristic dictatorship give witness of the Bourgeoise inability to rule through 'normal and democratic' methods.

"The Communist parties of the Third International have attained uniformity in their ranks which now cannot be shaken by any power. Communists in all countries have learned from Comrade Stalin how to fight and conquer.

"Under the banner of Marx, Engels, Lenin, and Stalin we will conquer in the whole world."

Manuilsky called the Communist parties in China and Germany, the "chief military detachments of the Communist Internationale" and mentioned France, Poland, and Czechoslovakia as among the countries where the Communist forces have grown considerably in the last few years.

More Books Read by Adults and Fewer by Juveniles in City

Registration of Borrowers Totals Fifty Per Cent

B. J. BLACK ELECTED

At a meeting of the Corby Public Library Board held last night, the following officers were elected for 1934:

Mr. B. J. Black, chairman; Mr. C. N. Sulman, Chairman Finance Committee; Mr. H. J. Clarke, Secretary-Treasurer; Mr. A. C. Wilkin, Chairman Book Committee.

The other members of the Board include: Mayor George O. Tice, E. B. Lally, M. P. Duff, J. W. Imlah, C. T. Walters.

The staff were re-appointed for 1934.

The annual report presented by Miss Margaret Z. White, librarian, was as follows:

"Gentlemen:

"As 1933 is now history in our library annals, we are able to review progress made during that year.

"Circulation of books was as follows:

"Total adult volumes loaned, 118,976. Total Juvenile 18,46[illegible].

"Comparing these with statistics for 1932, we find a slight increase in the number of volumes loaned to adults, and a decrease of 20 per cent. on those loaned to the children. The reason for the decrease in juvenile borrowings may be traced thus:

"In the Spring of 1932, Miss Adams and I visited the public schools of the city, and talked to the individual classes. The result of these expeditions was an increase of 100 per cent. the following month in the number of books loaned from the Boys' and Girls' Room. During the fall and winter of 1932 and the Spring of 1933, Miss Adams attended the Ontario Library School in Toronto, and owing to a very inflated circulation and a partially inexperienced and insufficient staff, we were unable to maintain the interest aroused. In this section of the library, more than any other, encouragement must be given, and the interest of the children captured and intelligently fostered. Miss Adams is well fitted for the task, having specialized in children's work, and it has been merely lack of time, due to pressure of routine duties that has kept us from accomplishing more in this department during the past few months. We plan, however, starting as soon as possible, this month, to ask the cooperation of the teachers in a scheme to interest their pupils in the library. This we must do, even at the sacrifice of other pressing work in the library. With our present excellent, but inadequate staff, our work becomes a matter of selection—deciding on the most important job and resigning the rest to fate and hoping that those gods whose special duty it is to look after libraries will come to our rescue soon.

"In the adult section, although circulation for the winter months was less than the preceding year, figures for the whole year reveal a slight increase. We are glad to note that less fiction was read in 1933 than the previous year, and more non-fiction. That people are looking for books that inform as well as entertain, is becoming more and more evident. We find an increased interest in books dealing with religion, social subjects, fine arts and literature.

"In August, a pay collection of books was instituted. This collection, which contains duplicates of volumes in the general collection, has proved itself remunerative to the library, and the added service is welcomed by library patrons.

Reference Library

"Our Reference Room has been used considerably, over 5,000 volumes having been consulted during the year. It will be necessary, soon to enlarge this room as the shelves are becoming overcrowded.

"During the summer months, several hundred worn and unused volumes were withdrawn from the Boys' and Girls' Room. Most of these were totally unfit for children's reading, and were taking up space on the shelves which is needed for new books and attractive editions of the classics. Also, over seven hundred volumes were discarded from the adult shelves. These have been sent to the Trenton Airport, The Children's Shelter, and the Bancroft Library.

"Nine hundred and sixty new volumes were bought in 1933, and 27 were donated by interested citizens. We have now 15,575 (approx.) volumes in the library. This year has seen the completion of a card index, which contains one card for each volume, in the order in which it appears on the library shelves. Started by Mr. Mowat in 1929, this index has been the work of our "odd" hours ever since. With the help of this list, we shall be able to take stock of the library, and we look forward to doing this during the coming summer. We will then have a complete, permanent record of the books in the library, and of the number of volumes in each class and division.

"Mr. F. C. Jennings, Inspector of Ontario Public Libraries, paid us a visit last summer. He complimented us on the appearance of the building and the books, and advised us to buy more Juvenile books and non-fiction. He remarked that we have a very large circulation relative to our population, and that our library is considerably understaffed. In this connection may I quote from the Ontario Library Review:

" 'A useful standard to observe in regard to the personnel of the librarian's staff is: one assistant librarian for each 25,000 of circulation. Many authorities, however, place this figure at 20,000.'

"In terms of Belleville, this means that if our library were functioning as it might, I should have five assistants instead of two. Comparing results, here, with recently adopted standards of the American Library Association, we find this interesting data:

" 'Book stock: 2 volumes per capita'. (Belleville with a population of 13,899 has only 15,575 volumes.)

" 'Registration of borrowers: 40 per cent. of population'. (Belleville has 50 per cent.)

" 'Circulation: 9 volumes per capita'. (Belleville has 9.9 volumes per capita.)

" 'Budget: Minimum income: 1.00 per capita'. (Belleville's total income is only 50 cents per capita, including the Corby Estate money.)

"Thus, with an income one half what it should be, and our book stock much below par, our circulation of books and number of borrowers is above the standard set. This is very gratifying, but if we do not have more money with which to carry on, the quality of our service will inevitably fall, inversely as our circulation increases. Are we justified in allowing this to continue, when a small grant from the city (only that to which we are entitled by law), will enable us to provide services which the public has a right to expect from an educational body such as we are. I believe that the institution which chooses and distributes books, wisely, ranks next to churches and schools in its scope of cultural usefulness. As a medium for enlightening the community in which it is placed, the library has a very important part to play. That we are cooperating to work towards this end should give us a certain satisfaction.

"May I express my thanks to the Board, and especially to Mr. Clarke, in the capacity of Secretary, Mr. Sulman, Chairman of Finance Committee, and Mr. Wilkin, Chairman of the Book Committee, for the assistance they have given and the consideration they have shown me. The work they have done has involved considerable time and effort. I would also thank the staff for loyalty and intelligent cooperation. Our thanks are due, also, to the Ontario Intelligencer for review space in its columns."

EGGS UP 2 TO 3 CTS DOZ

Prevailing Prices Paid on Market 27 to 28 Cents

A plentiful offering of eggs and the small amount of wood on the south side of the market were features of Belleville's Saturday market, Sub-zero weather prevented attendance on the outside market, and only a dozen or so vendors other than those handling meat were there. Prices for apples and vegetables were the same as last Saturday.

In the inside market vendors were on hand in less than fair numbers. Eggs took a jump of from two to three cents per dozen, and there was a large supply for ready purchasers; prices ranged from 25 cents for small to 30 cents per dozen for selected, 27 and 28 cents the prevailing prices. Butter was 25 cents a pound with some at two pounds for 55 cents. A few geese were offered at $1.80 and $2.00. Fowl ranged from 50 cents to 85 cents each and chickens sold from 40 cents to 85 cents apiece.

ROOT CROPS HIT BY FROST

Loss to Farmers of District Will Amount to Considerable

Nipped by the driving frost of the coldest winter in years, rural residents of this district are faced with the loss of thousands of dollars worth of roots and farm produce stored in root cellars and cellars of homes, it was revealed by questioning today.

Lulled to security during the past few years by the average and below average winter temperatures, farmers throughout Hastings and Prince Edward and other nearby counties, had almost lost or forgotten the knack of storing their farm products safe from frost. Low temperatures of the past few months invaded the root cellars with stinging thoroughness, nipping and destroying countless bushels and bins of unguarded produce.

Cabbage stored in the uncovered bins has been the chief sufferer, it was reported, with other roots also feeling the blight. Thousands of bushels of seed potatoes are believed to have been ruined in this immediate district for germinating. Even the carefully packed and preserved jellies and jams put up by hardworking housewives have split their glass jars by the hundreds. One resident of Prince Edward County near Rossmore lost over one hundred bushels of seed potatoes carefully stored in the cellar for spring planting.

PADDY IS HOME

Paddy is home!

A little brindle bull dog, familiar figure in the downtown section of the city, and well known to scores of its residents, has returned to the city after a week's absence, glad to be back with a boss, who deeply mourned his loss, and the children of the household grieved by the unexplained absence of their pet and playmate.

Paddy wasn't stolen. He merely took a trip in a car with a rural resident east of the city who believed he was befriending a little dog which was lost. Somewhere the collar and tag had been mislaid and no identification marks were present to aid him in tracing the ownership.

So the little bull dog went for the trip. During the past week he has been the guest of the farmer and his wife. He was well fed and cared for, but was unhappy and restless. Then during the latter part of the week an advertisement in the Ontario Intelligencer advised the farmer that the dog was being searched for. The description tallied with the little welcome guest. So, on Saturday, when the farmer went to market a little dog accompanied him. Paddy is back!

MENTAL TEST OF HUNTSLEY

Examination Felt To be Necessary Before Trial

Toronto, Feb. 3.—Harold Hunsley, 29, arrested in connection with a series of barn fires in Tillsonburg district and held for questioning will be medically examined before being arraigned for trial Monday in Woodstock, Iar Humphries, K.C., acting Deputy Attorney General for Ontario, stated today.

"The trial has not been cancelled or postponed," Mr. Humphries said. "The medical examination will be made on the request of the crown prior to Hunsley's arraignment on Monday. In view of certain circumstances it was felt that such an examination was necessary in all fairness to the accused."

Hunsley was taken into custody in Tillsonburg, when following a barn fire, he was threatened with manhandling by an angry mob of farmers. The fire, last of a long series of such blazes near Tillsonburg, destroyed the barn on the farm of F. Pettman. Prior to the blaze persons reported seeing a man flee from the building.

Footprints in the snow were traced in the direction of the house where Hunsley resided and were then lost. Farmers from the vicinity of the Pettman farm came to the aid of the family in fighting the fire, and when they became suspicious of Hunsley's actions, threatened him. Police arrived on the scene took him into custody and held him pending an investigation into the barn fires.

Charlie Dressen, also a member of the Giants, is in Memorial Hospital here, recuperating from an eight-weeks' siege of typhoid.

'PAT' NORTON BELIEVED TO BE UNDER ARREST

London, Ontario, Police Await Word from Los Angeles

London, Ont., Feb. 3 (CP) —City and Provincial Police marked time today pending word from Los Angeles, California, regarding the arrest of a man believed to be Ernest "Pat" Norton, the fourth member of the notorious Murrell gang, and said to be held in the Bern County jail. Chief Harry Down of the city force and Inspector Cousans of the Provincial Force, stated they have not received official word of the arrest.

It is understood the Washington Bureau of Fingerprints has a fyle on Norton which was sent out from this city immediately after the bank holdup in Melbourne in 1931. The record is also on fyle at Ottawa.

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper pop started to look at the evening paper and ma said, I wonder what Western Power and Gas is doing?

Being the name of the stock ma bawt, and pop said, I'll look it up for you.

You'll do nothing of the kind, the ideer, ma said. Whats the use of owning stocks if you're deprived of the doubtful pleasure of looking them up yourself? Just let me see that paper a couple of minnits, she said.

And she took it and terned to the financial page, saying, Where is it, it doesn't seem to be here, I hope nothing dreadful has happened to it, O no wonder, I'm not looking under the W's, here it is, Western Power and Gas, opened, closed, today's change, that's my intristed in, today's change, one eighth, O Willyum, it's up an eighth.

Inasmuch as it couldn't rise any less, I'd call that a conservative, not to say an approximate, increase, pop said, and ma said, Well Rome wasn't bilt in a day and neither was the stock market, and even one eighth is an indication of wich way the straws are blowing in the wind. O Willyum I think that's wonderful. I figured it all out on paper that all the stock has to do is go up 15 points for me to have a new broadtail coat or 25 points for a mink, she said.

But yee gods 25 points would be just double, wouldn't it? pop said, and ma said, Yes, that's all, and according to this paper the eighths are beginning to accumulate already.

Speaking of the paper I'd like to have it back, pop said. And he took it and started to look at the financial page himself, saying, For Peet sake it's minus one eighth, not plus one eighth, didn't you see that minus sine?

No I didn't notice, but anyway it proves the stock is moving, so people must be taking an intrist in it, ma said, and pop said, Heads or tales you win. It's a grate life.

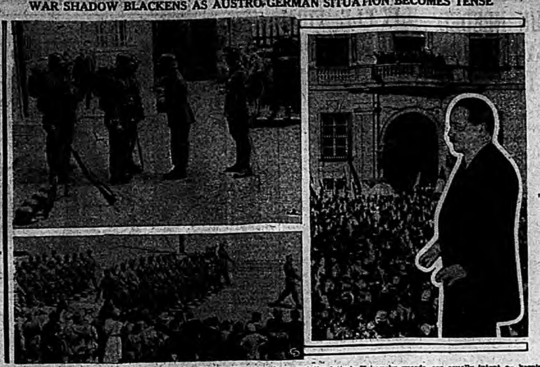
WAR SHADOW BLACKENS AS AUSTRO-GERMAN SITUATION BECOMES TENSE



With the Pope warning the world that a new "conflagration" is near, with Germany and France quibbling over Germany's right to re-arm, with Japan menacing Russia, and probably the United States in the Far East, and the tense situation which exists along the Anglo-German border, the world would seem to be swiftly heading for a new and terrible war. Most imminent appears the situation between Austria and Germany. Chancellor Dollfuss, himself a Fascist dictator, resents the attempts of the German Nazi (Fascist) party to gain control of Austria and bring about a union with Germany. The attention of the whole of Europe is centred on the border line of the two countries, where the anticipated trouble would first begin. Reports from Vienna state that the Austrian government believes Germany to be straining every nerve to force Austria to capitulate. However, Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss, his right-hand man, Von Starhemberg, and the latter's Heimwehr guards, are equally intent on keeping Austria for the Austrians. Although many Nazi "coups" have been unearthed throughout the country, the main drive would have its head at Kiefersfelden, the border line city where Nazi and Austrian troops prepare daily for any trouble. The layout above, shows upper left, Austrian troops being issued ammunition before they go out on patrol. One of these bullets may be responsible soon for plunging the world into another war. Lower left, shows Austrian troops on parade at the border city where they have concentrated their main force. Upper right testifies to the popularity of Dollfuss at a recent demonstration. More than 10,000 people gathered to cheer Dollfuss in his stand against Germany. Dollfuss himself is shown at right, as he received assurance from Italy, another Fascist nation, that they would back Austria in her plight.

Newsy Reminiscences Along Main Street

THE OLD BOX STOVE—

Maybe you haven't noticed it, but the distinctive aroma of the small city in winter time, of burning beech and hickory and elm has changed during the past winter or so into an acrid, biting smell which hangs cloyingly above the streets to offend sensitive nostrils, and make old-timers wish more longingly of the days that were. In former years at the dusk of everying there descended over the city a soft blend of wood smoke from countless chimneys which was as pleasing as the incense of the gods. There was the tangy smell of the burning pine knot, the hungry aroma of beech and the appetite kindling odor of hickory which wandered slowly down in a softly beguiling haze that left the mind unclouded and serene. In the days of yore a man could walk slowly along the walks, breathing deeply as he went. His mind was undistracted by a foreign scent which he could not shake. But fire places have been closed up. Furnaces have replaced the box stoves. Coal is slowly but surely giving away in many homes in favor of the less bothersome oil burner. From scores of chimneys on every street comes now a scent that is strange to old time nostrils. There now floats over the city the same smell that is left in the wake of a battleship steaming full speed ahead. Old timers can't get used to it. They sniff disdainfully at the new smells which have taken possession of the city —But the younger generation is accepting it without question. What they have never had they will never miss—the smell of a hickory log in an old-fashioned box stove.

THE RURAL MAILMAN—

Even into the snow banked lanes of the rural districts where the fur-mittened rural mail man makes his rounds has the tide of changing times swept. Not that the calling is less arduous and difficult than it was in the days when the silvery tinkle of bells on the horses' harness replaced the backfiring of the present day motor car, but even the contents of the mail bag are changing. The rural mail carrier of twenty or even fifteen years ago had fewer stops to make than his present day successor. His customers were generally pretty well spaced on the route. Not every one got mail in those days with the regularity of the present times. North of the city one rural carrier is still on the job he commenced over twenty years ago. He looks back and reminisces a little. He minds the time when big city mail order house catalogues constituted the bulk of his cargo on the morning round. Then they were thick and heavy and burdensome. Each farm home had one. Today the newer catalogues are slimmer, thinner. Then there were the newspapers, occasional weekly ones from nearby towns; today each farm home takes from one to three dailies, the farmer—is better read. Add the above contents of the mail bag to the countless letters from business concerns throughout the country; letters that contain the latest market quotations; letters that keep the rural dweller posted on every foreign and local event. You'll find that the rural dweller as well as the rural mail carrier have also undergone a change.

FOUR COMMUNISTS ARE SHOT TO DEATH

Officers Alleged Men Tried to Escape from Motor Lorry

Potsdam, Germany, Feb. 2 (AP) — Four Communists were shot to death today by a police escort when the officers said, they jumped for liberty from a motor lorry.

The men, John Scheer, Erich Steinfurth, Eugen Schoenhaar and Rudolf Schwarz, were being taken from Berlin to Potsdam.

They had been jailed for some time in the capital and were to be examined here in connection with the slaying yesterday by an unidentified person of Alfred Kattner, who turned state's evidence in high treason proceedings against Ernst Thaelmann, a Communist leader

The police version was that Kattner had been advised to go to Russia but refused, fearing for his life there. An unidentified man forced his way into Kattner's home in nearby Hawawes and shot him dead in bed.

CAR BURNS IN MINOR ACCIDENT

Wire Fence Prevents Car From Going Over Embankment

PHILLIPSTON.—The attendance at Bethel Church was small on Sunday morning on account of ice and bad roads.

There have been a number of minor accidents the most serious of which happened to Mr. Nelson Welsh of Moira. When he was coming down the hill east of Mr. James Phillips' barn, his car swerved to the right breaking a post and but for the wire fence which held the car it would have gone down a steep embankment where at the bottom was a fast running stream. His car caught on fire doing much damage but was eventually extinguished.

The sympathy of the community is extended to Mr. Swain on account of the loss of his wife who died after a very short illness and was buried last Wednesday. Sympathy is also extended to Mrs. Bill Salisbury, whose husband was buried on Thursday. They were both well known in this community and highly respected.

Mr. Gordon Foster and his two sisters, Miss Verna and Miss Betty from Moira, were Sunday visitors of Mr. Roy and Miss Leeta Chambers.

Miss Mabel Geen from Fuller, was a guest of Mrs. Sayers, a few days this week.

Miss Edna Ketcheson, who is teaching at Wallbridge, spent the week end under the parental roof.

Mr. Bicey Marrow is spending a couple of months at home with his father, Mr. Tobias Marrow.

The hum of the sawing machine is heard again.

Mr. George Thresher, who lives with his nephew, Mr. Floyd Thresher, fell heavily on the doorstep, rendering him unconscious for some time. He has been rather unfortunate as this is the third time he has fallen on the slippery ice this winter.

SUSPEND WORK ON NEW HIGHWAY

Rev. J. D. Paterson Speaks to Men's Club, Marmora

Marmora—Owing to the drop in the temperature to twenty below zero, work on the new highway was suspended on Monday.

Mr. Browe of Toronto was in town on Wednesday.

A most enjoyable euchre and bridge party was held under the auspices of the Women's Institute in the Library on Wednesday evening. An exceptionally large crowd was in attendance. Sixteen tables were played. Mr. E. Hewitt won the euchre prize and Mrs. Robt. Nayler the bridge.

St. Paul's A.Y.P.A. met at the White Hall on Monday evening.

"What should a man expect from his church?" was the subject very ably handled by Rev. J. D. Paterson of All Saints Church, Peterboro, at the meeting of St. Paul's Men's Club held in the White Hall on Tuesday evening. The ladies were invited to this meeting and the speaker's message was so delivered that they too, besides the men felt impressed by the presentation of the topic.

The three headings taken by the speaker were: A man should be able to knock at the door of his church and say, "I want religion." and not ask in vain. The people need the church to give them the three standard of morals, to show them the dividing line between right and wrong. A man should expect from his church real fellowship.

A hearty vote of thanks to the speaker was moved by Past President C. H. Buskard, and seconded by W. Burridge. President W. R. Reynolds also voiced his deep appreciation of Rev. Paterson's visit.

Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell opened with prayer and introduced the speaker of the evening. Miss N. Thompson was pianist. Refreshments were served at the close.

PLAY BUT NOT SUNDAY WORK

Means Work For Others on Sunday Says Lord's Day Alliance

Toronto, Feb. 2—Referring to the assistance given by the Ontario Government in lessening the amount of commercial motor truck traffic on the highway on Sundays, Rev. Dr. C. H. Huests, General Secretary, presenting a report before the annual meeting of the Lord's Day Alliance of Canada in the Baptist Church House, stated that this example was being followed by the other Provinces. Some cases of industrial work of a seemingly unnecessary character and also contract work in the construction of highways were noted.

Appreciation was expressed of the policy of the Canadian Radio Broadcasting Commission in aiming at reduction of Sunday advertising to an announcement of the name of the company sponsoring the program of their product. Commercialized aeroplaning was cited as an unsolved problem, but the authorities were commended for taking action where this constituted a disturbance to the quiet of the community.

Reviewing the work of the Alliance throughout Canada as a whole the General Secretary stated that generally speaking Canadians did not want to work on Sunday, but to an increasing extent they desired to play on that day. This included a large amount of work on the part of those who were ready to cater to the needs of pleasure seekers. Outside the Province of Quebec there was little commercialized amusements in Canada, he stated.

AUTO MAKERS LIKE OUTLOOK

Manufacturing Schedule Much in Advance of 1933

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 2—(CP) — Current manufacturing schedules in automobile factories in this area are much in advance of a year ago and corresponding increases in payrolls have resulted, according to production figures of several large companies issued today.

Executives of all companies were optimistic on the business outlook, with prospects for continued steady improvement.

"The business outlook for 1934 is good", said John D. Mansfield, president of the Chrysler Corporation. "We see nothing ahead but substantially improved conditions during the first half of the year at least."

"We anticipate and are preparing for substantial increases in business," said D. R. Grossman, General Manager of the Studebaker Corporation of Canada, "General business conditions are improving steadily and the result is already apparent."

Germans Eat Canadian Skins of Sausages on "Hot Dogs"

Local Butchers Often Throw Skins Into Discard

GERMAN DEMAND

A news item in foreign despatches tells tersely this week of the importation into Germany from Canada during the past month of millions of sausage skins, an item that at one time represented a considerable proportion of the minor exports into this country.

Hans and Fritz have turned from the heavier, bologna-type sausage of the former days to the lowly but delectable "hot dog" a distinctive Canadian and United States treat. Masquerading under the more flattering name of "frankfurters," they are nevertheless recognised under their new Canadian skins as plain "hot dogs". Hans and Fritz are eating them. Hence the sudden and tremendous demand for the coverings from this country.

But local butchers shrug uninterestedly when approached on the matter. True, the skins are being sent from this country in their millions, but locally the demand has created little stir. Butchers are slaughtering just the same as ever, but the skins are thrown into the discard. "Too much trouble to clean them" they report. They are merely fertilizer. But some farmers take the trouble to save the skins.

But in the larger packing houses were everything from the pig is used but the grunt, the matter takes on another complexion. Here the skins are carefully salvaged from the interior of the butchered animal, washed in several approved solutions, and then carefully packed for shipment. From Toronto alone each week are sent hundreds of thousands of the skins, carefully packed for the buyers in Germany.

The value of the December exports last year to Germany was set at $50,000. If these casings were worth half a cent a piece — which is just a guess, and no doubt not a very good one—they will make about ten million sausages. Give them an average size of three inches and they would stretch out to a distance of about 475 miles, pretty nearly one-fifth of the distance between Halifax and Vancouver as the crow seldom flies these days. That is some sausage line in one month for Hans and Fritz and Gretchen.

A DESPERADO STUDY

Here is an interesting close-up study of the man whom police charge is one of the most notorious public enemies in the United States. Once captured, no chances were taken with the desperado, and four hundred police were sent to guard him. Strangely enough, Dillinger will be jailed, pending trial at Crown Point, Indiana, where a woman, Mrs. Holley, is sheriff. Dillinger is charged with at least one murder and several hold-ups and bank robberies.

DOLLAR NEWS DOMINATING

U. S. Dollar Gains on Pound on London Exchange

LONDON, Feb. 2.— (AP)—Gold and the United States dollar dominated the news and editorial columns of London's morning papers today. President Roosevelt's action, its effects so far and the effects it may or may not have were discussed at length.

"The United States has returned to gold by establishing an International gold bullion standard," the Times said. "It may prove to be the first essential step toward restoration of a common International monetary standard — one of the most important essentials to restoration of International trade."

The paper advocated some kind of currency understanding in London and Washington.

British Use of Fund

"It would be in the interest of both countries and International trade generally if the American Equalization Fund were used as the British Fund has been, to encourage exchange between the two currencies to find its natural point of equilibrium and to restrict fluctuations caused by speculators and the nervousness of the money market."

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 — Dollar stabilization in the Foreign Market, now that it has been placed on a gold bullion standard, may not require the use of the $2,000,000,000 treasury fund, say International Bankers.

With normal International gold transactions restored, it is relieved that foreign purchases of gold by private bankers has replaced the recent United States Treasury purchases which were made to keep the dollar from rising.

MOOSE CLOSE SEASON

Mr. Harry Moore, of the Trenton Courier-Advocate, one of the best known game men in these parts, commends the Hastings County Council for the resolution favoring a closed season on moose in this county for ten years. He expects other counties to follow suit.

The reasons as Mr. Moore gives them are the following: "This is a good stroke of business for if the killing of moose keeps on it will not be long until the moose will be as scarce in the territory south of the French River as the elk. Moose are not fast breeders. The female produces one every year, usually about the middle of July, on some lonely island, and while they cannot be very successfully hunted by dogs, there is no doubt that the wolves get a few of the young. There are a few moose in Algonquin National Park and occasionally one wanders south into Hastings but the occasion is so rare that it makes copy for the newspapers. The Courier-Advocate is in favor of a closed season on moose for many years to come. It is the only chance for these fine animals to survive."

With the support of such a naturalist as Mr. Moore, the members of the County Council cannot but feel that they acted wisely in the passage of the resolution.

THE MOVIE AND THE DRAMA

Professor George Pierce Baker, founder of the "47" Workshop for drama at Harvard and Yale, which has given Eugene O'Neill, Kenneth MacGowan, and Philip Barry to the theatre recently visited Hollywood where he was the guest of a former student. Dr. Baker thinks films yet a bit bumptious but they are arriving at mellowness.

In his opinion the miracle of the movies, is "the fact that the entire stupendous and complex system can eventually be submerged so that the dialogue and plot and personalities project themselves out of the picture."

Professor Baker's course at the universities was drama and the preparation of writers for the theatre. He has not been actively interested in movies except as to their relationship to the regular stage. He sees a great benefit in the mutual borrowing of material by screen and drama.

SPEECH FROM THRONE

The session of the Legislature just opened promises much good reading for the people of Ontario. Col. the Hon. Thomas L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture, has taken a hand in the agricultural situation in a way calculated to improve the status of that industry by the movement to control the sale of milk and to protect the milk producers against milk wars, costs of which will have to be borne not by the farmers but by the warring interests. Interesting was his reference on Friday to the "blue ribbon farms" which will be fully accredited not only as regards tuberculin test of cattle but in every other way to improve the status of farming and to give assurance to the purchaser of farm products in cattle, poultry, sheep and swine, for he believes that the day is here when farmers will receive bigger prices for much-wanted certified products.

The maintenance of all school grants is another of the matters heralded by the Speech from the Throne at the opening of the Legislature. Education cannot be held up because money has been scarce for the future counts more than the present.

An interesting sidelight on the employment relief projects which are to be carried on with a gradual reduction of the direct relief comes from the United States where it is said that there are often many persons who will not seek direct relief who will seek work on relief projects, which should be limited to those actually needy.

The pleasure of anticipation of a reference to a beer-and-wine policy was not satisfied for the Speech made no reference to the question which in many ways bids fair to overshadow every other question.

TO SAVE LIVES

Sometimes an expenditure may seem too large to be undertaken but if there is a call for it, it will prove it is worth many times the cost.

One has but to look at Hamilton where two lives were saved by the purchase of a bronchoscope for the hospital. This bronchoscope is a device whereby skilled operatives can fish foreign bodies from windpipes and even from the lungs.

In a short space of time this bronchoscope in saving the life of a child in whose larynx a peanut had become imbedded and the life of another person proved its value.

Instruments which will do this are worth almost any cost. No organization should ever be penurious where expenditure of such kind is under discussion, for the life of but one person is valuable. Health and life must be the prime considerations.

Criticism surprises the soul in the arms of the convention.—Santayana.

There is no canker more undermining than ignorance. There is no balm more soothing than knowledge.—Langstaff.

SIDELIGHTS

GRAVE and GAY (Supervised by The Lamplighter)

A SUNSET

Over the high tops of the town
On wings of flame the day goes down.

The clouds are wafted from the west,
Straight from the sunset's burning breast.

They spread their splendors far and nigh,
Like royal robes across the sky.

The sable wreaths of smoke that float
Up from each chimney's dusky throat,

Caught in the sunset's golden tide,
Are for a moment glorified.

Like windspun curtains they unfold
In misty silver shot with gold.

But now the murky distance drains
Each cloud of all its gorgeous stains,

And swiftly as the pageant ends,
As swiftly now the night descends.

And lifts, above a cloudy bar,
A sickle moon, a single star.

DIETS, DOCTORS AND GAME BIRDS

HOW WOULD YOU FEEL if you had some nice partridges put away ready for a game party when the time was ripe, and your doctor put you on a diet and told you under no circumstances to eat partridge?

x x

Putting temptation behind you in a sudden burst of generosity you gave the partridge to your doctor, who had the game supper?

x x

Would you think it strange if the patient harbored a lurking suspicion after he thought things over that his doctor had advance information about the partridge—and perish the thought, coveted his neighbor's partridge, his patient's rather?

x x

It couldn't be, of course, but these vagrant thoughts persist.

x x

Makes you think that it would have been better to have eaten the partridge first and consulted the doctor after.

x x

However, what's the use of crying over spilled or spoiled partridge. The doctor has absorbed the partridge while the patient is absorbing a meatless, gameless diet and some rather helpful philosophy.

A LONDON STREET CAR, commonly called "tram," became lost in a fog and wandered hither and yon until it finally stopped at a terminal to which it was a stranger. "Streatham Common" was the name on the tram indicating that its destination was "Streatham Common." but the fog came down and blocked out all landmarks until that tram ceased to be "Streatham Common" and became "Streatham Preferred," to all intents and purposes. Now we know what happens those Toronto "trams" which fail to turn up at the time and place they are supposed to—some of the higherups suffering from mental fog, perhaps.

POTATOES GROW LARGE in Ireland, also other things including peat, but coal has never been suspected of growing in Ireland before. However, it is believed that coal may be found there and a search is on for the precious heat provider. The first result of the coal search has been the discovery of iron ore in Arigna Valley, County Leitrim, where three rich veins of iron ore have been uncovered. Search for coal is being continued with French engineers and mining experts, under government auspices.

FUN NEEDED BY EVERYONE TO KEEP FIT

If Necessary Cut Out Some Work And Enjoy Yourself

By LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health And Psychology

(Copyright, 1934,)
(King Feature Syndicate)

Fun is as essential to health as are proper food and digestion.

Perhaps you will claim that you have difficulty enough accomplishing all you should, and getting the necessary sleep, in the alotted twenty-four hours.

Well, you may claim that. But your claim will not stand the acid test of investigation.

If you haven't time for fun—create it! Cut something else out if necessary. Eliminate that other activity for the time being anyway and get some fun!

Soon you will be so refreshed because of the fun that no difficulty will be found in resuming the neglected work and squeezing it in without strain.

Whether you be rich or poor, a man or woman of responsibility and care, or one whose duties and troubles are minimum, take a certain amount of time each day and waste it!

The time will not be actually wasted, but you'll think it is at first. After a while you will consider it the most valuable waste you ever indulged in.

What kind of fun do I recommend? Any kind—any activity that will take you out of yourself, that will make you happy, that will make you laugh.

Drama, music, vaudeville, motion pictures, dancing, light reading, the pursuit of hobbies, golf, cycling, clay-pigeon shooting, baseball, football, skating, gardening, bee-culture, horseback riding, automobiling, mountain climbing—these are the kinds of fun that occur to me, the kinds I know many people enjoy.

If your pastime carries physical exercise with it, so much the better.

But here I am not stressing recreation so much as I am stressing fun. There is a distinction as well as a difference between recreation and fun.

If you take your recreation seriously, it isn't fun. If you take it with pleasure and laughter, it's the best kind of fun.

Fun you must have, even if it be no more than reading the daily comic strips.

A daily tickling of the risibilities is essential to the well-being of our emotional lives. It's like letting the sunlight into a dark room.

Most of us are too serious. We are full of doubts and fears even when we are successful and apparently getting along as well as could be expected.

It is fun we need as an antidote to these morbid feelings.

Add fun to your emotional diet and see how much easier you are able to swallow the bitter pills that life so often forces upon us.

Letters to The Editor

Mr. Editor:

"Did you ever hear the story of the old colored preacher who ended up his lengthy sermon to the colored congregation with the exhortation: ". . . and, Brethren, don't do as I do, do as I say"?

"You must recall a notice in your paper of the February 1 issue of a statement from the city engineer regarding the cleaning of walks in the city following each snowstorm. Two other notices were also officially printed in your paper with the same warning to citizens. Snow must be cleaned from the walks. That point was made clear.

"We of the west side of the city are smiling. That is we are smiling some of the time lately. We smile broadest when we recall that notice and the two previous ones. But there are other times when we are not smiling so much. We can't find anything funny to amuse us. This is generally when we are plowing and puffing our way through the thick deep drifts of snow on walks in front of city properties on the west side of the river, untouched by human hands or shovels for weeks at a time. There has been a standing joke up our way for some time now: "You can tell what properties around here have been taken over by the city just by looking at the sidewalks a day or so after the snow storm. If a section of walk is shovelled, then we know the vacant lot is still privately owned. If it lies neglected all winter, then the city owns it." And in the meantime the residents of that section puff and grunt through the banked drifts to and from work.

"It's not nice business. If there's a law on this matter, let it apply to everyone. We know we have other neighbors who don't know what it feels like to clean a walk, but the city, itself, is a consistent offender also. 'Practise what you preach' should be a good motto for Mr. Mott and the city hall."

Yours truly,
CITIZEN.

LITTLE FIRM NOT ASSIGNED

Enjoy High Credit Rating And Occupy Foremost Position

London, Ont., Feb. 3—(CP) — Robinson Little and Company, Limited, of London and Winnipeg, have informed the Canadian Press that statements in reports carried by the Canadian Press on Jan. 30, that the firm had failed or assigned, are incorrect.

Stanley Windle of Winnipeg, General Manager of the company, stated to the Canadian Press that Robinson, Little and Company Limited had not failed or assigned but, on the contrary, is actively carrying on a flourishing business in Winnipeg and the Western Provinces.

Mr. Windle said: "Robinson, Little and Company Limited have been doing business in Canada for 59 years and at no time have they failed to meet their obligations. Today we enjoy the highest credit rating and occupy a foremost position in the trade. Our business in the Western Provinces is in the most satisfactory condition in its history, and despite any depression in other lines has shown remarkable improvement in the last two years."

MORE STRICT SUPERVISION

Conditions in Windsor Shelter Said to Show Need

Toronto, Feb. 2 (CP)—Conditions disclosed in the Windsor Shelter by the investigation of M. A. Sorsoleil, Deputy Minister of Welfare for Ontario were said by the Toronto Telegram today, to have revealed the necessity of more stringent supervision of the independent societies.

Considerable reorganization of the Children's Aid Branch of the Ontario Department of Welfare was expected to follow the superannuation of the veteran superintendent J. J. Kelso towards the end of next month, the paper said.

EXPECTS LONG HARD SESSION

However Hon. Mr. Meighen Thinks it Will be Fruitful One

Toronto, Feb. 3 (CP)—The current session of Parliament, in the view of Senator Arthur Meighen, may be one of the most fruitful in the history of the Dominion. It will be a long, arduous and bitter one, he believes, but impressive in its results.

Speaking last night at a complimentary dinner in honor of R. C. Matthews, recently appointed Minister of National Revenue, the Conservative leader of the Upper Chamber described the Senate as more of a court of review than a political assembly. He said he would devote his own efforts to keeping the Senate a quasi-legal, judicial body, otherwise, he declared, the chamber had no place in the function of the government.

Mr. Matthews declared his belief there was no other man in the House of Commons who could have maintained Canada's solvency during the depression as Prime Minister R. B. Bennett had maintained it. He said "it is my opinion that had not Mr. Bennett been at the helm of the ship of state we never would have survived.

"The only aspect in which Premier Bennett was a despot was in his unalterable determination to remain the credit of this land."

RELIEF TOTAL LITTLE LOWER

Approximate Number of Men Difficult to State

Relief figures for the past month at the office of the Central Relief Bureau have been fairly stationary, it was reported by officials today. Owing to the transitory nature of many now on the lists, however, the approximate number of those receiving aid from the city is difficult to state. Many of the men are working on the relief project, it was pointed out, and others who are registered are receiving help only between intervals of odd jobs which return them some needed cash. While working these individuals are not eligible for the relief. It is believed that the average number is slightly lower than one year ago.

Chief of Police John Newton's report to the Police Commissioners showed that seven hundred and ten cases were brought before the police court and that 3 hundred and fourteen calls to various parts of the city were answered. The fines, fees and licenses collected amounted to $6,027.90, an increase over last year of $924.31. During the year the finger print identification system was introduced into the local police department. Chief Newton recommended that the force be increased by the addition of at least two men owing to the increase in population.

Things are very quiet in police circles. During the past six days it has not been necessary to hold police court and no arrests have been made during that time.

TWO FOR TEA and TEA FOR TWO

The cup that cheers and has no headaches still rules supreme in the social world. We can remember Grandmother telling of the tea of her youth which cost five dollars a pound. Cups were smaller then and not filled as often as now. Today the social pages of newspapers are plentifully sprinkled with paragraphs stating that Mrs. So-and-So poured tea, and wherever one or two women are gathered together you may be sure a pot of tea will be in evidence early in the session. Belleville folks drink a lot of tea, and in that connection the following letter will be of interest:

TIGERS LOSE TO TORONTOS

2-0 Win Puts Toronto Team in Tie For Second Place

(By the Canadian Press)

Four points behind the league-leading Hamilton Tigers, West Toronto Nationals and Torontos shared second place today in the Senior Ontario Hockey Association standings. Tigers were blanked 2-0 by Torontos in the Ontario capital last night, the Queen City's aggregation's victory placing them beside West Toronto Nationals in the second berth.

At Port Colborne a 2-2 draw resulted when Sailors played hosts to Niagara Falls Cataracts. The Sailors in fifth place, brought their total to 17 points through the tie, four points behind the Falls.

Six thousand fans turned out to witness Torontos humble the Hamilton team, the largest crowd of the season. Andy Goldie, good natured net guardian of Torontos, pounced on every shot Tigers tossed his way.

KI-Y LOOP

In the two games of Ki-Y League hockey played at the Arena last evening, the Black Hawks blanked the Young Canadians 8 to 0, while the Flyers were forced to the limit to eke out a 3 to 2 victory over the Aces.

In the juvenile section the Black Hawks continued their triumphant march towards the group title by applying the white-wash brush to the lowly "Canucks" when the winners romped home to an 8 to 0 score. The Hawks packed altogether too much speed and combination for their Canadian rivals. The score of 2-0 the first period saw keen competition but the winners added three more counters in each of the following periods to run up their count to eight. The Hawks have yet to lose a scheduled game this season.

The line-ups for the juvenile game:

Black Hawks—Salisbury, Sager, Cross, McCreary, Pepper, Philp, F. Pepper, Pringle, Storms, Green and Hanna.

Young Canadians — Elliott, J. McKenna, Hainault, Knott, Rushlow, H. McKenna, Goyer and Westlake.

Referee—Lester Shiels.

With but five players to compose their roster the Aces took to the ice in a midget fixture and held the Flyers to a one goal lead, when the lateer came down in front by a 3 to 2 score. The game was keenly contested interspersed with bursts of speed, that was surprising for such teen age boys. The Flyers scored one goal in each period. while the short-handed Aces bagged one in the first and another in the final stanza.

The line-ups for the midget game:

Flyers — G. Griffin, Pack. A. Griffin, Burkholder, Moncrief, Weller and Hinchey.

Aces—Yarrow, Booth, A. Kerr, B. Kerr and McGreachie.

Referee—Cook.

PICKET WASHINGTON AGAINST COMMUNISTS

Washington, Feb. 3 (AP)—Secret Service Operatives and Metropolitan Police picketed sections of the United States Capital early today after receiving reports of a possible "Communist" demonstration in which officers said perhaps 1,000 persons might take part.

Although conceding they possessed only piecemeal information as to what, if any, shape the projected demonstration might assume, police said they were ready for any eventualities.

Current Sport

DAY BY DAY

On Civic Holiday last summer an old time baseball game was staged with more than the usual success that has surrounded the diamond game locally in some years past. Would it be possible that a hockey game along those same lines could be possible? What fun it would be to see "Sandy" Burrows line up once again with Ted McMillan, Harry Kennedy, Jack Marks, Dyke McGuire and many other hockey celebrities of days past who brought honor and distinction to this fair city.

* * *

Of course it would not be possible to expect retired pucksters to play a full game of hockey but a real night's entertainment could be arranged whereby the participants could once again be in the limelight while the patrons would be afforded a real night's fun and frivolity. A fifteen minute period of hockey played under the rules that were in vogue 20 or 30 years ago could be played, to be followed by say a relay race with teams representing all public and the separate school; also include the O.S.D. and Albert College. The local skating club would give a demonstration while a few tricks and other ice acts could be included to make the evening a success.

* * *

How many fans remember the late Richard Arnott's stellar junior team of 1916? There was a real championship calibre club. For such an evening's entertainment "Gunner" Arnott, D. G. "Daw" Whalen, Bill Green, Bouncer Holway, Stan Nurse, the only local player ever to be picked on an O.H.A. junior all-star team, and others could be counted on for just one more appearance on the ice. Then there are such old timers as Sammy Symons, Ted Whalen, Bill Finkle, Pat Boland, Frank Goyer, Peeney Mills, Guy Harris, Nap Goyer, Bill Pepper, Ernie Ford, Ernie Lang, Stan Hagerman, Bill Canning, and numerous others who would delight in trying just once more, their hockey ability.

* * *

Of course it would not be to any advantage to pit the old timers against a present day aggregation but two teams of old timers, playing the game under the rules of years ago, would be appreciated by the old time fans and lovers of hockey. A few added attractions would make an evening at the local arena a decided success. A program could be arranged to suit both the young and the old. There's the suggestion and without even the asking. In order to stimulate ice skating the management at the local arena announced a reduction in prices early this week. It is also understood that the same will be adopted by the local hockey teams for the remainder of the season.

Following the rather weird showing of the Dohertys versus Trenton the other night one thing definitely was established. The locals need at least another forward who can carry the puck past their opponents' blue line. Judging from our correspondents in North Hastings the two Canning boys, Jack and Henry, would add a little strength to the "oilmen". These two lads have been scoring goals quite frequently in the Central League and might fit in with the Dohertys. Another suggestion that was recently passed along to the Dohertys apparently did not filter as the local defencemen are still trying to barge their way through to the other end of the rink. By actual count Thursday night there were exactly seventeen times during the contest when a local defenceman rushed and failed to pass the puck at the opportune time, despite the fact that he was being flanked by one and sometimes two team mates.

Early his morning Manager Walter Patterson announced the play-off dates in the local intermediate group. On Monday and Wednesday Trenton and Cobourg play off with the Wednesday date being a home stand for the Trenton club. On the following Friday the winner plays in Belleville with the return game being played in the town that wins the first play-off. The ultimate winner of these two play-offs meet the Campbellford Maroons on Wednesday, February 14 (Ash Wednesday). The above schedule gives the Dohertys nearly a full week during which they can practice a little forward passing, team play and most important of all—their shooting, which incidentally was far below average against the Trenton club.

Coach George Laughlin's senior B.C.I. cagers continued their triumphant march towards another group title when they romped home to a 26 to 15 win over the Trenton seniors last evening while the local juniors apparently ran into a snag as they dropped a hard-fought game to the Trenton lads by a 20 to 10 score. The seniors have yet to lost a game in their group while the juniors tasted their initial interscholastic loss last evening.

Montreal Maroons' recent high-scoring recruit, Russell Blinco, qualifies as the most polite player in the whole National Hockey League. Johnny Sheppard crashed into him full tilt during the Hawk-Maroon game at Montreal recently, and Blinco panted, "Excuse me." Blinco is not so polite to goalers. In his first eight games with Maroons he got five goals, or nearly half his club's total in that time.

How many fans remember the late Richasd Arnott's stellar junior flanked by one and somelmes two team mates.

Quakers, Favorites to Restore World's Title to Canada

Saskatoon Goes Into Action Against Germany in First Round

Milan, Italy, Feb. 3 (CP)—Pitted against the best hockey teams in Europe, many of them reinforced by experienced Canadians, Saskatoon Quakers were heavy favorites today to capture what most of Europe regards as the world's amateur title here. The quakers, runners-up for the Allan Cup in Canada last season, play Germany on Monday in the first round.

As the brilliant team from the wheatlands has played exhibitions in many parts of the continent, soundly whipping highly regarded teams everywhere, observers are convinced they will go through this tournament without defeat. But there is always the chance one of the stronger European teams will put one over—they have before.

A picked United States squad is expected to provide the Quakers with their sternest opposition. Also on tour, the Americans have been winning exhibitions with much the same ease as the Saskatoon outfit. Barring upsets, they are expected to meet in the finals.

Quakers have played 15 games since they arrived on the continent winning 13. They were beaten 3-1 by the strong Berlin Skating Club team and 1-0 by the Praha Lawn Tennis Club. The sting of these unexpected reverses was removed, however, by subsequent victories over both teams.

During this tune-up campaign the Prairie team scored 77 goals and had nine scored against them. Nine of their wins were by shutouts.

PRE-GAME PREDICTIONS

(By A. E. Fulford, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Fans who take their hockey so seriously they sometimes get a bit maudlin are weeping these days over the pitiful case of Toronto Leafs. In 18 days a schedule that may have been drawn up when they weren't looking has forced them into 11 National Hockey League games.

This week-end the final, bitter touch is added when they must meet Ottawa and Detroit on successive nights. And all this after they lost the services of Ace Bailey and while Hec Kilrea and Buzz Boll have been out of action with injuries.

But other clubs are wasting little sympathy on the N.H.L. champions. They are still leading the Canadian section by 14 points and could play the rest of their games handcuffed and still get into a playoff position.

At that, Leafs' schedule men might have been more cunning than it seems on the surface. For the remaining six weeks of the season they play only 13 games. While they are practically loafing in preparation for the extra-season series other clubs still take up the burden of heavy road work, clubs not so well fortified for the heavy going.

Leafs Play Twice

Leafs are the only club playing twice this week-end but every outfit in the league is in action in one game. In the only other clash besides the Ottawa-Toronto affair tonight, Montreal will investigate reports that Earl Seibert, Ranger ace, is a better rushing defenceman than Eddie Shore.

A win for the New Yorkers would give them sole possession of first place in the United States division, at least until Black Hawks get into action Sunday night against Boston Bruins in Chicago.

New York Americans, who are picked widely to knock off a play-off berth although they still are five points behind Maroons, go back into Madison Square Garden Sunday night to see what they can do about it against Canadiens.

With Glen Brydson at his right wing position after a three-game layoff caused by a wrist sprain, the Maroons hope to beat Rangers tonight and take a firm hold on the second position they now share with Canadiens. The latter will be handicapped in their contest with Amerks by the loss of Marty Burke, their rugged defence man, out with an injured eye.

SHORE BACK FROM HOCKEY EXILE

EDDIE SHORE (No. 2) IN ACTION

In the thick of the battle between the New York Rangers and the Boston Bruins is Eddie Shore, brilliant Bruin defence man, who returned to play after a long suspension, the result of a nearly fatal collision between Shore and Ace Bailey, Canadian star. Though Shore played brilliantly in his comeback game, the Rangers were too good for the Bruins, winning 4-2. But Eddie has put a lot of pep back into the Bruin team.

B.C.I. CAGERS WIN AND LOSE

Seniors Defeat Trenton 26-15 While Juniors Lose 20-10

The B.C.I. and V.S. basketball teams split a dual bill at Trenton last evening, when the local seniors romped home to a 26 to 15 win over the Trenton seniors with the B. C. I. Juniors taking the short end of a 20 to 10 score at the hands of the Trenton kids.

Led by Freddie Forster the local seniors packed too much speed and combination for their Trenton rivals. Gray was the big scorer for the homesters with 10 points to his credit. Faulkner, Cole and Forster were the big scorers for the local with Hilton and Temple also turning in stellar performances for the Laughlin-coached crew.

The line-ups:

Trenton—Huffman, Hurwitz, Wallace, Mitchell, Thompson, Fox, Taylor and Gray.

B. C. I. and V. S.—Martin, Faulkner 4, Cole 4, Ostrom 4, Hilton 2, Henry, Countryman, Temple 3, and Forster 9.

Referee—Paiee.

Headed by their speedy forward Davis, the Trenton juniors doubled the score on the local cagers to administer the first defeat registered against a local junior team this season. Tobe, Gold and Schrieder were the only Laughlin-coached cagers to count scoring points for the tri-color.

The line-ups:

B.C.I. and V.S.—Langton, Tobe, Gold, Schrieder, Cowain, Kikes, L'Heureux, G. Forster, Eggleton and Blaker.

Trenton—Davis, Willman, Gray, Milligan, Dodswell, Newton, McMillen and White.

Referee—Paige.

Boston Red Sox Spend Load of Money to Obtain Winner

Braves However Expect to Reach Same Objective Without Spending

(By Bill King, Associated Press Sports Writer)

Boston, Jan. 31 (AP)— Probably the most striking contract of this highly interesting winter, from a baseball standpoint, is the widely different courses Boston's to major league clubs have charted for their 1934 objectives, a first division berth.

The Red Sox, to whom money is no object, have not left a stone unturned in their determined search for new strength, while the Braves have done absolutely nothing. But at this writing both teams appear to have equal chances to attain the hopes they voice on such sharply contrasting foundations.

After pouring out about $400,000 for the thoroughly tested new material, President Tom Yawkey and General Manager Eddie Collins have built an American League machine that is far from being flawless. In fact these baseball plutocrats, despite their lavish spendings, seem to have accomplished little more than the stand-pat Braves. Both clubs have almost the same good and bad points. Highly promising pitching staff, adequate outfielders, decidedly weak infields and questionable catching.

But neither club can be described as set. Like Yawkey and Collins, owner William Fuchs of the Braves, is staying awake these nights mapping out plans to outsmart one or more rivals during the coming schedule meetings in New York.

Since it is only a question of money, the Red Sox will probably be able to finish any deals they start. It is different with Fuchs, for he lacks the means to meet the demands of the other National League magnates and every time he tries to do business the party of the second part generally pulls him up short by demanding Wally Berger and a couple of his pitching stars for any player who might do the Braves some good.

Despite the fact that the wise men of baseball can't see either club as a first-division contender, it is highly possible that both will reach their destination, a journey that will cost the Red Sox at least $400,000 and the Braves comparatively nothing.

At 8 p.m. the meeting was opened officially with Rev. J. A. Koffend in charge while Mr. H. B. Disbrowe was appointed secretary for the evening.

Mr. Koffend pointed out as a fitting message for his congregation for 1934, the motto taken from the Philippians "Let nothing be done through strife or vain glory but be Christ-minded." The minutes of the last annual meeting were duly submitted and adopted Reports on the year's activities of the various church organizations were given. The session was represented by Mr. Tom McGee who impressed the gathering with a glowing account of the fellowship noted prevalent in all the church meetings during the past year.

The managers felt that in spite of several unusual expenses, the outlook for 1934 was a most promising one.

As for the Guild, it has not only contributed to the church funds but has made a number of improvements in the basement. The Sunday School and Bible class as well have shown a most enthusiastic membership for the past year. The choir has proved itself to be an independent, self-supporting organization and has been able to defray all expenses for music, as well as for the tuning of the organ and piano.

As in the past, the Ladies' Aid have turned in a good year's work maintaining their previous record. The W.M.S. report as well as that submitted by the supply secretary was a most encouraging one.

The retiring members were reappointed and were Messrs Harper Rollins, Percy Craighead and A. S. Murdoff. Several discussions took place concerning detail work.

Before closing, Mr. R. W. Meiklejohn, representative of the session, moved a vote of thanks to Rev. J. A. Present Spinsters' Convention at St. John's Hall, Frankford

Large Crowd Attended One-act Humorous Play

Carrying Place—In spite of icy road conditions and high winds, a large crowd turned out for the initial performance of "The Spinster's Convention" presented by a cast of twenty-five persons at St. John's Parish Hall on Wednesday evening. Preceded by considerable advertising, strong interest in the play was evident and in spite of warnings "Bachelors, Beware!" posted in conspicuous places, a motley collection of eligible husbands, as well as husbands, wives, families and relations were in attendance.

"The Spinsters' Convention" as implied by its name is a highly humorous one-act play involving the desperate attempts made by seventeen ladies of uncertain age to capture husbands. Their one and only goal is MAN, the action fairly bursts with comical and ludicrous speeches, songs and situations. The portrayal of the various characters was splendidly done; to mention any outstanding performance would be unfair as every member of the cast turned in a splendid performance. The youngest actor was Master Bobby LaTour, aged two, while the oldest—well, it perhaps would be best to ask the opinion of the audience.

The action centres around the 17 ladies of doubtful age, who, despairing of ever securing husbands, are in convention. Their society, the Young Ladies' Single Blessedness Debating Society, is thrilled by the announcement that Professor Makeover with his marvellous new invention, can transform each and all into any shape or form she may wish. The professor visits the convention, and sure enough he changes various of the party to new forms including a fairy, a butterfly, a bud, a little boy, twins, and a man. One unfortunate proves too old and comes out of the machine unchanged, while the play comes to a sudden ending as the enraged ladies pursue the Professor from the stage as his machine breaks down in the midst of transforming the president of the Society.

Howls of laughter during the presentation of this play bore testimony to its mirth-provoking qualities. More than twenty-five dollars was realized and the members of the Ladies' Guild of St. John's Church are very hopeful as they go next week to Consecon to present the play in the Orange Hall there.

The cast was as follows:

Miss Melinda Ann Green— Mrs. Art Hayes.

Miss Priscilla Abigail Hodge—Miss Ella Rowe.

Miss Polly Pratt—Mrs. C. Ross Chase.

Miss Violet Ann Ruggles—Mrs. Jane Hawkins.

Miss Sophia Stuck-up—Miss Grace Hawkins.

Miss Calamity Jane Higgins—Miss Martha Buchin.

LIBRARY CORNER

Helen Creighton has added much to the store of Canadian folk-lore by her collection "Songs and Ballads From Nova Scotia." At the suggestion of Dr. Henry Munro, Superintendent of Education of that Province, she decided to search for such songs around the Halifax coast, although until the summer of 1929 she had never heard a ballad sung in her native province. Fate was with her, however, and after many evenings spent around the firesides of the fisher-folk, she collected by dictaphone those songs and ballads which have been passed from one generation to another. Miss Creighton's introduction to the volume describes with a sympathetic understanding, her visits with the 'fisher' families. By a strange ocincidence, it was among a German family that some of the finest and oldest English songs were discovered. Like some far cry from a lost generation, she found a number of singers among the lighthouse dwellers who had committed to memory a veritable treasure trove of "Bluenose" ballads. One man in particular had in his repertoire as many as ninety songs, one, "The Courtship of Willie Riley" having seventy-eight verses. "Songs and Ballads of Nova Scotia." is interesting both for musical and historical reasons and will provide many an enjoyable moment at the piano.

Turning from singing in its simplest form, we may follow the varied and adventurous career of Feodor Ivanovitch Challapin, from his youth a sa peasant on the Volga, to the height of his fame as opera singer and world famous basso. "Man and Mask; Forty years in the life of a Singer" continues the story of his life which began in "Pages in My Life," which volume described in detail childhood and early days in Russia up to 1905. His latest book describes more fully his roles, make-up, costuming and his relations with Rachmaninoff, Tolstoi and Gorki. It tells, too, of life in the U.S.S.R. of Lenin and Trotsky, of his self-imposed exile and his break with Gorki. "Man and Mask" offers a fine opportunity for study of life in old and new Russia, as seen by a great artist and Russian.

It has been said that the life of Fedor Chaliapin is almost the story of the Russian theatre itself and thus it is fitting that the story of developments in Russian dramatic art should appear among this week's non-fiction books. "Inside the Moscow Art Theatre" is an intimate picture of this foremost acting company at work and of its lyric branch. The Moscow Art Theatre Musical Studio, as seen by Oliver M. Sayler during his visit to Russia. He writes of the founders, Vladimir Nemirovitch-Dant Cherko and Constantin Stanislasky, of its music masters, notably Rachmaninoff, its artist and dramatic authors. He describes in detail some of the productions given, among the "Lysistrata" and "Cammencita and the Soldier" including many colored sketches of costume and setting.

Walter B. Pitkin, Professor in Journalism, Columbia University, maintains in his book, "Life Begins at Forty" that there need not be any decline of mental powers after forty but that "at forty or never we begin to live our own lives." Basing his claims on the researches of psyshologists and biologists of note, Professor Pitkin offers a challenge to middle age and argues that people can get more out of the fourth, fifth and sixth decades of their life than out of any of the first by learning how to live and how to make the most of opportunities within their reach. One reviewer has classified the volume as follows: "In a book that will make those more than forty rejoice in their age and will make those under forty anxious to get there."

VARIETY SHOW IS PRESENTED

Program of Music, Sketches in St. Michael's Auditorium

In St. Michael's auditorium last evening the Children of Mary presented a novel entertainment, a variety show broadcast from station FUN. With Mr. Harold Barrett as master of ceremonies the program was well presented.

The musical part of the variety show opened with piano numbers by Mrs. James Grant and included delightful vocal solos by Miss Anna LaFerty, Mr. Edward Brown, Miss Catherine Bawden and Mr. Harold Barrett, with Mrs. James Grant and Mrs. Harold Barrett as accompanist.

Three sketches were presented in the variety show. The first of these "The Uneasy Aces" was a scene in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Garrett, and tells of Mr. Garrett's retaliation when the [illegible] are too critical of his bridge. Mr. Garrett was played by Jack Darlington who was very much at ease, and personified Mr. "Ace" to perfection. Miss Anne Kennedy was splendid as Mrs. Garrett and the visitors, Miss Anna McCabe as Mrs. Hatch who liked her bridge without flippancy and Bill L'Heureux as Mr. Hatch who tried to be agreeable until Mr. Garrett's taunts were too much, gave good performances. Miss K. Gallagher directed the sketch.

"Tea for the Nurse" was the second of the evening's sketches. In this scene, Miss Anna Lafferty as Mrs. Lang-Jennings has invited the executives of the Civic Betterment Society to hear a noted poet read his poems. But when the guests gather the small talk, and reading of a report take all their time and the poet is completely forgotten. The autocratic Mrs. Lang-Jennings was well portrayed by Miss Lafferty and Miss Stella Burkitt as Angela, the lively niece of the hostess added much merriment to the scene. The poet, very much disgusted at the whole proceedings was Jack Barrett, who carried his part well. The guests at tea were Misses Eileen Belair, Bernadette Black, Lillian Courneyea, Margaret Donahue, Agnes Gallagher and Catherine Trualsch.

The feature of the evening's entertainment was "Peter Projects" a scene in country schoolroom. The very funny number was directed by Miss Catharine Smith and the scene opened with the class hard at work under the supervision of the art teacher (Miss Kathryn Gallagher.) The girls in pretty kiddies' costumes and the boys dressed as very youthful scholars made an amusing picture. The parts of the class ring-leaders Peter and Genevieve-Gertrude, were taken by Austin Walsh and Catharine Smith, who are very much at home on the stage. In the sketch the scholars are left to entertain a mysterious visitor and Peter "projects" with hilarious results. Instead of the time-honoured recitations Peter sings a comic song, Genevieve-Gertrude gives priceless imitations of the art teacher and of Mrs. Jones (Alice Peets), the aristocratic mother of a new pupil, Chetwynd Jones (Bernard Wilson.)

Other contributors to the "projectin'" were Mary Foster, in a tap dance; Harold Davison, who gave a fine rendition of the popular "Puddin' Head Jones"; Irma (Betty O'Callaghan) who "draws" and sings clasical songs; Doris Peets who recites; Lavergne Paul, violinist, and Nora OCallaghan whose piano repertoire consists solely of "Lucy Long."

The more dignified members of the cast include Miss Angela Whalen as the popular teacher; Douglas Duminie as Mr. Cornish and Mr. John O'Callaghan, the visitor mistaken by the pupils for a book agents but who turns out to be a very understanding school inspector. School songs completed the sketch, accompanists being Mrs. James Grant and Miss Bernadette Black.

The Master of Ceremonies' amazing telegrams reporting good reception from all over were received with great applause. The program closed with the customary radio "Goodnight Everybody."

Mr. Gerald Hurley was an efficient stage manager.

"Teddy — shame on you, slapping poor Spike! I'm worried about Teddy, Madge. He won't play — won't eat. He just mopes."

"His color is bad, Marian, and his eyes aren't bright. Often these are signs a child needs a laxative. Give Teddy some Castoria tonight."

"Come for a walk with us, Madge. Teddy's feeling fine. I gave him Castoria last night. It was just what he needed."

"I was sure of it, Marian. Castoria is an ideal children's laxative. And it's the grandest thing to relieve colic in babies, too. It clears out little systems thoroughly — gently, too. There are none of the harsh drugs in it that make some laxatives so harmful for children."

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

"EAST OF FIFTH AVENUE"

It isn't necessary to have lived in shabby New York boarding house appreciate "East of Fifth Aveue," which opens Monday, at the apitol Theatre.

The people whom you meet in this lightful picture might be memrs of your own immediate family. r at least they're your next-door ighbors!

For the Columbia picture deals, t with dinners, diamonds, and [illegible]nt with homely incidents d episodes that are part of our n lives.

Nevertheless it's one of the most ntertaining films we have been rivileged to review. The story is mple, but the result is a charming ory of life as it really is.

Outstanding in the cast are Dorthy Tree, who, though new to us, akes her portrayal of the unhappy horus girl, deserted by her hapazard lovers, significant. Wallace ord is his usual smart-cracking lf, and little Mary Carlisle's interretation of the Southern beauty ho doesn't know what fidelity is a depth not previously glimpsed her screen work. Walter Conolly, as the old Englishman still love with his wife after fifty ears of marriage, is the sort of erson every one of us would like know. Lucien Littlefield's diffiulty with thinning hair is hilarus, while Harry Holman and his urtech turtles will keep you in ild hysterics.

By all means see "East of Fifth venue," Albert S. Rogell has done able job of direction. Story and otography are both excellent.

Last times tonight Richard arthelmess in "Heroes For Sale" nd "My Wife's Mother" a corking ood comedy feature with Gene errard and Camilla Horn.

AT THE BELLE

Laurel and Hardy; Buck Jones; "Dinner at Eight."

When two wife-bedeviled husbands, Laurel and Hardy, find that they must attend their lodge's convention in Chicago, despite the strenuous objection of Hardy's wife, the latter invents a fictitious illness. With the assistance of a friendly horse doctor, who poses as an ethical physician, a trip to Hawaii is prescribed as a sure cure with the pair leaving for Chicago instead.

The resultant story-telling brings about a series of embarrassing situations, which with the assistance of Laurel and Hardy and Charley Chase, as the latter's brother-in-law becomes a mirth-provoking film that should make "Sons of the Desert" the comedy hit of the year.

His New Comedy High

"Sons of the Desert" is at the Belle today and Monday, and the production brings out the best in that outstanding team of funsters, Laurel and Hardy.

Buck Jones Returns

One excellent reason for the sustained popularity of outdoor action pictures in general and Buck Jones in particular is demonstrated in "The Thrill Hunter," the second feature attraction on the same program.

"The Thrill Hunter" is a superb example of how Hollywood has widened its scope in concocting novel and pleasing cinema fare. Buck Jones, always a favorite, exhibits new talents, not only for providing thrills and romance, but for possessing an excellent sense of comedy values.

"Dinner at Eight."

Described after its sensational opening at the Astor Theatre in New York City as the greatest piece of motion picture entertainment of all times with a cast, the like of which in famous names and acting ability has never been assembled before to be photographed by a camera "Dinner at Eight," Metro Goldwyn Mayer's filmization of the Broadway play hit, will be shown at the Belle Theatre starting Tuesday for the first time at popular prices.

It is almost unbelievable that Metro Goldwyn Mayer was able to gather together for this one picture such outstanding film names as Marie Dressler, John Barrymore, Wallace Beery, Jean Harlow, Lionel Barrymore, Lee Tracy, Edmund Lowe, Billie Burke, Madge Evans, Jean Hersholt, Karen Morley, Louise Closser Hale, Phillips Holmes and May Robson, together with a supporting cast of eleven players.

SIXTEEN INCHES OF SNOW IN JANUARY

Belleville was coated with a 16 nch snow fall during the month [illegible] January it is revealed by com[illegible]d reports. This is higher than verage, and almost a record for me time. Rainfall was almost nil uring the month. A total of less han an inch was recorded.

LAYMAN CAN BE PARDONED IN THIS CASE

Montreal, Feb. 3 (CP,—When the master minds of international finance are puzzled by the money situation, the Layman may be pardoned for getting his notions of exchange a little muddled.

M. J. Isaacs, New York, discovered a Montreal hotel would accept American money at par. This led him to certain conclusions. He then produced a bagful of Canadian coins he had collected in New York, laid it on the hotel counter and said triumphantly:

"Roosevelt is a great man, he's made our American dollar worth 59 cents. That means you will give me a 41 cent rebate if I pay you in Canadian money, doesn't it?"

The hotel cashier put on his hat and coat, stepped out quietly and took a walk around the block.

TRIPS ON SHOE LACE DEEP CUT INFLICTED

Thomasburg, Feb. 3—Mr. Harry Sherry had the misfortune of meeting with a very painful accident while working with wood one day last week. His shoe lace caught, causing him to trip and fall and a stick of wood hit him in the face inflicting a deep cut in his lower lip. Three stitches were necessary to close the wound.

He had taken two small packages valued at nine cents each and contended he thought they were samples. When arrested Herman had $35 in his pocket.

PROVINCIAL GOVT. BONDS

The recent Province of Ontario 4½% bond issue was taken up by investors in a few hours. The Province of Quebec, whose credit is equally good, will probably be in the market any day now with a new issue. Orders should be telephoned in to us promptly, to ensure being filled. We also recommend the bonds of the Western Provinces which can still be purchased to yield over 6% interest.

EXPECT BREAK IN THE COLD SNAP

There will be a break in the present cold snap Saturday evening, but don't put away your overcoat or muffler, and keep the overshoes handy. Relief from the sub zero weather will be of short duration. It will be distinctly warmer up to an early morning hour on Sunday, but then, according to official weather probabilities, temperatures and thermometers throughout the district will again take a sudden and monotonous drop to the same bone chilling levels experienced during the past week or so. If you want the exact wording of the weatherman for the week end he's quoted: "Moderating towards night, probably some local snow flurries, and colder on Sunday.

OLD TIME COBBLERS JUST A MEMORY

VERY FEW OLD TIME SHOE REPAIRMEN ARE LEFT TODAY—That is the repairmen who sat and worked all day upon a leather seated low bench with their knives, awls, hammers, pegs, nails, thread, wax and lasts close beside them, and the pail of water in which pieces of leather soaked near by—such a shop as this is a great novelty today—machinery has done away with nearly all repairing by hand and now we have RAPID SHOE REPAIRING SHOPS where shoes are repaired while you wait. One of these modern shoe repairing shops is conducted by Mr. A. Dutton at 243 Station Street, right opposite the Canadian National Railways north station. Mr. Dutton has been at this location for many years and he enjoys a large patronage from the district in which he lives and also from more distant parts of the city. His customers stay with him owing to the first class jobs he turns out and the reasonable charges he makes. High class Goodyear welt shoe repairing is done quickly by the machines in the Dutton shop. Rubbers and overshoes are also repaired satisfactorily.

POWER TRUST OF U.S. DENIES ALL CHARGES

Refutes Statements Made By C. A. Maguire at O. M. E. Convention

NO SLUSH FUND

Sum For Alleged Propaganda is Termed Fantastic by Officials

New York, Feb. 3—The American Power Trust today issued its official reply to the Toronto charge of C. Alfred Maguire, president of the Ontario Municipal Electrical Association, that the United States power interests were attempting to undermine public ownership in Ontario through partial expenditure in the Dominion of an alleged $1,500,000 American power trust propaganda fund. Mr. Maguire also charged that members of parliament whom he declined to identity had changed their views on the St. Lawrence waterway projects after visiting Chicago.

"The statement [illegible] Maguire are utterly without foundation in fact," [illegible]ion, acting managing director of Edison Electric Institute, declared. The institute as successor to the National Electric Light Association is the recognized national trade association for the power trust industry.

"As a matter of fact," continued Major Bennion, "the total institute budget would represent only a mere fraction of the fantastic sum of a million and a half dollars quoted by Mr. Maguire as expenditure for the industry's publicity promotion. We are the only recognized national spokesman for the industry.

"In the seven years that I have been connected with the association we have had nothing to do with the Canadian situation other than general routine engineering or technical work with the Ontario Hydro Commission. We are concerned entirely with the promotion of electricity and the art of generating in the United States. We have had absolutely nothing at all to do with the St. Lawrence project, and have taken no sides officially or personally on the matter. I have never heard anyone make similar charges even remotely resembling the Maguire accusations, and am at a complete loss to account for his statements—or rather misstatements."

Asked regarding Professor Mavor, Major Bennion said his impression was "The Canadian professor wrote a book which the association liked well enough to buy copies of the same."

LAST OF ALLEGED GANG IS CAPTURED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Capture in Chicago last night of Gordon Francis Alcorn, last of the alleged kidnappers of Charles Boettcher, was announced today by the Justice Department.

The Department said Alcorn had confessed the kidnapping of Boettcher, a Denver broker. Reo Verne Sankey, now in Federal custody, also has confessed, it announced previously.

Alcorn married Birdie Angeline Christopherson at Chicago, May 9, 1933. She was a widow with two small sons and is living with her parents, at Corson, S.D., about 15 miles from Sioux Falls, the announcement said.

SUSPECT IN HOLD-UP HELD

Pat Norton, London Bandit Believed in Tails in California

London, Ont., Feb. 3—Chief of Police Harry Down was notified Friday that a man is held in California who is thought to be the famous Pat Norton, the London bandit, who escaped thirteen years ago after an attempt to rob the Home Bank in Melbourne, Ont., on April 11, 1921, when Russell Campbell, a returned soldier, who resisted the robbers, was shot and killed.

Last Member of Gang

The California authorities have asked for fingerprints of Norton, but, as he had never been in trouble before, he had not been fingerprinted, and it is said the pictures of him are now much out of date.

With Norton at the time of the bank raid were William and Sidney Murrell, and Jack Williams, known as "Slim," all of London. The two Murrels and Williams were captured by the people of Melbourne, but the Murrells later escaped. Later Sidney was caught in California, brought back and hanged, and Williams was given a life term in Kingston Penitentiary. Still later William Murrell was captured, and he is now a lifer in Kingston.

If Norton is brought back, he will be faced with a charge of murder

An employee sighting the hold-up party as they entered the bank, telephoned the nearby garage run by the Campbell family. Russell Campbell, carrying a small rifle for which he had no cartridges, attempted to stop the gunmen as they came out of the bank when he was killed.

Stuart Campbell, brother of the slain veteran, overpowered Sidney Murrell, and F. S. Theaker, manager of the bank, shot William Murrell in the hand.

At intervals during recent years Provincial Police have issued bulletins showing the latest photos and description of the wanted Norton. These are being sent at once to California.

"We haven't received any official word from California," said Chief Inspector William Stringer of the Ontario Provincial Police, when questioned on reports that Pat Norton, notorious Melbourne, Ont., bank robbed, had been captured at Bakersfield, Cal.

SALVATIONISTS TO HOLD COMMEMORATION

Fifty Years Since Activity of This Body Started in City

The commemoration of the Golden Jubilee of the Salvation Army Corps in the city this coming week end bids fair to be a very popular event. Every walk of public life is co-operating to honor the cause that has been saving the lost for half a century in the community.

Commissioner Bruno Freidrich (R) of Toronto, late of the command of the Salvation Army in Germany, will arrive on Saturday evening and remain till Tuesday evening.

The highlight of the celebrations will be the Commissioner's lecture, on Sunday afternoon in the City Hall Auditorium entitled "Peace and Good Will," widely acclaimed as a fitting topic in these times.

In addition to special Citadel gatherings there will be programs of great interest given by the young people of the Ontario School for the Deaf, and also by the Citadel Band and Songsters.

TRUCE SOUGHT IN RIVALRY

War Office Secretary Says Military Justification in Cavell Execution

LONDON, Feb. 2.—(CP Cable)—Declaring that David Lloyd George throughout his term as war-time Prime Minister worked against the British Commander-in-Chief, Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig, although he was unwilling to dismiss him, Captain Alfred Duff Cooper, D.S.O. Financial Secretary to the War Office, made a strong plea today for a truce in the traditional rivalry between soldiers and politicians.

"One of the greatest mistakes made in the last war by the Prime Minister of the day was that he distrusted the Commander-in-Chief but had not the courage to dismiss him," said Mr. Duff Cooper. "Mr. Lloyd George distrusted Field-Marshal Haig. He thought the latter was unfitted for his command, but he was afraid of public opinion and did not dare to place somebody else in the position."

Incidentally the War Office Secretary, who served in the Grenadier Guards in the war, declared he thought the execution of Nurse Edith Cavell by a German firing squad on October 12, 1915, was justified on military grounds.

"Miss Cavell," he pointed out to his audience of army officers, "was a noble and courageous woman whom the Germans were entitled to execute according to the rules of warfare."

PAGANISM MAY HOLD FORTH IN GERMANY

Movement Grows to Oust Christianity in Favor of Nordic Religion

NAZIS BACK CULT

Bible Would be Replaced With Mythology

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
Associated Press Foreign Staff

Berlin, Feb. 3—(AP)—Resurrection of ancient Tuetonic religions that qualled at the thunderbolts of the god Thor and worshipped at the feet of the Mighty Odin was revealed today by the possible answer Nazism to stubborn Christian resistance.

"Germany's great aim," said Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, new philosophic dictator for the third Reich, "must be one people, one Reich, one religion, one church. The one religion, of course, can only be a Nordic-Germanic one."

Not since Harold Bluetooth established Christianity in Denmark in the 10th century, nor since the decline of the Goths and the Visigoths, and the extension of Frankish supremacy, have the gods of Nordic mythology been worshipped.

Balder, son of Odin, and Frigg, his mother; Frey and Loki—the ancient mighties that live now in Folklore—are believed to be part and portion of the new Germanic cult, the "third religion" that Dr. Rosenberg and other Nazis are considering as a substitute for Christianity.

Religion Pure Aryan

As distinguished from the Jewish-Christian religion, according to Dr. Rosenberg, the religion of the Pure Aryan is "bound by neither space nor time nor casualties."

Rosenberg would have the materialism of the old and the mysticism of the New Testament abandoned in favor of a cult which "will develop to the highest possible point the conceptions of honor, pride, freedom and nobility of soul and faith in its indestructibility."

Nordic sagas and fables are to be developed from mere tale into symbols. Doctrines of repentance and salvation are to disappear [illegible] crucifixes in churches and along the byways, because they "torment and depress, and make contrite."

God is to be represented with a spear in his hand and the war memorials commemorating the years 1914-18 are to become holy symbols for the martyrdom with which the new faith will be associated.

LONG PRISON TERMS GIVEN

15 Years And 15 Lashes Given One Londoner and 5 Years to Other

London, Ont., Feb. 3—(CP)—Two Londoners today prepared to go to Kingston Penitentiary, one for 15 years and 15 strokes of the lash, the other for five years. Both were sentenced yesterday by Mr. Justice Patrick Kerwin.

Frank Strasser 22, convicted of a criminal offense against an 11-year-old girl will get the lashes during his first year of imprisonment. A jury took only a few minutes to convict him after hearing evidence of the child be assaulted. The girl said Strasser had given her small brother five cents to leave them alone and the brother corroborated her testimony, identifying Strasser as the man, who had given him the money.

E. O. Graves, salesman appeared calm as he heard Mr. Justice Kerwin sentence him to five years after a jury had found him guilty of manslaughter in connection with the death of a 21-year-old woman of blood poisoning following an illegal operation.

The court heard a deathbed statement said to have been made by the young woman in which Graves was identified as the man, who performed the operation. Graves denied being acquainted with the woman.

Members of U. S. Diplomatic Corps on Grill for Using the Broad A.

Washington, Feb. 3 (AP)—The "beware" sign was out today for such aspiring members of the United States Diplomatic Service as are addicted to the broad A.

It was up to them to judge whether Representative William Oliver of Alabama spoke facetiously in telling the House of Representatives that legislation was being considered to outlaw what the Illinois member, Fred Britten, called "aping the British."

"Frequently you will find American diplomats wearing monocles, yellow neckties, blue spats and pink shirts," asserted the indignant Britten.

He told of lunching in Shanghai once with "a big, rawboned Irishman" who used the sounds "lawst" and "hawf" for "last" and half." He insisted he was an American to the skeptical legislator.

The House applauded as Britten observed:

"There is one amendment I have always thought might reasonably be inserted in the foreign diplomatic bill; that is when an American diplomat, whether he be in China or Europe, begins to 'hawf' and 'cawf' and otherwise apes the British, he ought to be brought home and kept here until he speaks the language as we speak it in the United States. . . .

"And if he apes the British again, he ought to be fired out of the service, because, after all, there is nothing so fine, nothing so strong, nothing so honorable as being a first class American."

"LOVE'S LOTTERY

— by —

Katharine Haviland-Taylor

She drew a deep breath. "But ideas of waste differ," she said loudly "I would feel that I was napping through the one warm noon of my life—if I married you."

"God, but youth is cruel!" he thought. "Bailed youth!"

If she ever understood him, he reflected further—if she ever did—she would know what this moment and his pleading had taken from him. Proud he had always been. He had never conceived that he could stand on such ground, seeming the mendicant when, in reality, he was giving ....Life did strange things to one ....forcing roles undreamed of by the actor.....making the man who seemed a clown, play his tragedy...... stripping from him old habit by a twist of the ways that run through days.

He rose, slowly. "Cicily," he said, "I think you are tired of old men and their philosophies, so I'll be on my way—"

Her heart was bruised by his [illegible] Terry had never before spoken in that way of being old. He was not old! He was incorrigibly young, happy; and his well cared for body was as young as was his equally well cared for spirit.

"Have I hurt you, Terry?" she asked.

"Yes," he admitted, smiling down at her.

Before she slept that night she wept, so quietly that she was surprised by the tears which slipped down her cheeks; tears that had had no knotted-throat preface.... She thought Terry might have taken her hand in saying good night instead of bowing, as he had, from the doorway. Twice now he had left her thus, and each time it had hurt her in a totally new and deeply mattering way..And to her question of "Have I hurt you, Terry?" he said, "Yes—"

She simply could not hurt him; but—she adored Geoffrey, and she had to marry Geoffrey.

She had thought of telephoning to Geoffrey and she had reached toward the instrument on the table by her bed when she remembered—Geoffrey hated being disturbed in early sleep, and perhaps he was abed and asleep. And he would not understand her needing to hear his voice nor know, through the sound of it, that she could not live without him.

But Geoffrey was not abed or asleep. He was in his rooms scowling at a girl who sat opposite him and who was not softened by the [illegible].

She was saying, "I never got over it....You know what I was when you came along.... a nice kid...... And—I tell you this —if you marry anybody, I'm going to tell her the pretty story and let her raise the hell you deserve."

"Look here, Blanche, if I hadn't come along—some other man would ——" Geoffrey answered, to hear, "You're a damned liar! Hadn't they tried before? Packs of 'em! Any fair looking girl in an inn where the students get together, she knows what I went through. I never thought of it....Then you came along and I loved you. You know I loved you——" her voice rang passionately.

He sighed deeply, moved restlessly. "What do you want?" he asked.

"Your promise—that you won't marry. You got over it; I didn't. That's all.... And now — it's hate and love with me; a combination no woman oughta——know! A combination I never woulda known——without you! It killed my mother—" She talked on, on, bitterly, shrilly.

"Well, Blanche, I promise," he said suddenly as a clock struck one.

He would have to——get Cicily to bolt with him; then Blanche doing her worst, couldn't smash it. Cicily would stick, he knew. Her old feeling about divorce and her distaste for it came back to comfort him. She had assured him, again and again that, married, she would stick to it, even if it killed her. And if after marriage, she heard the story she would in time grow used to it. She'd have to. There would be nothing else for her to do! And perhaps she'd forget it. .....Anyway he'd been about as square as most men, he guessed; and he'd been only a kid.

"I'll leave you now—" Blanche said getting up. She paused by the door, to sneer at him. "Hell's going to be full of your kind," she stated slowly, "who think of nothing but—winning in every game. There are other things, to life. Geoff—I had the rough side of it. I lost—everything. But—I'd rather lose as I did—than win as you did and do—cheating—see?"

She slammed his door violently.

A week passed; Albion called upon Terry. Albion had presupposed that he would regard Sir Terrill Brown-Thorpe as better fabric than Geoffrey for Cicily's husband, as no man, to Albion's thinking, could be worse; but he found Terry the exact type he would have selected for Cicily, had he had the choosing to do.

He departed as Terry's champion and with a promise to call the next day. "But come have dinner with me to-night," Albion invited. "Eight".

"Thanks awfully," Terry responded, "and with great pleasure I accept." He paused, he frowned. "Mr. Marshall," he begged, "don't tell Cicily you like me, as I—frankly, you know— see you do, and I like you, we're the same sort. But don't eulogise me; my affairs are bad enough as they are without the help of friends!"

Albion nodded, smiling a little over Sir Terrill's understanding, but he could not hide from Cicily his deep regard for Terry.

Cicily was, during that week's stretch, pulled sharply in two directions. Terry came to make short visits, during which, with utter calm, he augmented his reasons against her marriage to Geoffrey and added to them. Geoffrey came to urge and with violence that she elope with him. And her refusal brought out a wrath in him that she had never expected could be. She, white and amazed, studied him as he stormed, and when his anger had spent itself, to leave him shaking and mopping his wet brow, she spoke. "Why are you so set on this, Geoffrey?" she questioned.

"You ask me that," he made query in turn, "when you know how I love you?"

He moved toward her, put his arms around her; her resentment of his angrily excited pleading faded. She considered their "slipping off" to be married "that way"; it seemed underhand, far from fair, and yet with a little more of persecution, she felt she might agree to Geoffrey's plan.

"We'll consider this again," she said. But the promise did not satisfy Geoffrey.

"I love you!" he flung at her, and with an echo of the anger he had vented upon her the moment before. "I want—this deal—this affair closed up—and now. Heaven knows what that meddling old maid of a Britisher ay make you believe! I've never trusted him——"

"You can trust him," she assured him, and with a gentleness that made strong contrast to his excitement.

"There!" he pointed out triumphantly; "you see? He is making his mark! You 'trust' him....well, I don't! Nor—will I trust you, if you let him hang around you much longer; even the smallest drop of water wears its hole in a stone.... I've asked you to refuse to see him. And—what's happened? Every damned day he's here, giving you pretty little matinee lectures upon my unsuitability between—cups of tea. My God! It makes me sick! I used to be the man who ran things with you, Cicily—I'm not now! If I were —you'd run off with me—to-night. Cicily—' he pleaded and with the energy he had heretofore reserved for a "big deal", "Cicily, come with me——now!"

Cicily regarded Terry almost stupidly; his words about not being the man who now "ran things" for her, voiced a truth she had not realised. For a long minute this truth stunned her.

"I may as well admit" she said slowly, "that I trust Terry as fully as I have ever trusted anyone. He has been quite fair about this, Geoffrey, more fair than you have been."

"Oh! Indeed?" He laughed shortly, unpleasantly.

"Running off with you, marrying you in that way, would be cheating him," she said. "I gave him my promise; he had not released me. He has no thought that I could break my word and, his trust in me makes me stronger. I am beginning to think that the best strength is made by trust."

"I am not interested in generalities, my dear; not—in—the least! I want to come down to— brass tacks." He brought a hard-clenched fist down upon a table; he drew near her, to stand before her, legs apart, arms folded on chest, head bent, glaring down at her. "I want you....that's all. A man who's a man doesn't give one damn how he gets the woman he wants. You prattle of 'Honor!' Honor! That weak little word is for old maids of both sexes and—damned fools! If he loved you, he wouldn't think of honor....he'd do as I do,— try to persuade you to have a little sense. Look here, what's changed you? You're damnably changed!"

"I have not changed;" she disagreed, "but I think Geoffrey ,that for the first time you and I are meeting an issue that is made by our very different viewpoints...."

Again "generalities", he thought; they confused him and further irritated him; he wanted to "keep to the point".

He pulled a chair close to her, dropped to it and took her hand between his. "Cicily, all is fair in love and war," he said, "and we're loving and warring. You forget that. You are Quixotic——you always have been and I like it in you, but you carry it too far. There isn't a day goes by in which I don't have to make some compromise in business and with my code in order to keep on top—"

She gave to him a full, measuring, level look from her deep blue eyes. "Geoffrey," she said, "to win in that way is to lose—"

Blanche stood at his elbow, put there by Cicily's words; Blanche had said the same thing in her way a way that had grown rough because the path upon which he had set her feet was rough. Lord, he wished the interlude with Blanche had been no more than a bad dream......

He drew a deep breath, sat erect, smiled at Cicily—just so did he meet those adversaries he would vanquish and usually did vanquish.

"Now it's agreed," he said surely, "that you and I, Cicily, are going to cut and run."

Miss Ella, who was beginning to feel her age for the first time, was passing in the hall as he spoke. She heard Geoffrey's words; they followed her as she made a dazed return to her room. "My Cicily——doing ——that!" she thought. She sobbed suddenly.

She had known Terry as a rarely fine man and a rarely gentle one. Cicily, married to Geoffrey, would find another world. Geoffrey would afford a certain type of worldly woman great pride; Terry would assure her less worldly sister great happiness.

Geoffrey, who a few months earlier had been "a dear boy", was now from contrast to Terry, a menace and a threat.

She must telephone Sir Terrill; perhaps, even now, he might, in some way be able to stop the elopement Geoffrey planned. "I'll come over immediately," he promised when she whimpered out her news. "But, if you can, without awkwardness, will you have the young man out of the way? I do not, since this development and the lack of sportsmanship it reveals in him, wish to meet him. And there would be no use of my meeting him. We do not speak the same language."

Miss Ella sent Hedges for Cicily, who answered the summons quickly. She saw, from the doorway, the unsteadiness of her aunt's lips and the pink puffiness of her eyelids, and her heart ached.

"You sent for me, Aunt Ella?" she questioned uncertainly.

"Yes, Sir Terrill has telephoned, Cicily, saying he wishes to speak to you for a few moments and alone and—now—if you can arrange it." (Miss Ella faltered; she never lied to Cicily and lying to Cicily was not easy). "He seemed very urgent——and I told him I thought—you could arrange it."

"Geoffrey has gone," Cicily answered. She waited, wavering, at the doorway after she spoke.

"Cicily," Miss Ella began. She paused.

"Yes?" Cicily prompted.

"Be—be as kind as you can to Terry; he is much to be pitied."

"I will be," she promised. She turned away then and went to her own sitting room. If Terry had ever shown a bolder love for her, she realised, the last week would have had more question in it. But he had not; perhaps because he could not. He had promised her but the peace she had thought——without Geoffrey—to be essential and that she had thought must take the place of ecstasy.

"There isn't a day goes by in which I don't have to make some compromise in business and with my code in order to keep on top."

She tried to still the echo of those words and the echo would be not stilled. But certainly—she moistened her lips—with time she could change Geoffrey. Yet just why did she think she could change him? She never had. Why, too, had he been so feverishly eager for a quick marriage? She had told him she hated the idea. Her objection he had brushed aside too brutally; she saw it suddenly and revealingly. Every objection of hers, to everything she wished, he would brush aside in quite that harsh, sure way, if he differed from her. Suddenly she knew it.

She stood, weak and trembling, by the window. Was it possible that Terry and her aunt and her Uncle Albion were right? That their selfless love for her had shown to them a truth to which her love for Geoffrey.. had blinded her?

TARZAN AT THE EARTH'S CORE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Locking his toes beneath the elbows of the Gorobor as he had seen the Horibs do, Tarzan strode the hideous creature as he was carried swiftly in its mad rush to overtake its fellows. The ape-man had acted on a sudden thought. This seemed the only means whereby he might hope to overtake the Horib who was bearing away The Red Flower of Zoram. Still terrified and excited by the battle, the Gorobor darted in and out among the trees with incredible speed.

Soon the Gorobor had outstripped its fellows and left them far behind. Presently, just ahead of him, Tarzan saw the Horib who was bearing Jana away. He saw, too, that he would overtake them. But so swiftly was his own mount running that it seemed quite likely he would be carried past Jana without being able to accomplish anything toward her rescue. He realized he must stop the Horib's mount and there was but an instant to make a decision.

In that instant Tarzan raised his rifle and fired. Perhaps it was a fine bit of marksmanship or merely luck. Anyway the bullet struck the Gorobor in the spine. A moment later its hind legs collapsed and it rolled over on its side, pitching Jana and the Horib to the ground. Simultaneously the ape-man's mount swept by and risking a bad fall, Tarzan vaulted from its back, tumbled head over heels and landed against the carcass of the Horib's mount.

He leaped to his feet to face the lizard-man. As he did so the ground gave way beneath him and he dropped suddenly into a hole. Try as he might he kept sinking until he was almost up to his armpits. And as he struggled futilely to extricate himself, something seized him by the ankles and dragged him downward. Cold fingers clung relentlessly to him and Tarzan of the Apes felt himself slowly pulled

Mr. G. M. James Describes Scenes During Vacation Tour of the United States

(From Our Special Travelling Representative, MR. G. M. JAMES)

ARTICLE III

The last letter was mailed at Chattanooga, Tenn., a large, splendid industrial city which resembles Montreal in many ways. It is close to a large mountain called Lookout Mountain similar to Mount Royal and the Tennessee River flows near by like the St. Lawrence. It was one of the chief strategic points during the civil war held first by the South and finally captured by the North after a siege. It is a beautiful, modern city in every way but as the many factories use soft coal obtained near by the otherwise splendid city is continually enveloped in a haze of smoke resembling a fog which penetrates everywhere and everything and within twenty-four hours your clothes and person are ready for the tub. It is even worse than Pittsburg.

On the morning of January 19 we left Chattanooga for Jacksonville, Florida, a distance of 506 miles, the longest journey we ever took in one day and night. After about ten miles we entered the State of Georgia through which we travelled from north to south nearly all the way. This State as well as parts of others like Tennessee is notable for its bright red (almost blood red) clay soil which never seems to harden when dry, like our clay soils in Ontario but to be always smooth and pulverised, the ideal condition for vigorous vegetation. It is surprising how uniform this soil continues throughout as compared with Ontario where the composition of our soils varies greatly every few miles. There is scarcely a fence in all Georgia.

Soon on this journey we passed cotton fields every few yards. The cotton plants were in long rows and resembled our raspberry bushes with several tufts of cotton at the top. At this time of the year the leaves are dead (dark brown) but a few tufts of cotton missed by the pickers are visible here and there. A cotton field must be a splendid sight when in full growth with the darkies at work among the rows. These fields seemed to say that "This is why darkies were born" since no machine has been invented for picking cotton. Cotton is picked in September. It was very dry last year and so the crop was very light.

Georgia is slightly hilly throughout and on these hills grow the famous Georgia pines. That lumber like British Columbia fir is used for interior trim in Belleville because of the beautiful finish of which it is capable. Pitch is obtained from these pine trees by tapping as we obtain sap from our maple trees. This pitch is refined and made into varnishes and paints and exported to all parts of the world.

All through Georgia it is a very common sight to see clothes lines covered with home-made rugs, aprons and bed spreads. They are made of cotton beautifully colored or tinted and worked by hand in many patterns or designs. Tourists buy them eagerly and the prices are cheap. Wonderful aprons are 50 cents each and large full sized bed spreads are $2.50 to $5.00 each. Any of these would be a treasure in any home.

The familiar pecan nuts grow very abundantly on tall trees in Georgia like our hickory nut trees. We stopped for a few minutes at one farm of twelve hundred such trees and bought enough shelled and salted pecans for 25 cents to last us a week. These nuts are oblong with a thin shell that can be cracked by the hands and though the kernel resembles that of the walnut, the flavour is much more delicious. A saleslady at this farm with a magnificent southern accent tried hard to sell us a hundred pound sack many of which were piled by the roadside ready for passing purchasers. If the duty on pecan nuts is not too high, there is an opportunity for some Belleville merchant to make some money as the writer has the address of this noted pecan farm besides those of women who sell aprons, etc.

At a stop in middle Georgia a group of darky men and women in great glee boarded our bus but as every seat was taken they were compelled to stand up.

"How's you getting on, Parson," came from a female, musical voice to our rear as our bus rattled along at 45 miles an hour.

"I's pretty good, sister. The Lord will provide," was the prompt reply of a grey colored man who was likely at any moment to step on my toes as I had a front seat and he stood just inside the door.

"What does you preach about next Sunday, Parson?" inquired a male member of the group.

"Lift up your eyes unto the hills and the Lord is no respecter of person," came the reply in a reverent, deep bass voice. This cheerful little band soon left us at the little town of Marieatta, Georgia, amid the smiles and good will of many passengers.

On this journey we passed many truck loads of tobacco and oranges. The oranges were piled loose five feet high within the truck rack. It was a lovely sight. Oranges are now being picked in the various orange groves throughout Georgia and Florida. We passed some leafless peach orchards near Macon, Georgia.

Many of the homes throughout Georgia are large and of the colonial type with large columns or pillars in front, the whole height of the house.

As we passed through Macon, Georgia, we saw many roses in bloom in the small spaces in the middle of the streets. They were much like our own.

In all southern restaurants the menus give you at least half a dozen choices or combinations of food numbered 1, 2, etc. You give your order as number 3 or whatever it may be and you are always well pleased with the quality and service. You get a large water glass full of pure orange juice for five cents requiring about three of their finest oranges. All food is proportionally cheap and delicious. Their vegetable salads deserve special mention.

From Southern Georgia southward palm trees of several kinds were very common.

We arrived at Jacksonville, Florida, early Saturday morning, January 20, tired and hungry but happy. It is a large, handsome city with every modern convenience known to us in Ontario. Its people call themselves "Jaxons" for short and by the same method of abbreviation our people in Belleville could call themselves "Belles". The people of Florida are called "Floridians". The people here (Jacksonville) dress and live just as we do and although the outside temperature (by our own thermometer) registers 65 degrees, many men and women wear light overcoats although I am perfectly comfortable without one. Most Jaxons have never seen snow. Rubber trees and oleanders grow to be trees as large as an apple tree outside in the open here A few oleanders with delicate pink flowers like roses are in bloom. Many beautiful shrubs unknown to us are in gorgeous bloom, one called the Turk's Cap, a bright red flower being particularly showy. Hedges and lawns similar to ours in Ontario are very common. Nearly every lawn contains some palm trees and other trees with leaves similar to ours. A vine with numerous tiny purple flowers often climbs up the very rough. scaly bark of the palm trees with beautiful effect. The poinsettia flower is everywhere in bloom here and is quite attractive. These are large flowers somewhat similar to our sunflowers but with blood red petals. We used artificial flowers of this kind in our store at Belleville for decoration purposes last Christmas. We have seen sweet peas and nasturtiums also in flower on some lawns. Next to the palm the commonest tree here is a large tree similar in appearance to our elms in various sizes. It has ordinary small leaves but hanging in clusters from the branches are filaments a foot or more long resembling seaweed and giving the tree a very graceful and attractive appearance. We obtained a sample of these filaments and find them to be living tissues capable of absorbing moisture, oxygen and carbonic acid gas from the atmosphere for the growth of the tree. We were intensely interested in this natural phenomenon because we had read of such structures before. There are many other trees in full green leaf unknown to us. In fact hardly any trees here are leafless like ours. A few groups of pines are to be seen on the outskirts of the city.

There are many high buildings here like the best in Toronto or Montreal and with a few exceptions are built of red or white brick. Jacksonville has a fine new postoffice like that at Chattanooga and up-to-the-minute in every detail. Both of these buildings are built of unpolished Georgia white marble in huge cubes and the appearance though without ornament is very fine. The interiors are finished throughout including floors in polished marbles of various suitable colors and graining. We never saw two more beautiful buildings anywhere.

The homes are built of brick, frame and stucco in about equal proportions. Nearly every home has a large veranda because it is possible to live outdoors all the year in Florida. The houses vary in size as with us but all look neat and comfortable.

Jacksonville has several daily newspapers and each have three issues daily, morning, noon and afternoon. A newspaper here varies from ten to twenty pages but always sells for 5 cents. "Our climate is so wonderful that we have to charge for it," explained one news dealer when I expressed surprise at the price. So far as we can see the news is almost exclusively American. The advertising is about the same as with us.

It has been cloudy here for four days in succession, a very unusual occurrence, we are told.

The street cars are each operated by one man and are rather shabby and worn out. To compensate for this many fine motor buses (part of the street car system) run to the various residential districts at 10 cents per trip. In this way it is possible to see the entire city in half a day and this is a rare treat for all visitors.

As we walked along one of the business streets, we came to some baby alligators a foot long and less in a wire cage in front of a jewellery store which made a specialty of articles made out of alligator skins. We watched them for some time and noticed small baby mud turtles like ours among them. Their shells had been painted white and then decorated with miniature roses. It was an unusual sight for us. Then a lady visitor from Kentucky joined us. "I took one like these home last year but it grew so fast that we could not get anything large enough to hold it and it continually escaped and walked all over the place." I was about to enter the store to find out the price of one (which was one dollar) when Mrs. James caught my arm. "If you buy one of these horrid creatures, you will go home alone." For many years I had been aware of the fact that she thoroughly detested all bugs, insects, reptiles and animals that made their living in a mean, sneaking way, so there will be no baby alligator in our family.

We are eating plenty of ripe, sweet, juicy, delicious oranges in our room between meals. The size and quality we buy at home at 60 cents per dozen retail at 30 cents per dozen here and they are just wonderful. Today a truck load passed our window and they were being sold at the curb in bushel baskets. There has been a "Citrus Week" throughout Florida January 22-27 like our apple week to boost the number of oranges and grape-fruit consumed. At present the average consumption for every American is 72 oranges and 12 grapefruit per year and for Florida it is 156 oranges and 52 grapefruit for each person per year. This seems a very low ratio to us for such splendid fruit.

A leading Jacksonville newspaper on Saturday, January 20, contained less than half a dozen notices of church services for the following day and the following sermon topics were announced:

1. "The men whom Jesus made." Simon Peter was to be the next in the series.
2. "Christ Crowded Out" with the comment that Christ must be admitted to all phases of life, business, government, popular society, education and religion before present conditions could improve.
3. "Selling Out."
4. "The World's Only Hope."
5. "Revival of the Fittest."

It is significant that we find the general trend of religious thought and exposition much the same wherever we go. This same Saturday paper contained nearly a page of advertisements of the various Sunday theatres giving alluring and attractive programs. The various results may be easily guessed.

The theatres in Detroit, Cincinnati, Chattanooga and Jacksonville are showing the pictures that appeared in Toronto the week before and that appeared in Belleville several weeks ago. We have often found this to be the case before when in New York or London, England. The theatres and prices here are about the same as at Belleville.

Some accurate information about the teachers of Florida reveals the fact that they have suffered as in Ontario. The average monthly salary for a school year of nine months for all public and high school teachers of this State has fallen from $100 per month to $75.00 per month during the last three years.

As was pointed out a year and a half ago the favorite item of food in London, England, was the crusty roll, in Edinburgh, the scone and in Paris, French pastries. Here it is strawberry shortcake eaten by everyone at almost every meal. There is a thin layer of cake on the bottom, then a layer of large, fresh strawberries, then another layer of cake and its crowning glory is a thick coating of whipped cream. We never tire of this dessert. Strawberries are just coming in here and retail at 25 cents per large box, the size we use for our various fruits. The berries are very large and well flavored.

On Sunday morning we heard a Christian Jew speak in one of the churches here to a capacity congregation. He was trained as a missionary to the Jews fourteen years ago but many of his people call him "traitor" and order him away. He is a clever speaker and so witty that his audience was in constant laughter. However he is meeting with some success as there are now twenty thousand Christian Jews in the Southern States where he works. The two leading departmental stores here are owned by Cohen (the largest) and Levy. So there is material enough here to keep him active when he comes.

Sunday evening we attended a church where the service was conducted by the young people and their topic was "World Peace". We were sadly disappointed to see the church not one-fourth full. Surely such treatment must discourage sensitive youth? Three young men and one young woman spoke splendidly. They would correspond to our fifth form students and like them had received careful training in public speaking. They divided their general topic among them under the headings:

1. Forces contributing to war (Nationalism, Imperialism, Profiteers, and Big Business).
2. Forces contributing to peace (Churches, Mothers, Veterans and Arbitration). These young people deserve much praise.

Jacksonville is situated on the St. John's River which resembles the St. Lawrence at Montreal. The city is a great seaport although it is 20 miles from the Atlantic. Large ocean vessels which sail to Miami, New York and Boston dock here. The exports are extensive and consist of fruits, timber, pitch and vegetables. Sea gulls are numerous here too. Many fine motor boats and yachts ply for pleasure up and down the St. John's River amid unexcelled scenery.

As we expect to remain here several days our next letter may begin where this leaves off.

Roosevelt Bill Starts Canadian Gold Stock Boom

Another page was written into history when Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States, signed the gold bill (also known as the dollar devaluation bill) on his 52nd birthday. "This is the nicest birthday present I ever had," remarked the President. The law now gives the United States title to $4,029,100,000 in gold. Day later, Roosevelt announced that the United States' dollar had been devaluated to 59.06 cents. All of which is very nice, so far, for Canada, inasmuch as Canadian gold stocks have soared to high levels, holding their gain through profit-taking. The United States made a "profit" of $2,770,000,000 on the "new deal" while Canada and other nations wonder what to do next.

Smithers, B. C., Feb. 5—(CP)—Wild-life tragedies are being enacted this winter in the vicinity of Tchesinkut Lake, where deer and moose, unable to flee through deep snow, are falling victims to ferocious bands of timber wolves. Numerous half-devoured carcases found by prospectors and trappers reveal the slaughter has been heavy.

Paris, Feb. 5—(AP)—A garbled telephone conversation, it was learned today, excited official apprehension after the dismissal yesterday of police prefect Jean Chaippe.

Those who wondered at precautions taken before Bonnefoy Sibour summarily succeeded Chaippe found that the ministry of the interior had misunderstood the deposed police head.

Accepting his dismissal, Chaippe said:

"Very well: Tomorrow I will be a simple citizen in the street."

But all the ministry heard was:

"…. I will be in the street."

That means leading a mob in France.

WAREHOUSE OWNERSHIP QUESTIONED?

Harry C. Nixon Puts Questions on Order Paper

BREWERY ILLS

Do Breweries Pay Fees To Licencers to Sell Their Beer?

TORONTO, Feb. 5.—(CP)—Protesting against what he termed "undue delay" in reply to questions on the order paper of the Ontario Legislature last year, Harry C. Nixon Progressive leader in the House, will urge the Government today to inform that "what official or officials should this House hold responsible for non-compliance with the order" of the Legislature."

Nine questions were left last year, Mr. Nixon declared. Among them were two pertaining to the operations of the Liquor Control Board. The first follows: "That there be laid before this House a return showing 1—To whom has the Ontario Liquor Control Board allotted (a) Brewers Warehouse Licenses in Toronto, Ottawa, London, Windsor Hamilton, St. Catharines Niagara Falls Brantford, Chatham, St. Thomas, Sault Ste. Marie, Sudbury, North Bay, Port William, Port Arthur, Walkerville, Oshawa, Brockville and East Windsor.

(b) "Who owns each warehouse?"

2—"Do the Breweries pay fees to the licensees in order (a) to have their beer sold through the warehouses?"

(b) "If so how much are the fees paid?"

(c) Who receives these fees the Ontario Liquor Control Board of Licensee?".

3—How much does each licensee receive per case on all beer sold through his warehouse and to whom does this money go?"

4—"Do the Brewers pay the cost or a percentage of the cost of the operation of these warehouses?"

5—(a)—"Who appoints the staffs of these warehouses?"

(b)—"Who sets their rate of pay and who pays them?"

(c)—"What is the average wage paid in each of the warehouses named in number one.

The second question on the operations of the Liquor Control Board is: "That there be laid before this house a return showing:

1—"From what firms or individuals in Scotland did the Ontario Liquor Control Board buy whiskey for other supplies during the last fiscal year?"

2—"What was the amount and value of the business done with each individual or firm?"

3—Who was the Ontario representative in each instance and what commission did each Canadian representative receive?'

4—(a)—"What were the gross sales from the following liquor stores during the last fiscal year. Woodstock, Brantford, Paris?"

(b)—"What was the total cost of local administration in each instance?"

42 EXTRAS SHOVEL SNOW

Unemployed Men Busy On Sunday Clearing Crossings

It's an ill wind …. And conversely, while city works department officials record snowfall after snowfall this year, heavier than many other years in memory, unemployed of the city are enjoying the white bonanza and taking full advantage of the successive downfalls. Throughout the morning Sunday, following one of the heaviest storms of the year on Saturday night, 42 men labored with snow shovels throughout the city, clearing the walks. On Monday another 40 men were called out. Added to the 200 workers on Zwick's Island, and the many trucks and drivers needed to clear the city of snow, the total of employed reached the highest figure in years for the city.

THEY'RE NOT CAMPBELLS BUT SEEK RELIEF AT LONDON

"The Campbells are coming, hurrah, hurrah!" But while some of these men shown above may be Campbells, this is not the clan. They are the clan of unemployed, 400 strong, marching under the leadership of James McGovern (left) from Glasgow to London as a form of political protest. It will be recalled that this same James McGovern was the man who startlingly heckled King George at the opening of the British parliament last month. The marchers are expected to arrive in London around February 25.

MEN, WOMEN TAKE COURSE

Lectures Under Chamber of Commerce Prove Attractive

A gratifying number of applications for reservations by all classes of men and women of the city who expect to attend the five weeks' course of business lectures arranged by the Belleville Chamber of Commerce in collaboration with Queen's University of Kingston was reported at the office of the local Chamber today.

So far one hundred and fifty men and a score of ladies of the city have written or 'phoned for reservations which are being accepted at the Chamber. It is expected that accommodation will be taxed to care for the classes which will be held starting on Tuesday evening, February 6, and continuing each Tuesday evening after that for the next five weeks.

It is impressed upon those who desire to attend the lectures that they come prepared with note book and pencil in order to mark down the salient points of the lecture which will be given by noted educators of Queen's.

The first lecture on Tuesday evening will be "Modern Merchandising", delivered by Dr. W. A. Mackintosh, Director of the Department of Commerce of Queen's.

The courses are easily understandable and not as formidable as the advertising might suggest.

MEAT OPERATOR IS ABDUCTED

Dick Gershol, Duluth, is Seized While Taking Money to Bank

Duluth, Minn., Feb. 5 (AP)—Dick Gershol, Duluth meat market operator, was abducted by two men who seized him and forced him into an automobile here today.

The men seized the market operator as he was taking store receipts to the bank.

Driving a sedan automobile, the pair grabbed Gershol at the ally adjoining the Garrick Theatre.

"Get in there," the abductors told Gershol, shoving him into the machine. Employees at the Gershol store refused to reveal the amount of money carried by the kidnapped man.

R. E. Donaldson, chief of police, enlisted every available policeman in a hunt for the car. Gun squads in every section of the city took up the hunt.

Ground Cracks Open and Village Shakes as with 'Quake

A miniature earthquake rocked Thomasburg last week. The tremor of entirely local nature, shook houses in sections of the village, and caused dishes on shelves in the home to tremble violently.

It is believed the disturbance was caused by the contraction of the earth in the village, due to the cold weather.

A wide crack in the frozen ground, some 18 inches in depth was found near the United Church parsonage by the Rev. H. B. Herrington, pastor, between the parsonage and the home of Miss Emma Porter.

FITTING TRIBUTE PAID LATE SENATOR FORKE

Buried in Pipestone, Manitoba, Where He Spent 50 Years of Life

PIPESTONE, Man., Feb. 5—(CP)—In the quiet of this Manitoba hamlet where he spent the early years of his Canadian life, Senator Robert Forke was at rest today. Attended by cabinet colleagues and leaders in Canadian political and business life, the former Minister of Immigration was buried at Pipestone Cemetery.

It was here he established his permanent home after emigrating from Scotland more than 50 years ago to win renown as leader of Canada's agrarian group in the House of Commons. Senator Forke was seized with a heart attack on New Year's eve. He succumbed at Winnipeg last Friday after a gallant struggle for life.

Among those present at the service was Hon. T. A. Crerar, former Minister of Railways in the MacKenzie King Government and his many friends in the community he served for two decades before launching on a political career that took him to Canada's Upper House.

The funeral service was conducted by Rev. A. Daynard, for years a close friend of the former progressive chieftain. Floral offerings from every corner of the Dominion were banked high at the graveside attesting to the esteem in which he was held by all who knew him. His widow and three daughters survive. He was 73 years of age.

FALLS IN HOUSE FRACTURES HIP

Aged Woman Removed to Picton Hospital For Treatment

BURR'S Feb. 5.—(Special)—Mrs. Marshall Noxon, eighty years of age, who resides one mile south of Crofton, on Picton-Belleville Highway, had the misfortune to fall at her home on Saturday evening, sustaining a fractured hip. Mrs. Noxon who resides all alone, her son's family occupying the other half of the double house was going about her household tasks, when she slipped and fell. The sound was heard by her son, Stephen Noxon, who came to her assistance. She was taken to the office of Dr. Pedlar, Picton, where an X-ray showed the extent of her injuries. She received treatment at Picton Hospital, where she will be a patient for some time.

ISLAND PLANS TO BE ON VIEW

Copies of the completed plan of Zwick's Island are being taken from the main plan of the improvement scheme which has been drawn and given the city by Mr. H. J. Moore, landscape artist of Islington, employed by the city to lay out the design. It is expected that the finished copies will be received by the city engineer next week, when one will be hung in the office for the examination of interested citizens.

$500,000 CIVIL LIBEL ACTION

Washington, Feb. 5—The District of Columbia Court of Appeals ruled today that Senator Huey Long (D., La.) must defend a $500,000 civil action for libel brought by Samuel T. Ansell, former counsel for the United States Senate Committee which investigated the election of Senator Overton (D., La.)

PART OF LOOT IS RECOVERED

Four Suspects and $32.50 in Money Taken by Police

Camden, N.J., Feb. 5 (AP) — Holding $32,500 which they found in the possession of four suspects, police are hunting for the man who is believed to have escaped over housetops with another $50,000 of the $130,000 stolen from two Pennsgrove bank employees.

One prisoner in the Camden jail has been identified as one of the four holdup men who seized the money and a sack of registered mail last Friday. He was arrested with the others, two men and a woman, as they came from a Camden house the next day, carrying three suit cases.

In two bags was their clothing; in the third were the money and two pistols.

The man accused as a member of the robber gang identified himself as John Farley, 37 year old photographer from New York. The others said they were Charles Kent, 45, of Canton, Ohio, a salesman; Harry Greenberg, 29, of Philadelphia and his wife, Rose, 31.

Police said they insisted they were holding the money "for a pal."

APPLES FOR MEN GIVEN BY PRESIDENT

A generous gesture to the relief workers at Zwick's Island was made today by the Rev. Harold Reid who journeyed to the site with three bushels of apples which were distributed to the men. The Rev. Reid who is also a landscape artist of note has followed the improvement scheme on the island with considerable interest since the project was commenced.

SUN DOGS IN WESTERN SKY

Phenomenon Appears in Sky on Monday Afternoon

Hanging over the city in the western sky just before three o'clock on Monday afternoon, a sun-dog with two distinct luminous orbs, midway of the circumference of a rainbow and opposite each other, provided an interesting study for amateur astronomers and numbers of residents who were attracted by the sight.

An observant citizen of the east side who spotted the unusual sight, immediately phoned the office of The Ontario Intelligencer, calling attention to the formation.

The last one observed in this district was seen two years ago over the Bay of Quinte, it was recalled.

What the phenomenon portends is not clearly understood by those questioned.

MOP HANDLES USED TO KILL BY MANIACS

Insane Wing of Montreal Hospital Scene of Struggle

DANGEROUS MEN

Accidental Death is Verdict of Coroner's Jury

Montreal, Feb. 5 (CP)—Two maniacs fought a savage battle to the death in the insane wing of Montreal jail, fighting with heavy mop handles and screaming with rage, it was revealed here today at the inquest inquiring into the death of Phillip Apostolokos, 52, who died in prison hospital yesterday of a fractured skull. Name of his assailant was not revealed.

Dr. Jean Barbeau, jail physician and alienist, told a jury under Coroner Lorenzo Prince that the two men were considered among the most dangerous inmates of the prison's insane wing. They had caused numerous fights among the prisoners and fought at every opportunity. Prison doctors treating them were the only humans towards whom they did not show animosity.

Last Thursday, said Dr. Barbeau, the two ran foul of each other while mopping the infirmary floor. Before guards could reach them they were engaged in a mad struggle, clubbing each other with the heavy mop handles. As guards ran towards them, Apostolokos dropped to the floor unconscious from a blow over the head. He was taken to the jail hospital where he died yesterday despite expert medical aid.

The coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death. Dr. Barbeau said the assailant of Apostolokos was not in mental condition permitting him to be brought to court.

3 Little Bears Born in Zoo

Triplet Bears Unusual, Says Chairman of London Park

London, Ont., Feb. 5 (CP)—An unusual event occurred at London Zoo over the week end when three brand new little bears arrived to one mother bear.

"Triplets" are unusual," said Commissioner T. W. McFarland, Chairman of Parks announcing their arrival. "Seldom, even in the wild, do more than two arrive at a time."

MILK MEN BATTLE HIGH SNOW DRIFTS

Rumbling snow plows took the field early Sunday in an effort to open the blocked roads in this district following one of the heaviest snow storms of the year which descended over the section late Saturday evening. High drifts and banks of snow left on the roads by the wind which accompanied the storm Saturday evening, caused some difficulty in early Sunday morning milk deliveries, and hampered other traffic considerably. By Monday, however, traffic had again resumed in nearly all sections.

Austria May Appeal to League for Protection Against German Elements

Fascist Government Formed in Tyrol Defying the Chancellor

PAPER SUPPRESSED

League of Nations Bound to Call Extraordinary Session

Vienna, Feb. 5 (AP)—Austria decided today to appeal to the League of Nations to protect her against aggression from German elements.

The Austrian cabinet after a lengthy discussion of the Austro-German situation, unanimously decided to empower Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss to submit its dispute with Germany directly to the League of Nations at Geneva.

An Associated Press dispatch of January 23 said:

"If Dollfuss appeals to the League of Nations against Germany under the first paragraph of Article XI. of the League Covenant — providing that any threat of war is a matter of concern to the whole league if any member complains a council meeting shall be immediately summoned—the Secretary-General, J. A. C. Avenol, must convoke the council to an extraordinary session."

Earlier in the day Prince Ernst Von Strahemberg, a member of the triumvirate covering Austria, defied Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss and established Fascist government in the Tyrol.

He replaced the elected provincial government with a commission of Heimwehr soldiers, peasant league officials, and Catholic storm troop leaders, and told his Chancellor that the Heimwehr (home guard) which he heads would support Dollfuss' anti-Nazi campaign only if Dollfuss abandoned political party rule.

The Tyrolese government change was made at Innsbruck. Not only were the elected office-holders thrown out of office but the Socialist newspaper Volkszeitung was suppressed.

Socialists have in the past opposed Dollfuss and the Heimwehr.

The appointment of the commission to govern the Tyrol came after sensational speeches at Innsbruck by Prince Von Starhemberg and Richard Steidel, federal propaganda commissar.

Based On Article XI

Austria's appeal to the League is to be based on Article XI of the League Covenant, embodied in the treaty of Versailles, which follows:

"Any war or threat of war, whether immediately affecting any of the members of the League or not, is hereby declared a matter of concern to the whole League, and the League shall take any action that may be wise and effectual to safeguard the peace of nations. In case any such emergency should arise the SecretaryGeneral shall on the request of any member of the League forthwith summon a meeting of the Council.

"It is also declared to be friendly right of each member of the League to bring to the attention of the Assembly or of the Council any circumstances whatever affecting international relations which threaten to disturb International Peace or the good understanding between nations upon which peace depends."

Germany Withdrew in October

Germany withdrew from the League last October, following a dispute over disarmament.

One of the most important appeals ever before the League was placed by China on December, 1931, on the Manchurian conflict with Japan, and resulted in the latter's eventual withdrawal from Geneva.

It was based on the covenant and the Briand-Kellogg Pact outlawing war.

A neutral Commission was appointed to investigate and its report condemned Japanese military occupation of Manchuria.

A dispatch from Berlin today said German official circles regarded the possibility of a political union with Austria as in the background but not abandoned.

"The two countries must first find a method of getting back to brotherly relations," a spokesman said.

CURRIE'S SUCCESSOR MAY BE OUTSIDER

E. W. Beatty Says Man Will be Picked According to Attainments

Montreal, Feb. 5—Selection of a Principal of McGill University to succeed the late Sir Arthur Currie will not necessarily be made in Canada, E. W. Beatty, K.C., Chancellor of McGill, told members of the Graduates' Society.

"If a Canadian can be found with the necessary qualifications to assume the leadership of the university," the Chancellor said, "the university's governors would be very glad, but it must be remembered that education and culture are not confined to any one country. If, within the Empire even if outside of Canada, a Principal can be found who is suited to the task, that man will be selected," he declared.

10 THOUSAND DOLLAR FIRE AT HAVELOCK

Firemen Cannot Halt Blaze in Jeffs Block

Havelock, Feb. 5—Damage of between $10,000 and $15,000 was caused by fire Sunday afternoon which wiped out the Dr. W. H. Jeffs Block.

The fire started about 2 o'clock and had made such headway that the firemen could not halt it, and confined their efforts to saving the adjoining buildings.

Plate glass windows in stores across the street were cracked with the heat.

The block was occupied by the Home Bakery and Weymark's grocery on the ground floor, and the Havelock Masonic Lodge on the top floor. Nothing was saved and only the four walls of the building were left standing.

Engineer of Famous Royal Scot Given Order of British Empire

(By Thomas T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Feb. 5 (CP Cable)— On the platform at Euston Station from where many travellers have started a journey to Canada, J. H. Thomas, Secretary of State for Dominions, today presented William Gilbertson, engineer of the famous Royal Scot, with the medal of the Order of the British Empire conferred on the driver in the New Year's honors list in recognition of the great tour of the train through Canada and the United States.

The presentation was singularly appropriate as Mr. Thomas, once an engineer-driver himself, is still known to thousands of railwaymen as "Jim." The recipient of the honor wore a brand-new overcoat and cap on which the name of the celebrated train was engraved in gold, but this finery merely covered his workday overalls. Gilbertson drove the Royal Scot back to the terminals at Crewe directly after the ceremony.

Sir Josiah Stamp, Chairman of the London, Midland and Scottish Railway, reminded those present that Mr. Thomas had once served on the footplate of a locomotive and added, "even today he might get this train as far as Willesden," while his hearers laughed.

"At any rate," reported Mr. Thomas, "if there is a bustup in this country, Josiah, and you and I are forced to work for a living, I stand a better chance than you." The crowd again laughed at this sally at the famous economist.

City and District News

IMPROVEMENT IN LUMBER INDUSTRY

"Mr. Gilroy reports that he is finding the lumber business much better; in fact, all lines of trade have shown considerable improvement. Betterment of conditions in the forest products arena has naturally increased the turnover of general merchandise handled by Mr. Gilroy, who says that in the last six months he has realized an increase on his maple lumber from $5 to $6 per M.", says Canadian Lumberman.

"While he carried heavy stocks of maple and birch during the last two years, he is now pretty well cleaned up on both kinds of lumber. Mr. Gilroy is operating one camp and purchasing logs from the farmers and while he will not handle as much lumber as he did in 1930, he expects to get out this season 1,500,000 feet, chiefly maple. He is about the only one operating this winter in the vicinity of Coe Hill."

Mr. W. N. Gilroy is reeve of Wollaston township.

Golden Jubilee of Salvation Army Fittingly Celebrated

Commissioner B. Friedrich Speaks on "Peace And Goodwill"

A half century of religious activity in this city was fittingly celebrated by the Salvation Army on Sunday afternoon in the City Hall auditorium, when that body along with representative citizens and with Mayor George O. Tice presiding, heard an interesting and instructive address on "Peace and Goodwill" delivered by Commissioner Bruno Friedrich, noted traveller and lecturer, in commemoration of the golden jubilee. The celebration of this historic event will be continued through the week and it is expected the Salvationists will receive an inspiration to continue their work with renewed vigor.

The Salvation Army band under direction of David Wardle, rendered a pleasing program before the meeting opened, while during the service, the Citadel Songsters under direction of Stanley Lessels gave a delightful anthem, "The Earth is the Lord's". Rev. H. B. Neal of Holloway Street United Church, led in prayer and Rev. A. Hilliard Jones of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, read the Scriptures and both brought felicitations and goodwill from the sister congregations of the city. Messages from many lands and sources have poured in on Adjutant Martin wishing the Belleville Corps "God Speed" in the future and praise for their efforts during the last half century. The more important messages, one from Commissioner W. A. McIntyre of Chicago, Ill., and formerly in charge of the Belleville Corps was of special interest to the many old time residents of the city, for it was in his time as commander, that the present Salvation Army Citadel was built. The Commissioner also made fitting reference to Captain Nellie, who served in Belleville, so faithfully and well and died only a short time ago in Illinois. Other letters of greeting were from Commissioner James Hay, Chief Secretary, the Field Secretary and George A. Reid of this city, who has always taken an active interest in the work of the Salvation Army. Mayor Tice expressed regret at the tragic accident that befell Mr. and Mrs. Reid in the late autumn and hoped that both would soon be restored to health and strength.

Mayor Presides

Adjutant Martin in introducing His Worship stated that he had made many friends since coming to the city but none more sincere than Mayor Tice and it was a privilege and honor to welcome him on behalf of the Army Corps, as chairman of the afternoon. Mayor Tice thanked the Adjutant and the Corps for the work they were doing in the city and delving into the early history of the Salvation Army in Belleville, told of remembering the first meeting ever held here. "There were murmurings in the city at that time," said Mayor Tice, "about the formation of the Corps and the other religious bodies in the city did not deem it advisable to associate with their methods of spreading the gospel. Street preaching until that time had not been heard of but under the direction of Captain Nellie, the work progressed and has progressed through the years and today the Salvation Army is one of the great religious institutions of the world. At present the heartiest co-operation exists between all religious bodies in the city. Since I have assumed the Mayor's chair the Salvation Army and their officers have always rendered to me kindly assistance in any work contemplated for the betterment of all classes and sometimes they have helped probably far beyond their means. Their record during the war is well known to all of us but today we are all waging another war, probably not as tragic but still one frought with many possibilities. World conditions are bad, no worse than they have been but honestly very little better, still with organizations at the back of me such as the Salvation Army, light will shine where darkness once prevailed and this city will come out better than when they entered the depression." The mayor expressed the thanks of the citizens for the work of the Corps and hoped for them continued success.

Traced History of Corps

Commissioner Bruno Friedrich thanked all for the kind reception given him and traced the history of the Salvation Army, telling of its inception through the efforts of William Booth, showing that at that time, the religious life of the world was at a low ebb. "Truth can never long be suppressed," said the speaker, and today the Bible is the best seller. When William Booth was converted from a life of sin, those who mocked him were in after years his best followers and a revival through the blood of the lamb swept the country and another revival is coming rivalling the one in the time of Booth." The speaker told of the method adopted by the early Army officers, that of practical preaching believing there was no use preaching to a hungry man but that if he was fed, he would listen and on this principle of social service, the Army was founded. "Whatever fault can be found with this method," said Commissioner Friedrich, "it does make a new man of him." Then followed a recital of many cases, personal experiences of the Commissioner, who has travelled extensively over the entire world and who speaks fluently ten languages, where a man has been brought to the feet of the Saviour through this social work.

The speaker touched upon the unrest prevalent in the world today remarking that the unrest was due to men and women striving to find a new form of government and demanding new ways to heal the troubles of the world. Commissioner Friedrich was sure a new order would come. "There are no signs of desire for war in Europe and God Almighty does not want a war. We can only be successful in preventing war by taking God into the scheme of things. The League of Nations is a wonderful body but Christ must be in the centre if it is to succeed. It may not come in our generation or the next or in the next hundred thousand years, yet His will must be done."

Appreciation of the fine address was moved by E. V. Illsey and seconded by C. A. Cameron.

REVENUE OF HYDRO HOLDS

Despite Cut in Rates Income Down Only Small Amount

Revenue of the Belleville Hydro Electric Commission for January 1934 shows domestic and commercial in advance of the income for the same month last year, but in industrial, in municipal power, and in street lighting the revenue was down. For January the total revenue was off only $273 despite the last reduction in rates.

This fact was brought to the attention of the local commission at the regular meeting today, which was attended by Mr. G. A. Reid, Chairman and Mr. M. P. Duff, Commissioner. Mayor Tice was unable to attend as he was engaged at the time.

The Commissioners called the report very satisfactory.

Manager O. H. Scott, pointed out that at the convention of the Electrical Employees' Association at Toronto last week, the problem of safety was discussed from the psychological standpoint. It was pointed out at the convention that more than a mere "Thank You" was advisable to maintain freedom from accidents.

Mr. Scott showed that in 1930, the local Commission cost the Compensation Board only 16 cents for every dollar paid in for compensation, but in 1931, a year when there was a serious accident, the cost to the Compensation Board was $8.83 for every dollar paid the Board by the Belleville Commission.

In 1932 the local Commission cost the Compensation Board only 12 cents for every dollar paid in to the Board, and in 1933 there was no cost to the Compensation Board for any injury.

This year the local Commission will receive back fifty per cent. of the rate paid last year $244.40 to the Compensation Board.

In Belleville there are seven men on the outside staff who did not have even a minor accident for the year.

The Commissioners expressed their pleasure at learning of the lack of accidents, and expressed the hope that this happy state would continue.

40 Brain Workers Tested This Remedy in Clinic at Hospital

Their nervous energy depleted by over-study as examination time approached, a group of students, who were definitely below normal in blood condition, formed the "test patients" for a recent clinic conducted at a leading Canadian hospital. The remedy prescribed for this five weeks' test was Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The purpose was to determine to what extent this world-known preparation would increase the haemoglobin and red corpuscles in the blood and so rebuild blood-health and restore normal vigor and strength.

The results were indeed notable. The carefully kept records showed that in every case where the patients' blood count had been below normal, the number of red corpuscles was increased, and in 38 out of 40 cases, or 95 per cent.* the students experienced increases in haemoglobin also, in some instances, as much as 22 per cent. The physicians in charge considered this showing as most impressive. The student-patients stated that they felt much more energetic, with a new sense of well-being.

It is the haemoglobin in your blood that carries vital, life-giving oxygen to every cell in your body. If you are always tired, exhausted, breathless on exertion, nervous, irritable, lack appetite, most probably your blood count is below normal. Start taking this hospital-tested remedy and see how soon these symptoms will begin to disappear, and how much better you will begin to feel.

You and your family are taking no chances. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are hospital-proven. At all druggists—50c. a package.

*Individual reports on these 40 patients, certified by the hospital pathologist, are on file.

C.G.I.T. GIRLS CELEBRATING

Groups Attend Service To Mark Week of Celebration

During the morning service held at the Tabernacle United Church on Sunday morning a portion of the service was conducted by the officers of the local groups of C.G.I.T. The various girl's groups attended in a body, dressed in their uniforms and occupied a prominent place in the congregation. The three officers to assist Rev. I. B. Naylor, the minister, were M. Edna Cherry, Miss Grace Bongard and Miss Hazel Saunders, who were seated with the minister.

Miss Grace Bongard gave the invocation and read the lesson while a solo, "The King of Live My Shepherd is", was rendered by M. Edna Cherry. The address at the morning service was given by Miss Hazel Saunders. Mr. Naylor spoke briefly on "The Religious value of games".

The local groups of Trail Rangers in the city paraded to the service in a body, headed by Leader R. Edmonson.

During the course of her address Miss Saunders said:—

"Of course everybody knows that this is C.G.I.T. Week—but many of you may be wondering what C.G.I.T. Week is—Well, I am here to tell you.

"C.G.I.T. week! ! ! Those special days set aside each year wherein we can renew our loyalty to our movement by telling those we know at home, at school, in our church and in our community about it.

"Another thing we try to do is to show what C.G.I.T. is to churches and communities where it is not established.

"And lastly it is our oportunity to show what C.G.I.T. means to us by contributing to the support of our movement.

"Our groups in this church are celebrating C.G.I.T. Week this year by holding this church service and a Mother and Daughter Social.

"We are wearing our uniforms just as much as possible this week, as well as this little blue and white feather. Wherever you see a girl in this uniform ask her what C.G.I.T. means to her and what she has been doing at her group meetings, for she is ready to tell anyone who is interested.

"Did you know that there are 13,896 Canadian Girls in Training in Ontario? Or that last summer 34 C.G.I.T. camps were promoted by the Ontario Girl's Work Board. One of our girls, Louise Newson, went to the Camp Council at Normandale to represent Belleville, but no other girls from our church availed themselves of the opportunity to go to either county or provincial camps. Don't you think this is a pity? Some of us could go too if we wanted to enough and if we began to save up money now—perhaps there is some society in the church that would like to help send a girl to camp.

"C.G.I.T. is promoted by the Girl's Work Board of the Ontario Religious Educational Council and by Local Boards throughout Ontario.

"These organizations depend for their support on the contributions of Canadian Girls in Training and their friends and it is during this week that we give our gifts and fulfil our obligations to our movement which challenges thousands of girls in the words of our purpose:

"As a Canadian Girl in Training
Under the leadership of Jesus
It is my purpose to Cherish Health
Seek Truth
Know God
Serve Others
And thus with His help become
The girl God would have me be.

POLICE COURT

Harry Mooney of the Airport, was sentenced to serve two months in the County Jail, after being found guilty of a charge of the malicious destruction of property, in Monday morning's police court held before Magistrate Mikel.

Mooney was arrested by the Provincial Police last week after complaints had been received from the officials at the Trenton Airport relating to Mooney's wilful destruction of the detention room, where Mooney was confined. B. C. Donnan K.C. conducted the prosecution.

No arrests were made by the police department over the week end while motor accidents were at the minimum during the past 48 hours.

Fred Ethier, Herchimer Ave., reported to the police the loss of his bicycle late Saturday afternoon. The bicycle had been left outside a local theatre while Mr. Ethier attended the matinee. It was gone when he returned for it.

A rather amusing but embarrassing incident occurred at a local garage early Saturday evening. It seems Mr. B. C. Perlman's car refused to function. He called a local tow truck and after taking the car to a local garage it was found, that the battery had dropped out of the bottom of the chassis. No trace of the battery was established at an early hour Monday. Mr. Perlman lives at 77 York Street, Toronto.

SUMMER HOME BURNS

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 5—Fire of undetermined origin swept three summer homes near Tecumseh early today. The buildings were owned by Detroit residents and it is reported that one of them visited his cottage yesterday. Tecumseh firemen prevented spread to other homes. The loss is placed at about $6,000.

FATHER-SON SERVICE HELD

"That Boy of Yours" Subject of Address by Dr. Semple

A special father-son service in which junior members of the congregation took part was attended by a large number at Bridge Street United Church last evening. The sermon for the occasion was delivered by the pastor, Rev. Dr. James Semple and addresses were given by Warren Williamson and Ken Munnings. Six boys received the offering.

The Trail Ranger representative to the Boys' Parliament, Warren Williamson made a special plea for the budget, while Ken Munnings, Tuxis representative, spoke of the need for broadening of the parliament. The main task of youth is bringing about the new social Christian order.

"That Boy of Yours," was the theme of Dr. Semple's sermon. Even those whose home is silent whose arms are empty, have an inescapable obligation towards youth. In United States with twelve million boys, Canada with over a million, there is certainly a boy somewhere to whom one can give their measure of attention and affection.

"You are not a good citizen, and you are certainly far from being a true Christian if you are not interested in boys—not in a general misty fashion, but definitely, actively interested," commented Dr. Semple.

"That boy of yours" is the most valuable possession one can have, riches are as poverty compared to his value, poverty is forgotten in the pride of having a son.

Lives in Different World

The boy of today is living in a different world, as Mother Abbott says: A Godless world, a selfish world, a sensual world, a boot-legging world, an automobile world, a world without parental control, a hard-boiled world, a law-breaking world. He looks to his father for leadership and if this wavers, there is a corresponding wavering in the character of the children. He needs a father's guidance, responds quickly and eagerly to what a father does for him.

"That boy of yours belongs to God," concluded Dr. Semple. "Take him, do not send him, to the Temple. Take him as Samuel's parents did and dedicate him to the Lord. Take him as Mary and Joseph did the boy Jesus. Religion is the greatest single guide and guardian of life. If you do these things for your boy, you will be a thousand times repaid. That boy of yours will make his contribution to your life, even to your faith."

U.F.A. MEMBER OF ALBERTA LEAVES PARTY

P. A. Miskew Declines To Move Adoption of Throne Speech

NO WARNING

More Members Expected to Follow Lead of Miskew

Edmonton, Feb. 5—The United Farmer Administration of Alberta today was confronted with the defection of one of its members in the Legislature and faced the possibility of additional "bo"ers."

A political sensation was caused with the announcement Saturday of P. A. Miskey, member for Victoria, that he had declined the initation of Premier J. E. Brownlee to move adoption of the Throne Speech in the Legislature. At the same time Mr. Miskew said he would cross the floor of the House, to the Liberal ranks.

The announcement contained in a letter to the Premier, drew no comment from Mr. Brownlee other than to express surprise that the member had not advised him previously. Premier Brownlee said he had spoken a few days before to Mr. Miskew, and that the latter had accepted the honor of moving the adoption of the Speech.

The Legislature is scheduled to begin its sessions Feb. 8.

Calls It Protest

While Mr. Miskew declined to elaborate on the reason for his defection, W. R. Howson, the Liberal leader, hailed the announcement as "a concrete protest against the Brownlee Administration."

He said he would "not be surprised" if other Government members also crossed the floor of the House to the Liberal benches.

Reports were current that differences of opinion had arisen in the government ranks concerning the close relations between the U.F.A. and the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation. No comment was forthcoming from official sources on this aspect of the situation, however. Silence was also maintained by C.C.F. leaders in Alberta.

Present standing in the sixty-three seat House (ranking Mr. Miskew as a government member) is as follows:

United Farmers of Alberta	40
Liberals	10
Conservatives	5
Independents	4
Labor	3
Vacant	1

"The member for Victoria has demonstrated that he is prepared to act according to the dictates of his conscience," said Mr. Howson.

More May Go.

"I am certain that there are many other private members sitting behind the government who are of the same mind as Mr. Miskew, and I would not be surprised to see them follow his lead. When they were elected they were supposed to represent the U.F.A. but now we find their leaders trying to make them C.C.F. with the Cabinet Ministers endeavouring to ride the two horses."

CAST ENJOYS THEATRE PARTY

The cast of "The Colonel's Maid" and a nmber of their friends enjoyed a theatre party at the Capitol Theatre, after which they were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Holmes, Fourth Concession of Sidney. Card games and contests were enjoyed. Prizes were won by Reta Woods, Mrs. Frank Tucker, Will Stone and Gordon Woods. A dainty lunch was served by the hostess.

Good-bye COLD!

When You Take This Complete Cold Remedy

GROVE'S Laxative Bromo Quinine is the thing to take, because it is expressly for colds and does the four things necessary. First it opens the bowels. Second, it combats the cold germs in the system and reduces the fever. Third, it relieves the headache and "grippy" feeling and fourth, it tones up the system and fortifies against further attacks.

Ask for it by the full name and look for "L.B.Q." on every tablet.

SEE HAND OF SANKEY IN LINDBERGH KIDNAPPING

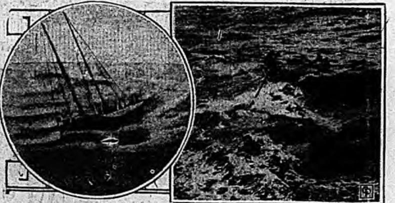
ACQUITTED GERMAN COMMUNISTS STILL HELD IN JAIL

There were several reports in the foreign press, that the Bulgar, Dimitroff, who was accused and acquitted in the Reichstag fire trial, is dying. A photographer was allowed to take pictures of all three Bulgars who are held in protective confinement at Leipzig, in their cell. This is the first time that a photographer was ever admitted to a German prison in order to take photos of well known persons. The photo shows from left to right, Dimitroff, Popoff and Taneff in their cell.

HE'LL PROBABLY TAKE JAIL NEXT TIME—IF ANY

Three episodes in the Chicago court of Judge Leon Edelman recently, when several men were haled before the judge and charged with drunkenness. The judge gave the men their choices of ten days in jail, or one and one-half ounces of castor oil. The above man chose the ciscous fluid, much to his chagrin as pictured above. At the left he seems to be screwing up enough courage to swallow the draft. In the centre it passes over his palate and at the right, the ordeal over, but oh, at what cost.

YACHT LEFT TO MERCY OF OCEAN AS 14 RESCUED



The first pictures to be received of the rescue of the eleven men and three women from the foundering 80-foot pleasure yacht Alamyth, off Barnegat Light, New Jersey, on January 17. The picture at left, made from the rescuing tanker Gulfland, shows the lifeboat from the Gulfland returning to the rescue ship, laden with the rescued members of the Alamyth's passengers and crew. The rescued people were then transferred to a coast guard boat and returned to New York. Right shows the fast foundering yacht which was left to the mercy of the Atlantic. The Gulfland returned to Port Arthur, Texas, from where these pictures were rushed.

HERD PRIZES ARE DOUBLED

Executive of Cheesemakers Association Meet In This City

The Herd Competition for 1934 was the main item of business discussed Friday afternoon last, at a meeting of the executive committee of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association, held in the office of J. L. Irwin, cheese-grader for this district. It was dealt with in no half-way measures and prizes for the competition will be doubled in value over those offered for 1933. Each of the ten districts making up the territory of the Association is to raise $50, and thus $500 will be supplemented by a like amount for championship prizes by the Association.

After discussion it was also decided that directors of the Association must assume more responsibility in connection with its work. The coming year is to mark strenuous endeavors to put the cheese industry of Canada once more in the forefront position it once occupied in the dairy markets of the United Kingdom. Central Ontario was at one time a great contributor to those markets, and the executive of the Association has decided to enter wholeheartedly in the furtherance of plans that will tend toward the promotion of reawakened interest in the cheese industry. With a strenuous year ahead, it is imperative that each director must give fully of his thought and time to the working out of the ambitious program contemplated.

Critical Period In Dairy Industry

The executive will again meet on the 14th inst. at Kingston to go over important and vital issues affecting all cheesemakers. This meeting will be held during the annual gathering of cheesemakers at the Eastern Dairy School there, from February 13th to 16th inclusive. The executive are desirous of impressing on all cheesemakers the imperativeness of attending this year's gathering. It is hoped that representatives of both the Dominion and Provincial Departments of Agriculture will be present to discuss the various propositions laid before the cheesemakers at these sessions.

The Dairy industry is facing one of the most critical periods in its entire history and its success or failure will depend largely on the policy adopted during the next twelve months. So much so is this the case that both the Federal and Provincial Departments of Agriculture are bringing measures at the present sessions of Parliament to assist in eliminating some of the handicaps under which the industry has been laboring and if possible to provide better marketing facilities.

The organization of cheese patrons is another matter being promoted. All these matters will require the active support of the cheesemakers.

MORE POOL TRAINS BROCKVILLE HEARS

But Officials in Toronto Deny Knowledge of Revision

Brockville, Feb. 5—According to report, recent conferences in Montreal have reached a decision to carry out more pooling of passenger trains on the Canadian Pacific Railway between Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa. One change which, it is said, will go into effect at an early date will be the use of Canadian National Railways train No. 14, reaching here at 2 p.m. en route to Montreal, as a pool train, a coach or coaches for Ottawa being cut off here and attached to the Brockville-Ottawa Canadian Pacific Railway train travelling via Smith's Falls and Carleton Place.

"I have not heard anything about it so would not care to make any comment," William A. Kingsland, General Manager of the Canadian National Railways told The Globe when called last night. "I have just returned from Montreal and there was no talk of it there that I heard." Mr. Kingsland said the present pool train services were operating satisfactorily, but he knew of no contemplated enlargement of the service.

ONE EXCHANGE TO BE USED

First Trading On New Exchange To Start Monday

Toronto, Feb. 5—With the close of trading at noon on Saturday the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange, for more than thirty years the recognized vehicle for trading in mining securities, passed permanently into history.

New Exchange

With the reopening of trading at 10 o'clock Monday morning shares of mining companies, as well as those of industrial companies, will continue to change hands exactly as usual. They will change hands, however, over the floor of a new exchange, mining stocks over the floor of the mining section, and industrial stocks across the industrial section of the newly organized Toronto Stock Exchange.

Thus the merger of the Standard and the Toronto Exchanges, after more than two years of consideration, and which was finally precipitated some three months ago, will become a reality smoothly and without undue ceremony today.

Physical arrangements entailed by the merger have all been completed, it was learned last night. The complicated mechanical devices necessary for the merging of the two tapes have been undergoing tests for the past two weeks and were Saturday pronounced satisfactory. Hereafter instead of two tapes, the quotations on mines and industrials will appear on a single tape.

Single Set

The master machines from the floors will type the bid and asked quotations as usual, and the electrical impulses will be delivered to the head office of the Canadian National Telegraphs. Here an ingenious device will pick up the peak loads and merge the two sets of quotations to produce a single set of consecutive quotations. There will be differentiation also between the bid and asked prices and actual sales, the latter at all times enjoying the preference.

The opening of trading on the merged exchanges will be accompanied by neither fuss nor feathers, so far as could be learned. The former Standard Stock and Mining Exchange floor will become the mining section, and likewise the Toronto Exchange floor will become the industrial section of the Toronto Stock Exchange, without a gun fired and possibly even without a formal message appearing on the tape. At 9.45 this morning the floor traders representing the various brokers of the combined exchanges will take their allotted positions.

MORE HIGHWAYS SOUGHT BY FARMERS

Counties are asking for more roads and pressing for highways, is the interesting news out of Queen's Park for the Hon. Leopold Macaulay says so. Farmers were hard pressed for a time for money and it is either the better prices in some lines which is helping in the creation of a better spirit or more likely it is the feeling that things are really mending. Farmers are conservative in their outlook and rightly so—they must be shown the advantage of expenditure as anyone who knows how closely accounts and grants are scrutinized at a county council session.

Of course farmers realize the benefit of highways for every farmer owns a car which will take him to the best market. With the realization that business is mending they wish to be in the van of progress.

Of course taxes have come high for roadways and the farmer has had to bear a big share, though the burden the cities have to bear on suburban roads must not be forgotten when taxation is mentioned.

In carrying out the views of those who ask for highways, the government has always to keep in mind the question of the burden of taxes. This may act as a deterrent to a heavy program of building.

And when the people are talking of new highways they ought not to forget the question of construction without ditches and the problem of removing the menace in ditches along the roads already built. The time must comes when these unnecessary hazards to travel in safety will be removed. With the volume of travel on the winter roads it is remarkable that so few ditchings are reported but what do occur often leave a trail of woe and suffering. Ditches must go. Engineers must find a way of eliminating these traps. The scarcity of really serious accidents in winter is a tribute to the care taken by the average driver.

PRONOUNCERS AT WAR

English pronunciation has been wrecking the peace of broadcasters in Great Britain. Bernard Shaw has attacked the Oxford accent and come out in strong approval of the accent used by His Majesty King George. Those who have heard the King and the Prince of Wales on radio will doubtless agree with the renowned wit, G. B. S.

Shaw is said by Rose Macaulay in the Spectator to have declared that no two B.B.C. committeemen pronounce the same word the same way. He even declared they picked the sound prettiest to them, and satisfactory to the majority and even pronounce the "u" in "conduit." Miss Macaulay plays with the broadcasters as she adds that Shaw did not state whether they sound the "nes" in "Wednesday." He did state however that some of the committeemen would rather die than use the pronunciation recommended, when they come to the use of disputed words in their own private conversation and in their homes. Now it is reported that an archbishop has been sounding the "t" in "often."

One critic has been urging the study of the aesthetic value of sounds and finds an agreeable modulation in the splitting of one sound or diphthong into two vowels. He would be satisfied with words like "meal" or "fruit" being diphthonged as "road" and "toad" are in some dialects.

While the journalists and critics are poking fun at the new pronunciations we have some of our queer pronunciations in Canada. Not long ago a Toronto station announcer seemed to many to be talking a stilted or affected tongue as he spoke of a "cen-teen-ary." He was criticised by the "cen-ten-ary" folk who accent the first syllable whereas he accented the second. And then another pronunciation cropped up as often heard hereabouts "cen-ten-ary" with the stress on the second syllable. And they say all are correct.

The question arises who is going to put out of misery the worst sounding of contentious words. Stop the strange or unaccustomed pronunciation if you can. That is just the way dialects spring up and kill a dialect or get a dialect speaker to change if you are able. In a stress even with caution the odd pronunciation pops out from a converted dialectician.

Probably the best way is to write the announcer of the station and tell him what you think of his pronunciation. If enough criticism is poured in he will make certain before the offending pronunciation is flung out over a province. Of course if he has the weight of custom on his side he must stick to his guns despite his critics.

There is no canker more undermining than ignorance. There is no balm more soothing than knowledge.—Langstaff.

It is not the crook in modern business that we fear, but the honest man who does not know what he is doing.—Owen D. Young.

DREAMS

The years that pass may take from me
  The joy of youthful days,
The zest and fire of ardent life
  The world's applause and praise;
Worldly success may not be mine
  And friends not what they seem,
But I will not be quite forlorn
  If I still have my dreams.

Gold is but dross, and pleasures fade,
  And vain the world's acclaim,
The joys of youth will pass away
  As well as power and fame,
But, oh, the things that last for aye
  That painful toil redeems,
Will be the fabric woven here,
  The fabric of our dreams.

WHEN FOLKS CANNOT go to the university the next best thing is to bring the university to them, hence the action of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce in arranging a series of lectures by Queen's University professors, to be delivered in this city, is meeting with general approval as one of the best civic undertakings in recent years. The first lecture will be given Tuesday evening next by W. A. Mackintosh, B.A., Ph.D., Director of the Department of Commerce and Administration at Queen's. His subject will be "Modern Merchandising." The course will be given in the Y.M.C.A.

TAMMANY TIGER is an emblem of go-get-itness, and the said tiger lives up to its name and gets everything worth having in its bailiwick when permitted to run loose. Tammany backbone is a host of office-holders, fat jobs, big salaries, and little to do. But there are weak spots in that backbone as witness one $2,400 a year clerk in the Department of Markets, who apparently did not know that the war was over and the Tammany Tiger dead, temporarily at least. The new administration ran across this clerk's record and were astonished to find that he took off 1,658 days with pay in the last seven years because of "illness." He always showed up bright and chipper on paydays, but after that seemed to fall into a decline which lasted until next payday. His high record was for the year 1930 when he worked just exactly one day, although he called around every payday for his check. Such thoughtlessness of the Tammany machine not to have sent his check home so that he would not be disturbed. And Believe it or not, as Robert Ripley would say, there are people in this world who seem to be everlastingly scheming how to do the least work for the most money.

"SAMMY," Clyde Beatty's killer lion, was taught by that famous animal trainer that jungle crime does not pay in civilization. That is the sequel of the story told in news despatches the other day about Sammy going berserk at a Cleveland Shriner's circus and killing a fine young lioness worth a lot of money. At the next performance Sammy, full of his bad boy big bully stuff attacked his trainer. So savage was the attack that Clyde Beatty was knocked to the floor. He did not lose his nerve, however, and escaped serious injury. Next morning Sammy was placed in the big steel performing cage alone—then Nero, Brutus, Leo and King, all big fighting cats and a bit tougher than Sammy were let into the arena. They proceeded to give Sammy the works. His ears were boxed, his nose cuffed, his flanks clipped. He wasn't having a very good time so he retreated to his pedestal. Then Beatty entered the cage, armed with a whip, a long pole and a blank cartridge pistol. He drove the four "punishers" into a frenzy, then he drove Sammy into their midst. What the other cats did to Sammy was just too bad, but they taught that tough young bully that fighting didn't pay nohow and he was glad enough to rest from the wars on his pedestal and obey with great alacrity the orders of his trainer. When he wasn't too busy otherwise, he licked his wounds which were many and deep. Now Sammy is a good boy.

ONE of the worst desperadoes of the new West, John Dillinger, accused of murder and lesser crimes, has been laid at the heels, as the saying is, but this bold bad man who boasted that policemen had to come in platoons to catch and hold him, has been turned over to a woman sheriff, who gave him to understand pronto that she wasn't a bit afraid of any big bad wolf or man like him, and if he tried to get gay in her jail it would be just too bad for him. She is Mrs. Lillian Holley, who succeeded her late husband as Sheriff at Crown Point, Indiana.

NO NEED TO WORRY ABOUT CIVILIZATION

Great Advancement is Constantly Being Made

(By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph. D.)
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

(Copyright 1934 King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

This surely seems a muddled world. People often despair of other people's doings, of the fact that civilization seems to be heading toward destruction.

But let us consider the facts for a moment. Mark, for instance, the tremendous strides made in scientific research and especially those advances which are of direct help to the human being as such.

Witness the conquest of disease! Typhoid, diphtheria and smallpox are preventable if people will only take the proper precautions. Tuberculosis has been markedly checked and its ravages ameliorated. Pneumonia, that terrific destroyer of life, is likely also to be conquered soon. Even cancer researches present hopeful signs for the future.

The knowledge of what insanity and nervous diseases really are is spreading and people are beginning to realize that a mental or nervous breakdown can be controlled and prevented.

And then the children — upon whom all permanent future progress must needs depend! Certainly the average mother of today knows more about the rearing and training of children, knows better how to prepare them for the trials and tribulations that are sure to beset their paths than did her own mother and grandmother before her.

And what does all this advance mean to you and me?

We may not be particularly interested in whether supermen and superwomen will be the rule a few centuries hence, but we all must feel interested in the very definite benefits that each and every one of us receives while the race is slowly and gradually developing toward such a millennium.

You can prolong your life, you can avoid most of its pitfalls, you can avoid disease, you can make yourself more efficient, content and happy, if you will but trouble to learn all these wonderful things that are already at hand and will apply them in your own case.

Ignorance as to what has been done for you and what is available is no excuse!

Newspapers, magazines and books can be had for the asking. If you want enlightenment upon a problem it is the easiest thing in the world to find it.

The world, although muddled, has much to give. It is on the up-grade. There is no need to worry about the future. Civilization is advancing day by day!

Get in stride, therefore, with progress! Once you are in step, the going is not so difficult after all But you must make a serious and earnest effort to start. You must exert yourself a little.

The forward march of progress won't wait for you. If you are not careful it will pass you by. The fit, the ready, the alert, survive the easiest. Therefore be one of them! Be up and doing, and on your toes.

DR. BISCH'S DAILY DIET HINT

Persons whose dentition is not perfect court the danger of stomach disturbances because they are unable to chew their food and mix it thoroughly with saliva. Missing teeth, poorly fitting plates, malocclusion—all may produce the same effects. After all, the more work the teeth do, the less there is left for the stomach, intestines and their digestive secretions to accomplish.

Neither of them offering me 5 cents to drink it, me thinking, O well, I guess vegetables is the important thing.

Meening my appetite, and I ate my vegetables and 3 slices of lemmin merrang pie, the 3rd slice proberly going in the place left by the soop and making me feel lucky anyways.

EDITOR AND READER MEET SWAP VIEWS

Brooklyn Eagle Starts New Series of Gatherings

HOMEY CLUB

Delineating News of The Week An Added Feature

Brooklyn, N.Y., Feb. 5 (AP) — Those old friends who rarely have seen each other—the big newspaper editor and his reader—are getting together weekly now and finding the experience a tonic.

The Brooklyn Daily Eagle has started a series of Saturday forenoon gatherings in which the public comes face to face with editors and reporters to discuss, commend or criticize.

The Eagle's management calls it an opportunity for the paper "to learn at first hand what are the hitherto unexpressed views of an influential and attentive section of the paper's readers on matters vitally affecting the community it serves and, in turn to advise its constituents directly on the views inspiring its editorial and news policies on important questions of the day."

To the Eagle's Home Guild a comfortable auditorium, there thronged last Saturday solid citizens, housewives, students with note book in hand.

Activities Given

First they heard Harvey Douglass staff writer, tell how he donned old clothes and went as a down-and-outer to the Municipal lodging house to find out how the city cares for its destitute when the mercury is flirting with zero.

Then Harry Price, ship news and travel editor, touched on women in the news—Anne Lindbergh, Mrs. James A. Roosevelt, Emma Goldman for example—in developing his topic that "feminism reaches new heights."

Cleveland Rodgers, the editor, then took the platform, delineating news of the week, from Mayor Laguardia's fight for his economy bill to the latest developments in the new deal, and explaining the Eagle's attitude on each.

Then came the climax: the "Q and A." period.

There was excited discussions of utility rates, under public and private operation, of politicians and reform, of finance and shipping. Questions were acute, answers frank and informative.

Every one went home feeling that the swapping of views had netted a mental profit.

ACID THROWN INTO HOUSES

Striking Garment Workers Blamed For Hurling Bottles

Toronto, Feb. 5—Striking garment workers were blamed by the police for throwing two quart milk bottles filled with a mixture of carbolic acid and motor oil through the windows of houses at 90 Claremont St. and 738 Richmond Street early yesterday morning.

Two bottles crashed through the front windows of both houses, but neither bottle broke. At the Claremont Street house three small children were sleeping in front room where the bottle landed in the middle of the floor. Members of both households feared the bottles contained high explosives, so they rushed them outside and then summoned police.

Two women who formerly were among the striking garment workers, but who returned to work three weeks ago, despite the union protests, live in the houses into which the bottles were hurled.

John Poseden, 90 Claremont St., and his wife were sleeping in the dining room. Their three children, Lottie, 21; Raymond, 5; and Edward 4, were sleeping in the front room. Mrs. Poseden wakened shortly after 1 o'clock. She heard some one in the side drive. Believing it to be the milkman, she went back to sleep. Later she heard a noise and saw the bottle fall on the floor.

"Pete" Morgan Also Scores Most In Schedule

At the conclusion of the local intermediate O.H.A. group, statistics show, that but ten assists were registered by the local intermediates in their endeavours. "Pete" Morgan led in assists, while Roy Covert walked home in the goal scoring category.

With the group play-offs coming following are statistics of the current season.

	G.	A.	Pts
Covert	5	3	8
P. Morgan	3	4	7
G. Morgan	4	2	6
Weir	4	0	4
H. Morgan	2	0	4
Ehler	0	1	1
McGuire	1	0	1
St. Denis	0	0	0

The above statistics show, that "Pete" Morgan leads the way in the matter of assists with four to his credit. Group statistics mean but little when the local Dohertys meet the winners o- the Trenton-Cobourg series in the semi-finals next Friday night, however.

GRILLS GARAGE AGAIN BEATEN

Madoc Sends Them Home with a 9-4 Defeat

MADOC, February 5—Grills Garage suffered their second reverse this week when Madoc out-classed them and piled up nine goals to win by a score of 9-4. The win gives Madoc a tie for first place.

Good ice and cold weather produced some fast hockey. The first line of Ware, Henderson and Akey easily out-skated the Belleville forwards and accounted for 7 goals. Akey scoring 5. Nickle in the Madoc nets turned in a nice game having no chance on the ones that were scored. The game was exceptionally clean only six penalties being handed out, Madoc and Belleville each collecting three. The Belleville defence was slack splitting wide open and letting the Madoc forwards through. Johnny Canning was the most effective player for Grills accounting for two of his team's goals.

The score:

First period—Madoc, Akey, (Henderson); Belleville, J. Canning; Madoc, West (Ware); Belleville, J. Canning.

Second Period—Madoc, Akey, (Henderson); Madoc, Henderson; Belleville, Leggett; Madoc, Akey; Madoc, Dan Whytock (Akey).

Third Period — Madoc, Ware; Madoc, Akey; Madoc, Akey; Belleville, Semark.

G. Davies, goal; B. Henn, r.d.; L. Blaker, l.d.; H. Canning, c; Hap Day, r.w.; J. Canning, l.w.; Semark D. Ridley, G. Browne, F. Leggett subs.

C. Nickle, goal; K. West r.d.; D. Whytock, l.d.; J. Henderson, c.; R. Ware r.w.; F. Akey, l.y.; E. Alexander, E. Armstrong, P. Embury subs.

Referee— Stub Barrett Belleville.

VETERANS PROTEST DISMISSAL OF CHIEF

Daladier New French Premier Runs Into Opposition

(By Stuart Moroney, Associated Press Staff Writer)

Paris, Feb. 5.—(AP)—The first blow from Premier Edouard Daladier's big fist had shaken the heretofore all-powerful French officialdom to the foundations today and raised a storm both inside and outside Parliament.

Opposition forces rallied around Jean Chiappe, deposed Paris police head, in bitter defiance of the Premier's first move in his announced Government cleanup campaign.

Taking the lead in charging that M. Chiappe was a victim of an injustice, the Paris War Veterans' Association—numbering 12,000 men—called another street demonstration for Tuesday to protest his dismissal.

THEY'RE FRIENDLY ENOUGH NOW

They may walk arm in arm now, and exchange smile for smile, but it probably won't be long before they'll be scowling at each other in the ring, with the world's heavyweight boxing championship at stake. Here are Primo Carnera, present champion (left) and Maxie Baer, potential challenger, out for a stroll at Miami, Fla. Da Preem is in training for his bout on February 22 with Tommy Loughran.

DAY BY DAY

Charlie Cochrane gave us a newspaper clipping the other day in which is incorporated a lengthy oration relating to the prowess of Oscar "Lefty" Judd, late of the Guelph Maple Leafs, now a member of the Los Angeles, Cal., Pacific Coast team. The articles recently appeared in the Los Angeles Times and has to do with the signing of Judd, who is heralded as "Canada's outstanding semi-pro hurler. The article is written by Bob Ray of the Times sport department, who dubs Judd as a combination of Carl Hubbell and Babe Ruth—some ball player, this boy Judd.

* * *

To terminate a column length interview Ray says that Judd recently penned a lengthy letter to Manager Jack Lelivelt, of the Angels, stating that everything was fine up here in Canada with the temperature ranging around 15 to 20 below zero. "If it's that cold up in Canada, it is suggested that Skipper Lelivelt wire Judd immediately and tell him to start warming up so he'll be thawed out by July," adds Ray in conclusion.

All of which reminds us that a "new deal," this is the year of new deals you know, has been suggested by the T.A.B.A. relating to amateur ball players training with the professionals. This spring any promising youngster may travel south with a pro outfit and train with them without jeopardizing his amateur standing. It is no secret that in years past numerous senior ball tossers, especially in and around Toronto, have headed south each spring and worked out daily with the pros, under cover, however. Now the boys can accompany a club to the sunny south without sneaking around behind the backs of those in charge.

* * *

Directly following this proposal at least four senior ball players in the Queen City announced their intentions of training in Macon, Ga., with the Leafs. One of those to hit for the sunny climes is none other than George Stuart, ex-Danforth short fielder. Stuart was hot foot to come to Belleville last fall and would have about rounded out the Nationals into a formidable aggregation as he is a short stop of the first letter. Of course the boys are not to receive any salary, but may have their legitimate expenses paid.

When on the subject of the old time hockey match the other day we forgot to mention that the game should be played under the old rules of seven man hockey with the players lining up at point, cover-point, rover, etc. On Saturday night a local fan reminded us of the fact that we forgot to mention Bun Frechette, Vern Weir, Rusty Flager and Ted Heffernan. Another feature of the game would be the fact that the goalkeepers would not be allowed to flop all over the ice, as is the case today. Incidentally we understand that it is an infraction of the rules for the goalkeeper to "flop" in the American League up around St. Paul and Duluth. If a goalie goes to his knees, etc. in that loop to save a goal, the player carrying the puck has the right of a free shot.

At the request of the Hastings management tonight's Belleville at Hastings junior game has been postponed 24 hours and will be played on Tuesday night. The Hastings kids are scheduled to play in Trenton next Thursday so the local junior group play-offs will not get under way before February 12th at the earliest.

With Trenton playing at Cobourg this evening and the return game scheduled for Trenton on Wednesday we now understand that the first game of the second group play-off may be staged in the town winning the present Trenton-Cobourg series with the second game being played in Belleville on the 12th. The original dates were just reversed. Convener Bill House is expected to give his final ruling on the matter this afternoon. At any rate the first game for the locals will be next Friday night, giving the Dohertys four big nights in which to practice.

This evening the T.A.B.A. and the Ulster Stadium crowd will meet on a common level to endeavour ironing out any differences that now stand in the way of bringing about a harmonious understanding between the two bodies. The T.A.B.A. voted unanimously to invite the Ulster Stadium organization into their fold. The results of tonight's meeting will be watched by numerous baseball bodies throughout the province.

While the Chinese never have figured in international sports competition, China nevertheless has the largest indoor skating rink in the world. It is the Tientsin Skating club at Tientsin and has an area of 1,000,000 square feet. Not a single bolt or other metal has been used, as the rink is constructed of poles, bamboo and ropes. The rink is demolished each year in March and reconstructed in November.

A REMINDER OF "GRIMMER" SPORT

"Jack Tars" of the British navy mix pleasure with a disagreeable duty as they engage in a game of football at the Royal Navy anti-gas school in Portsmouth, Eng., while wearing gas masks. Apparently the grim reminder of what may come does not deter the blue-jackets from enjoying the sport.

ROY BROTHERS OF STRATFORD WELL KNOWN

RACING FAN

Piloted Hockey Teams In Senior O. H. A. And "Pro" Loop

Stratford, Ont., Feb. 5 (CP) — Known throughout Ontario as one of the leading men in sports, Roy Brothers, prominent businessman, is dead here today following an illness of a few weeks duration. Mr. Brothers died in the General Hospital this morning where he had undergone an operation a week ago. He was in his 50th year. Mr. Brothers was born near Listowel and had lived in Stratford about 40 years.

He started in Stratford as a cab driver when he was 12 years old and through perseverance had become a successful business man. For a few years he trained and raced horses in the Canadian west.

While well known in business circles he was better known in amateur and professional sport circles chiefly in hockey and horse racing.

Loved Horse Racing

The love of race horses was born in Roy Brothers, whose father campaigned with several outstanding pacers. His hockey associations and affiliations were wide in scope and he attained no little success as manager of some of the best amateur teams and professional teams in the history of the game.

His venture in active participation dates back to the season of 1921-22 when he piloted the Stratford Indians in senior O.H.A. and handled that same team when the name was changed to the Stratford Nationals and they won the championship of the newly-organized Canadian Professional Hockey League. He next took charge of the London Tecumsehs and again this season returned to Stratford circles where he had piloted the Indians who are now at the top of their group standing because of his untiring efforts as a coach. He was official starter of the Canadian Harness Horse Racing Association and was a member of the Stratford Driving Club and the Stratford Golf and Country Club.

In lodge circles he was well known being a member of the Knights of Pythias and Mocha Temple Shrine. He was a member of St. James Anglican Church here. He is survived by his widow seven children, Charles, Kenneth William Constance, Lucille, Maxine and Doris; his father in Listowel, two brothers, Guy of Toronto, and Lorne in Detroit, a sister Mrs. E. B. Lehman of Toronto.

KI-Y LOOP

Playing a stellar game throughout, the Sharks dropped a closely contested game to the Nationals by the score of 5 to 3 in a Ki-Y League tilt game Saturday afternoon.

For three periods the midgets battled nip and tuck to have the Nationals eke out a final stanza win. Ling, Thompson and Keegan stood out for the winners, while McBride, Barriage and Semark looked the best for the losing sextette.

The line-ups:

Nationals — Thompson, Sherry, Keegan, Day, Ling, Scott, Bishop and Hall.

Sharks—Burley, McBride, Cook, McBride, Barriage, Semark, Way, Steveson and Gardner.

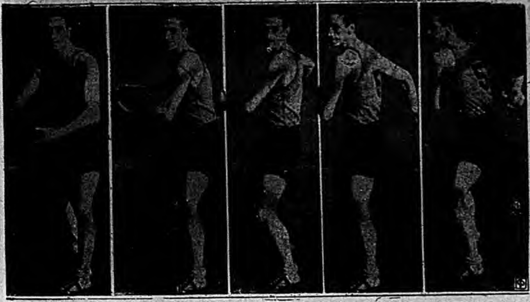
Behind-the-Back Pass No Freak Stunt If Used by Expert, As Pros Demonstrate

However, Says Lippert, Don't use Fancy Manoeuvres, Even in Practice, Unless Coach or Captain Approves



Written for Central Press and The Ontario Intelligencer

By JACK LIPPERT

In presenting these fancy passes I may incur the wrath of some coaches who will expect some of their players to try these passes in games. I urge you to try them in practice for your own amusement. If the pass fails to amuse or even interest your coach, I recommend that you confine it to your backyard.

This behind-the-back pass is still a frill in basketball.

It is rarely seen in a game, and when it does appear, the spectators at once brand the passer as a show-off.

If the pass were more generally used, it would lose the stigma of being theatrical and spectacular.

It does happen to be a pass which has the highly valuable element of deception in it, and therefore useful against a strong defence, in certain jammed-up situations.

I have seen it worked beautifully and successfully on many occasions, getting results where no other pass could possibly have been used.

However, these were experienced professional players (and big U.S. teams have employed the pass frequently) and to them it was not a smart-alecky thing to do, but the best way out of a certain tough situation.

CLOSE RACE STAGED IN INTERNATIONAL

First Three Teams Separated Only By Three Points

(By the Canadian Press)

Three points today separated the first three teams in the International Hockey League standing after a weekend that saw Cleveland Indians, cellar occupants, whip Windsor Bulldogs, in second last place 4-2, and the third-place Buffalo Bisons account for second-place Syracuse stars 3-0. Syracuse, however, managed to beat Cleveland 6-1 in a third weekend battle.

In the only Sunday night fixture Syracuse entertained Cleveland after losing out to Buffalo Saturday night and went on a scoring spree with Dave "Sweeney Schriner, Calgary speedster, running in two and the same number being collected by Martin and Miller. Benson, Cleveland centre, scored the only tally of Indians.

AT THE FINISH—Dorothy Franey, St. Paul, Minn., wins 220-yard race in North American tests at Lake Fowler, Oconomowoc, Wis.

3 STARS OF SATURDAY'S GAME

SELECTED BY— Charlie L. Querrie

Levinsky, Jackson---and Howe!

The stars of Saturday's game were Levinsky and Jackson....and Howe!

The Leafs won, of course, as is usually the case on Saturday. Bath night at the Gardens always finds the visiting goalkeeper underneath the shower.

The Boys' Band from Ottawa, led by scrappy Sidney Howe, played hard and fast and held their own for a while, but every time they drew a penalty the Leafs hit the net before the victim hit the timer's bench. So, toward the end, the visitors did not know whether they were with "Buck" Boucher in Toronto or with "Buck" Rogers in "The Twenty-fifth Century."

Master Howe, however, knew where he was and seemed to resent it, for he had at least one duel with almost everyone in the rink and gets his star for bravery. Harvey Merriwell Jackson won his award with a couple of those "one-two-alley-oop" goals of his, and Alex Levinsky defended the blue line....stoutly.

Leafs Defeat Ottawa 8-4 but Lose to Red Wings on Sunday Night by 2-1 Count

Two Men In Penalty Box When Detroit Scores Winning Tally

RANGERS ON TOP

Defeat Maroons, While Hawks Are Taken By Bruins

(By A. E. Fulford)

(Canadians Press Staff Writer)

Danny Cox chuckled contentedly today and felt sorry for his old Ottawa teammates as he reviewed the most hectic week in his hockey career. Beginning it as an unwanted member of a last place team, he finished with the world champion New York Rangers, pointed toward a cut in playoff money.

A laborer on Ottawa and Detroit teams since 1930, Danny had not been doing so well lately. Goals were few and far between and he met the fate all players dread—an unconditional release. He spent most of the week searching for a new job and finally landed it—with Rangers and 30 minutes before the Ranger-Maroon game Saturday night.

Danny climbed into an unfamiliar blue sweater and spent a large part of the evening on the bench. Rangers were leading 3-1 in the third period when he climbed over the boards and put on one of the smartest rushes of the evening, ending it with a shot that beat Dave Kerr and made the game safe for the New Yorkers.

Rangers used the two points Cox helped to win in going out in front in the United States Division. Black Hawks, previously tied with the New Yorkers, dropped back two points when they lost 2-1 to Boston in Chicago last night.

Leafs Win and Lose

Toronto Leafs scored nine goals in two games but they used up eight of them defeating Ottawa Senators 8-4 Saturday night and only had one left to match against Detroit's two Sunday. Montreal Canadiens went five points up on Americans by beating them 2-0 in New York last night.

Young Jack Riley was the hero of the Habitants shutout, giving Aurel Joliat a pass for one goal and scoring the other working with Sylvio Mantha. The tall, blonde youngster, also turned in some smart back-checking that broke up many Americans attacks.

Little Peggy O'Neill, Boston centre, gave Dit Clapper the pass in overtime for the winning goal at Chicago. Doc Romnes had put the Hawks ahead in the first period and they held the lead until half way through the second when Nels Stewart, working with Red Beattie and Joe Lamb, tied it up.

A pair of penalties in the third session lost Toronto any chance they had of winning at Detroit. Andy Blair and Red Horner, most penalised men in the League, were draped over the penalty bench when Frank Carson, Ebbie Goodfellow and Larry Aurie put on a power play, that ended with Carson's unbeatable shot.

Johnny Sorrell gave the wings something to work on with a goal in the first period and they held the Canadian sections leaders scoreless until most of the middle frame had been played. Then Harold Cotton snapped a short pass to Andy Blair and the tall centre whipped it past Wilf Cude.

Rangers on Top

Russell Blinco and Earl Robinson started the scoring in the Ranger-Maroon game, Robinson scoring on Blinco's pass late in the first period. The fans were scarcely back in their seats when Earl Seibert tied things up with an unassisted goal. Murray Murdoch, Rangers iron man, worked with Vic Ripley and Cecil Dillon fo their second period goal and Vic Ripley got another for Rangers in the third before Cox's came along.

Hooley Smith made the play for the second Maroon goal in a terrific last minute offensive. He worked over the blue line and laid a pass on Herb Cain's stick.

Ottawa tried very hard every minute of the game in Toronto, but the Leaf scoring punch was just too much for them. Charlie Conacher gathered three scoring points all assists, to lengthen his scoring leadership. Harvey Jackson got goals and Blair, Charlie Sands, Horner, Alex. Levinsky, Hec Kilrea and Happy Day the others.

Carl Voss led Ottawa's scorers with a goal and an assist and Sid Howe, Busher Hollett and Nick Wasnie were credited with counters.

N. H. L. STARS

Cecil Dillon, Rangers, played a stout defensive game and got two assists in the Ranger-Canadien game.

Jack Riley, Canadiens, made the play for both goals in Canadiens' 2-0 win from Americans.

Dit Clapper, Boston, scored the overtime goal that gave Bruins a 2-1 win in Chicago.

Frank Carson, Detroit gave Wings their goal edge over Toronto.

BOTH GAMES ARE SHUTOUTS

Zion Hill And Evergreen Blank Cannifton And Minto

STIRLING, Feb. 5—By virtue of their 1-0 victory over Cannifton, Zion Hill climbed to second position in the Centre League and Evergreen rose to fourth position, when they blanked the Minto entry in the league by a 4-0 score in the double header played in the local ice house on Friday night. The best crowd of the season was at the rinkside to witness the two teams and spectators were amply repaid a real exhibition of hockey being turned in particularly in the second game.

In the initial stanza of the Evergreen-Minto game, Evergreen opened in repeating the performance sifted one in on Tanner in the Minto nets from the back of the twine. Before the period ended he succeeded in repeated the performance thereby putting his team in a two-goal lead. Minto threatened seriously at different times but couldn't seem to tally. No penalties were meted out by Referee Wallace.

In the second canto, Minto came back menacing Walter Rodgers in the Evergreen goal but that little goalie showed that he could take it and held the opposition to a shut out. Once again Evergreen had the best of the play and added another counter to their two goal lead when Percy Gibson went through to notch his third counter of the evening. The game was a clean one with not one penalty handed out.

The final stanza saw Evergreen maintaining their lead although the Minto aggregation made a valiant attempt to score calling on Rodgers to make some beautiful saves. The fourth counter was registered by Bruce Stapley of the Evergreen defense and the one-sided affair wound up with a 4-0 count.

Line-ups:

Referee—Earl Wallace.

Zion Hill 1—Cannifton 0

It was a great game when Cannifton and Zion Hill, tied for second place honours in the league, met to decide the issue with Zion Hill cinching the game in the last five minutes of the play when Orley Parks, scoring ace for the Zionites registered the lone tally of the game turning in a 1-0 victory for his team. The play was fast and from a spectator's point of view there was little to choose from between the two teams.

The initial frame saw both goals seriously menaced but Sharpe in the Cannifton nets and Seeley minding the twine for Zion Hill were equal to the occasion and the first period ended scoreless. The play was clean and Referee Wallace was not called upon to mete out any penalties.

The second stanza was much the same as the first. At different times it appeared as though it would be impossible to save a goal, first for Cannifton and then for Zion Hill scions, but the danger was warded off, winding up the period with still no score. Ralph Sills of Zion Hill took the only penalty of the period.

The final canto saw the play still faster with each team determined to turn in a win for their cause. Empson of Cannifton looked as if he would tally as did Sills and Parks of Cannifton but no score was registered until in the last five minutes of the play, Orley Parks beat Sharpe of the Cannifton nets to score the lone counter. Cannifton worked harder than ever but failed to even the count and the bell sounded to wind up the game 1-0 for Zion Hill. Penalties in the final period were given to Hay and Parks.

Referee—Earl Wallace.

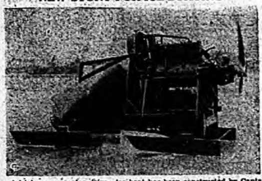
NEW STUNT FOR ICE-BOATING



A high-power motor-driven ice-boat has been constructed by Captain E. C. Plow of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, Kingston, after three months' work. The ice-boat has been attracting considerable attention on the Kingston harbor since its first appearance on January 31 when it was given its trial run, which was a success. The ice-boat is equipped with a six-cylinder Cadillac motor which drives a six-foot aluminum aeroplane propeller. Although the motor is started and geared from outside, the 'plane is throttle-controlled from the cabin, which is at the front of the ice-boat and which will accommodate the operator and one passenger. Many sail-propelled ice-boats have been skimming over the Kingston harbor this winter, but Captain Plow has the only motor-driven craft.

WOOLER TIED BY STIRLING

Wooler, Group Leaders, Lucky To Escape Shutout

Stirling, Feb. 5.—(Special)—In a well-contested game, which went into overtime, Wooler, group leaders of the South Hastings Interscholastic loop, tied the Stirling High School sextette to a 1-1 score right in the locals' back yard on Wednesday evening. The Stirling boys unquestionably deserved a win on the night's play and it was merely the fact that the jinx was on them that kept them from chalking up a win in the score column.

The game opened with Stirling taking the aggressive and although the whole forward line swooped in on the Wooler goalie, Bryant, time and again, that lad proved invincible and no scoring was recorded. Wooler also had their moments although the shots on the Wooler goal outnumbered those on the Stirling nets by three to one. Some of the attempts on the Wooler goal looked to be impossible to save but Bryant couldn't have had more luck in clearing if he had had a rabbit's foot in each pocket. The locals outskated and outplayed the opposition with the exception of Rattan of the Wooler defense who incidentally has played in intermediate O.H.A. series and is better acquainted with the arts of the game than his teammates.

Rattan opened the scoring in the second frame when he went right through the defense to beat Sprentall in the local nets for the lone Wooler counter of the evening. Stirling came back in the third period to tie the score when Robinson tallied on an assist from Don Rodgers.

Ten minutes of overtime followed but failed to break the tie.

Rattan was, by far, the best for the visitors and from a Stirling standpoint, was the one man to beat. For the locals, Robinson and Joblin were the most effective. Jones did some great work on the defense stepping into his man and saving many that looked like, sure goals.

Don Rodgers, Munro and Brookes also turned in a good game. The locals' loss is attributed simply to over-anxiety. Penalties were meted out to Munro, Steenberg, Rattan (2), Putnam and Robinson.

Line-ups:

Stirling—Sprentall, goal; Joblin and Jones, defense; Robinson, centre; Munro and D. Rodgers, wings; subs, Sutherland, Brookes, A. Rodgers, L. Rowland.

Wooler—Bryant, goal; Rattan and Putnam, defense; Steenberg, centre; Ellis and L. Redcliffe, wings; subs, G. Redcliffe, Adams, Morrow, Sharpe.

Referee—Earl Wallace.

G. CUNNINGHAM IN FAST MILE

Defeats Vanzke in 4.11.2 at Milrose Games in New York

New York, Feb. 5 (AP)— Premier milers of United States still are trying to find out just how fast Glenn Cunningham can run.

The easy fashion in which the powerfully-built Kansas boy defeated Gene Venzke, Pennsylvania flier, in the Wanamaker mile of the Millrose A.A. games Saturday night left no doubt that he is quite definitely Venzke's foot-racing master.

His time, 4.11.2, represented the second fastest mile ever run indoors, beaten only by Venzke's record of 4.10, but Cunningham finished with so much in reserve there seemed no way accurately to estimate his speed, where he to be pressed to the utmost.

Venzke, who ran a 4.12 mile yet was beaten eight yards, has tried every system in the book to whip his Middle Western rival at the mile and hasn't succeeded yet. Perhaps Bill Bonthron, Princeton's formidable "iron man," will find the combination, when he hooks up in a three-cornered tangle with Cunningham and Venzke in the Baxter mile of the New York A.C. games Feb. 17. Bonthron was caught in 4.08.7 when he finished second to Jack Lovelock as the New Zealander set up a new mile record of 4.07.6 last summer, outdoors.

Faces Busy Week

Cunningham faces a busy week, starting tonight with the Seton Hall College meet at Newark and winding up in the Boston A.A. games Saturday. The Kansas boy probably will run in the 1500-yard event tonight against Frank Nordell of New York University and Bob Woolsey of the Boston A.A. On Saturday night he will run in the classic Hunter mile of the Boston A.A. games, while Bonthron will appear in a 1,000 yard special.

The Kansas's machine-like performance at the Millrose turned the mile into something of an anticlimax for the capacity crowd of 16,000 who discovered more thrills in the two-mile run where John Follows, stockily built little New York A.C. ace was clocked in 9.09.3 second fastest two-miles by any American in history.

Chuck Hornbostel of Indiana romped off with individual honors however, as he ran a sensational 2.12.8 thousand and then anchored Indiana's relay team into first place in the fastest mile relay of the evening.

DEAD A WEEK WHEN FOUND

Toronto, Feb. 5—Thought to have been dead more than a week, Alfred William Webb, 75 years old, was found frozen to death in an upstair room of his home, 115 Robert St., Saturday afternoon.

Webb, an old-age pensioner, was a bachelor. He lived alone in the house he himself built forty-five years ago. Until her death several years ago, Webb's sister lived with him.

Neighbors recalled they had not seen the man for close on to two weeks. They notified Constable Tompkins (566), who in turn informed Inspector Cronin. With Patrol-Sergeant Clarke and McNeil, the Inspector went to the rear of the house. Forcing the back door, they found the water pipes had frozen and burst, a coating of ice being found on the floor.

Making their way upstairs, the policemen found the man's dead body lying on the floor. He was fully dressed. Apparently he had taken ill and collapsed, and unable to get up died without being able to summon aid.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE

"DINNER AT EIGHT"

The picture which you have heard talked about for months as the most remarkable achievement yet attempted by Hollywood producers will have its first showing at the Belle Theatre starting tomorrow (Tuesday) following its triumphant long run at the Astor Theatre in New York City and its special engagement in principal cities throughout the country as a road show.

It is "Dinner at Eight" the photoplay version of the George S. Kauffman, Edna Ferber stage success which ran on Broadway for more than a year and was subsequently purchased by the Metro Goldwyn Mayer film studios at a price which ran well into five figures. At the time of its purchase of the play rights Metro executives intimated that the camera version of "Dinner at Eight" would be something in the nature of the extraordinary with a cast which would dwarf any comparisons.

No Idle Boast

One glance at the amazing line-up of stars in this picture indicates that the earlier predictions were no idle boasts. Here we have, believe it or not, in one talkie, Marie Dressler, John Barrymore, Wallace Beery, Jean Harlow, Lionel Barrymore, Lee Tracy, Edmund Lowe, Billie Burke, Madge Evans, Jean Hersholt, Karen Morley, Louise Closser Hale, Phillips Holmes and May Robson, together with eleven supporting players.

Needless to say, so imposing a casting project is something totally unprecedented in the annals of the film industry. "Dinner at Eight", having almost three times as many outstanding screen celebrities as any previous screen vehicle. From the point of beautiful sets and brilliant camera work, "Dinner at Eight" is likewise said to exceed the earlier all-star drama, and is totally different in plot construction.

"Dinner at Eight" takes place in a wide variety of homes, apartments and offices, each being the centre of a separate dramatic episode whose characters are subsequently brought together at the home of a society matron for dinner at eight.

Miss Dressler is seen as a faded musical-comedy star bereft of beauty but not of wit. John Barrymore is a motion picture actor whose loss of popularity impels him to a tragic end. Wallace Beery is a self-made millionaire, ruthless in destroying his weaker business rivals and trying in vain to retain the affection of his fickle wife, played by Jean Harlow. Lionel Barrymore is the aristocratic shipbuilder who is almost tricked into bankruptcy by the unscrupulous Beery. Lee Tracy is John Barrymore's ultra-Broadway press-agent. Edmund Lowe is a philandering society doctor who becomes involved in an affair with Miss Harlow. Billie Burke plays Lionel Barrymore's wife and is the hostess who gives the dinner-at-eight. Madge Evans is seen as her daughter.

A funny Popeye the Sailor Kartune, and the popular Belle News will be shown on the same program.

Two Features Tonight

Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy are appearing at the Belle tonight in their uproarious feature length comedy "Sons of the Desert. Buck Jones and Dorothy Revier are featured in "The Thriller Hunter." It's a Sennet show.

AT THE CAPITOL

"East of Fifth Ave."

Several interesting coincidences regarding the cast were revealed during the production of Columbia's "East of Fifth Avenue," which is coming to the Capitol Theatre today for three days.

Dorothy Tree and Walter Connolly discovered that each had made his or her professional stage debut in Shakespearian plays: Miss Tree as Jessica in "The Merchant of Venice," and Connolly as Petruccio in "Taming of the Shrew." Willard Robertson and Louise Carter made their debut, not only in the same production, but with the same star. The play was "Rip Van Winkle," with Joseph Jefferson. Miss Carter appeared in the piece in 1898 while Robertson made his debut in it in 1904.

Walter Byron, Lucien Littlefield, and Walter Connolly are all veterans of the World War—but each served with different armies abroad. Byron, an Englishman, went through the conflict with the British forces; Connolly served with the U.S. Marines under Gen. Butler; Littlefield, although an American, was with the Italian forces because of his knowledge of the language.

Littlefield and Robertson are writers, the former authoring short stories and the atter writing for the stage and screen.

Wallace Ford, Dorothy Tree and Mary Carlisle have the featured roles in the production.

"Going Hollywood"

Bing Crosby, who supports Marion Davies in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, "Going Hollywood," which comes Thursday to the Capitol Theatre, is one of the rare personalities of motion pictures.

He never wants to become a film star!

Strangely enough, Crosby appears in the role of a crooning picture star whom Miss Davies pursues across the continent and finally wins.

"But I never want to be one," Crosby said. "The truth is, I will always refuse the honor. This is not mere prattle, because I have had my chance.

"Only recently, when I completed my last picture at another studio, they insisted they were going to star me in the billing. I objected and we had quite an argument over it—but I won.

In "Going Hollywood," directed by Raoul Walsh, the cast includes Fifi D'Orsay, Stuart Erwin, Ned Sparks, Patsy Kelly, Bobby Watson and the Three Radio Rogues.

"Going Hollywood" is acclaimed one of the biggest hits of 1934!

She tried to get through each day as best she could. Never comfortable—always distressed. Low in vitality—lower in spirits. She hadn't thought of her kidneys, until a friend suggested Dodd's Kidney Pills—for over three generations the favorite kidney tonic and remedy. Seeking relief she immediately took Dodd's. The "washed out" feeling was soon replaced by clear headed energy and restful sleep. Headache, backache, and other signs of faulty kidneys soon disappeared.

NATIVE SON VISITS CITY

Rev. Father R. McGuinness Resided Here 30 Years Ago

An interesting visitor in the city is Rev. Robert McGuinness of Calgary, Alberta, who is a guest at St. Michael's Rectory. Rev. Father McGuinness is a native of Belleville, his father, Robert A. McGuinness being a prominent citizen here during his residence in the city over thirty years ago. Robert A. McGuinness, whose home was on Coleman Street, took an active part in civic matters of that day, and was much interested in military affairs, being a Captain and Company Commander of D. Company of the 15th Battalion.

Father McGuinness, with his parents, left for England in 1900 and after residing there for five years returned to Canada and Calgary became his future home. Father McGuinness entered the profession of engineering and attained a high place in his calling, his work being well known throughout Western Canada, particularly in Alberta.

Served With Distinction

During the war he served overseas in the ranks making a distinguished record. At the termination of hostilities, he entered into studies for the priesthood in Beda College, Rome, and was ordained in 1930. Since then he has worked in the diocese of Calgary, Alberta.

On this visit to Belleville he has renewed acquaintances of old days and has observed with great interest the growth of Belleville, which has impressed him very much.

Yesterday afternoon Father McGuinness addressed members of the Holy Name Society on some incidents in the early experiences of the Oblate missionaries in the West. The lecture was deeply appreciated and followed with most absorbing interest by the large number present, Father McGuinness being acquainted with many of the pioneer figures in the new sections of Canada.

A hearty vote of thanks, moved by Mr. Ormonde Butler and seconded by Mr. Jack Fahey expressed the appreciation of those present for Father McGuinness' lecture.

PRODUCE PRICES IN MONTREAL

Butter moved into the leadership of the Montreal dairy and produce market last week, soaring to new highs for the winter season. Announcement during the week that monthly stocks in store were less than half what they were at the same time last year, low production and improved buying, were factors in the advance. Eggs recovered a large part of the previous week's losses, and cheese remained unchanged. No. 1 regraded pasteurized butter moved up to a closing level of 26¼c to 26¾c a pound, compared with the preceding week's final quotation of 25c to 25½c, a net gain of 1¼c to 1½c. Receipts for the week totalled 5,532 boxes.

The egg market gained 2c to 4c a dozen, ending the week at 31c to 32c a dozen for A-large, 30c to 31c for A-medium and 29c to 30c for A-pullets for graded shipments in carlots or less of Ontarios or Westerns. A total of 6,741 cases was offered for sale, compared with a total of 6,459 cases the preceding week.

The cheese market remained quiet, as usual at this time of year, with prices holding steady. Current Ontario make was again quoted at 10½ cents a pound with receipts at 590 boxes.

The potato market brought 90c to 95c per 80-pound bag of Quebecs; $1.05 to $1.10 for New Brunswick Mountains, in similar quantities; and $1.20 to $1.25 for 90-pound bags of Prince Edward Island Mountains.

MELVILLE LADIES' AID

The members of Melville Ladies Aid were very pleasantly entertained at the home of Mrs. W. H. Morton on Thursday afternoon. The warmth and brightness of the pleasant cheery rooms were a happy contrast to the winter cold without. After some time spent in sewing, the meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. W. H. Morton with Mrs. Chas. Kinnear, pianist. Rev Mr. McRae offered prayer The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs Clifford Carley, and the roll called. It was resolved to accept the very kind invitation of Rev. and Mrs. McRae to hold an "at home" at the parsonage. A reading by Mrs McRae and a piano solo and encore by Mrs. Arthur Kinnear were much enjoyed. A social half-hour and refreshments followed. A vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Morton for her hospitality.

Prayer by Rev. Merrick closed the meeting.

LESSON 4

PASTRY AND PIE FILLINGS

Good pastry (which every girl or woman wants to make) is wholesome and digestible enough for the normal person; it is poor pastry that is so highly indigestible.

There are few materials and few utensils needed for making pastry—yet it can be a tricky thing to make, for the cook who does not understand the little turns and pointers that bring success with it. They are all here in this lesson. In Lesson 3, we learned about Soft Doughs. In this lesson, we study one of the most important Stiff Doughs. The methods of mixing are much alike—the fat is cut into the dry ingredients before liquid is added.

Ingredients For Pastry.

1. A dependable flour, one with tender gluten preferred.
2. Salt—¼ teaspoon for each cup flour, or a little more if your fat is unsalted.
3. Baking Powder—a very little may be used, ¼ teaspoon for each cup flour is the amount needed to help make pastry light, at least until you have gained experience; then you may use it or not.
4. Shortening—a hard, cold fat of neutral flavour, or part butter and part shortening may be used; 1/3 cup fat altogether to each cup flour, makes a pleasantly rich paste, and ¼ cup fat to each cup flour is the least that should be used.
5. Water—should be ice-cold. Allow just enough to make a paste that will roll without sticking when turned out on a lightly floured bake board; 3 tablespoons to the cup to begin with—and more just sprinkled in if necessary. Too much water makes a sticky paste, which is very hard and brittle when baked. Too little water results in a very crumbly, over-rich crust. Rolling in extra flour on the board cuts down the richness, the good texture and flavor of the pastry. You will soon get "the feeling" for mixing your paste.

Utensils Required.

1. Mixing bowl, flour sifter, measuring cup, measuring spoon.
2. Wire pastry blender or a knife or steel fork to cut fat into dry ingredients.
3. Wooden bake board or canvas bake sheet; wooden rolling pin; the pin may be covered with ribbed cotton (the leg of a small child's ribbed white cotton stocking makes a good cover); a covered rolling pin works better, holds the flour evenly—and for the same reason we favour the canvas cloth on which to turn out our doughs.
5. Pie or bake pans, or baking sheet, etc.

Kinds of Pastry.

There are two kinds of ordinary pastry in general use; a close-textured paste and a light flaky paste made up of thin layers of crusts with air between them. We are not treating actual puff paste.

It is the method of mixing that is largely responsible for these different results—particularly the way the shortening is added. The kind of shortening, too, makes a difference; a liquid fat like cooking oil, will make the very close-textured kinds of paste, while solid fats are used in the flaky, as well as the close type.

METHODS FOR MAKING PASTRY

Quick Paste

1. Sift flour, measure it and sift, with salt, into bowl.
2. Measure fat. (For excellent short-cut method, see Lesson 1).
3. (a) For a fairly flaky paste:

Cut fat into dry ingredients, using wire pastry blender or a knife or a knife in each hand, or a steel fork that has two or three prongs. Use a quick, short chopping motion, until all fat is in particles the size of small peas.

(b) For a close-textured paste:

Rub shortening into dry ingredients with chilled finger tips. (Liquid shortening also makes a close pastry; it is stirred into the flour before adding water.

4. Sprinkle very cold water carefully over the surface—just enough so paste will roll—mix quickly and lightly with a knife. The dough should absorb all the water, but should not stick to the bowl. "Working" the dough will tend to make it elastic by developing the gluten in the flour; that is why we knead a yeast dough in making bread and why we handle biscuit and pastry doughs (which we wish to be tender) as little and as lightly as possible.
5. Scrape out paste onto lightly floured board or canvas; pat out and roll, if to be used at once. Chill first if possible.
6. Wrap dough in waxed paper and chill well, if possible, before rolling again for use.

The reason we chill paste is because there is greater force to the expanding cold air when the intense oven-heat strikes it—and so the pastry is made lighter and flakier.

I want you to notice that it is the method of adding the shortening which makes the distinct difference in the finished pastry. There is bound to be heat from the fingers, which softens the fat and blends it into the flour, instead of just mixing particles of fat THROUGH the flour. Sometimes you may like one of these pastes better than the other—for instance, some tarts seem rather nicer with the close-textured paste whilst for others, we like a flaky paste.

This method I have just given (even when the shortening is cut in) makes only a moderately flaky paste. There is a special method for making true flaky paste—and when it is rich, it can really be used in many ways which we were accustomed to think needed puff pastry; this very flaky paste is easier to make than puff pastry.

Superior Flaky Paste.

This is an excellent paste to make in quantities; wrapped in wax paper it can be kept two or three weeks, if very cold.

1. Sift flour, measure it and sift with salt into bowl.
2. Measure fat, same as for quick paste. (There must be 1/3 as much fat as there is flour for this paste.)
3. Cut HALF the fat (a nice white neutral-flavored shortening or lard) into dry ingredients, by method (a) in Quick Paste.
4. Add water—by method in Quick Paste.
5. Turn out on floured board or canvas, pat and roll out in sheet ¼ inch thick; keep square as possible.
6. You have half of your hard cold fat left. In this case, it may be either white shortening or butter. Divide it in three. Cut one piece into small bits, spread these over the front half of your sheet of paste, dust over lightly with flour, pick up the back edge and fold it over the fat, enclosing as much air as possible.
7. Pinch edges and pat and roll out carefully, so that pieces of fat will not break through. Don't roll it thin.
8. Fold paste and chill it.
9. Roll out again, dot half of sheet with the second measure of fat divided in small pieces, dust over lightly with flour, fold over, pinch edges, roll out carefully, fold and chill.
10. Again roll out chilled dough, spread the last measure of fat on half of it, fold the other half over.

Keep well chilled, closely covered, and use as required.

This Superior Flaky Paste makes nice little flaky tart shells, is good for fruit pies and for meat pies, or to hold a creamy filling, and it will make many of the little fancy pastries which we usually make with puff pastry.

Using Our Pastry.

We use our pastry commonly in several ways.

1. AS EMPTY PIE SHELLS OR TART SHELLS—For these: (a) We fit a thinly rolled (⅛ inch) sheet of pastry loosely over the bottom of an inverted pie pan or tart pans, being very careful not to stretch it, because it would later shrink back. With scissors or sharp knife we trim it off around the edge of the pan. In fitting the paste over the pan, we try to catch as little air underneath it is possible. Before putting in oven, we prick it all over with a fork to allow any imprisoned air bubbles to escape.

(b) Another Method—We line pie or tart pans with pastry, fitting it in generously and not trimming too closely. Prick paste to allow air bubbles to escape; cut ¾ inch strips of paste, wet one side, and apply to rim, fluting between thumb and finger; this helps prevent shrinkage and improves appearance. The paste may be weighted down by putting a sheet of wax paper over the pastry and then about half filling the dish with raw rice or beans. The rice or beans are unhurt for later use, and shells hold their shape beneath the weight.

2. AS SINGLE OR DOUBLE CRUSTS for shallow pies and tarts, when the filling is cooked with the pastry.
3. AS A TOP CRUST for deep-dish fruit pies and meat pies. Some solid support should be put in the middle of the dish to hold up the paste, if the filling "cooks down".
4. VARIOUS FANCY PASTRIES, filler and unfilled.
5. AS CAKE-AND-PASTRY COMBINATIONS—such as Maids of Honour.

Baking Temperatures.

Heat should come from the bottom of the oven for pastry, so place it on a rack on the bottom or near it, according to your oven. When pastry is baked by itself, without fillings, a very hot oven should be used for ordinary paste, and just slightly less hot for the extra-rich paste.

1. SHELLS—Empty pie shells may be given 500° F. at first, the temperature made lower as pastry shows color.
2. FRUIT PIES—A fruit pie should be given a hot oven at first, about 450° F., and when paste takes on color, heat should be reduced and baking continued at a moderate temperature, 375° F., until fruit is tender; if top crust is in danger of becoming too brown, put a paper over it.
3. MEAT PIES—Meat pies, since their filling has been already cooked, can be put into the hot oven and removed when pastry is baked—which will allow plenty of time to heat the filling if cold.
4. CUSTARD-TYPE PIES—Pies or tarts with a custard type filling—any filling in which eggs are used in generous proportion—cannot be cooked long at high temperatures, because all egg dishes demand slow cooking. Put the pie into a hot oven at first, and give it long enough to "set" the paste—but not long enough to allow the filling to boil. About 10 minutes is usually enough to give the paste a good start without endangering the filling. Temperature must then be sharply reduced to moderate or rather slow heat, and cooking continued until filling has set to the consistency of a baked custard. Test the filling by thrusting a silver knife into the centre; if it comes out misty and moist, filling is not cooked enough; when knife comes out dry, remove pie from heat immediately.

There is another successful method I advise for pies with a filling of cream or custard type. Bake the empty shell first, in the second way I have described, for 10 minutes at 500° F.; take from oven, fill the shell, and return pie to the oven in which temperature has been reduced to very moderate heat.

There is a lesson coming toward the end of your course, which deals entirely with Frostings and Fillings for cakes—and amongst these fillings are the most important of the creamy and custard-type mixtures which are used also for filling pies. So I am just going to give you the Pumpkin Pie as an example in this lesson—then you will have several of these fillings in Lesson 10.

LOVE'S LOTTERY

— by —

Katharine Haviland-Taylor

Terry had said her love for Geofrey would not grow; he had said that there was no soil in which to grow it. Terry, gentle, sure, considerate.

Stepping from the elevator into Miss Ella's hallway, Sir Terrill was met by Benson to whom he handed his stick, gloves and hat.

"I won't shed my coat," he said. "I am stopping but a moment—"

Benson bowed. Terry wandered into the drawing room where he waited, standing. He heard a slight sound behind him, and turned. Cicily stood framed in the broad doorway, wearing an orange frock that made her hair look as if touched by the sunlight of a tropic noon. But he saw that her cheeks were pale and his heart accused him.... They had stretched her on the rack between them.

"Well, child——?" he began.

"How do you do, Terry?"

He saw she was shy, uncertain; ashamed probably of that which his attempt to do good for her had made her do.

"Won't you lay aside your coat?" she asked.

"I'm stopping for only a moment—" he answered.

"But I wish you'd take it off——you look so transient, wearing it—"

"As you like," he replied, as he shrugged from his coat to drop it to a chair.

"And you'll sit down?"

"May I be forgiven if I don't? Men first learned to stand on their hind legs, I think, when they had something to say that made them feel important." He was mocking himself in the old way, she saw, or pretending to. She thought, "pretending to", he was so white, and the strain, which had been growing around his lips that week, was now deeply imprinted.

She dropped to the small sofa before the fire. Arm on a corner of the mantel, he stood looking down at her; the loveliest, the blindest child whom he had ever known.... whom he worshipped; about whom he was mad, utterly, beautifully, ravingly, mad....

He looked at a piece of Ming that he did not see....It wasn't going to be—easy. He'd have to be pretty careful or—he'd add to the shadows that were ahead for her—add to these shadows by giving her some glimpse of what losing her meant to him.

There was a silence. Cicily broke it when she raised her face to look at Terry and to say, "Aunt said you wanted to see me rather especially, Terry?"

"Yes, so I do, quite. Fact is, Cicily we needn't regard the Geneva rules any longer; our quarreling's over. I am frightfully sorry I bothered you so....I'm beginning to think 'No fool like an old fool,' as, doubtless you have."

She shook her head, vehemently; and she found the little motion of head made the room swim, blur. He must not—see how she felt.

"Some day, I hope you may be able to think gently of me for my meddling. I know I have been—rather insufferable," he went on. "I never meant to force you to marry me; I wanted only to give you time — in which to be certain. I have done that. I still see this marriage you are going to make as an unhappy one, because the man is less of a man than you should have, but you will live the life you want to live and sometimes, in doing that, pain is changed to joy."

He paused a moment.

"Cicily," he continued, "years soften the light. I know that now blacks and whites are less clear for me than they were at twenty; and in a half light one sees more clearly than in the glare of noon........ Thus, I expect that some day—your —" (he faltered) "your —children around you— you will think gently of me, which is all I want of you now—to —forgive me any pain I have put in your life——"

"Is—my forgiving all you want, Terry?"

"Cicily, my dear——"

He was proud of that and the way he had said it; he saw it as a gallant lie.

CHAPTER 26

Terry's lips had twitched on the biggest lie in his truthful life, but Cicily, staring at a gleaming strip of uncovered floor, had not seen the confession of pain that his nerves had made.

"I hope you are going to be very happy, child——" He did hope that, even though the thought of it put ice in his veins.

"Will I see you——sometimes, Terry?" he heard her ask, in a voice that broke.

He shook his head very definitely. "I——hope not," he confessed. "I prefer to regard this little— interlude —as closed. You have learned me, I have learned you—we both know our wants—and it's over."

He had done it well, he decided. "And now I go——" he stated.

"Where—Terry?" she questioned, breathlessly.

"I think to my Canadian ranch, my dear."

She rose, not quite steadily. "Then it's good-bye—for all time, Terry?"

"Forgive me if I say—I want it to be." ("A bit more," he thought, "and I'll—go to pieces!")

She drew close to him. "Well, at least," she said, "you will kiss me good-bye?" He had never seen upon her face quite that look; might be hers, he realised at fifty, sixty, or seventy; tired, it was within it a blend of bitterness and coldly ironic amusement.

He felt himself tremble. "Yes," he answered grimly, "and you may tell your lover that I am a rotten cheat, as I am. But I have—never kissed you; I have kissed a child; remembering you were a child each time I set my lips to yours....And now— because of a dream that has failed me and because you are a woman—to some other man—I shall kiss you, to believe—for that space—that you were different and that my dream is a reality."

He gathered her into his arms; stronger than she had imagined they could be. He looked down at her for a long, few seconds, held close. Then he bent his head.

Through a haze, then, she saw him fumblingly, blindly pick up his coat, leave the room; she touched her lips with trembling fingers. Why, why, had he never kissed her thus before—to tell her of his love for her—and hers for him? He had loved her—he had! But now——

His words echoed,...never wanted to see her again, whom he had dreamed to be different. He wanted the "interlude" closed; "interlude"—her forgiveness—all he wanted—Hoped, with her children around her, that she could think gently of him..Her children! She could have no children unless they were, too, his children—and the interlude was over; he had said so—over.

Cicily telephoned to Geoffrey. He arrived after he had dined. He was scowling heavily. He had seen Blanche as he stepped into the elevator; he was completely unnerved. Had she been up to see Cicily, he wondered (swallowing hard) to tell Cicily of the old affair? Lord, if he'd only got Cicily first. Then she could have raised the roof——and it would have done nothing! But now——

When Geoffrey entered the drawing room she was standing. She evaded his arms. "No—please," she said rather breathlessly. Blanch had been up to see her, he decided.

"Cicily," he said, "what has the past got to do with us?"

"A man's past has a great deal to do with the woman he marries," she answered, "but we won't talk of that.... I'm sorry, Geoff, but it's over."

"But God," he burst out, "I'll kill that woman!"

She was looking at him, calmly, measuringly.

"I saw her near the elevator," he went on. "I knew she'd been up, to tell you her mean version of the affair—I was only a youngster, Cicily —I couldn't help her falling in love with me!"

"You're wrong there," she contradicted. "When any man opens the way to a woman's loving him, he is at fault......She was the reason, wasn't she Geoff, why you wanted me to marry you in such haste? But don't answer that; I'm cheating. I know nothing of her, nor of that affair." (Geoffrey's jaw dropped). "It's over because—I love Terry—" (She remembered suddenly Terry's saying he had never hurt a woman, and it made her aching heart harden.) "Over," she went on, "because I do love him and don't love you. And, Geoff, it is fortunte for you—as well as for me—that it is over, I never would have suited you—Get something pretty and softly compliant on whom you can hang diamonds. I don't care much for diamonds, you know, and much of your love will be made through them——And I would disagree with you increasingly—Yes, Geoff, it's over—"

"Just—why—is it over?"

"Because I love—Terry."

"Aha! Lightning change artist, aren't we? And when is this happy affair going to come off?"

"I think never, Geoffrey. I think —I know—he no longer loves me."

Ten minutes later Benson helped Geoffrey into his coat. Blanche was still lingering near the doorway of the apartment house.

"Come along," Geoffrey ordered roughly. She followed him to his car. "What was the idea?" he asked as he changed gears.

"To see you," she answered.

He laughed harshly. "Do you know what happened because I saw you?" he asked. He went on without waiting for her answer; she heard, in silence, the history of his "giving it away", his accusations and his hate of her.

"Geoff," she said, as his voice died, hoarse, from anger, "Geoff, was you going to marry her quick —so if I'd tell, it would be too late for her to back out?"

"Well, what if I was?" he demanded belligerently. "What's it to you?"

"A good deal," she said slowly; she smiled. "It's cured me," she went on, "hearing that you planned to do that rotten trick. Somehow, I've been thinking all these years, that you weren't so vile as the facts made you seem. But you are that vile and you're worse. Remember how you told me—never in writing —that you'd marry me?"

He shifted uneasily, frowned; he opened his lips to speak, but she went on before he could utter a word.

"That was bad," she said simply, "but it wasn't quite as bad as this —trying to get her to run off with you before she knew you and because you knew she was enough of a sport to stick to you—even hatin' yuh, hum?"

Blanche laughed, heartily, lightly. "To think I been lovin' you all these years!" she said wonderingly.

Geoffrey found that it hurt; that Blanche's scorn hurt. She was laughing over having loved him.

"Give me a cigarette, big Butter and Eggs," she said casually, too lightly, "and run me down to Fourth Street and I'll leave you—with pleasure and not one regret."

"Rubbing it in, aren't you, Blanche?" he questioned, bitterly.

"I don't mean to," she answered. "It don't matter that much; believe me, it don't, any more!"

In the morning she would tell Harry that she would marry him, she decided. She puffed deeply upon the cigarette Geoffrey had offered her from a case that trembled in his hands. Harry loved her. and this night—and seeing things as they were—had told her that she loved Harry. Funny, how years and habits of thinking blinded you, she reflected. She wasn't good enough for Harry, she mused on; but she'd always try to make him happy and —her cheeks warmed and her eyes misted—she could do that. He had waited her "yes" for years—Harry, the gentle sort, who wanted to make up to people for all that they had lost—Blanche had never known another like him.

"I wonder that I held out so long," Geoffrey heard her murmur. "I was a fool!"

"What you say, Blanche," he questioned, voice harsh.

"I wasn't talkin' to you. Say—I had forgot you was in the world! Get that?"

He did.

She sat back smiling, having tossed her cigarette through the car window. Dear Harry—They'd be married tomorrow—She'd done Geoff's girl a favor by lingering at the doorway of that apartment house. "I hope she'll get over it quicker'n I did," she thought.

She said aloud, "Next corner, Geoff, and I'll leave you there for all time! And just one thing I ask of you, Geoff—remember that it ain't fair to pull women down into your hell through their love for you, will you? Good-bye——"

He watched her swing off with never so much as one backward look at him.

For some time he sat shaking in his car, unable to start, to trust himself to drive. What a hideous evening!

Suddenly he remembered the story that had been broadcast about Cicily and her stepfather. Tense, steady again, he set his car to a swift pace. In his rooms, he settled himself before his desk and steadily he wrote her:

"Dear Cicily: — I feel that you were unfair to me to-night and, when you consider it, I think you will realise that you were hasty. My dear, I knew of your entanglement with your stepfather and of how your mother had to order you out of her house. I have loved you anyway. Aren't we even? Let's call off the feud and run off to some parson to-morrow. Really —when I remembered that affair of yours, Cicily! Aren't you—— weren't you absurd?

But——devotedly yours in any case,

GEOFFREY."

He was proud of it. Cicily read it when she awakened in the morning after but a few hours sleep. She flushed heavily, to grow pale. Geoffrey thought that of her, and she had planned to marry him. She lay back, sick.

Benson tapped on her door later to tell her that Mr. Field was calling for her at the telephone. She answered loudly, almost stridently, "You may tell Mr. Field, Benson, that I am not at home, and that I will never be at home to his call!"

CHAPTER 27

Terry found few changes in his big ranch which he had visited a year before. Again snow stretched, as far as eye could reach. Yet this difference existed: Terry, during his last pilgrimage to his ranch, one of his Meccas, had been gay and ready to laugh; now he must pretend his gaiety and force his mirth.

"I must not oppress others with—this,'" he reminded himself often.

His ranch manager, also a bachelor, left the big house, which was known to the countryside as "the Boss's place," to bunk at the house of one of "the hands". Pierre, a French Canadian of great silence and capability for equally great affection, attended Terry's needs and worried about his lack of appetite.

Terry walked miles each day and through hours each night. Bodily fatigue was not granting to him a healthy hunger, a tranquil sleep, nor respite from his pain.

From one thing did he have satisfaction; he had acquitted himself well, he felt, in his last interview with Cicily——up to that moment of kissing her. He thought he had not added to her troubles by letting her think he was setting off to be miserable. And that was something, a good deal to him, at moments. At other times he could feel nothing but the impossibility of freeing himself from the old habit of dreaming about her as his. "Of course," he reasoned suddenly, "this can not keep up endlessly, because no man could stand it endlessly."

"He's awful changed," those who knew said. They remembered him "the last visit"; helping "the boys" to bring a grand piano from the village where it had been shipped all the way from New York! Hanging "a kind of funny looking rug on the wall" ("Who ever heard of hanging a rug on a wall?"); changing the new furnishings he'd had sent up, putting them first here, then there—so interested. Now, he would stand on the broad ranch verandah, staring over the valley; and if you wanted to get his attention you'd have to speak to him "maybe three or four times."

His books were untouched on their shelves; he hadn't touched his piano.

TARZAN AT THE EARTH'S CORE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

© 1933, by Edgar Rice Burroughs, Inc. All rights reserved.

The O-220 cruised slowly above the Gyor-Cors while watchful eyes aboard it scanned the ground below. But the only living things they saw were huge dinosaurs. Disturbed by the motors of the dirigible, the great beasts trotted angrily around in circles. Sometimes one, sighting the ship above him, would gallop after it bellowing angrily. Or another would charge the elliptical shadow that moved along the ground beneath the O-220.

Far away Captain Zuppner saw a lofty mountain range visible in the up-curving distance. A river came down from them. Knowing that men who became lost often followed a river's course, he steered the dirigible toward it. Gliding above the river they at length came to a large lake. It had been some time since they had had fresh water and meat. So Zuppner decided to land and make camp. A little later the great ship settled gently to rest upon a grassy meadow.

While the O-220 settled down by the silent inland sea, hundreds of miles away Jason Gridley and his four companions pushed their tunnel upward toward the earth's surface. The tunnel was now so long that the men worked frantically, fearing the Horibs would discover their absence from the cave-prison and search for them. As Jason at its far end scraped at the dirt above him, there broke suddenly upon his ears what sounded like the muffled reverberation of rifle shots.

The American hardly knew what to make of the sounds. He redoubled his effort to drive his narrow shaft upward. No more did he hear the sounds that had filled him with hope. Instead, the earth trembled as though many animals were racing over it. Now he was positive he must be near the surface of the ground. Then suddenly a shot sounded almost directly above him. He heard the thud of a heavy body, the earth above him gave way and something dropped into the shaft upon his head.

Wall of Secrecy Around Ex-Newsboys' $100,000,000 Fortune to be Torn Down

How Van Swerigen broth ers made themselves millionaires in few years to be investigated—almost mythical figures

Central Press Canadian Correspondent

Cleveland, Feb. 3 — The wall of secrecy that the Van Sweringen brothers built around themselves in amassing what probably was one of the greatest fortunes in the United States, is about to be torn down piecemeal.

How Orin and Mantis Van Sweringen, once newsboys on the streets of SCleveland bought an $8,500,000 railroad without advancing a penny of their own money already is a matter of public record.

Now the government is endeavouring to secure the full story of the activities of the financial wizards—worth nearly $100,000,000 a few years ago—and to find to what extent they dominate the business picture in one of the wealthiest industrial regions in the midwest.

Federal Bank Probe

Nine members or approximately one-sixth of the entire auditing staff of the U.S. department of justice are engaged in laying the ground work for the investigation by delving into the records of the defunct Union and Guardian Trust companies here.

That the Vans borrowed heavily from the two banks was a fact disclosed by the Ohio state senate bank investigating committee. At a public hearing it was testified that the Van Sweringens, or their holding companies, owed the Union Trust in excess of $10,000,000 and the Guardian Trust about $6,000,000.

The government, according to Walter H. Seymour, one of the chief examiners for the special United States senate bank investigating committee, intends to pick up the trail where the state left off.

The congregational body will start its public hearing into the affairs of the closed banks within a month, according to Ferdinand Pecora, counsel for the group. Pecora also says that particular attention will be focused on Van Sweringen loans.

Amazing Careers

Perhaps the story of the Vans' rise is unparalleled in the country's history. Certainly it is unique.

They started life with few worldly possessions. When they reached the zenith of their career, they controlled a vast railroad empire, coal companies, shipping firms, office buildings, a department store trolley lines, train depots and erected a building 708 feet high in the heart of Cleveland that always will stand as a monument to its creators.

After their newsboy days, the brothers became real estate salesmen. They made money, but rather slowly, especially in view of the millions that flowed through their hands in later years.

Their first outstanding success was the development of Shaker Heights into one of the most exclusive residential suburbs of the city. They purchased the land from a religious sect known as the Shakers and sub-divided it into lots. However, their venture was threatened with failure unless they found a rapid means of transportation between the suburb and downtown Cleveland.

Buy First Railroad

The right-of-way of the Nickel Plate railroad was ideal for a rapid transit line. So they bought the railroad. They paid $8,500,000 for it, $2,000,000 down. The Vans borrowed the down payment from the Guardian Trust Company through a holding company and they pledged their interest in the railroad as collateral for the loan. That was the story told by Orin Van Sweringen before the U. S. senate bank committee when the latter was probing the activities of J. P. Morgan & Co.

The Vans began to pyramid their fortunes. They bought the Chesapeake and Ohio, the Erie, the Pere Marquette, the Missouri Pacific and smaller railroads until they had a transportation system that reached across the country. Most of the purchases were consummated through holding companies and some of the transactions were so involved that Orin repeatedly told the senate committee "I can't remember" when he was questioned concerning them.

Acquisition of the trolley lines office buildings, shipping companies were incidental to building the railroad empire. Many of the Van Sweringen companies have defaulted on the bond issues; others have failed. How much the Vans will be able to salvage from the depression would be pure speculation, but it is almost inconceivable that they will not be able to recoup a few million dollars.

Rarely in Public

Since the Vans became important figures in the industrial life of the nation, they developed a shyness that could not be pierced. They seldom travelled; they are seldom seen; they are never known to have been abroad; they live quietly in their bachelor apartment in their downtown tower or at their Daisy Hill farm, near here. The farm, incidentally, has been pledged as part of the collateral on a bank loan.

They became legendary figures and still are to thousands of Clevelanders. But the collapse of the banks from which they borrowed money for the enterprise threatens to disclose at last the "inside story" of their financial careers.

Picton and Prince Edward County

By Our Own Correspondent

PICTON, Feb. 5.— (Special) — The Home and School Club held their February meeting in the Veteran's Hall on Thursday afternoon In the absence of the President, the Vice-President, Mrs. Don Gullett, presided. The meeting opened with the Lord's Prayer. The Secretary, Mrs. Ern Ward gave the minutes of the last meeting. Eight small pupils of the Primary grade, formed a rhythm band, and played "My Lady Fair". There was an orchestra leader among them, and each child played a toy musical instrument, and each showed an excellent sense of rhythm. There was a very low phonograph accompaniment. This number was muc[illegible] joyed as the children were so [illegible]ng and so well trained. They were in charge of their teacher Miss Thompson of the Mary St. School.

Mr. Bruce Yarwood next gave his report regarding milk being supplied to needy children at school by the Club. Seventy children needed the milk—one half pint a day per child. This would cost the Club $21.00 each month. Any other children could purchase the milk at ten cents for each week.

It was moved by Mrs. Ward and seconded by Mrs. Inrig that this milk be supplied to the schools during February and March and the motion carried. The milk was to be given the children by their teachers at the morning recess.

Mr. Van Cott was not able to make a report at this time on children in the schools who needed glasses or any special treatment. This will be given later.

Miss Thompson was guest speaker for the afternoon, and gave an excellent address on the "Rhythm Band". She said children naturally reacted audibly to well-built rhythm developes co-ordination of muscles and helps discipline by teaching co-operation. It also leads to the appreciation of good music. The children recognize each accented beat, melody and pitch. The Rhythm Band develops the power of listening; physical and mental control; an interest for after school life; automatic discipline and a taste for good music.

Mrs. Harold Knapman read extracts from the Club magazine on the observance of Founder's Day. Mrs. A. C. Curtis was the first woman in Ontario to see the value of co-operation between the home and the school, and between parents and teachers. She became the first President of the Toronto Club In 1927 after many Clubs had been founded in Toronto, there was provincial organization. Ontario looked to the United States for guidance where clubs had been functioning for twenty years. Help was willingly given as club ideals are international—love of childhood and child problems are universal. In 1931 on the birthday of Mrs. Curtis Founder's Day was first observed in Toronto and it is hoped that this year every club will celebrate the day by voluntary giving by each member and by planning for extra work of the club. Teachers, parents and trustees need to co-operate—to get one another's point of view.

An evening meeting is being planned for February—a social meeting when it is hoped the men will be present.

The picture purchased by the club to increase membership and attendance was won for this month by Miss Thompson's room and Miss Vance's room and will be kept one half the month by each. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

On Wednesday evening, Mr. Max Dodds entertained about twenty friends at a jolly party at his home Glenora Road. Cards and dancing provided te entertainment.

At a hearing before Judge McLean on Thursday afternoon Mr. Douglas Wark was unseated as a member of the Town Council under the Bankruptcy Act. Wilfrid Lane appeared for Mr. Wark.

Picton friends of Mr. T. Howard Break former manager, Pape and Gowan Aves. Branch, Bank of Nova Scotia were glad to hear of his acquittal by a jury, when Judge O'Connell passed sentence on a client of the bank for procuring large sums of money under false pretenses.

London, Feb. 6.—Rumors that three British naval vessels would be stationed at Esquimalt, B.C., Pacific coast base of the Royal Canadian navy, were scoffed at in authoritative quarters in London today. The admiralty said it knew of nothing that would give a foundation to the report. Possibly the report arose because the two Canadian destroyers normally stationed at Esquimalt are at present on a southward cruise and are believed at the moment to be at Colon. They are due back at Esquimalt in the early summer.

French Premier Rides Revolutionary Gale by 282 to 196 Votes Today

"Prevent Civil War" Is Daladier's Appeal To Socialists

GUNS READY

Severe Test of Week-Old Cabinet Ends With Confidence Vote

Paris, Feb. 6.—Troops were called out to reinforce the police battling with a mob in the Place De La Concorde across from the Chamber of Deputies this evening.

Paris, Feb. 6 (AP)—Deputies, rioting among themselves, broke up a session of the Chamber today when Premier Edouard Daladier, a vote of confidence behind him, refused to answer questions from the floor.

The Legislators went wild. Some shouted "Fascism", others sang the Communist hymn "The Internationale."

The bedlam broke loose when Andre Tardieu, former Premier and one of the leaders of the opposition to Daladier, mounted the rostrum to speak.

The deputies slammed the tops of their desks, pounded with books and fists, and roared epithets at one another.

Paris, Feb. 6 (AP)—Premier Edouard Daladier won his fight for political life today when the Chamber of Deputies, after a riotous demonstration gave him a vote of confidence. The balloting was 282 to 196.

For the first time in the memory of Deputies a Premier had been interrupted during a declaration of policy as angry deputies came to blows.

Daladier had pleaded for support from the Radical Socialist Party to "prevent a civil war."

While the former school teacher spoke, machine guns were held in readiness in a nearby political barracks. Thousands of troops and police were on duty as war veterans and Royalists threatened demonstrations.

The vote of confidence brought Daladier through a severe test of his week-old Cabinet and gave him assurance of Chamber support of his drastic government shake-up, following the Stavisky scandal.

"Save Republic!"

Paris, Feb. 6 (AP) — Premier Edouard Daladier summoned his Radical Socialist party today to aid him "to prevent civil war" lest "the Republic be forced to abdicate."

"The fundamentals of agitation," declared the Premier, "lie in the economic and financial crisis. The incidents we are witnessing risk the crystallization of discontent."

He said he had shaken up the government because a "certain letdown" was revealed by the operations of Serge Stavisky and the resultant collapse of the Bayonne Municipal Pawnshop.

Daladier declared he thought it was "remarkable that the fact the swindler had slipped through the net could serve some 'bellwethers' with an attempt to overturn the regime."

The Premier pleaded with a tense Chamber of Deputies to "defend my regime."

Kingston Physician Was But One Week Ill

Kingston, Ont., Feb. 6 (CP)—Dr. E. O. D. MacCallum, one of Kingston's best known practicing physicians, died today following an attack of pneumonia. Dr. MacCallum was ill one week.

He was a graduate of McGill University and was a son of the late Rev. D. MacCallum, prominent Congregational Church minister in Ontario for years. Two generations of the MacCallum family served as missionaries in Turkey. The late Dr. MacCallum was on the staff of Queen's University and for years was head of the Children's Aid Society here.

GOLD RUSH BY AIRLINER TO LONDON, ENG.

Eight Machines Are Chartered To Carry Boxes

NEW DAY RECORD

Dutch Plane Carries 34 Boxes of Gold To London Bank

LONDON, Feb. 6.—(AP) — The United States dollar declined 2 3-4 cents to the pound today closing at 4.96 1-2 as compared to the overnight quotation of $4.93 3-4. It opened at 4.93 1-2.

A big Dutch airliner arrived at Croydon Airdrome from Rotterdam today initiating the gold rush from the continent to London by air.

The Dutch plane brought 34 boxes of gold consigned to a London Bank. A fleet of other planes from Paris was awaited at airport.

Croydon was notified that eight machines had been chartered in Paris to carry gold cargoes here.

Three of these are Imperial Airways planes placed on the route especially for gold delivery. The remainder were chartered from other companies.

While the total weight of the gold was not stated, flying officials said, however, that they expected the consignments to create a record for gold carried by air in one day.

55 Millions Surplus In British Post Office

London, Feb. 6 (CP Cable)—The British postoffice today produced a record surplus of more than $55,000,000.

In the year just ended letters carried increased by 100,000,000 and telephones installed increased by 68,000 although the United Kingdom's total of 2,000,000 still leaves her far behind most other countries.

The Telegraph Service reficit incidentally was increased by about $3,000,000.

Woodbine Park Is Valued As City Land

OTTAWA, Feb. 6.—(CP)— The Supreme Court of Canada allowed today the appeal of the Corporation of the City of Toronto versus the Ontario Jockey Club. The decision holds that the city was right in making a business assessment of Woodbine Park, Toronto, and adds $5,000 to the valuation of the land, being the value of the buildings, if wrecked, and the land valued for sub-division purposes.

Mamoulian, Motion Picture Director, in New York but Without Greta Garbo

New York, Feb. 6—(AP)—Rouben Mamoulian, motion picture director, came to New York today. Greta Garbo did not come.

To interviewers, who questioned him concerning rumors he was engaged to the cinema star, Mamoulian was especially illuminating, answering questions with "No" and "I wouldn't know about that."

The conversation ran something like this:

"Do you know where Miss Garbo is?"

Mamoulian—"No."

"Is she coming to New York?"

"I wouldn't know about that."

"Where is Miss Garbo now?"

Mamoulin—"I wonder."

Miss Garbo and Mamoulian, her director, were reported as having left Hollywood at the same time and presumably bound for New York.

Mamoulian had a vague idea, that Miss Garbo was still in Hollywood.

"As for reports we are to be married," he said. "Let me say that I am unmarried and have made no plans to marry."

He is in New York to see the shows, he said, and to confer with Samuel Goldwyn, producer, about some pictures.

Motor Licence, Permit Dates Over to Mar. 31

Toronto, Feb. 6 (CP)—Automobile owners and operators have been granted until March 31 to buy their new licenses and permits, Hon. Leopold Macaulay, Ontario Minister of Highways, announced today.

"In view of the fact that the winter has been particularly severe and has put householders and others under unusual expense for extra fuel and clothing, I am convinced that to require motorists to procure their 1934 permits and licenses immediately might work some hardship," he said.

"In addition I feel that, with times growing brighter, it would be unwise to place any obstacle in the way of improvement or to handicap anyone who was striving to take advantage of the better conditions. The additional two months will give those who might find the immediate purchase of the necessary license or permit a burden, an opportunity to ease the strain by accumulating the necessary sum more slowly."

The Miniser asked, however, those who could purchase the plates and permit now to do so immediately.

1,100 Pounds of Grain is Given Starving Pheasants in Brant Co.

Brantford, Ont., Feb. 6 (CP) — The deep snow that has lain on the ground since late Saturday has made it difficult for pheasants in Brant County to get food and they are in danger of starving to death unless they are fed by farmers and city residents.

Officials stated this morning that the birds were having a "tough time" to get enough to eat and they would no doubt perish unless they were fed regularly, as the snow and cold weather will have its effect on their health.

Yesterday Game Warden Harry Clark distributed 1,100 pounds of grain in various places about the County and Township to keep the birds going.

NO SHELTER PROBES AHEAD

Children's Shelters Credit To Province, Says Hon. W. G. Martin

Parliament Buildings, Toronto, Feb. 6 (CP)—The Department of Public Welfare for Ontario does not at present contemplate another investigation of Children's Shelters in Ontario such as that recently concluded at Windsor, Hon. W. G. Martin, Minister of the Department stated today.

"We feel that the Department has acted creditably in investigating promptly the serious charges made at Windsor," he said, "and of course, if similar charges should be made anywhere we would investigate them again. However, the Children's Shelters in Ontario are a credit to the Province for the most part, and only in exceptional cases are investigations needed. The Province owes a tremendous debt to these voluntary organizations which have so creditably taken care of the children who are in need."

The cost of the investigation, it is understood, was around $4,000 and will be borne wholly by the government.

WARDS ARE FARMED OUT

Only Five Children In Hamilton Shelter Now

HAMILTON, Feb. 6.—(CP)—Officials of the Hamilton Children's Aid Society see in the report of Commissioner M. A. Sorsoliel, ample justification for the stand taken several months ago by the local Society in inaugurating the system of boarding children in private homes.

"The Shelter plays a very small part in the care of children by the society in Hamilton," B. W. Heise, managing director for the Society, said today. "At the end of January only five children were in the Shelter while 205 were in boarding homes. The boarding homes, which are carefully and cautiously chosen, offer the fullest opportunity for family life and kindly, motherly care by interested women."

OFFICIAL DIES IN CHAIR

IMMEDIATE CHARGES MADE AT WINDSOR

Sequel To Probe Into Shelter Conditions Promised

NO PROSECUTION

Sorsoleil Report Finds Some Complaints Are Well Founded

Toronto, Feb. 6 (CP)—Recommendations advanced by M. A. Sorsoleil, Deputy Minister of Welfare for Ontario, in his report to Hon. W. C. Martin, Welfare Minister, following investigation into affairs at the Windsor District Children's Shelter, would be carried out almost immediately, the Minister said today.

Among these recommendation was one for the dismissal of Magdalene and Catharine Strang, Shelter matrons, and M. R. Winters, superintendent. Complete reorganization of the institution was also favored.

"I find the report a very comprehensible one and am completely in favor of the recommendations made in it. The recommendations will be put into effect as soon as possible—almost immediately."

There was no possibility of criminal action being taken against any member of the Shelter staff, the minister declared.

The Sorsoleil report found that complaints of maltreatment of children, laid by former assistants at the Shelter, were well founded for the most part. Others of cruelty were not substantiated by the evidence.

SAYS HENRY NOT SERIOUS

Mitchell Hepburn Views Premier's Beer Talk With Doubt

Ottawa, Feb. 6.—(CP)—Premier George S. Henry is not serious about introducing legislation to change the Liquor Control Act of Ontario, to permit the sale of beer and wine in restaurants, in the opinion of Mitchell Hepburn, Provincial Liberal leader.

"Mr. Henry is only trying to prod the Liberal Party," said Mr. Hepburn in an interview today. "We intend to let him stew in his own juice for a while. We have decided what our policy will be. When, and if, he introduces his proposed legislation, we will deal with it.

The Ontario Liberal leader said that "Mr. Henry never seems to be able to make up his mind definitely on anything.

"Mr. Henry said emphatically that there would be no royal commission to investigate Hydro," declared Mr. Hepburn, "but there was. He said that there would be no East Kent by-election, but there was. Then he said there would be a Conservative candidate and there wasn't. He declared repeatedly that he would not permit the sale of beer and wine by private individuals, and now he makes a statement that he will. What are you going to do with a man like that?"

"NEW DEAL" FOR CHILDREN HINTED AT

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 6.—(CP)—Commenting on the report of Commissioner M. A. Sorsoliel on the Children's Aid Society investigation Mayor David A. Croll who first made public allegations regarding management of the institution today said:

"It is now our plain duty to give the children who are wards of the community a new deal, and it is hoped that children throughout the Province of Ontario, and the Dominion of Canada will receive benefits from this inquiry."

Most Records Go By Boards In Latest Dip

Ears tingle . . . Fingers cold . . ? They had reason to be. This city and district chalked up on Tuesday morning the coldest official temperatures on local record, and probably within the memory of the oldest inhabitants.

It was just 31 below zero early Tuesday morning at the coldest spot in the city, the pump house where a recording thermometer descended almost out of sight. And on another government tested thermometer at the local Dominion Entomological Laboratory n East Dundas Street a mark of 26½ below zero was also recorded during the early morning. It was the first day of winter that the two tested thermometers did not come within a fraction of a degree of each other for the coldest mark.

Then, in case you have been able to get warm since morning, here are a few more numbing temperatures collected from throughout the district by the local office of the Canadian National Railways.

Cannifton led the immediate district with a low mark of 36 below.

Starters do Not Start

"Whirr-r-r-r!" whirred one hundred motor car starters, uselessly Tuesday morning in a vain attempt to turn cold motors over.

"Grr-r-r-r-!" gurred one hundred drivers who trod with a heavy foot on starter buttons in a perspiring effort to start them.

"Brr-r-r-r-!" brrrred bundled and mittened citizens who trod to work over frosty, creaky pavements, crept cautiously upon shivering downtown thermometers, eyed them skeptically, and then stamped away, muttering as they went.

Ears stung and fingers tingled: noses nipped and contracted as the zero air, drawn in with each breath burned like fire. Clouds of white steamy smoke floated from the exhausts of cars that could be persuaded to start . . . and rumbling garage service trucks dragged the other unwilling cars through the streets. A coating of white, heavy frost lay on the masonry of buildings, and on the exposed iron work, for the first time this winter a delicate tracery of frosty patterns was visible. Dead sparrows could be seen lying on the streets, and at both ends of both bridges, wide gaps could be seen where the heavy concrete had contracted. On the ice of the Moira River above the upper bride, beside a narrow channel of water which refused to freeze over, waddled a tame duck, apparently healthy and enjoying life in the 20 below zero weather.

No Damage

Citizens are getting used to temperatures generally associated with polar bears and Alaska. Not a frost bite case was admitted to the Belleville General Hospital, according to the statements of attendants there Tuesday morning, and medical men of the city failed to report anything except treatments for frost burns.

Bell Telephone Company officials declared that everything was normal and no trouble could be traced to excessive temperatures.

"Okay in our department" stated Mr. O. H. Scott, manager of the local Hydro system.

Moving slowly down from the Arctic rim, a new cold wave rolled across Ontario and Quebec today sending the mercury below records of many years' standing in some points.

Northern Quebec continued to feel the brunt of the bitter frigid wave and in Doucet and San Maur temperatures of 50 below zero, the coldest in the Dominion, were recorded. The Arctic tide surged out over the entire northern stretch from Quebec to Eastern Manitoba and touched several southern points in Ontario. It was moving towards the Atlantic seaboard and was expected to strike the Maritimes tomorrow.

At its most westerly point, Winnipeg, the wave left temperatures of 18 and 20 below. These temperatures prevailed as far as White River where they took a sudden drop to 46 below. Haileybury reported 28 below, Port Stanley 24 below, Ottawa 26 below, and Toronto 2 below.

Winter Record

In Brantford in Western Ontario the mercury dipped to 10 below and in Galt to 18 below setting a new "low" for the current winter.

Throughout Saskatchewan and Alberta temperatures ranged well above the zero mark and west of the Rockies the Pacific cities were basking in spring weather.

Officials at the Meteorological Service Bureau in Toronto promised no relief from the cold snap today or tomorrow. The wind was from the north, it was said, and it was improbable there would be any let-up within the next two days. Southwest Ontario would be the first section to feel any relief, it was stated.

May String Telephone Wire to Zwick's Island Says Mayor Tice

Direct communication between the city hall and relief workers on Zwick's Island by telephone was promised today by Mayor George O. Tice, on condition that work will be continued there following a further grant for the city now awaited from the government.

"Right now," stated Mayor Tice, "we don't know just how long we intend to keep the men there, and we don't want to go to any more expense than necessary. Just as soon as we get the expected grant, however, our first move will be to install a phone there."

Owing to the necessity for quick action following possible accidents in the near future a telephone is necessary, it was pointed out.

At the sergeants' mess in the Armouries on Monday night a good number of the sergeants met and made plans to put on an entertainment for the sergeants, their wives and friends. Lt.-Col. E. A. Geen was welcomed and thanked by the members of the mess for the privilege of the recreation room during the last euchre party.

SNOW GENERAL OVER PROVINCE

Belleville wasn't the only district where snow fell in back-breaking quantities. A list of other cities as prepared by the Ontario Motor League indicates that the downfall was general over the week end, with the following depths being recorded in inches—Toronto 4; London 3 1-2; Hamilton 5; Southampton 5; Barrie 4; Parry Sound 1; Windsor— no snow; Kingston—1; Ottawa 1-2; Owen Sound 3 1-2; Buffalo —4; Oswego 2; Albany 2 1-2.

ASKED NOT TO SLAM DOORS

"Don't slam the door too hard, when you leave," downtown store owners are pleading as customers pick up their parcels from counters and prepare to leave.

When cold weather actually arrives and reaches out frosty fingers toward doors and windows, the brittle glass may crack with the slightest jar.

During the past week or so with zero temperatures gripping the city considerable breakage of glass has occurred throughout the city.

BELLEVILLE BAND PLAYS AT TWEED

Tweed.—Tweed Arena management has made no error in securing the services of several members of Belleville Band under the direction of Assistant Band Master W. Asselstine to supply music for skating at the rink on Saturday night. A large crowd of skaters, attracted by the prospect of skating to music turned out and expressed themselves as delighted with the arrangement. It is expected that the band will again be secured at intervals during the balance of the season.

Mr. Jas. Garret of Peterboro and Mrs. (Rev.) Sexsmith of Sidney are visiting their mother, Mrs. W. W. Garrett, for a few days.

Messrs. C. E. Way and E. Jones made a trip to Toronto early in the week.

C. G. I. T.

Belleville Groups Mark C. G. I. T. Week In Special Way

To give the Canadian Girls In Training of Ontario an opportunity to renew their loyalty to their movement by making it known to people and interpreting it to churches and communities where it is not yet established, C.G.I.T. week is being observed from February 4 to 11. Belleville groups are marking the occasion with special activities.

This co-operative church movement called the C.G.I.T. is for 'teen age girls, having its basis for membership in the Sunday School class which meets also in the mid-week. A Dominion-wide movement, it was begun in 1916 and now has seven provincial and three national secretaries. During 1932-33, 13,896 girls have been organized into 1,129 groups.

In Belleville, the C.G.I.T. is well established in many of the local churches. This week the groups are making special efforts to co-operate with the aims of C.G.I.T. week. At Tabernacle Church on Sunday, special services were held, with the girls taking part, and this evening a C.G.I.T. program will be held in the church parlors.

Holloway Street United Church group will have a special speaker at their program Friday night.

John Street group is presenting a C.G.I.T. festival this evening and will conclude the week with special church services.

At Victoria Avenue Baptist Church the junior and senior groups have projects underway, the seniors entertaining at an afternoon tea.

St. Andrew's group will also have a special program while Bridge Street groups are planning an entertainment.

OBITUARY

DARVAN SAMUEL GUNTER

Trenton, Feb. 6 (Special)—Samuel Gunter, who died in Belleville Hospital on Monday, was born in Wooler, 39 years ago, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Gunter. He resided in Trenton for some years, later moving to Fort Erie where he was employed on the railroad. About a year ago his position was abolished and he returned to Trenton.

His passing has cast a pall of gloom over the town where the late Samuel Gunter was so well known.

Besides a sorrowing widow, four children survive, George, Helen, Alvina and Mary Lou.

Two sisters, Mrs. Walter Fox and Mrs. C. Gaina of Trenton, are left to mourn his passing.

The late Samuel Gunter was a member of the Loyal Orange Lodge and faithful adherent of Grace United Church from where the funeral will be held on Thursday.

30 OUT OF 75 SENT TO ROAD CAMP REMAIN

Weather Extremely Cold and Monotony of Camp Boring

Out of a total of 75 men equipped and sent to the road camps of the north near Denbigh this winter from Belleville, a force of about 30 remain, according to the statement of one single youth of the city, who returned from the camp this week. Other workers had left there singly and in small groups during the past few weeks since the start of the actual cold weather.

Temperatures during the past month or so have been ranging between 40 and 50 below zero, but little time off is called for even the coldest day, according to his statement. Food is good, however, and work is not hard. The boring monotony of the camp has been the chief difficulty.

The scarlet fever scare in some of the camps has died out, and the men are all in good health, it was reported.

JUDGMENT IN CHICK CASE

Thos. Cranston, Poultryman, Wins Suit In Division Court

Judgment in favour of the plaintiff was handed down in the Division Court yesterday by His Honor Judge Deroche after the case had been enlarged for judgment last Friday.

The case arose out of the sale in 1932 of some 5,000 chicks by Thomas Cranston, plaintiff, to Messrs Collins, Marks and Brobrowski, poultrymen of Grafton, defendants. The latter refused to pay for the chicks contending that the birds had contracted a serious poultry disease that caused death of some of them within six months of delivery.

Expert testimony was submitted to the court to show that such a disease would not be contagious at the time of delivery. The chicks, it was said, were in perfect health at the time of purchase but the defendants had transported them from Stirling, the place of purchase to Grafton under unfit weather conditions, it was disclosed during the trial, according to the plaintiff's case.

His Honor ruled that the full purchase price of the poultry was to be paid while the costs in the matter were also taxed to the defendants. B. C. Donnan, K.C., appeared for the plaintiffs. The amount sued for was in the neighborhood of $250.

CHURCH MEETINGS

DUNDAS ST. MISSION

The following report of the United Church Dundas Street Mission, was presented to the annual Trustee Board, last Wednesday evening, by the pastor, Rev. J. S. McMullen as follows,—The three churches composing this Mission—Centre St., Dundas St., and Rossmore, are in a good state of repair, free of debt,—are valued at $11,000 and insured at $8,800. Regular preaching service is conducted in each church on the Sabbath Day. The three Sunday Schools of the Mission have a membership of 200 and raised $150 for school purposes. Two Ladies' Aid Societies, a Mother's Meeting, and a Girls' Sewing Society have been conducted during the year with a membership of 159 and raising $117. The pastor had 24 baptisms, 11 marriages, 14 burials, 400 visitations, and two weeks' special evangelistic meetings. The membership slightly increased during the year stands at 130. Because of the keen economic depression half of the 125 families comprising this Mission, are now on relief and many others are extremely reduced, so that most of our poor mission people are unable to assist in financing this work, as is evidence in the fact that of the $415 appropriated by these mission churches toward ministerial support only $291 could be raised. The total amount raised for all purposes in 1933 was $762 compared with $688 in 1932. Our mission workers, however, have been much inspired by gifts of home mission boxes containing many comforts sent us by the W.M.S. and other friends of missions of the city and district. The great-hearted students of Albert College under the fine inspiration of Dr. and Mrs. Bishop, greatly cheered and comforted our Sunday School workers and anxious scholars in a Christmas gift of nearly $30 in cash and fancy bags of candy at Christmas time. Our workers were deeply affected when word reached us that a dear old friend of Dundas St. Home Mission, Mrs. Mary Wensley, when about to cross the bar, thought of us; loved our work and directed her executors to send us $50 as her dying token of affection.

The climax of feeling and gratitude however was reached when Rev. Mr. McMullen as he had done on a previous Sunday before his congregation, stood up before his Board and said: "I have a letter I want to read to you—it came from somewhere—from someone— I don't know the name of the sender, but I know his heart is right with God and man and his manner of giving has captured me."

The letter reads as follows:—

"Dear Mr. McMullen,—Enclosed please find twenty-five dollars. Will you please use this where it is most needed in your work. We feel at this Christmas time, that we have so much to be thankful for, that we wish to give this little Christmas gift, in the name of Him whose birth we are celebrating, and we felt that you would know exactly where it would do most good.

"Very sincerely yours,

"One who wishes to help a little."

Because of lack of funds all missionary grants and contributions of other churches have been withdrawn except Bridge Street Church, which continues from year to year to contribute $260. The Holloway St. Church contributed a donation of $12.25 during 1933.

2 RECORDS IN FEBRUARY

Cold Record, Sun Record Set Five Days Out of Six Sub-Zero

February may set two records for this city and district.

While Jack Frost has shown a desire to set an all time record for low temperatures since the beginning of the month, Old Sol growing stronger and brighter every day, is also apparently out to set a record for amount of sunshine.

So far this month the amount of sunshine received has been nearly one-third of that received all during the month of January.

A total of 21 hours clear sunshine has been marked on the sun guage at the local Dominion Entomological Laboratory. For the whole month of January a total of only sixty-four and one-third hours were registered.

This February only one day has been recorded when the mercury did not descend below zero. This was on Sunday when the lowest mark was given at 6 above. The following below zero registrations have been taken since the first of February: Feb. 1st—2 below; Feb. 2nd—9 below; Feb. 3rd—15 below; Feb 5th—9 below; Feb. 6th—31 below; Feb. 7th—?.

APPEAL COURT

Roy F. McLean v. Globe Printing Co.; H. Willis, administrator of the estate of J. C. Willis v R.F. McLean and Globe Printing Co.—Appeal by defendant Globe Printing Company from a judgment of Armour, J., Sept. 22, 1933, in favor of R. F. McLean for $11,141.83 damages and costs, and in the second action in favor of the plaintiff for $5000 damages and costs. McLean was driving an automobile when it collided with the defendant company's truck, and he was severely injured. Willis was assisting the driver of the truck and received injuries from which he died. The jury found McLean 24 per cent. negligent and the driver of the Globe truck 75 per cent. Appeal was had on the ground that the answers of jury did not in fact amount to a finding of negligence against the appellant: that there was lack of corroboration; that the acts of negligence found by the jury were not the causa causans of the accident; that the trial judge should have taken the case from the jury when it was brought out that there was insurance, and that answers of the jury to the question put to them were vague. Other grounds of appeal were that the trial judge erred in his charge, and that the damages were excessive. J. C. McRuer, K.C., and F. A. Brewin for the appellant; W. Lawr, K.C.; and L. V. Fitzpatrick, K.C., for the respondent. G. W. Gordon, K.C., for Willis. Judgment: McLean appeal dismissed. In Willis appeal, new trial directed on assessment of damages only. Cost of re-assessment of damages in discretion of trial judge.

World Citizen is Commissioner Learns Chinese in Five Years

Bruno Friedrich a Real Cosmopolitan in Gospel's Interest

S. A. LEADER

Equip Commissioner Frederich of the Salvation Army with a pair of tortoise shell spectacles, place him behind a glass-topped mahogany desk in some large office and you have the perfect picture of a high powered executive of a million dollar corporation.

Remove the glasses from Commissioner Bruno Freidrich and you have the picture of an educator, student, lecturer. Tell tale wrinkles at the corners of a pair of bright alert eyes, and a ready smile only heighten the illusion. Both guesses would have been right.

Commissioner Bruno Friedrich of the Salvation Army Corps, now resident in Toronto, but in Belleville this week until Wednesday to assist in the observance of the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the local corps of the Salvation Army in Belleville, is both the keen executive and businessman, and the kindly, tolerant counsellor and teacher. For the past forty-nine years he has acted in both capacities. At the age of 72 he still finds humor and amusement—and hard work in a life that has been marked by an activity that is given few men to carry out. His smile is disarming and infectious; his wit ready and keen and kindly. His actions are suggestive of youth. Interviewing Commissioner Friedrich, now the city's guest, is an easy task. It has been done so often before, he admits.

Welcomes Reporter

In the headquarters of the Salvation Army Corps of this city, at the local Citadel Commissioner Friedrich extended a welcome hand to the interviewer who sought him out. There has always been a bond between himself and the press. For years, he himself has acted in editorial capacity, and in the capacity of reporter, jotting down the interesting and strange incidents he has been privileged to observe in the far corners of the earth.

For Commissioner Friedrich has travelled. India, China, Australia, New Zealand, Europe, are as familiar to him as the languages of the country he has so quickly and rapidly learned during the course of his globe trotting, all in the course of official business of the Salvation Army, whose far fling influence has penetrated over to the most remote ports of the world.

Commissioner Friedrich was born in Saxony, Germany, in the little town of Chemitz, near the borders of Czecho-Slovakia, 72 years ago. As a youth he had the same urge to travel that even now at this advanced age, has impelled him on.

Leaves Little Town

"So I made up my mind to leave the little town," stated the Commissioner. "I had my mind set on South America. I had read everything I could get hold of on the country, and it appealed to me. It looked like a new land, full of promise."

It was in Antwerp, Belgium, that the youth's mind was changed for him. A short visit to the capital was necessary, and while there he happened to see an overseas exhibit of some Canadian products. That settled him. Canada, bright and sparkling, was the country of his choice. He exchanged the boat tickets he had bought for South America, and engaged passage to Canada.

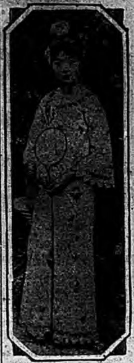
"I landed at New York in 1885, and from there went to western Canada by rail. It was marvellous. Better than I had anticipated."

The youth who was later to become Commissioner settled in the then wild district of Winnipeg. Here he made his first contact with the Salvation Army of the west. Impressed with the good that was being accomplished by the Corps among the Indians, another recruit was added when he signified his desire to take up that life's work. From then on his story reads like the romantic wanderings of a modern Ulysses, whose only aim and ambition in life was the completion of a huge task set before him that of missionary to the world.

His first actual job, he recalls, was the piloting of parties to the white wastes of the Klondike when gold fever gripped the country following the first few strikes in Alaska, and turned men into reckless beings among whom frost and sickness took their toll of the silent trails of the northland. With fellow officers, Commissioner Friedrich managed to maintain morale among the men and camps, and to think sometimes of other things than the yellow metal for which men scrambled and fought.

The gold rush was over. Mining camps were deserted. Men, some rich, others poorer, except for experience, deserted the country. Many of them returned back across the U.S. border from whence they came. Commissioner Friedrich, wearing the distinguishing blue uniform, followed. There was work to do among discouraged and broken men. Throughout Idaho, Montanna, eastern Washingtin and other neighboring States he spread the gospel of cheer and hope. He became one of the west's best known workers.

SOON TO BE EMPRESS



This flower-like little Manchu lady is Kuo Hsia-Si, consort of Henry Pu-Yi, who is ti be enthroned as emperor of Manchoukuo at Chankchun March first. Just as her husband has taken the English name, Henry, she is known as Elizabeth Pu-Yi.

Claimed by Head Office

Head office took note of the adaptability of their new recruit. They sent for him, gave him orders to proceed back to Germany. Here a new experience awaited him. With his native adaptability for acquiring new languages, and translating old ones, he was set in charge of the editorial room of the Salvation Army's printing concern, and managed this for a considerable time. Then after setting up a smoothly running organization, he again took the trail, this time to Jamaica. From Jamaica his footsteps led to India. Australia called. Throughout this new country the travelling missionary travelled, even into the remote sections where bushmen lay in wait for the unwary. But the Australian, even the aborigines, took kindly to the new, soft-spoken emissary of good will.

"We (the Army) had a wonderful influence in this country," recalled the Commissioner, looking back down the years. New and unsettled and rough, the country was in a highly receptive mood for such work as the Salvation Army is noted for.

China, where millions die yearly by plagues and sickness and inter-tribal wars, was just the next step in his world wanderings. For five long years, in the north of China, a slim chap worked from a new station that had been set up.

Confidence of Natives

"Learning the language was perhaps one of the easier tasks. The biggest one was to gain the confidence of the natives who nearly always resented the appearance of the foreigners. There were many names, not all polite ones, that the Chinese bestowed on the missionaries," he recalls. Gradually, however, faith and confidence was instilled. Missionary work had been accomplished. In a thousand ways the Army showed just how much they were needed, just the same as workers in leper colonies elsewhere in the world had shown, and from then on progress in this benighted country was slow but sure. This was in the comparatively unsettled and unlearned north, and not in the district of Canton where Chinese had already become civilized, and in many cases, Christianized.

Back to Germany went the Commissioner, after his many years abroad, landing there in 1921. His country was in chaos. Suffering and unemployment was rampant and noticeable to a great degree. The Army had a bit of tough sledding to keep its head above water, just the same as business houses, banks and other institutions. Depression following the war had brought untold suffering and misery. Commissioner Friedrich stayed on in spite of conditions. Slowly the country emerged to comparative normalcy, along about the year 1923. His work during this time was spread out through Germany, Austria and along the Czecho-Slovakian border. Later he was put in full charge of this territory, with a large number of assistants under him.

Surprise in Germany

"Hitler's election as Chancellor of Germany was a surprise to Germany as a whole," commented the Commissioner. "Many who voted for him didn't believe he had a chance. But somehow in the scramble at the elections, he managed to get in with an overwhelming majority. The many political parties, disorganized and beating in circles during the election, made this possible. There was no unity except in the Fascist party."

"Will Germany work out her own salvation? "Well, that's hard to say. Before her she has many years—what will happen then is hard to say. One can say little of the country anyhow."

Conversation veered around to India, land of mystery.

"The British?" he queried. "The British are the greatest and best influence it would be possible to have in that country. Just imagine, a mere handful of men in isolated barracks keep perfect order among its teeming millions!"

"The white man, almost any white man, is respected and liked by the Indians. Constantly he is on call to settle disputes and act as arbiter in the many family and caste questions that come up. I, myself, have often been called upon in England to settle some dispute among them. Always the white man's word is accepted as law. The matter is settled."

Students Rebellious

"It isn't the mass of the people in India who stir up things. It's the students, he continued. College education has inspired many of them to keep things stirred up Often politics interfere with sane government of that country by the British. Outbreaks, strikes and disorders can generally always be traced to some such influence. It would be a sorry day for the country if British government did cease, in my opinion."

Commissioner Friedrich speaks seven languages that he knows of. He speaks these fluently. Possibly there are as many more that he could make himself understood with, or could read. But, Chinese, English, German, Spanish, Hindustan, Hungarian, Czecho-Slovakian are as familiar as his native tongue almost. Flemish, Dutch and several other languages, are readily understood.

"And 'American—rather United States.... could that be added as another language?" prompted the reporter.

"Oh, yes. I almost forgot that particular language. Yes. I could almost make myself understood in New York City, I believe, what with the training I have had in other fields," returned the Commissioner with a flashing smile and a twinkle. "Although," he amended, "some of that slang might be a stumbling block for a while."

New World's to Conquer

Commissioner Friedrich mourns the loss of his Canadian wife who died two years ago in Berlin, Germany, where she is buried. She was Miss Meta Lemon of Stratford, Ontario. One daughter and four sons graced the happy union. Two of the sons are residing in Canada, one is living in Australia and one lives at present in the United States. Two of them are carrying on the work and traditions of the Army his father has so well represented.

For Commissioner Friedrich, the hardest work is over. He sighs, of ocurse, for new worlds to conquer, but at 72, even if the heart is willing and the step is still as brisk as youth itself, there is work in plenty to do in Canada. On Thursday, for example, he will leave Belleville for New Brunswick, where other work awaits.

Meanwhile, until Wednesday, the city will be honored by a man whose life and actions have been an inspiration to all who meet or hear him.

ROTARY OLD BOYS GATHER

Entertained By Present Members At Meeting Monday

Rotarian Old Boys foregathered with Rotarian New Boys at the regular meeting Monday in the Hotel Quinte. It was ex-members day and a large number of former members took advantage of the invitation to be present at the Rotarian festive board and relive pleasant Rotarian events of other days.

Rotary was started in Belleville in February, 1920, and the charter from International Rotary is dated April 1, 1920, and signed by the then International President, A. S. Adams, and Chesley R. Perry, Secretary. Rotary began in Belleville with twenty-five members and E. Gus Porter, M.P., the first President. Now Belleville Rotary has sixty-five members. Charter members present at Monday's meeting were W. B. Deacon who was chairman of the first Rotary meeting held in Belleville in 1920; Fay Wills, Percy Allen, Oswald Scott, Harry Ackerman, Sandy Burrows, Dr. Robert Tennent, Fred Smith, Jamieson Bone, J. V. Jenkins.

The meeting was in charge of the Good Fellowship Committee, Dr. John Guthridge, chairman, and the program was all fun and music, the chair being occupied by Past President Charlie Dolan, who injected a lot of rapid-fire fun into the proceedings, creating an atmosphere of song and laughter which continued to the end.

Past President W. B. Deacon gave the Good Fellowship and Welcome Home speech and did himself proud with a witty resume of Rotary past and present, its influence upon individuals and community life in Belleville, and the significance of the movement from an international standpoint. Ex-Members present were welcomed and assured that they could come back for good anytime.

Musical interludes were occasioned by Harold Barrett, Al. Stillman, J. Arnold Thomson, Gene Ilsey, Sandy Burrows, Leo Riggs.

George Ostrom on behalf of Rotary Old Boys expressed pleasure at being present and appreciation of the entertaining program.

ZWICK'S ISLAND IS GOOD ENOUGH NAME

Island Now Named After Old Settler in This District

"Why all this fuss and agitation about naming Zwick's Island?" commented Mr. E. H. Tickell today, when the subject had been introduced by a report, "Isn't Zwick's just as good a name for the island as anything else you could think of?"

"Old Mr. Zwick was one of the original settlers of the front section around here. Naturally the island was named after him. So why not keep on just calling it Zwick's Island?"

"A lot of other names have been suggested. Some of them are quite a mouthful for the average man to handle. Still others suggested would carry the name of previous legislators of the city or district. I believe old Mr. Zwick in opening up this section has done as much to deserve the honor of having the park named after him as anyone else."

REV. H. REID IS SPEAKER

Y's Men Take Trip to England by Means of Lantern Slides

"A Trip Through the British Isles" was the subject, which was thoroughly enjoyed by the members of the local Y's Mens' Club during an illustrated lecture given at their regular meeting by Rev. Harold Reid last evening.

The majority of the scenes shown on the screen were actual photographs taken by Rev. Reid during his recent tour of England, Scotland and Ireland, all of which proved interesting and educational. Rev. Reid fully explained the beauties to be seen in Great Britain during a private tour, when one can travel about and enjoy the scenery at leisure.

The lecture opened with the ocean voyage across the Atlantic, stopping first at Liverpool. Old Roman walls, ancient cathedrals and landmarks, that dated back to the earliest history of England were shown to the club members by the speaker, each having a legend, that made the picture much more interesting. Colored slides of Edinburgh, Glasgow, Belfast, Dublin, London, with St. Paul's and Westminster Abbey, were all shown and briefly lectured upon.

The entire talk was thoroughly enjoyed by all as it carried an air of interest in the manner in which Rev. Reid related several small incidents of a personal nature. The speaker was thanked by President Earl Boyd for his educational and interesting lecture.

J. E. Shortt secretary of the local Y.M.C.A., reminded the members of the various nation-wide radio broadcasts, that are being broadcast weekly to stimulate the interest of the "Y" internationally. Y'sman J. O. Herity invited all members to attend the courses and lectures in business training to be presented at the Y.M.C.A. through the sponsorship of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce. The first of these lectures entitled "Modern Merchandising" will be held this evening with Dr. W. A. Mackintosh of Queen's University as the special speaker.

SUGGEST CURLING RINK BE MOVED

Would Help Overcome Inadequate Accommodation at Fair Grounds

Stating that the building, now owned by the city, was serving no useful purpose, and that it could be used to greater advantage as added accommodation at the local Agricultural Grounds which has been quite inadequate to care for the increasing exhibits shown there annually, a suggestion is made by a well known alderman of the city council, that the old Curling Rink building on George Street be taken apart and transferred to that location.

"The city owns the building, and as long as it stands there it will never be used for anything. I believe it even detracts from the appearance of the street", he added.

"My suggestion is that the building be taken apart and set up again at the Fair Grounds, where it would be of some use. Builders tell me this is possible, and wouldn't cost much. It could be done under relief work, I believe, and would be one job, which would really show a return."

THE OLD WEST

The late Senator Forke, whose death at seventy-four last week removed an outstanding man in Western Canada and a former leader of the Progressives was a colorful figure who delighted in the old west as he knew it, the day of the roaming buffalo and of the bleaching bones of animals and the loneliness of western winters which at times became oppressive.

Robert Forke was one of those men of the pioneer type who really do not like to be away from their "home." His temper was Progressive but probably he did not care so much for leadership as others would have cared.

The west of romance clung about this man whose very charitableness could be read in his countenance.

He was a fine and an interesting type in public life.

NEW GERMANIC RELIGION

How the Germans are going to bring back belief in the old Nordic mythology, especially as the Germans used to he philosophic where anything of faith was concerned is a puzzle to those to whom Thor does not mean a thing, nor do Balder, Odin, Freia, and Loki and perhaps Brunhilde and Siegfried and other heroes of the Song of the Nibelungs and other German myths.

If the Germans abandon Christianity their new religion of Nordism will not be believed. They may say their believe in the Norse gods but they cannot. There was once a Roman emperor who held out against Christianity, Julian, and who fell under the sway of Christ and at last cried "Thou has conquered, O Galilean!" The German having once tasted Christianity can never entirely give it up unless he becomes pagan, and not pagan as far as the reverence to gods of mythology which no sane German thinks are existing or as possible of being made to "live." It would be the same as if the modern Greeks went back to the story of Olympus with its gods. Indeed there would be more reason for the Greeks because there is a whole literature founded on the gods of Olympus whereas the Teutonic mythology was never so human as the gods of Olympus. The Greeks had a real living mythology but they can not go back to it. Neither can the German. They may deck everything with Wotans and Balders and all the rest of them and the sight of these may inspire a Hitlerite but they cannot command faith.

The old German deities have been dead as far as belief in them exists for a thousand years or more and they are likely to remain in legend and stay there for all time.

It would be strange if the Germans adopted the Teutonic mythology which Wagner worked into grand opera—Wagner the man who was driven from Germany to France to remain an exile for eleven years. Such a revival would be more foolish than the French worship of the goddess (?) reason at the time of the Revolution.

Perhaps some Norwegian will come along and lay claim to some of the Germanic gods.

The new religion which is supposed to be established will have no place for repentance and salvation, as beneath the notice of the German people. The superman idea of Nietzsche may be taken up by Hitler. Surely Nazism is slow in getting a start as the superman idea is nothing new.

SUPERSTITION

Superstition is a tough plant. When, for example, we open such a book as Sir Walter Scott's "Witchcraft and Demonology" and reflect that during the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries thousands of persons accused of sorcery were barbarously put to death we are, perhaps, inclined to assume that the modern mind stands upon an altogether different level and is freed from such puerile speculations as those which hag-rode the imagination in generations past. But this assumption is premature. Experience contradicts the fond conceit. What about the hubbub that quite recently has been raised concerning the so-called "curse of Tut-Ankh-Amen"? It so happens that since Mr. Howard Carter, in 1922, opened up the crypt of this ancient Egyptian youthful monarch and astonished the world by the astoundingly beautiful treasures so unearthed, seven persons connected with this adventure have passed into the great beyond. There is no reason to suppose that their passing was due to anything beyond natural causes. Yet the weird rumor has spread like wildfire that somehow their fate has been untimely and that some occult influence reaching forward from three thousand years ago has been at work and must be reckoned with in order to account for the manifest result. So the story that Tut-Ankh-Amen pronounced a curse upon whosoever should invade his last sanctuary and disturb his bones still persist; and many people are ready to believe it, or, at least, to believe that there must be some sort of mysterious spell connected with the affairs which portends ill-fortune and works in a vengeful way. If all the instances of the modern flair for dabbling in things occult could be gathered together, what an astounding story it would make! Superstition is not dead. Does any clairvoyant find much difficulty today in organizing a "charmed circle"? And what marvels still cling to a little wet blotch of tea leaves! Human nature is immeasurably credulous—all books and lectures of scientific complexion thrown into the bargain. —Montreal Gazette.

THE MISSION OF THE GREAT

What is the mission of the great,
The few the gods have loved,
Who through this world in lonely state
With tranquil hearts have moved?

Of Milton, who in blindness saw
Revealed the paths of man,
Who wrote with beauty and with awe
Of life since time began?

Wise Plato and brave Socrates,
Years cannot quench their flame;
What was the task of such as these
Who had no thirst for fame?

No care had they for fitful praise
Earth's princess could bestow;
What was the purpose of their days,
Save that all men might grow?

That even the lowliest could take heart
To struggle staunchly on,
They lived and played their noble part
That glows through ages gone!

BANK BANDITS in the United States are becoming bolder and broadening out their sphere of operations. Of course, the Great Open Spaces west of the Mississippi are still the Happy Hunting Grounds of the Two-Gun hold-up man, but the game is now being organized in the East with three bank hold-ups in New York State, New Jersey, and Massachusetts, on Friday of last week. A bank in Needham, Massachusetts, was held up, robbed of $14,500, one policeman killed, while another policeman, a fireman and a bank attendant were wounded. Penngrove, New Jersey, made the Front Page with a bank robbery of $130,000. Syracuse, N.Y., also had a sensational bank hold-up with loot of $10,000. Coleman, Texas, in keeping with western tradition, took some of the limelight from the East with a $20,000 bank robbery, while six employees of the bank were kidnapped, but later released. Clyde Barrow, a notorious Texas outlaw, and his woman pal, Bonnie Parker, were seen near Coleman shortly before the robbery. In each instance the robbers made a clean and quick getaway.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S BIRTHDAY PARTY was certainly a decided success, being held in six thousand different places in those United States, and producing a nice little sum of two or more million dollars for the President's pet philanthropy, the Warm Springs, Georgia, Sanitarium for infantile paralysis patients. There was a lot of noise about the birthday but it wasn't all noise, and when the tumult and the shouting died there was two or three million dollars to talk turkey and provide a lot of happiness for victims of infantile paralysis, which is not confined to children but hits grown folks as well.

SUGGESTIONS TO CONSIDER WHEN FED UP

Steady Grind Even If Interesting Wears On Nerves

(By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.)
(Famous Authority on Health and Psychology)

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

When your home begins to get on your nerves, when you friends start to bore you, when your work becomes insufferably irksome, then it is time to consider a change.

Any home, no matter how beautiful or comfortable it may be, is bound to stale if you are confined in it too long. Your friends may be most exceptional and may present a wide variety of characters, but if you see them too often the pleasure of their companionship wanes.

The same of course, may be said of one's work. In fact, the habitual steady grind of everyday labor, no matter how stimulating and exciting, wears on one's nerves more than anything else.

Have you ever observed how all these factors in your life quickly become revitalized when you are away from them? Even when you are fed up to the point where you think you never want to return to them again, have you noticed what a striking change of attitude takes place afer a few days of vacation?

"Distance lends enchantment," to be sure. All our home ties, our jobs and associations, appear brighter and happier when we view them a hundred miles away.

Your hall bedroom doesn't feel as cramped as it did. In your mind's eye the wall paper looks more cheerful. Your favorite rocker, in retrospect, seems about the most relaxing chair you ever had. The peculiarities and eccentricities of your husband or wife, or of your brothers and sisters, or of your children perhaps, now take on an amusing aspect as the days pass.

You begin to think that, after all, you might be holding down a worse job at that. Sometimes you begin to wonder whether it is not you, yourself, that was at fault rather than the environment from which you were but recently so eager to escape. In fact, the chances are that when your vacation is at an end and you must return home, whether or no, you actually will be glad. And that is why a few days' holiday each month is really better than a whole month of idleness crowded all together.

If, however, you are run down physically and mentally to such a degree that actual exhaustion or impairment of health threatens, then nothing is left but a long vacation, and the longer the better.

Such states of near-collapse may be prevented, nevertheless, if short rest periods are indulged in. Week-ending every now and then, away from everything that is routine, can be enjoyed even by the factory worker who does not rate a regular yearly holiday. One need not go far. It need not be an expensive trip.

Sometimes spending a night in a hotel in the very town you live in will go a long way toward overcoming mind inertia, sluggishness, and that characteristic blue and hopeless feeling.

Boredom accounts for more unhappiness, quarreling, inefficiency and loss of ambition and love than one realizes. Prevent boredom from developing if you can. It is not difficult if you study your nature a little. You will soon learn to recognize the very earliest signs of its aproach.

Should you, by chance, be unable to afford even a small trip, then get a few tourist pamphlets and play the game of "make believe." This method is not, of course, as efficacious as a real trip, but it stimulates the imagination nevertheless and gives you new ideas.

Just listen to that, ma said. Cant you ever run an errand just for the sheer pleasure of being useful? she said, and pop said, Your mother is rite, the modern tendency of the werld is to werk for the generel good of the State rather than the selfish intrists of the individual, and you would be taking a grate step fallward in the spirrit of your times by getting yourself into that way of thinking. Up to the present stage a human development the ants and the bees, although unable to reed or write but perhaps possessing an elementary nollege of arifmetic, are far ahead of mankind in their unselfish intrist and untiring efforts in the common weal, but already there are sines in many countries, including our own, that to werk for the State will henceforth be an honor and a pleasure and to werk for one's self will be a diskrace and a scandle. Do you follow me? he said.

Sir? Yes sir, I said, and pop said, At your age your home is the State as far as you are concerned, and your mother is the Queen Bee and I am the King Ant, and when as at present, you are privileged to go on errand for either of us, that privelege should fill you with exultation at a chance to labor for the common good rather than with a base and self centered desire for self advancement. So how do you feel now? he said.

Fine, I said, and he said, Yes sir, G, pop, cant I keep the change anyways as a exter attraction?

The higher socialism is obviously still far from its goal, yee gods keep the confounded change, pop said.

REPORT ON WINDSOR C.A.S. PROBE RELEASED

Matrons, Superintendent Face Dismissal After Windsor C.A.S. Probe

Board of Management To Be Dissolved Also By Report

COMPLAINTS PROVED

Corporal Punishment Is Found "Severe To a Degree"

Toronto, Feb. 6 (CP)—The Administration of Windsor Children's Shelter had been struck a death-blow today—its Board of Management faced dissolution, its matrons and its superintendent faced dismissal. Charges that Shelter children had been struck with sticks, that corporal punishment was "severe to a degree," that older girls bathed boys nearly as old were held to be proven.

In the report of his investigation into Shelter conditions, released last night by Hon. W. G. Martin, Ontario Minister of Welfare, a few hours after its receipt, Commissioner M. A. Sorsolell, recommended that Magdalene and Catherine Strang, matrons, and M. R. Winters, superintendent, be dismissed.

Wholesale dissolution and reorganization of the Windsor Children's Aid Society, the administration body of the institution, was also recommended. Commissioner Sorsoleil suggested the present Society's secretary, the medical director and the staff remain in charge until reorganization can be effected.

Making public the report of the Commissioner, who is his Deputy Minister, Mr. Martin confirmed the recommendations. "This confirmation," he said, "is evidence of the fact that as far as the Province of Ontario is concerned, abuse of children in public institutions will not be tolerated."

Demand Resignation

At the same time, the Minister denied he had received the resignation of Mr. Winters. "We are not waiting for his resignation," he declared. "We are demanding it from him."

Many specific charges of cruelty against the Strang sisters were found to have been unsubstantiated in the evidence given at the Windsor hearings which were authorized last November 17 and continued until January 15. But Mr. Sorsolell found what he called the "general atmosphere" in the Shelter to warrant criticism. He wrote in his report:

"The Strang sisters made an effort to create a favorable impression upon visitors, both casual and frequent, and their attitude towards the children, when visitors were present was not their actual mode of conduct towards residents of the Shelter

"The general atmosphere was that of a place in which children were suffered or tolerated, rather than the atmosphere of home.

"There was no organized effort to provide anything in the way of recreational and play outlets for the children in the Shelter

"There was a constant use of minor punishments which must have kept the children in a state of fear and irritation."

The Commissioner reported that on occasions the matrons had used "objectionable" terms in speaking to the wards. He said there was a marked difference between the diet provided for the children and that given the staff. There were forced feedings and "considerable slapping."

Misses Strang Irritable

"It is quite possible," he said, "that the Misses Strang began the work in the kindliest possible spirit, but that several years of constant association with children requiring special care and special treatment, the full responsibility of the management of the Shelter, the nervous strain of conducting the children through two serious epidemics caused in the matrons a nervous, irritable and at times unreasonable frame of mind which produced the conditions described in the report."

The Commissioner did not attach blame to the Misses Strang in connection with the death of Ivan (Buddy) Stevens and Marie Godsell Peairl last year, but he said the seriousness of Buddy's illness should have been recognized earlier than it was.

Winters was found negligent in that he did not give regular supervision of children placed in foster homes, was negligent in making required departmental returns and did not report to his local board complaints which reached him respecting treatment of Shelter children And the Children's Aid Society was charged with having conducted its business "in a most perfunctory manner" and to have thrust too much of the responsibility on the Strang sisters.

Charges against the Misses Strang were filed with Mayor D. A. Croll of Windsor early in November and the Ontario Department of Public Welfare stepped into the picture, when the allegations were made public. The Shelter board was about to consider a resolution asking for an independent arbiter when it was explained, the government would hold an investigation.

Emphatically, the Strang sisters denied when they took the witness stand that children in their care were treated other than kindly.

The injured man was rushed to the Belleville General Hospital where the fractures were reduced by Dr. G. S. Cronk.

The unfortunate accident happened about 3.15 p.m. yesterday afternoon when Mr. Saylor entered the excavation at the island with an empty wheelbarrow to receive his usual load. As he lowered his barrow a large portion of the bank, about four feet above, became dislodged and crashed downward striking him with full force on both shin bones, breaking both legs between the knees and the ankles. A fellow workman hailed a passing motorist and hurried to the police station where the city ambulance was pressed into service to rush the injured man to the hospital.

Injuries Severe

Upon his arrival at this institution Mr. Saylor was suffering considerable pain, causing a slight delay in the subsequent operation. Upon examination Dr. Cronk found the left leg had sustained a compound fracture, while the right leg was broken just a few inches above the ankle, the sinews of the ankle joint also being affected necessitating a very careful operation. The injured man is reported to be resting quietly this morning.

The actual occurrence of the accident happened so rapidly that fellow workmen did not have an opportunity to warn Mr. Saylor as the large piece of frozen earth and gravel crashed earthward with terrific force before any caution could be given. No warning of such an occurrence was anticipated as the men were proceeding in a rather cautious manner.

Sergeant A. Booth rushed the injured man to the hospital in the ambulance.

In Severe Pain

Moaning with pain through clenched teeth, the unfortunate workman lay pinned face downward to the frozen ground while fellow workers dug frantically to release him. Previously they had tried to pull him from beneath the 400-lb pile of frozen earth which dislodged without warning and partially buried him, but the agony of the effort was too much for the injured man and he pleaded for them to cease. Then, mustering all available men around the huge lump of earth, by strength of their arms the mass was moved and the almost unconscious man was placed in a comfortable position to await the arrival of the city ambulance which took considerable time to reach the scene.

Mr. Saylor had been engaged in trucking earth from the excavation with a wheelbarrow during the day and had just wheeled his barrow into the scooped-out side of the bank when the overhanging mass, split by wedges, suddenly dislodged and tumbled to the ground without warning. Saylor was pinned from behind without being given a chance to dodge following the warning shout of fellow workers.

THREE DOSES RELIEVE 33 YEAR OLD COUGH

It just looks as if BUCKLEY'S MIXTURE took a special pride in "knocking the stuffing" out of tough old coughs that have successfully defied other cough remedies for years and years.

For instance, take the case of Mrs. A. Wagner of Waterloo, Ontario.

"For 33 years I have had a chronic cough, and when I catch cold I cough something terrible. I always had to have a Doctor to break it up, but I was told to try BUCKLEY'S MIXTURE, and it sure does the trick. About three doses gives me relief."

No wonder millions of former sufferers say, "Buckley's acts like a flash." If you have a cough, cold, 'flu or bronchitis, get a bottle today. It clears the bronchial tubes, eases breathing and stops the cough before other remedies have begun to act. Play safe. Refuse substitutes. Buckley's is sold everywhere.

FORMER CANADIAN IN STRANGE MARRIAGE

In a tongue strange to the western world, and with a ritual stranger still, Yvette Nadeau, granddaughter of Sir John U. Gregory of Quebec, is united in marriage in New York to Hamad Obadie of Bagdad by Mirza Ahmad Sohrab (centre), a well known Persian poet. The groom is 11th charter member of the New History Society headed by Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Stuyvesant Chanler in whose home the nuptials were held. All are followers of the principles of Baha'u'llah.

496 NURSING VISITS MADE BY V.O.N. DURING JANUARY

Executive at Wit's End to Finance Worthy Work

There were wrinkled brows on the foreheads of newly elected officers of the Belleville branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses who convened in the Y.M.C.A. rooms last evening for the first regular meeting of the year, and discussion around the large table where sat the elected revolved chiefly around one subject—how to make money during the coming year to carry on the vital work of the organization.

Battling adversity and unlooked for expenses during the past year in a valiant effort to keep ahead of the demands made upon them by the indigent and needy, who had no money to pay for the nursing and care so freely given by the Order, officers during the past year, by the financial report, which was turned in by Treasurer Jos. Imlah, admitted, that it had been a hard year for them. They had been unable, even in spite of their efforts to show a gain. At present, it was revealed, a deficit of $30. exists for the new officers to wipe off the books. Besides this there is also the need for raising sufficient this year in order to carry the work on for the next twelve months.

"How?" asked President Reg. Moncrieff of the board he faced. "How can we raise sufficient money to carry on?"

"Well, there's the grant from the city we hope to get soon. That will help a little," pointed out a member.

"Not half enough," countered the President.

GOV'T. DOES NOT HELP

"I wonder if people really know what the Victorian Order of Nurses is?" he added. "I've had people tell me, that the government kept it up; that the Kiwanis or the Rotary Club were mainly responsible for it. Then, too, lots of people think, that the city contributes enough to keep it going. They don't realize, that it is the effort of the members and officers themselves, that keeps the organization on its feet."

Summed up by President Moncrieff, the returns and donations, which are acquired by the Order come from donations from well wishers. Small grants from the city council each year. Money, that is raised by the members of the Order. Fees that are collected by the nurses from patients, which are often pitiably small.

In return for his grant the city has at its beck and call on the telephone the services of two qualified nurses, who are ready night and day to respond. No matter how poor the patient is, the same care is given as that given to those best able to afford it. To them also, especially the maternity cases, go other comforts, such as clothing and layettes for the baby, and other needed articles, when the family is too destitute to afford them.

In the nurses' report submitted by Miss Germain Dumais on Monday evening it was shown, that a total of 496 visits has been made to homes during the month of January.

Average number of hours worked per day by the nurses was 9 hours and 6 minutes on week days, and 3 hours and 7 minutes on Sundays.

"How about those cases outside of the two mile limit?" asked President Moncrieff as the report was read.

"We have a few; I just couldn't say how many per month without looking it up," stated Miss Dumais.

"Do the two mile calls include Prince Edward County?" asked 1st Vice President T. D. Ruston.

"Everywhere within the two mile limit."

Question Referred Back

"Then I believe we should make an effort to collect for this service from the Townships of Hastings and Prince Edward County, where such work has been given," stated the President. The matter was referred to the Finance Committee.

Two ways were suggested to make money during the coming month. A bowling tournament committee has been made to consider the advisability of holding such. A motion was also carried, that collection boxes installed in various public buildings in the city. Owing to the lack of new business and the small attendance the meeting was brief, and adjourned early. A cheering report of the recent afternoon tea and home cooking sale was read by Mrs. H. Roblin.

The almost complete roster of officers of the organization for 1934 is as follows:

Hon. Pres.—Mayor Geo. O. Tice.
Past Pres.—Fred Smythe.
Pres.—Reg. Moncrieff.
1st Vice Pres.—T. D. Ruston.
2nd. Vice Pres.—Mrs. T. Holland.
Secretary—Miss E. Moncrieff.

Committee—Rev. H. Hall, appointee of the Ministerial Association; Alderman Benjamin Safe, city council representative; Miss McIndoo; Mrs. H. LaPalm; Mrs. F. Foley; Mrs. J. Tilley; Mrs. J. Boyd; Mrs. J. Wardener; Mrs. P. Lent; Mrs. B. J. Sweetman; Mrs. H. Roblin; Mrs. R. Moncrieff; Mrs. D. Doyle; Mrs. R. M. Carmichael; Mrs. J. Arbuckle; Mrs. B. Doctor; Miss A. Tompkins; Mrs. J. S. Hurst. Representative of the Kiwanis Club has yet to be appointed.

LORD ASHLEY FILES SUIT

Douglas Fairbanks Sr. Is Named Corespondent In Divorce Action

London, Feb. 6 (AP)—Counsel for Lord Ashley said today that a petition for divorce has been fyled on his behalf naming Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., as corespondent, and that Lady Ashley and the actor husband of Mary Pickford, Toronto film star, would be served with the papers today.

"The petition already has been fyled and Lady Ashley and Mr. Fairbanks will be served today." said George Gordon of the law firm of Gordon, Dadds and Company.

Lord Ashley is the 33 year old son and heir of the Ninth Earl of Shaftesbury. He and Lady Shaftesbury, the former Sylvia Hawkes of the stage, were married February 3, 1927.

News of the fyling of the petition created a sensation in London society.

Under the law, both parties will have eight days in which to enter appearance after the serving of papers.

Thus, the defendants would be free after that to defend the suit and would have two weeks more in which to fyle answers.

However, it was pointed out, if the suit should not be defended it might come to trial April 12. If contested there was a possibility it may not be heard for many months.

Lord Ashley did not claim damages.

FOUND GUILTY OF WOUNDING

Six Years In Penitentiary Given Sam Abraham of Cochrane

Cochrane, Ont., Feb. 6 (CP) — Six years in the penitentiary faced 60 year old Sam Abraham of Cochrane today for shooting and wounding Helim Chamandy, 30 year old Cochrane store-keeper, who came to the aid of Yvette Benoit, young girl of the district, when Abraham threatened her. He appeared in summary trial before Magistrate E. R. Tucker and was found guilty

Abraham received four years on a charge of wounding and two years for carrying firearms, the first time in Cochrane the firearm law had been invoked. Abraham acted as his own counsel and pleaded not guilty to shooting and wounding Chamandy January 27.

Yvette Benoit and her sister Marie Rosie Benoit testified, their evidence similar. Yvette said she was walking along the street with her sister and Marcel Tremblay when Abraham appeared and attempted to talk to her, which Tremblay tried to prevent.

Yvette said the elderly Abraham made threatening gestures and she ran into Chamandy's store followed by the man who was brandishing a revolver. Helim Chamandy grappled with Abraham and the girl testified Abraham then shot the storekeeper. Chamandy, who also took the stand, suffered a gunshot wound in the breast, the bullet lodging in the right side of his neck.

Reckless Stock Market Speculation to be Curbed Says Premier Bennett

Speaks Before Toronto Board of Trade At Annual Meet

Trade Agreements Passed At Ottawa Parley Praised

Toronto Feb. 6 —(CP)— The Dominion Government will do all in its power to prevent any return of the reckless stock market speculation that preceded the depression, and will continue to act on the belief, that there can be no sudden and spectacular return to prosperity. This assurance was given last night by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, before a crowded audience attending the annual banquet of the Toronto Board of Trade.

The Prime Minister reviewed the tariff activities of the Government, the anti-dumping laws and the embargo on Russian products, defending them as necessary to restore and maintain the national credit of the country, and declared that nothing had occurred to indicate the wrong course had been chosen.

"We would do it again just as readily under the same circumstances," he said. The Ottawa trade agreements had brought increased business between Canada and the Empire, and had proven the greatest single aid to the livestock industry, that had ever operated in a single year.

Contented People Asset

The policies of the government would not overlook the social angle, Mr. Bennett said, and he declared that the aim would be to see a march back to work of a contented laboring class "a contented people is the greatest asset a country can have," he said, "and there must be a just and fair adjustment of labor in respect to capital.

Mr. Bennett was in a hopeful and optimistic mood and declared his belief that thrift and hard work would see a steady return to conditions that would ensure plenty and contentment for all who would strive to secure it.

Assistance to the provinces had seemed to meet with common approval, Mr. Bennett said, and it would be continued. He spoke of the new Central Bank, which would shortly be taken up in Parliament, and bespoke the co-operation of the people.

Words of warm appreciation for the assistance given him during his years in office, were spoken by the Prime Minister, and he welcomed suggestions at all times from those, who felt they might contribute to the welfare of the country in that way.

C. N. R. EMPLOYEE IS INJURED IN FALL

Hurled From Coal Chutes Onto Tender of Loading Locomotive

At 2.05 o'clock this morning a rush call was received at the police station for the ambulance to the north C.N.R. station. Answering the call Constables Taylor and Arnott found Wm. Stephenson, who lives on East Moira Street, north of College Street, had met with an accident at the east yard coal chutes and hurried him to the Belleville General Hospital. First aid had been rendered the victim of the accident at the station under supervision of C.N.R. Constable George Foster.

Stephenson had been working at the head of the chutes and in some way was hurled down them onto the tender of a loading locomotive. He was taken to the station on the tender to await removal to the hospital.

Dr. W. C. Morgan, attending physician, stated this morning Stephenson had received a cut on the under jaw and had been badly shocked but his condition was in no way serious.

COULD NOT KNIT FOR NEURITIS

If neuritis bothers you, deal with it as this woman dealt with hers:—"For years I was unable to knit," she writes, "owing to neuritis in my hands. Last year I started taking Kruschen, and now I can keep up with anyone. Already this year I have knitted about 12 pieces in all, including men's sweaters and ladies' fancy pullovers, as well as several babies' articles. Naturally, I feel quite proud, and I owe it all to Kruschen. I have not felt in better health for years and will keep on taking Kruschen as long as I live."—(Mrs.) A. S.

Neuritis is caused by deposits of needle-pointed, flint-hard uric acid crystals, which pierce the nerves and cause those stabbing pains. Kruschen Salts break up these deposits of torturing crystals and convert them into a harmless solution, which is promptly removed through the natural channel—the kidneys.

Sea Lion of Bronx Zoo Dies from Eating Too Many Buttons, Stones

NEW YORK, Feb. 6—(CP)—Mae West, the all-too-trustful sea lion, late of the Bronx Zoo, is dead—dead, like Lycidas, ere her prime.

It wasn't nostalgia for the sea-washed Pacific promontories; it was not for love, and it was not of old age (for Mae was still in the first blush of her youth and beauty). To tell the truth, Mae died of a surfeit of brass buttons.

It was the old story, keepers at the Zoo said today. Mae had placed too much faith in seafaring men and had eaten everything they tossed in her direction. At least that was the inference, as most of the brass buttons Mae seems to have died of bore the anchor of the United States navy. It might have been children, wearing sailor suits.

Another of Mae's weaknesses as indicated by a post-mortem seems to have been for large stones of the general dimensions of Grade A select eggs. Actually a diet of brass buttons varied with stones is not necessarilly fatal to a sea lion provided it is not overdone. But Mae was intemperate and outraged nature eventually took its toll.

Keep on the SUNNY SIDE

HAVEN'T you noticed that your happiest hours occur on days when you feel your best?

Have more of these happy days. You and all your family. Guard health while you have it. Keep on the sunny side of life.

The greatest enemy of health is common constipation. It may cause loss of appetite and energy. Certainly it kills enthusiasm! Yet it can be banished by eating a delicious cereal.

Laboratory tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies "bulk" and vitamin B to relieve common constipation. Also iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. How much pleasanter to eat this delicious ready-to-eat cereal than to take patent medicines. Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. Chronic cases, with each meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor. Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

FILLING PIES AND TARTS

Learning to make good pastry is the first step in making good pies.

The second is to really understand at least a few kinds of filling, for making double-crust and open-shell pies, deep-dish pies, meat pies and the little tarts and fancy pastries that are often so useful.

When you have mastered the first part of this lesson, and have a covered roll of pastry in your refrigerator keeping cold for use when it is wanted, you can start the study of this part of the lesson and make the different kinds of fillings in their turn.

These are the types we will consider here or in the books of the Easy-Way Series.

1. Deep-dish fruit pies.
2. Deep-dish meat pies.
3. Two-crust pies or tarts.
4. Creacy or custard-type fillings:
   - (a) Baked in pastry shell.
   - (b) Cooked, cooled and turned into cold baked shell.

Deep-Dish Fruit Pie.

1. Make pastry according to rules and chill it.
2. Prepare fruit as may be necessary—for example, pare, core and quarter or slice apples or pears; peel and stone peaches; pierce the skins of plums, peel and cut up rhubarb, etc.
3. Put a cup, jelly glass or other support in dish to hold up pastry in centre.
4. Put fruit in buttered deep pie dish, heaping it very high, because of course it will shrink during cooking. (Slicing or cutting fruit finely speeds up the cooking when desired.)
5. Add enough sugar to sweeten whatever fruit you are using—the amounts needed will be different. Add any little touch of flavour with the sugar—a little dusting of spice such as cinnamon or nutmeg, a little grated lemon rind or dash of lemon juice; orange, too, is good sometimes. Butter dotted over filling gives added richness and flavor.
6. Cut off enough of your paste to cover your dish. Roll out to ¼ inch thickness. Cut some "eyelets" in centre of paste so steam can escape. Fit it very loosely over the fruit—don't stretch it or it will shrink later. (If desired a strip of paste ½ inch wide may be adjusted around the rim of the pie plate, dampened, and the crust top sealed to it, before trimming.)
7. Trim off with scissors—not too close to rim of dish—press down about the rim and crimp the edge of your pastry cover with finger and thumb or with a pastry crimper.
8. Put into a hot oven for the first 10 minutes, 450° F., then reduce temperature to moderate and cook until fruit is tender. If necessary, put a paper over top of pie to prevent pie from becoming too brown.

Meat Pies.

Meat pies are made with fresh meat or fowl or with left-overs of cooked meat (along with a suitable sauce for that meat) and a pastry top.

Fresh meat should be simmered gently until tender, then a sauce made, using the stock from the meat; flavour well and thicken it with browned or white flour (see how to make such sauces in Lesson 1).

If cooked meat is used, make a generous quantity of brown or white sauce to go with it.

Fill pie dish with meat and sauce—vegetables also may be put in and these should be already cooked unless they will require only short heating.

Cover the pie:

(a) With pastry crust, same as for deep fruit pies.

(b) With baking powder biscuit dough made by either the standard method or the biscuit flour method given in Lesson 3; roll dough to ½ inch thickness and cut or pat into shape to fit top of dish. Make gashes in to to allow steam to escape. Or shape as small biscuits and place over hot filling to bake. Or use drop-biscuit dough.

Bake pastry crust at 450° F. Standard biscuit crust at 450° F., biscuit crust made with prepared biscuit flour at 475° F.

Two-Crust Pies.

1. Prepare filling.
2. Line shallow pie pan, fitting pastry in easily and gently pushing out air from beneath pastry with the finger tips. With scissors or sharp knife, trim around the edge of pan—not too close in any case, and with about an inch of pastry left to spare for a juicy fruit pie; this can be doubled back over the top crust and crimped with the fingers, as an aid in keeping juice from flowing out.
3. Turn in filling—it is usually a fruit filling that is put between two crusts; sweeten (mixing spices with sugar when used), fill and prepare for oven according to table of instructions for fruit pies which follows.
4. Cover with top crust, in which eyelets have been cut; turn edge of under crust over edge of upper crust, wetting with cold water, and pinch close, crimping at the same time, with the fingers. If filling is juicy, bind edge with wet cotton and thrust paper funnels through upper crust.
5. Bake at 450° F. till brown, then at 375° F.

Fruit Pies	Amount of Fruit	Sugar	Flour	Butter
Blackberry	3 cups berries	1/3 to 1 cup sugar	3 tbsp.	1 tbsp.
Cherry	3 cups pitted cherries	1 to 1½ cups sugar	3 tbsp.	1 tbsp.
Gooseberry	3 cups berries; stew with the sugar and cool	1 cup sugar	4 tbsp.	2 tbsp.
Raspberry	3 cups berries	½ to 1 cup sugar	3 tbsp.	1 tbsp.
Strawberry	3 cups berries	¾ to 1 cup sugar	3 tbsp.	1 tbsp.
Blueberry	3 cups berries	½ cup sugar	4tbsp.	1 tbsp.

NOTE.—If berries are very ripe, or when sweet or canned fruits are used, add 2 to 4 tablespoons lemon juice for tartness.

Open-Faced Pies.

As I have told you, there are two types of pies that hare only an under crust—

(a) When filling is cooked in pastry.

(b) When empty shell and filling are cooked separately and filling put into shell when both are absolutely cold.

NOTE.—These open-faced pies or tarts are variously finished:

(a) Plain, or with sprinkling of spice.
(b) With narrow crossed strips of pastry.
(c) With sweetened and flavored whipped cream.
(d) With meringue.

MERINGUE TOPPING FOR PIES

Use the egg whites for a meringue—it really requires 3 egg whites to make a fine, full meringue for a good sized pie. Allow 2 tablespoons granulated sugar for each egg white, or a little less if this is too sweet for your taste. Beat the egg whites until stiff, but not dry, then add sugar a little at a time and beat until very stiff. Add the flavouring. Drop in spoonfuls over the pie or spread roughly. Sprinkle with a little granulated sugar and put into a SLOW oven, 275° F.—to brown delicately. Do not try to hurry it, or you will have a tough, watery meringue; give it about 15 minutes and you may even reduce the oven heat a little at about half time. Meringue treated in this way should never fall or be tough.

Plain Apple Pie.

Sliced apples
¾ to 1 cup sugar (white or brown)
1 to 2 tablespoons butter
Pinch salt
¾ teaspoon cinnamon or 1/3 teaspoon grated nutmeg and a little grated lemon rind.
1 teaspoon lemon juice

Prepare and mix filling, using enough apples to heap the dish, and bake between two crusts, or as an open-faced pie.

Rich Apple Crumble Pie.

1½ cups flour
¼ cup sugar (white or well-packed brown)
¾ cup soft butter
Sliced apples

Sift flour and mix with the sugar; work in the butter, squeezing and blending with the hand. Knead and pat the past to size and shape of dish; use deep baking dish, filling with sliced apples sweetened and flavored as for ordinary pie; lay the paste on top and bake in moderate oven, about 375° F., until apples are tender and top a tempting brown. Serve with cream or a well-chilled custard sauce.

This is also delicious if a layer of the rich crumble-paste is put in the bottom of a square pan, the fruit next, and a top layer of the paste. Cut in oblongs to serve.

Pumpkin Pie.

This is a good example of the custard-type of pie filling:

1/3 teaspoon mace
3 tablespoons melted butter
3 slightly beaten eggs
2 cups scalded milk
1½ cups cocoanut (optional)
2 cups cooked of canned pumpkin
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/3 teaspoon ground allspice
½ to 1 teaspoon ginger.

Combine ingredients in this order, mixing thoroughly. Cocoanut may be used, when desired. Turn into pan lined with pastry. Bake in hot oven 15 minutes, then reduce to moderate for about half an hour, or until silver knife thrust into centre comes out clear.

Some of the most attractive little pastries, and cakelets that use pastry, will be found in the Easy-Way Cake Book and Planning the Party which no doubt you will have to help you make special occasions successful and routine meals more interesting!

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL
"East of Fifth Avenue"

Life in a boarding house immediately presents situations fraught with dramatic possibilities. Each tenant is a story by himself—all the occupants together offer a colorful, kaleidoscopic panorama of life — joy, despair, love, hate and intrigue weave the pattern.

Columbia Pictures has taken this interesting theme and produced a picture—a picture which might be labeled "the 'Grand Hotel' of boarding-house life in New York." It is called "East of Fifth Avenue," and is showing at the Capitol Theatre tonight.

Mary Carlisle, last seen in "College Humor," is cast as the unfaithful wife of Wallace Ford. Walter Connolly, who in his short screen life, has built up a reputation as one of filmdom's finest delineator's of character roles, plays the old English owner of the boarding house wherein the action takes place.

"Leave it to Dad" is comedy sizzling with laughs; a Traveltalk of Romantic Argentina; Oswald Cartoon and Capitol News balance tonight's program.

And coming Thursday:

"Going Hollywood"

Lavish stage settings, dazzling costumes and musical numbers that promise to become nationwide hits have been crowded into one of the most original motion picture productins to emanate in Hollywood and which serves as Marion Davies' new Cosmopolitan starring vehicle for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

It is "Going Hollywood," which opens Thursday at the Capitol Theatre. The picture is described as a view of Hollywood itself, with all the glamour of the motion picture world thrust into an hour and a half's screen entertainment.

Elaborate song and dance numbers—the king-pin crooner of radio, Bing Crosby, and queen of moviedom, Marion Davies, co-star. Fifi Dorsay, Stuart Erwin, Patsy Kelly and the 3 Radio Rogues in support, Lennie Hayton's orchestra and the Albertina Rasch ballet of gorgeous girls! What 'a show!

"DINNER AT EIGHT" NOW AT THE BELLE

Described after its sensational opening at the Astor Theatre in New York City as the greatest piece of motion-picture entertainment of all times with a cast, the like of which in famous names and acting ability has never been assembled before to be photographed by a camera. "Dinner at Eight", Metro Goldwyn Mayer's filmization of the Broadway play hit, will be shown at the Belle Theatre starting today for the first time at regular prices.

It is almost unbelievable that Metro Goldwyn Mayer was able to gather together for this one picture such outstanding film names as Marie Dressler, John Barrymore, Wallace Beery, Jean Harlow, Lionel Barrymore, Lee Tracy, Edmund Lowe, Billie Burke, Madge Evans, Jean Hersholt Karen Morley, Louise Closser Hale, Phillips Holmes and May Robson, together with a supporting cast of eleven players.

The remarkable part of the picture is that its episodic narrative offers each of the celebrities in the cast a meaty role. Just as there are enough stars in 'Dinner at Eight' to equip more than a dozen film vehicles, so its story has enough plots and sub-plots to furnish any number of separate cinema narratives, but the picture is so cleverly contrived that it interweaves the various tales into one magnificent climax in which the majority of the characters are brought together.

Then is presented the domestic picture of Wallace Beery, the hard boiled business racketeer who is responsible for the upheaval in Lionel Barrymore's ship-building interests. Beery is married to the flashy Jean Harlow, who carries on an affair with Edmund Lowe behind her husband's back and whose social ambitions bring her into contact with the other principals at this all star dinner.

A funny Popeye, the Sailor Kartune and Belle News will be shown on the same program.

During the Belleville engagement of "Dinner at 8", performances will start at 2.30, 7.00 and 9.10 p.m. The feature starting at 2.50, 7.20 and 9.30 p.m.

WORK CONTINUES AT THE ISLAND

Relief workers faced frigid blasts and chilling temperatures on the coldest day in memory, Tuesday morning as work continued without let up on Zwick's Island throughout the day. Time out for a warm up at the glowing stove in the interior of the large hut on the island was called frequently by foremen on the job to ward off frost bite among the men. Other workers on city lists were hard at work throughout the city clearing off walks in front of city properties.

MUCH TROUBLE FROM FROZEN PIPES

City waterworks officials are feeling the first attack of winter on outside services of the system. Driven deeper into the ground by the successive waves of zero weather during the past few weeks, the nipping frost has entered the ground, paralyzing private services on many streets. During the past week more calls had been received by the department to thaw frozen pipes with the electric thawing machine than had previously been received since the start of the cold weather. On Tuesday, however, a good gain on the work had been made by the department.

2 GOAL LEAD FOR TRENTON

Return Game, Goals To Count To Be Played In Trenton, Wednesday

Trenton, Feb. 6 (Special) — Two goal lead! Shut out for Joe Gould, one of his life ambitions.

The revised edition of the Trenton intermediates defeated the Cobourg Waverleys in their own piano box arena last night by a 2-0 score in the first game to decide third position in the local O.H.A. group.

On the honor roll goes Joe Gould's name. His saves drew rounds of applause from even the Cobourg fans who waited after the game to get a look at him, the main reason for their defeat of the evening.

Every man on the local line-up is a star today. They back-checked like fiends and held the Waverleys scoreless, so not many mistakes could have been made, although referee "Army" Armstrong meted out a grand total of twenty-two penalties to keep the play clean.

Near the end of the second period a long dispute over an alleged goal for Cobourg caused quite a bit of excitement and a three minute penalty for "Barney" York. Parker drove one at Joe who went out to save as Parker raced in. Both went down and Parker grabbed the puck to toss it in the net when York stretched himself full length across the goal mouth.

Goal Not Allowed.

The goal umpire said the puck didn't cross the line, but the fans from the side lines swore it did. Referee Armstrong didn't allow it as he saw Parker grab it with his hand. Archie Campbell, Joe Freeman and a junior named Henderson looked best for the Waverleys. Johnson, Powers and Rosenplot, the seasoned line, seemed to keep the play in their control while on the ice. They continually bombarded McCoubrey and missed many golden opportunities. The second line of Bohan, Miller, and a Wellington junior named Burley, played stellar hockey. At one time Trenton had five men to the Waverleys' three but could not score. Smith and York on defence with "Vinny" Utronki filling in wherever needed have improved with leaps and bounds in the last few games.

Joe Gould stopped everything and it makes Joe mad when the crowd holler "lucky" or "sevens up" and some even cry "snake eyes" but he just goes on the same.

Trenton Score In First.

The locals forced the play from the beginning and all during the period they kept McCoubrey busy. Burley carried the puck right in and passed to Miller who missed an open net. With but a minute to go Rosenplot took the puck at centre, rounded the defence and passed to Normie Johnson who drilled it by for the first counter. McCoubrey came out to save and Johnson fell over him on his shoulder and had to take a rest but was able to carry on later.

In the second stanza the locals started with Bohan and Burley in the penalty box. Cobourg were bearing down and several times the puck sailed toward Joe labelled a goal but he took the tags off and tossed them aside.

Johnson was knocked windless when he tried to jump between Geraldi and Staples as they closed in on him. Bohan, Burley and Miller combined to get right in but missed tallying. Johnson took the puck from his own net and carried it through the entire team but McCoubrey saved. York did the same thing and hit the side of the Waverley net. Then came the disputed goal but York was penalized and the goal not allowed. Joe was so pleased his feelings got the best of him and he kissed York as he skated to the hoose-gow. The period ended with neither team denting the twine.

Referee Armstrong handed out a penalty whenever anyone fell down but he kept the players in the game with no rough stuff.

"Flash" Bohan sailed in and shot with Roy Smith nailing the rebound for Trenton's second goal.

Henderson and Ibey were the only men left on the ice to help McCoubrey and the locals could not score. Later Johnson drew a rest and the whole Waverley aggregation stormed in but could not penetrate the local net. Bohan and Ibey drew a rest as the game ended 2-0 for Trenton.

The return game will be played in Trenton on Wednesday night with the winner of the round meeting Belleville Dohertys on Friday at Belleville. We'll be seein' you, remember last Thursday?

Coach Benny Bowen has the local squad looking altogether different than when all the other fellows were beating them a while ago. Joe Gould let us in on the secret of his success after the game when he told that bread and milk before you retire keeps your weight at 210 and the eyes sharpened.

Line-ups:

Trenton—Goal, Gould; defence, York and Smith; centre, Johnson; wings, Powers and Rosenplot; alternates, Bohan, Burley, Miller and Utronki.

Cobourg—Goal, McCoubrey; defence, Geraldi and Staples; centre, Campbell; wings, Ibey and Freeman; alternates, Gibson, Henderson, Pearce and Parker.

Referee — "Army" Armstrong of Oshawa.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

WALL ST. FINANCIAL

New York, Feb. 6 (AP)— Bullish fervor in the financial markets was not so pronounced today, but selective buying in both stocks and bonds tended to offset a considerable amount of profit taking.

Although equities were still active, volume dwindled on the moderate declines. Some of the utilities and metals moved substantially higher, but other groups were hesitant.

Narrow movements marked dealings in Canadian securities. Shares of International Nickel, Dome, McIntyre, and Canadian Pacific fluctuated within minor fractions of previous closing prices. On the curb Lake Shore was about unchanged but Hiram Walker eased a point.

Dominion Government 4s gained ⅛ point while other maturities showed little change. The Canadian dollar was 3-16 of a cent higher at 99.18¾ cents.

Shares of U. S. Smelting got up 3 points, while American Smelting and Cerro de Pasco were a point or more higher. The farm group improved with Case advancing 2. American Telephone, Western Union, Consolidated Gas and Public Service of New Jersey gained about a point each.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Feb. 6 (CP)—Profit-taking was quite active and prices were barely steady among the medium-priced shares but interlisted issues were firm or higher on the mining section of the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

Noranda and International Nickel were in heavy demand, the former at a gain of 25 cents to 36.25, and the latter a gain of 15 cents to 23.65. Falconbridge was unchanged at 3.20.

In the big gold group McIntyre fell back 1.25 to 40.75, Wright Hargreaves 5 to 7.35 and Teck and Hollinger held unchanged but Dome had a small gain. Lake Shore was up 50 cents to 44.50 and Pioneer at 12.50 was up 25 cents.

Trading moved at more leisurely pace today and while the general tone held firm the list had both losses and gains in all groups. Hollinger featured the senior gold group, trading in heavy volume at 13.70, up 20 cents and Lake Shore, Pioneer, and Dome also held to the up side of the market.

Noranda was the firmest issue of the base metals, trading in volume at 36.25. Nickel was in demand at 23.50 unchanged and other issues of the group were slightly off.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Feb. 6.—(CP)—An easing down process set in today in the Industrial section of the Toronto Stock Exchange, induced by a wavering performance on the New York Board and local profit-taking on the recent rise. A strong tone however gave the Board a margin of gains over recessions that held till noon.

Walker's Common was heavily sold and the price weakened three points to 48 but recovered to 49 by noon. Industrial Alcohol as off 1-8 to 16 3-8 and Distillers Seagram at 21 7-8 showed a loss of 7-8. Brewers and Distillers was unchanged at 2.55.

Brazilian was again heavily traded with the price unchanged at 14 1-8. C.P.R. also traded unchanged at 17 and Ford lost a half point to 24 under profit-taking. International Nickel also dropped its early gain, standing at $23.50 at noon.

The market opened with a firm tone and the Board soon recorded a majority of gains over losses but profit-taking followed in short order and the advances in many cases, were wiped out. Distillery stocks were weak, Walker's common selling down three points to 48 and the others dropped a half to a full point. Partial recovery, however, was made by the group in the early afternoon.

Construction and Steel shares and also Ford A were shaded by profit-taking, Cement preferred losing a point and Ford A working back to 24 at which level the selling appeared to subside.

ROSENBLOOM HARD PRESSED

However Ekes Out Draw With Joe Knight In 15 Rds

MIAMI, Fla., Feb 6—(CP)—Slapsie Maxie Rosenbloom still ruled the light heavyweight roost today, but minus a handful of tail feathers, plucked out by the up and coming Joe Knight, of Cairo, Ga., in a fiercely fought 15-round title bout here that ended in a draw.

In his first crack at a world's championship during his colorful career, the slugging Southerner rushed the Harlem playboy about the canvas with surprising speed and punch and only missed gaining possession of the crown by virtue of a last minute rally by the title holder.

The fight, held last night in the Madison Square Garden Arena, was the first champoinship bout staged in Florida in 40 years, and was watched by approximately 23,000 spectators Garden officials said the gate receipts were approximately $35,000.

Good Kid

"Joe is the best kid in the country for this title," said Maxie afterward. "It was tough fighting with Joe's thumb in my eye every round."

"It was hard for me to fight, with Rosenbloom flapping lefts in my face," was all Knight had to say.

Neither was badly bruised in the encounter.

The challenger, carried the fight to the champion for the first few rounds, but toward the middle of the scrap Rosenbloom settled down to give Knight a first class lesson in the general art of cuffing and jabbing, some of it, at lightning speed. Knight took everything he had, and seldom retreated from the withering blows.

Coming back at the tenth round, the Georgian boy belted the champion about the ring consistently and from then until the final round he steadily rolled up valuable points.

In the last round Rosenbloom mustered all his reserve strength and tore into the Georgia fighter, planting blows to the challenger's head and body in rapid succession. The bell sounded as Rosenbloom was giving him a severe lacing.

CAMPBELLFORD WINS BY 7-3

Tweed, Feb. 6 (Special)—The scheduled game between Marmora and Tweed in the Central League on Friday, Feb. 2nd was postponed and the locals took advantage of the opportunity to invite the fast Campbellford Intermediate O.H.A. aggregation for an exhibition tilt. The score of 7 to 3 in favour of the visitors does not represent the difference in the teams as they contented themselves with keeping a commanding lead and did not try to pile up the score. From Morton in goal right through to the last sub, the power town team showed strength and demonstrated why they are in undisputed possession of first place in their own league. The two Ingrams, Fred and Harry made a stalwart defence in front of Morton and appeared better even than when they played for Bill Whitty of Stirling. The former has a backhand shot that would be the envy of many a pro hockey player. Davis and "Buster" Whitton were the pick of the forwards.

Thompson in goal stopped dozens of shots from all angles. "Mickey" Maguire matched strides in every department with the best of the visitors' lineup, playing his best game of the season. Herb Leal on the defence traded bumps with Harry Ingram and didn't always come out "second best." Every player worked hard, although nothing was at stake and the superiority of the visitors was apparent from the outset.

Referee—S. R. Curry.

Line-ups:

Campbellford — Goal Morton, defence, F. Ingram, H. Ingram, centre Whitton, wings, Bush, Hendry. Subs. Davis, Lambert, Kerr.

Tweed — Goal Thompson, defence A. Geraldi, H. Leal, centre Rashotte, wings, Maguire, Quinn. subs. Rupert, Orr, F. Geraldi, Clarke, Meraw.

Few Player Deals May be Swung Before Season Opens

Majority of Clubs, However, Willing To Stand Pat

(By Alan Gould Associated Press Sports Editor).

New York, Feb. 6 (AP)—National League Baseball Clubs, led by the optimistic new ownership of the Cincinnati Reds, may swing a few more player deals before flinging their 1934 challenge to the champion New York Giants but the outlook today was far from encouraging to the bargain hunters.

"We are anxious to strengthen the Reds in every department," confessed red-haired Leland Stanford (Larry) MacPhail, the general manager of the Cincinnati Club and spokesman for the new president, Power Crosley, Jr. "We have several deals in mind and we hope to continue negotiations with the St. Louis Cardinals, mainly because they have the most material at their disposal."

Pirates Stand Pat

"We are standing pat unless somebody makes us an offer that we can't turn down," chorused the Pittsburgh delegates, President William Benswanger and Manager George Gibson, "the Pirates are well fortified."

"We are in the market," reiterated Bob Quinn, business manager, and Manager Max Carey of the Dodgers, "but where can we get what we need without handing over Brooklyn Bridge to bind the bargain?"

"The Phillies are in a receptive mood for either a first class outfielder or infielder, or both," remarked Gerald Nugent, the club President, in company with his new Manager, Jimmy Wilson, "but we won't part with a fellow like Don Hurst, under any circumstances."

The trouble is that everybody talking trade wants two for one," smiled Bill McKenchie, shrewd pilot of the Boston Braves. "We have done a lot of talking but most of those propositions, you have been reading about are a lot of pipe dreams."

Rickey Busy Man

Meanwhile the energetic Branch Rickey, General Manager of the Cardinal system, was so busy bouncing from one conference to another that he had little time to reveal what, if anything, his organization would engineer further for the benefit of the baseball business. Rickey willingly talked with anyone, who had any ideas on the subject.

As for the Giants, they seemed satisfied to let their case rest, just where it wound up at the successful close of the 1933 season, while their Manager, Bill Terry concentrates his time upon the oil business. The Chicago Cubs, too, appear to be contented with their prospects, without further bickering, now that Chuck Klein is in the fold.

YOUTH BOWS TO VETERAN

Alfredo De Oro At 71 Wins First Match In Billiard Contest

(By Orlo Robertson)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Alfredo De Oro, a grey haired man showing the signs of the wear and tear of 71 years of living, his white moustache still quivering from excitement but his hand steady as the day he won his first pocket title nearly 50 years ago, was the toast of the three cushion billiard world today.

In one of the most dramatic games in the long history of the game, the "Grand Old Man" of billiards, who was declared "through" many years ago, administered a beating to 37 year old Welker Cochran, the defending champion from San Francisco, in the opening match of the championship last night. The score was 50 to 49.

As De Oro matched the former Balk Line Champion shot for shot and safety for safety, sympathy changed to cheers and when he touched off the last carom, the capacity crowd rose in a mighty salute to the boy wonder of the 80's who had been placed in the tournament as a tribute for what he had done for the game.

Cincinnati Reds Link with Toronto in Players' Exchange

Surplus Talent of Reds Will Come To Leafs In Spring

NEW YORK, Feb. 6—(CP)—The new owners of the Cincinnati Reds, energetically seeking baseball strength wherever it may lie hidden, announced completion today of negotiations with the Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League for a working agreement between the two clubs.

First big link in what General Manager Larry Macphail hopes will be a chain of such agreements with teams of every baseball classification, the agreement gives the Reds the preference in the purchase of Toronto players. Cincinnati, in turn agrees to send its surplus playing talent to Toronto.

Previously the only agreement the Reds had negotiated was with the Bartlesville, Okla., Club of the Western Association but Macphail expects to complete another with Beckley, W. Va., of the middle Atlantic loop and proceed with his plans until the Reds have similar tie-ups with a club in each minor league class.

"What we are trying to do is to build up a system as quickly and cheaply as we can," Macphail explained.

The agreement with Toronto was reached after a long conference between MacPhail and Manager Bob O'Farrell, representing the Reds, and George Oakley and Manager Ike Boone of Toronto.

PRE-GAME PREDICTIONS

(By A. E. Fulford, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Lester Patrick and his world champions tonight welcome the first real opportunity they have had to take over command of the National Hockey League's United States division top spot.

Playing Canadiens in Madison Square Garden, while Detroit and Chicago are idle, Frank Boucher and all the other blue-sweatered Rangers, by beating the Habitants, can go into a three-point lead—quite an advantage, when contenders are so closely packed.

The New Yorkers have won enough games recently to give them a wide lead in most sessions but Red Wings and Black Hawks have an annoying habit of winning as often as the world champions do.

Patrick figures he'll fix all that by beating the Montrealers then sit back and watch the schedule pit Detroit and Chicago against each other Thursday. Jack Adams' team are a point behind Patrick's hired hands and Chicago two.

While Maroons are playing Ottawa Senators in Montreal tonight their attention will be divided between the task of whipping the speedy Bouchermen and watching the result in New York. A win while Canadiens were losing would give them a tie with Habitants for second place in the Canadian section.

Americans have one of their few remaining chances to edge up closer to a play-off position. Five points behind Maroons, they play Bruins in Boston.

Thursday night the New Yorkers have to take on Toronto Leafs, who are resting today, while they await reports on Joe Primeau, their ace centre, threatened with an operation for the removal of his appendix. It would put him out of the game for the rest of the season.

JUVENILES OF MADOC WIN

Sponsors of Series Hope to Bring Forth Many Stars

Madoc, Feb. 6—(Special)— On Thursday night a new class of hockey was inaugurated at the Madoc Arena, when the Madoc and Tweed Juveniles staged a most interesting game of hockey. The kids all seventeen years and under displayed a brand of hockey, that bids well to produce some stars in future years. There will be a three team league comprising Madoc, Tweed and Stirling. A cup has been donated by Mr. Swayne and another business man in Tweed. Each game will give the winning team three points and the losers will get two. For every penalty received 1-4 of a point will be deducted from the team's total. It is the intention of the league's sponsors to foster clean hockey.

The Madoc kids proved too fast and aggressive for the Tweed team. The score at the end of the first period being 3-0 for the locals. Penalties in the second period disrupted the Madoc team, and the period ended with the score 4-3. However in the last stanza the homesters again got going and ran in 3 goals with no reply from Tweed. Just as the game ended the Tweed team shoved in a counter and the game finished 7-4 in favor of Madoc. Jerry Keeler and Alexander were standouts for Madoc while Walter Ross also played effectively. Prevost for Tweed gave a nice exhibition displaying a wicked shot and some nice stick handling.

Referee—Don Whytock.

Madoc Defeats Eldorado

The Madoc kids defeated the Eldorado juniors by a score of 5-2 on Saturday morning at the Madoc Arena. The homesters were too good for the visitors and never were in danger of being beaten.

Madoc Girls' Hockey Team

An exhibition game between the Madoc and Tweed girls had to be postponed indefinitely on account of the extreme cold. The local team have some nice skaters on their team and need only some competition to bring out their hockey ability, with the following girls on their list, Laura Ross, Audrey Ellis, Harriet Nayler, Marion Hamm, Jean Mikle, Isle Kellar, Anne Armstrong and Dorothy Kellar, the Madoc team should be able to field a strong team. Another game is being planned with Tweed in the near future.

THE KING CAN DO NO WRONG....OH, YEH?

It looked like war several times the other night when the Toronto Maple Leafs and the New York Rangers clashed and played to a five to five hockey tie, in one of the fastest and most thrilling games of the season. The game was hot and the players hotter and when Earl Siebert, of the Rangers, clashed with King Clancy, defence man of the Leafs, it looked like the beginning of a conflagration. However, Referee McCurry is shown as he seized the belligerent Clancy (No. 7), while Referee Goodman coralled Siebert.

CURRENT SPORT

(Day By Day)

Girls' interscholastic basketball is a dead issue these days in the Bay of Quinte sector. Just how the girls' group executive came to decide their method of league competition is somewhat mystifying. The local group compete all fall, that is from October until December, but from the first of the year until April there is no league basketball for the girls. The nonsensical part of the whole procedure is the fact that the provincial girls interscholastic play-downs are not scheduled until along in April, thus the local group winners, who having won their group championship the autumn before, are asked to step in against other group winners who are fresh from group competition.

* * *

Really the local system of declaring a group winner early in the autumn and having them lie idle until late the next April is most absurd and warrants a change. For instance, the local B.C.I. and V.S. girls won the Bay of Quinte group away last December and have to depend on exhibition games to keep them in trim until they compete in the provincial interscholastic finals in April. By starting their group around January 1st each season the winners of the Bay of Quinte section would be travelling at top form when it came time for the provincial play-downs.

* * *

Coach Allison, who guides the destinies of the feminine cagers at the B.C.I. and V.S., recently took her senior charges to Kingston where they defeated the Queen's senior intercollegiate girls' basketball team. So well did the tri-color perform that they have been invited to play another game in the spacious Queen's gymnasium. The gymnasium at Queen's University is one of the largest in Canada but apparently was made to order for the local girls as they turned in their best performance of the season when they downed the Queen's senior girls. When a collegiate team can take a senior university team into camp it is worthy of note. The local feminine cagers are scheduled to play at Queen's next Saturday when the two E.O.A.B.A. teams also journey to Kingston for league competition.

* * *

Reginald "Hooley" Smith, the centre-ice star of Montreal Maroons, has been termed "Hooley" all his life. He was called "Happy Holligan" then a noted comic-section character by his father when a mere youngster and the name stuck to him through life.

* * *

In other centres about the province the anglers are convening fortnightly in anticipation for the coming season. For the last two seasons the local Anglers' Association has done yeomen work in the off season by virtue of their many meetings and the splendid addresses heard from time to time. The demonstrations previously given by expert fly and plug casters also stimulated considerable interest in the sport. It is hoped that those guiding the destinies of the local organization will keep up the good work so well established in the past.

A reader writes in to inform us that the late Bill Allen in 1908 was the first junior hockey player of Belleville to be picked for the All-Star Eastern Ontario team. On the other hand there were plenty of local players of a later date who would have been named on the All-Star team had the custom not been discontinued. At that, the All-Star team idea was but to give the Toronto moguls an opportunity to watch the best pucksters in the province in action thereby giving "Hog Town" an opportunity to pick the best material for the following season.

* * *

According to this week's O.H.A. bulletin the winner of the Trenton-Cobourg series plays in Belleville on Friday night thus dispensing with all previous rumors relating to the possible switching of these games. Naturally the return game will be played next Monday night. The Dohertys went through a stiff work-out last evening, that is, those who deemed it profitable to put in an appearance.

* * *

Playing a steady game throughout, the Trenton intermediates blanked the Cobourg Waverleys by the score of 2 to 0 right in Cobourg last evening. The Bowen-coached crew now enjoy a two point margin in the return game tomorrow night. Perhaps the Waverleys will now realize that a hockey game cannot be won in the penalty box. On the other hand Joe Gould, who seems to be having things pretty well his own way these days, again was the Trenton hero as he turned in a marvellous game in the nets. So hysterical did the Waverleys become that but two of their players graced the ice once, Archie Campbell and a defenceman. The other four were caught in the act of laying on the gad and banished by referee "Army" Armstrong.

Casper Oimen of Minot, N.D., recently captured the United States ski jumping championship in the tournament held near Chicago, Ill. He made leaps of 170 and 175 feet. Oimen held the title in 1929, 1930 and 1931, and was a member of the 1932 Olympic team.

MARMORA H.S. TIES TWEED

Overtime Played But the Score at End Was 3-3

Marmora, Feb. 6 (Special)—Marmora High School met Tweed High School on Saturday night on the former's ice. The ice was in excellent condition and play was good. Both teams worked hard, but seemingly the tie could not be broken.

In the first period, Tom Shannon displayed wonderful hockey, and after two minutes of play he scored while shortly after Rashotte of Tweed scored for the visitors. In the second John O'Neill captured a nice one for the home team which was disputed, but finally accepted as fair, this being balanced by a nice goal by Arber for Tweed.

In the third Homer Hewitt scored, and Maguire for Tweed making a score of 3-3. Ten minutes overtime was played but neither team scored.

Line-ups of teams as follows:

Marmora — Centre, T. Shannon, wings, E. Paquet and H. Hewitt, defence R. Smith and J. O'Neill, goal F. Callery.

Alternates—P. Gray, W. Simmons and R. Loveless.

Tweed — Centre Maguire, wings, R. Rashotte and Huffman, defence Leal and Arber, goal Reeves.

Alternates—Sayers, Tummon Elsbury, Bowers, F. Courneyea, goal.

Penalties—T. Shannon, Hewitt, and O'Neill, for Marmora, Huffman and Maguire for Tweed.

The pupils of M.H.S. entertained the Tweed boys at a delightful lunch and party in the school.

CATARACTS MAY BE IN PLAYOFFS

Defeat Kitchener Empires Although Hard Pressed In Last Frame

Niagara Falls, Ont., Feb. 6 (CP)—Hockey fans here are now confident the Cataracts will be in the O.H.A. Senior "A" play-offs and were gleeful today in the realization, despite the fact it was from the lowly Kitchener Empires the local team last night garnered the needed two points.

One thousand fans saw the home team take a 3-0 lead and then nearly lose it to the hard-fighting Kitchener boys who banged in two counters in the last period to make the final score 3-2.

The game was fast and open with both teams capitalizing on penalties. Both goalers, Berner in the Kitchener nets and Cuthbert in the Falls', played fine games but individual honors for the evening went to Lamson on the Falls' defence, who supplied two passes that led to goals and turned in a great defensive effort.

SYMPHONY OF MOVEMENT AS GRACEFUL FIGURE SKATERS VIE FOR HONORS

Nothing is more graceful, more full of poise and symphonic movement than figure skating—especially when the skating is being executed by such fair feminine stars as those shown above. These pictures were taken at the twenty-third annual Canadian figure skating championships held at Toronto and show, upper left, Miss Eva Lopdell of the Minto Club, Ottawa, upper right, Audrey Garland of Winnipeg, who, paired with Mr. Fraser Sweatman of the same city, captured the pair honors. Lower left, Miss Louise Courney, Ottawa, and lower right, Miss Eleanor O'Meara, Toronto.

LOVE'S LOTTERY

— by —

Katharine Haviland-Taylor

Mrs. Higgins, who fed the boys who had no wives or homes, said "some girl" had done it. "I'd like to give her a talking to!" she ended angrily.

When the calendar told Terry that two weeks had passed, his heart told him that living for him was even more difficult than it had been "at first". "I must pull myself together!" he thought frequently and determinedly, but the resolve did nothing. Pierre continued to be disconsolate over the fact that the good food he cooked so well was almost untouched, and the overseer worried about Sir Terrill's long tramps.

"There's a pack of men lurkin' 'round here, Sir Terrill," he stated. "I had to turn away some low trash last harvest; they was abusin' hosses; and they got it in for me and maybe for you too. You never can tell how a snake's goin' to strike. So if I was you, I'd pack a gun [illegible] I want strollin', and keep my eye peeled, too."

Terry kept an "eye peeled" and his Colt within easy reach. A man did not let himself go under and out—because the least of him cried for oblivion; no, he fought then all the harder to retain the life that had grown bitter. Only cads, to Sir Terrill, prated of suicide when life was too acid a dose for them.

There had been a few days of close to unremitting blizzard during which Terry had been pent in "the big house" and here, for the most part, he had sat before a fire, staring into it. His own recipe for vanquishing any manner of foe was to face the foe frankly and in the open.

To the crackle or the low singing of the fire and to the howl of the wind, he dreamed of all that he had hoped might be, and of the one girl who could have made it be.

It left him—this indulgence, which he had hoped would mean the first step in a cure—spent, and convinced that such love as his, unrequited, could, with the least bit of added pressure, turn a man quite ravingly and hideously mad. One thing steadied him—his realization of his many dependents who could not, from pride, be anyone else's. He had to take hold again—somehow — learn the finding some pleasure through little contentments, and a resignation to the fact that he would never know joy.

He tried, with pitiful earnestness, to interest himself in the "ranch family" (a large one) and their children——but the children had their power to bruise his already agony-crammed heart—Cicily had been one of the few of her sex he had known, to say, frankly, that she wanted children.

Mrs. Higgins, the adviser to the small settlement, was confirmed one day in her theory about Sir Terrill's change, from a story that she told him. He had remembered a rather dreamy-eyed boy who was no longer among the workers, to ask of him. "Was he one of the ones Tilden had to turn off for the winter?" Sir Terrill asked. Mrs. Higgins shook her head. "No," she said; "it was another story, Sir Terrill, and a real old one, I guess. He got sweet on Lew Marsh's daughter—Lew lives in the village, you know, in that white house with the green blinds, by the store—and she would not hear to having him even near her, and he went to Tilden one morning, and he says he couldn't stand it no more, and he up an' went. That was all of it."

"He should have written me," said Terry, who had grown white. "If you ever hear of him, or see him, Mrs. Higgins, tell him to write me. I'll see that he gets —a very good job!"

Terry left soon after, and watching him away she thought, "That is it! I was right! Little cat! I'd like to have a chance to say my say to her! I dunno how any girl could turn him down!"

Miss Ella, in New York, was feeling again as she had in England, when she wanted "to get the roses back to those cheeks!" But more so, because this suffering of Cicily's paled the last to make it seem childishly inconsequential and a weak preface for this moment. Cicily was now physically as well as mentally smitten; unsteady, without appetite, unable to sleep. A good many specialists answered Miss Ella's summons, to sit by Cicily's bed and to depart, murmuring of rest, of change and of the fact that something was on Miss Cicily Eden's mind.

Heretofore, Miss Ella had loved a doctor almost as well as she loved a lord. But now she dismissed them all, lips tightening, as "fools! Fools!"

"What have they done for her?" she asked of Albion, who haunted the apartment with books and flowers.

"What is the matter with her?" asked Albion who, these days, sometimes showed the years that his many interests had mluted for him.

Miss Ella raised her brows. "You know," she answered crisply, "she has learned the truth about Geoffrey Field. And—it's killing her!"

"But anyway," Albion murmured miserably, "she is through with him, and that is —something!"

Miss Ella's eyes filled; "it is making her want to be through with herself!" she stated. "There are days," she went on, "when I'd al- Travel was suggested, new scenes, man back? When I'd welcome the devil himself if he could make Cicily laugh and smile and eat and sleep and—want to live!"

And a tear rilled down Miss Ella's twitching cheek.

Travel was suggested, new scenes, work, a little shop of some sort in which Cicily would invest enough to make her take a proprietary interest. And to each suggestion Miss Ella took exception. "One cannot dupe her," she pointed out; "she is too clever. One can divert fools, not people—who—well, think."

At the end of the second week of Cicily's "strange upset" Miss Ella summoned a rather plain little doctor who had helped a neurotic niece of Miss Julia Pearly in Brooklyn. He heard Miss Ella's confused account of Cicily's symptoms, with her confession of her love for Cicily; and after this was done, and Miss Ella was dabbing her eyes, he said, "You'll have to make her tell you what troubles her; then perhaps we can do something. Has she dismissed the man she loves for some reason that is unreal, but real to her? Or has he grown tired of her?"

"No man has ever grown tired of my niece," Miss Ella answered sternly.

"No?" he questioned. It was, to him, who knew too many men and women too thoroughly, " a pretty tall statement!"

Miss Ella, seeing doubt in his face and fearing a profane touch of her idol, babbled quickly, breathlessly, of Cicily's conquests; of her aversion to young men and to their "declaring themselves"; of how "quite everywhere, Doctor Denton she is sought!"

The babbling helped him; just so, and often, he acquired from the families of his patients, the patient's symptoms.

A moment later he stood looking down at Cicily who had not, that day, felt "quite like getting up." He drew a chair close to her bed; she said then to Miss Ella, and with a curtness she would not have excused in any one except one who might serve Cicily, "I will join you later, Miss Eden...." and he nodded toward the doorway.

Alone with Cicily, Dr. Denton said abruptly, "You don't look weak; what's the matter with you?"

CHAPTER 28

"I don't seem to be able to eat or sleep," Cicily began wearily. She had said this so frequently and with no result, and she wanted only to be "let alone!"

"I am not speaking of the physical manifestation of your decay," Dr. Denton stated in an insolent drawl. "I'm speaking of that which matters in your sort of case, the mental. Of course, you and your sort—" (He sat back in the straight chair, balancing it on its hind legs, teetering on it back and forth) "you and your sort," he repeated, "are used to having the best from life served you on platters. Yet, looking at you, I would say from the firmness of your oval chin that you could conquer difficulties, could fight for the thing you really need. Why haven't you tried?"

Cicily felt herself stiffen as she heard herself telling him of it. She had meant to tell no one of it; but she whispered, as she covered her eyes with the back of a suddenly clenched hand, "He doesn't love me!"

"Um? Really?" Dr. Denton murmured, "Well, why don't you make him love you?"

She removed the hand to turn her head and to look at him.

"Did he love you at one time?" Dr. Denton probed on.

"Yes—I know he did. He did! Very much." (Her lips quivered).

"Spring comes, you know, quite frequently, my child. And more and more frequently, as we grow older and the seasons grow shorter. Most men loving a woman once can love her again. You're very rarely beautiful and I'm quite certain that any wooing from you would succeed."

She sat up in bed. He gave her a negligee that hung on the foot of her bed and she pulled it around her shoulders with unsteady, clumsily thickened, fingers.

"If a man loves a woman he goes after her. Women of to-day are more honest and therefore more decent. Go after him and fight to get him. Tell him you want to be put on probation and then—walk, pretty and—make him look up!"

She laughed unsteadily. He saw tears brim in her eyes.

"Tell me about it," he ordered, bringing his chair to a level and leaning toward her, his forearms on his knees, "the whole story. My picture ought to be on every valentine, really. There are two hundred and sixty-nine yelling little brats—all over this section of the world—named for me. Proves it? Um?"

"Yes—" she admitted.

"Why did you love him, first, child?"

"I didn't love him at first, but we had so many tastes that were same, music, books art—silence even—amusements and—things that made amusement in us—and—and—everything—"

He clapped his hands together with a resounding smack. He was electrified by his own energy which was grown of pleasure—triumph; an energy he gave generously, again and again, to those he helped and yet an energy which grew in him, despite all those who sapped it.

"My child," he said loudly, "when physicians and parsons learn their jobs—which often impinge—overlap—they'll say, 'Marry for same tastes and you'll find love grows of them!' I have people who are sick from hunting love and the preachers have people who are sick from hunting God; and they're all hunting one thing and that is someone who will share their burdens, sorrows, joys. If your man hasn't enough sense to see all that you have," he went on with even increased energy, "you make him see it. You drag him to your den by his hair, if you have to! And —he'll thank you for it some day! Where is he?"

"I prescribe," he said slowly, "one airplane and a change of scene and air."

Cicily sank back, breathless, stars in her eyes, color high in her cheeks which had been too pale. For a moment she closed her eyes. When they opened, she said, and again her voice was listless, "Suppose he did not want to? He would not refuse me—he's too much a gentleman—to hurt me so."

It was going to be a job, Dr. Denton saw. He began to speak quietly, but firmly. The quiet, certain voice had an hypnotic effect. He felt her being influenced. And when, an hour later, he quitted Miss Ella Eden's apartment, he knew that he had won; but he realized, also, that on the morrow he might—probably would—have to fight the battle anew. Those sick of heart or in body, he had learned, lacked the strength to cling to a decision, preferring, it seemed, to be tossed upon and torn by the many currents made of their feverish imaginings.

Well, that problem was the morrow's; now, he must go to see a woman who was certain her child would not have died after a major operation if she had been at its bedside; and then to visit a man who was painfully pulling himself away from a well-rooted habit of drugs. And after this session Dr. Denton would hurry on to others that differed little; but his work it was and he gave to it a passionate love and a whole devotion.

"That child is worth saving," Dr. Denton decided, with one mental, back glance at Cicily Eden. He squared his shoulders.

Alone, Cicily was elated for a little time to a shaken strength by the thought of going to Terry. Then back came the chilling thought that Terry would marry her, wanting to or not, and again she crept into the bed she had left. How cruel the doctor had been, who had taken her to the hilltop from which she had been plunged into the valley of shadow by her cool reasoning.

Terry looked dully over the head of Pierre, who was at his feet buckling the straps of snowshoes.... The blizzard was over for the time and Terry meant to tramp, this time until he was so tired so utterly dog-tired, that he must sleep.

"You remember what Tilden, he say about bad men?" Pierre questioned as he rose.

"Yes, I have my Colt, Pierre."

"You may need him."

"Probably not. Have dinner a little late; I'm headed for a long tramp."

"I have him late. You bring hunger in-you, please?"

Terry hurrying toward the valley, felt the sweep of the wind upon his cheeks, cold, cutting, and carrying in it the snow that had clung thickly upon the trees. The sun was bright and it set a blinding sparkle upon the winter-clad land. In normal mood he would have reacted keenly, but as it was, he plodded on dully, planning his fatigue as a man harassed beyond reason, plans the dose that will give to him lethe. Down to the valley; into the woods; through them and into the space that was called "the second valley"; beyond that, if it was not then too late, and—home again. That would make a good mileage and an ache in every hard muscle in his well kept body. Poison for poison; aches for aches. Perhaps his heart would not this night, ache with so full and crippling an intensity.

He plodded on steadily, seeing Cicily's face against the white that stretched before him. Cicily, smiling; Cicily, with wonder in her eyes; Cicily, oval chin a little lifted, as he had seen it twice, when some one had said a thing she considered to be "rather unpleasant". A clean, decent mind, hers, he thought. "Everything about her," he said aloud, "so utterly—almost unbelievably,—lovely, beautiful"!

Suddenly he realized that his furious pace had taken him to the edge of "the second valley" and that he had wandered far. Below him, in the gently cupped hollow, was a stretch of low land studded by bushes. The expanse, and in spite of a cabin Terry presumed it to be empty—looked as if men had troubled its calm rarely, if at all. He headed toward the cabin, thinking he would start a small fire to warm up a bit before his homeward start.

As he neared the cabin he saw motion behind a dense line of bushes. He called, "Hallo!" There was no answer. He waited. "I say!" he added in his crisp, British way, and loudly. Still no answer. He saw the motion creeping along the bushes, like the gentle motion of a weary wave. "Dash it!" he thought, and he reached for his Colt, but as he reached for it he felt fire in his shoulder and his arm went limp. The rotten cad had got him! He clamped his left hand quickly to his shoulder, to feel a spreading warmth that was made of his blood.

There was no motion now in the dense thicket.

"You've winged me!" Terry called. "You're a damned yellow coward to shoot from cover! I'll get you—if I live!"

He turned his back to the bushes then; it was his form of raising the white flag not even a man who shot from cover, Terry felt certain, would shoot an adversary in the back.

When he reached higher land and a small shelter made by young pine trees, he paused. Awkwardly he knotted a handkerchief around his upper arm and shoulder, pulling it tight with his strong teeth and his left hand, and inserting his pipe stem in the knot, which he then twisted, making an effective tourniquet. The bushes and vast stretch of snow were blurring for him a little.

He must, he realized, stop the flow of blood and cover the miles that lay between him and "the big house". It would be easy to lie down upon the snow and to let go, but—he must fight, hating the fight, to live.

TARZAN AT THE EARTH'S CORE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Jason's excitement was at the highest pitch. Instinctively he grabbed at the thing falling upon him. At first he thought it was a Horib who had discovered their plan for escape. So he clung desperately and pulled with all his might. To his astonishment he found he grasped the powerful muscles of a man's legs. Nevertheless he was determined to drag the creature into the hole, whoever he was. Then slowly but surely he felt himself being lifted upward.

As the earth gave way under Tarzan and he felt something in the hole grab his legs, he was buried almost to his armpits. But he had regained his rifle which had fallen nearby in a horizontal position. As the ape-man was dragged slowly inward, the rifle's muzzle and butt lodged upon opposite sides of the aperture, forming a rigid bar across the hole's opening. And as he clung to it, steadily Tarzan's steel biceps tensed and he slowly [illegible] himself [illegible]ward.

Jason strained and struggled frantically but he could not overcome the steady pull that was lifting him toward the surface of the ground. He knew now the creature to which he clung was no Horib for his grasp was not upon fish-like scales but the smooth, firm flesh of a human being. Suddenly he was knocked backward by a powerful blow in his stomach which forced him to let go his hold. When he came to, only the blue sky, seen through the tunnel's exit, was above him.

The Horib had witnessed Tarzan's mysterious sinking into the ground. Waiting not to investigate the miracle, he seized Jana and dragged her away with him. The two were just disappearing among the trees as Tarzan, emerging from the shaft, caught sight of them. A growl like an enraged beast's came from his lips as he realized his sinking into the hole might keep him from rescuing Jana. Then it was he gave the violent kick that sent Jason Gridley sprawling.

MARMORA H. S. HOLDS DANCE

Annual At-Home is Successful Event

Marmora—On Friday evening, Feb. 3rd, in the Town Hall, the staff and students of Marmora High School held their annual At-Home.

The hall was very artistically and gracefully decorated in the school colors, red, white and black, done in streamer effect. The windows and lights being done in this effective manner, gave a most subdued tone. The stage, too, was very gay and colorful in streamers of black, white and red.

The letters "M. H. S." prominent at the extreme back, proved most effective, and with two bridge lamps in contrasting colors, made a pretty setting, forming a canopy where the orchestra played. Excellent music was furnished by Jack Grant and his Aces.

During the course of the evening two novelty dances were much enjoyed. One being a so-called "Flower Dance", the lucky persons being Miss Lemoine West, and Mr. Geo. Maybee, both of Madoc. The other being an "Animal Dance" and won by Miss Mabel McCarthy and Mr. Leo. Forestell, both of Marmora.

A very dainty luncheon was served by the girls and boys of the Fifth Form. Downstairs, two tables were prettily decorated in the pleasing school colors, with glowing candles on each.

An exceptionally large crowd was in attendance, with outside towns well represented. Guests from Havelock, Stirling, Belleville, Madoc and Trenton were present. Much praise is due the staff and students in the keen interest taken in the dance and the manner in which things were so well looked after. The guests were presented to the receiving committee by John O'Neill of Deloro.

Miss A. M. Rayburn Elected Chairman of Tweed Board

Has Served as School Trustee For Several Years

Tweed—The regular meeting of the Young People's Society of the United Church was held on Monday evening under the Social, Recreational and Literary groups with Miss Lois Ketcheson in charge. After the opening hymn, and prayer by Rev. R. R. Nicholson, Miss Cora Moffatt sang "Only a Rose." The feature number of the program "An Evening with Pauline Johnston" took the form of an Indian gathering around a camp fire. Miss Dorothy Barnett gave an account of the life of Pauline Johnston. Miss Audrey Prust read "The Legend of Qu'Appelle." "The Cattle Thief" was dramatized by Misses Margaret and Cora Moffat, Isobel Ellis Lois Ketcheson, Dorothy Alexander, Audrey Prust and Ethel Kerr.

A debate "Resolved that a good book is a better companion than a man" followed with Misses C. Moffat and Marjorie Perty upholding the affirmative and Messrs John Campbell and Don McCrea the negative. The judges gave no decision. Games and refreshments concluded a most interesting evening.

A grant of $75 by the County Council to Tweed Public Library is a most welcome contribution to the funds of the Library which is having a difficult struggle to maintain an up-to-date book list. The board is grateful to Reeve W. H. Sayers for his successful support of the move by County Council to pay this grant.

At the January meeting of Tweed Consolidated School Board, Miss A. M. Rayburn was elected to fill the office of chairman for the current year. Miss Rayburn, the only lady member ever to hold membership on the Board, has served the ratepayers of the section efficiently for many years and has a deep interest in the welfare of the children. Anything that means better conditions for them is sure of her loyal support. Mr. C. R. Porritt was again named Secretary-Treasurer.

The annual meeting of the congregation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was held on Tuesday evening with the minister, Rev. W. A. Hunter as chairman. The reports as given by the leaders of the various departments were most encouraging. Mr. S. R. Rollins, financial secretary, and Mr. Garrett Morton, treasurer, reported a reduction in receipts and expenditures, leaving a balance on hand, which compared favourably with that of the previous year.

The Sunday School report was given by Mr. W. A. Stewart showing a small balance after all expenses had been met. The Ladies' Aid report given by Mrs. D. W. Sills showed that fine work had been accomplished by this organization during the year which closed with a balance of $10 on hand. During the year the church raised the splendid sum of $1050 for all purposes.

The church officials elected for the year 1934:

Board of Managers—Messrs. Howard Countryman, H. Murphy, J. L. McGowan, A. Alexander, S. B. Rollins, H. W. Crosbie and A. McCarey.

Trustees—Dr. W. M. Mather, Messrs S. B. Rollins, W. D. Irvin.

Refreshments were served by the ladies of the congregation.

POISON USED IN SPY PLOT

Authorities Claim Ample Evidence Maid Poisoned Colonel

Helsingfors, Finland, Feb. 5 (AP)—Despite negative results of a chemical analysis following disinterment of the body of Lieutenant-Colonel Walter Asplund, head of a government munitions factory, authorities maintained today as he was poisoned in connection with a spy plot.

Completing his analysis, Dr. Haemaelaeinen said: "I am unable to determine finally what poison killed Col. Asplund."

This still left an open question as to whether Asplund was poisoned at all, but authorities claimed they possess ample other evidence to prove Jenny Antilla, 30, a serving maid, poisoned the Colonel.

FEARS DECORATIONS MAY FALL DOWN

A well known resident of the city is responsible for the statement that the Christmas decorations which are still left suspended in an arch across the upper and lower bridges in the city are in weakened state, and may collapse following a heavy wind. Two guy wires, it is claimed, have snapped on the supports of the lower bridge, and a noticeable teeter is observed when the wind blows. Small fragments of the evergreen boughs used to trim the arches are also stripping and falling. Questioned today, Mr. Fred Smythe who originally placed the decorations, stated he was still awaiting orders to remove them.

London, Ont., Feb. 5 (CP)—Found in a dying condition in a snowbank at the door of a burning chicken coop at the Ontario Hospital at noon, with his throat slashed almost from ear to ear, Alexander Beloukhin, a 46 years old Russian patient is not expected to live more than a few hours. Hospital doctors early this afternoon held only slight hopes for his recovery.

CLUB PRESENTS FINAL GROUP OF PLAYS FOR YEAR

Green-Room Club and Literary Society in Splendid Year

The last set of plays to be presented by the Green Room Club and Literary Society of the Belleville Collegiate, are to be staged on Wednesday, Feb. 7 at 8.15 o'clock.

The bill consists of three one act plays, and selections by the Collegiate orchestra.

Philip Moeller's play "Helena's Husband," directed by Betty Ilsley and Peggy Templeton is the first on the programme. The story is centered round the flight of Helen of Troy with Paris. The brisk action, combined with humour and comedy of the dialogue, makes it an ideal curtain-raiser.

The second play by Lord Dunsany, "A Night in An Inn," and directed by W. B. Gerrard, is in a more serious strain, and should provide not a few thrills. The story concerns a number of men, gathered in an Inn, and the subsequent adventures which befall them, prove both exciting and interesting, holding the attention to the very end.

And then, as the crowning glory of the evening, "The Young Thespians" present their Festival entry, "They Refuse to be Resurrected," by N. K. Smith.

This play has absorbed a great deal of time and painstaking effort on the part of the cast and of the director, Miss N. P. Merry, and would alone be worth seeing at the price. Tickets for the same play at Kingston will be 75c, so the advantages of seeing it at the Collegiate are quite apparent.

The plot is woven around a young author, who attempts to copy the style of different playwrights and as he writes, Pierrot, Columbine, and Harlequin, put his ideas into actions and words.

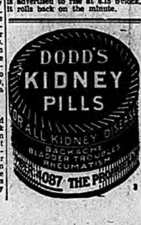
In addition to this most delectable bit of entertainment, the school orchestra will also be present, to fill in between acts with fine music. Those who have not been privileged to hear the Collegiate orchestra should not miss this opportunity to remedy a very serious neglect of duty, and see for themselves, the extent of the latest Collegiate activities.

For the last few years the Green Room Club and Literary Society, have been building up a reputation for punctuality, when the curtain is advertised to rise at 8.15 o'clock, it rolls back on the minute.

This may be a trivial matter on the surface, but if you have ever attended a performance, scheduled to begin at a certain hour, and then have to wait ten, twenty, or even thirty minutes after the appointed opening time, you will appreciate this important point. Rest assured then, and be advised beforehand that those who arrive before 8.15 Collegiate time will be able to witness a curtain rolling back on the minute.

These will be the last school plays of the term and so should not be missed by any one. The level of dramatics in the Collegiate is at present quite enviable and should be encouraged by all interested in the building of a sound, solid and substantial name for the local Institute of Learning. Never before did the Green Room Club and Literary Society of the Belleville Collegiate receive such sincere praise, hearty congratulations, and support than during their last play, "Arms And The Man."

And the result; The members of these two organizations will let nothing interfere with giving their best, striving to their utmost to keep their plays on the highest level, and continue to make every performance they present, one which the people of Belleville will hold to be even better than the preceding one.



OVERCOME BY GAS

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Feb. 5.—(CP)—Overcome by carbon monoxide while piloting a transport over No. 2 Highway eastbound, Morris Taylor and H. Taylor was the worst of the two men riding in the close cab of the transport and had to be dragged from the vehicle. Both men have now left the hospital, continuing their trip eastward.

BOYS CONFESS PLOT TO EXTORT MONEY

Made Dire Threats Against Children if Father Did Not Give Money

Augusta, Me., Feb. 5—(AP)—Three high school boys sat in cells in the county jail today accused of a plot to extort $20,000 from William P. Viles, prominent Augusta and Boston resident, through threats against his children.

The boys, Merle W. Hughes, 18, Robert Brown, 16, and Gerald A. Towle, 16, were charged with writing a letter threatening to abduct or disfigure one of the Viles' children unless their demands were met.

Captain Joseph F. Young, Deputy Chief of the State Police said the youths confessed Sunday after nearly four hours of questioning.

ROADS STILL ARE CLOSED

Western Ontario Still in Grips of Snow Fall

Kitchener, Ont., Feb. 5 (CP) — While the "big bad bear" snoozed comfortably after seeing his shadow on Friday last, Waterloo County today slowly recovered from one of the worst snowstorms of the year.

Highways choked by drift snow were being opened as rapidly as possible by snowploughs which were sent out early Sunday. The main arteries of travel throughout the County were open to traffic at noon today.

Side roads in many cases, however, were still impassable to motor traffic.

Fort Erie, Ont., Feb. 7—(CP)—The water level of Lake Erie has dropped this winter one and a half feet below the average level of the past 10 years according to figures issued by the United States Geodetic survey. The lake level is one-sixth lower than in December although during the past 30 years the January level has been higher than that of December. Diversion of water from the lake to the Chicago drainage canal is responsible for the shrinkage, it is believed.

Several of the members of the crew remained behind to aid in completing the job of moving stores from the unloading docks on the bay to the permanent camp. They will go north, when the Bear of Oakland supply ship sails.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Feb. 7—(CP)—Minds of members of the Soo Hackle Club today were turned to decide whether married or single men made the best fishermen. At the conclusion of a lengthy and formal debate on the subject, no decision was reached. D. H. Jones, on behalf of the married affirmatives argued that economic conditions compelled the married anglers to "bring home the bacon", hence a higher incentive to fish successfully. Jones also pointed out that married anglers had on every occasion, captured the Ananias Cup for the tallest fish stories told by members. If they were better prevaricators they were better fishermen, he said.

Daladier Government Resigns, Doumergue Ready to Head Cabinet

Fatal Clash in Rioting in Place de la Concorde, Paris, Stirs People—Anxious Night Spent by French People, Although Daladier Carrie- Three Votes of Confidence in Chamber of Deputies.

PARIS, Feb. 7 (AP)—Premier Edouard Daladier and his cabinet resigned today while menacing crowds thronged the streets of the capital.

President Lebrun accepted their resignations and tendered the Premiership immediately to Gaston Doumergue, former President of France, but Doumergue refused the post.

Daladier announced his decision to withdraw from the government after a night-long conference with President Lebrun while police and city officials checked the toll of mad mob violence.

Daladier's decision to resign came as crowds gathered again in the streets and it appeared that there was a possibility of more bloodshed in further rioting.

The Premier's decision marked the passing of the fifth government since January 28, 1933.

It was the second resignation for Daladier in the same period, he having resigned a previous premiership last October after succeeding Joseph Paul-Boncour in January. Daladier was followed that time by Albert Sarraut who lasted from October 27 to November 23. Sarraut in turn was succeeded by Camille Chautemps who held office from November 27 until January 27 when Daladier succeeded him.

Not only did Daladier himself announce his retirement from the government, but he stated that he also had given President Lebrun the resignations of the entire cabinet.

PARIS, Feb. 7 (AP)—Casualties in last night's rioting as listed officially today were:

Dead—6 civilians; 3 Republican Guards missing, whose bodies, the government believed, were thrown into the River Seine;

Injured—170 civilians; 180 police; 180 Mounted Republican Guards; 100 Mobile Guards.

Unofficial estimates placed the death list at from 12 to 50. Other statistics showed 14,000 police had battled 50,000 civilians until 4 a.m.

The streets were deserted after that hour but at noon today crowds began reassembling.

Their ominous rumblings overshadowed the resumption of rioting.

The police were jeered on the boulevards and on the squares. There were frequent cries of:

"Assassins!"

As the crowds grew more dense the police were reinforced in an effort to carry out anti-assembly orders issued last night by Eugene Frot, Minister of the Interior.

A definite action to induce the cabinet to resign was crystallized at a meeting of opposition deputies headed by Andre Tardieu, former premier, and Pierre Laval, another former premier.

SILENCE FOR "ASSASSINATED"

They decided to ask the President of the Chamber and the President of the Senate to go to Lebrun and ask bluntly for Daladier's resignation.

Even as the political oppositionists met, the Bourse—French Stock Exchange—observed five minutes of silence for "those who were assassinated last night."

The phrase was written in chalk on the board of the exchange.

Daladier, who sat in silence last night when angry deputies demanded from the floor of the Chamber if he gave "the order to fire on the people," spent most of the night with President Lebrun.

He emerged just before dawn from the conference. He appeared stern and haggard.

Then he gave forth the authority to reinforce the 14,000 police on duty with more regiments of troops.

The legislators themselves were the object of bitter feelings by the crowds.

Friends of Edouard Herriot, former premier, who is regarded as a possibility to return to that post, said both Royalists and Communists jostled him last night as he left the Chamber.

Another hooting crowd recognized Senator Camille

Starlings Rooted from One Spot but Finally Roost on Dome of Capitol

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—(CP)—It was roosting time for the starlings, and the powers-that-be had decided they should not roost on the United States Capitol.

Fifteen husky Capitol policemen with a pistol apiece and a pocketful of blank cartridges gathered around. At an order from Captain William S. Orthman they loaded their guns.

"Fire!" he shouted.

Fifteen guns spoke. Flames spat from pistol barrels in the general direction of the Capitol Dome. Several hundred starlings flew away.

The policemen ran up the steps. They loaded their pistols. They fired again. More starlings flew away. The policemen ran down the steps. They loaded their pistols. They fired. And still more starlings flew away.

Just as Captain Orthman was about to decide that he had fought it out on that line he looked at the Senate and house wings of the Capitol.

The hundreds of starlings hadn't really gone any place. They had simply taken a little spin from the dome to the wings of the wide building.

And in a few minutes they were all roosting just where they had intended to roost all the time—on the dome of the Capitol.

MAN IN STREET OVERTHROWS TWO CABINETS

Riots Break Out Anew as Guards Charge Paris Crowds

NOTE OF HORROR

Press Critical of Attitude of Political Leaders

Paris, Feb. 7—(CP)—The anger of the man in the street and not the opposition of the politician in the Chamber today was credited with having overthrown the Chautemps and Daladier cabinets.

Riots flared from a number of causes, chief among them the Stavisky-Bayonne pawnshop scandal, in which the public allegedly was fleeced of at least $40,000,000.

But a number of other situations played their part in bringing the republic to its greatest crisis in years.

Public bitterness accumulated against high taxes, increased when Chautemps shoved through his budget-balancing programme. This involved reductions in the pay of thousands of government employees and they gave vent to anger.

In Northern France and the great coal mining districts there were numerous demonstrations for employment.

Press Comments

Paris, Feb. 7—(CP Cable)—A note of horror coupled with a demand for reform on parliament runs through today's press comments on last night's tragic riotings.

The Paris Midi compares the spectacle of French war heroes struck down as they chanted battle hymns of the Marne with that of politicians and profiteers "protected behind thick walls by an armed guard". It demanded dissolution of the Chamber of Deputies.

Marcel Lucain, in the same newspaper, calls for a national assembly and reform of the "worn-out, archaic constitution. Let us have a Liberal and real Republic, not one of "comrades." Give us a parliament which can legislate otherwise than under the protection of the army, and a government which can govern," he demanded.

Doumergue Agrees

Paris, Feb. 7—(AP)—Gaston Doumergue, 70-year-old former President, agreed today to become Premier in an effort to calm a rioting France.

The riots continued, with mobs parading the boulevards.

Violence broke out in the Place De La Concorde, around the president's palace, around the Madeleine Church and down the Rue Royale leading into the Place De La Concorde.

(Jessie I. Straus, United States Ambassador, telephoned the State Department in Washington that martial law was in force in Paris but not in the rest of the nation.)

Doumergue was called in to save the situation shortly after Edouard Daladier, Premier until today, resigned taking his whole cabinet with him.

FOUR BURNED IN FARM HOME

Believe Overheated Stove is Cause of Serious Blaze

EDMONTON, Feb. 7.—(CP)—The charred bodies of a farm family were prepared for burial today while police sought to learn the origin of a fire that razed the home of Albert Baes, near Roycroft, and cremated a family of four.

The dead: Maurice Baes, 41, his wife, Martha, 38, and Marie, 10 and Charles 7.

The Baes farmstead was the locale of a happy party last Saturday to celebrate the birthday of Charles. Neighbors in the district, 350 miles northwest of here, gathered to celebrate the occasion. The guests left shortly before midnight.

Sparks from an overheated stove, it is believed, ignited decorations hanging nearby. Trapped in their sleeping quarters the family burned to death as flames and smoke barred their way to safety. Word of the tragedy reached there Tuesday.

Neighbors made the discovery two days later. A pile of charred embers was all that remained of the Baes home. In the blackened ruins police found the burned bodies of the victims. That of the father and one of the children lay close to a door, mute evidence of their fight to escape the flames.

OUSTERS STIRS RIOT

M. JEAN CHIAPPE

Dismissal by Premier Daladier of M. Jean Chiappe, as prefect of police in Paris, has stirred up the royalists of the French capital and provincial troops are being marshalled to curb the uprising. The deposed police chief was cheered wildly as he left the prefecture.

STEALING AND LOW WAGES

Judge at Montreal Comments on Salary of Convicted Teller

Montreal, Feb. 7 (CP)— Some institutions pay salaries so small their employees are "forced into stealing to make a living wage," said Judge Amedee Monet here in examining George Laliberte, 22, Banque Canadienne Nationale teller, after he had pleaded guilty of theft of $1,194 from the bank during 1932 and 1933. Laliberte was remanded yesterday for sentence.

"How long have you been working at the bank?" the Judge asked.

"Six years," Laliberte answered.

"What is your position now?"

"I am a teller."

"How much money passes through your hands in one day?"

"An average of more than $1,000."

"How much are you paid?"

"Eleven dollars a week."

"There is the answer to the question," said Judge Monet. "These financial institutions pay such small salaries that their employees are forced into stealing to make a living wage. Would you have stolen if you made $25 a week?"

"No." Laliberte replied.

INDIAN BOY ACCUSED OF SETTING FIRES

Inquiry by Police Reveals Strange Notions as to Cause

TRIAL ADJOURNS

Lad Denies Story Told Police as to Lighting Matches

Arrest of a fourteen year old Indian boy on the Indian Reservation in Tyendinaga on charges of arson in connection with four small fires in the room of the home of his grandparents on Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 27 and 28 led to the revelation of strange ideas held by some of the Indians as to the cause of the fire. The grandmother, Mrs. Josiah Brant, told Constable John Kelly of the Provincial Force that some one had put a spell on her and an invisible witch was apparently setting the fires. The officer found near the scene of the fires some burned matches but could not secure what he thought satisfactory explanation from the members of the household in regard to these matches. The accused boy, police stated, said, on his arrest that he had struck the matches.

Other members of the family were quite certain, that no living person had been upstairs previous to either pair of fires discovered on Saturday and Sunday.

The boy resides with his father and grandparents.

Investigation

All the members of the Brant family assured the police, the latter stated to the press, that no persons had been in the vicinity of the rooms in which the fire started, previous to the finding of the different blazes. All four fires, two on Saturday, Jan. 27th and two on Sunday Jan. 28th, were started in an upper bedroom and discovered by the accused boy's younger sister and his uncle, Geo. Brant. Three times curtains were found ablaze and extinguished, while the fourth time a basket of clothes was found afire.

During the investigation by Constable Kelly, the grandmother of the accused, Mrs. Josiah Brant produced a quart sealer partially filled with old safety pins, small feathers, pieces of wool and other trinkets all of which she told the officer had been placed by witches in her grand children's clothing for evil purposes.

When he appeared before Magistrate Mikel in Juvenile Court this morning, the accused lad admitted openly, he had confessed to the igniting of the fires, to the constables yesterday. "I was frightened and told him I did it," said the boy as he denied all knowledge of the fire. The lad and his uncle, George Brant, who also gave evidence, both swore that he was in Shannonville, when all four blazes were started.

Constable Kelly testified that the youth had fully admitted to the setting of the fires when arrested, even going so far as to tell the officer how he had taken the matches from a tin box in his grandmother's bedroom and ignited the curtains in the bedroom and later the basket of clothes. H. C. Argue, local insurance adjustor, corroborated the officer's story of the boy's statement.

TO BECOME EMPEROR

Here is the latest portrait of Henry Pu-Yi, future emperor of Manchoukuo, newest of world states. It is said that the forthcoming coronation comes as the result of insistent demands of the people of Manchoukuo. Chairmen of the provincial governments of the new state say the reports, are "much concerned" in receiving petitions from the people asking to have the former "boy emperor" of China as their emperor. He will be crowned on March 1st.

MRS. WALSH FREED ON MURDER CHARGE

TORONTO, Feb. 7.—(CP)—Mrs. Lillian Walsh was free today of a charge of murdering Jonathan Waite, a man with whom she lived for nine years and who died December 23, last of a knife stab in the heart.

An Ontario Supreme Court jury which deliberated last night for almost five hours found her not guilty after hearing evidence from the 37-year-old woman and her 14-year-old son, Norman, that Waite had threatened to kill her and that he had attacked her as she was working in the kitchen of their home.

Mrs. Walsh said she remembered nothing of the encounter after the time Waite had told her he was going to kill her until she found herself attempting to raise him from the floor after he was dead.

EXTORTION CHARGED

Owen Sound, Ont., Feb. 7 (CP)—Gerald Jones, former Windsor resident, will face a charge of extortion, when he appears in Walkerton police court tomorrow.

The charge was laid as a result of information given Crown Attorney Freeborn of Walkerton by Leander Good, Culross Township, Bruce County farmer, that he allegedly had signed an agreement with Jones for the payment of $1,000 to save publicity from a charge involving Jones' wife.

JAPAN FEARS WAR SAYS GENERAL TOJO

Tokyo, Feb. 7 (AP)—Japan's neighbors, United States, Russia and China, "knowing Japan is likely to be confronted with various international difficulties in November 1935, are steadily preparing for war," was the statement attributed today to Major General Eiki Tojo, Chief of the War Office's Military Investigation Bureau.

OVERCOME BY FUMES

CHATHAM, Ont., Feb. 7.—(CP)—Overcome by carbon-monoxide fumes from the running motor of their truck as they took a sleep in the cab early today, Fred and John Budd, of Hamilton, responded to oxygen treatments after efforts lasting nearly an hour. Their condition is favorable.

Dope Blot Against Steeplechase Rider Removed by Racing Board

Miami, Fla., Feb. 7—(AP)— Nat Ray, of Toronto, who years ago gained fame as a steeplechase rider, today was free of the shadow cast upon him last week when Hialeah Park Stewards suspended him after their chemist reported traces of stimulant in the saliva of a horse he raced.

The Florida Racing Commission absolved Ray of violating racing rules by stimulating a horse after witnesses testified the stimulant, in minute quantity, was contained in a tonic generally used by trainers for digestive ailments in race horses.

The commission, however, refused to alter its ruling barring from all Florida tracks Edward Haughton, Kentucky trainer, and Harry Cooper, of Vancouver, B.C., ruled off after an "anti-doping" investigation at Tropical Park about two weeks ago.

Lochness Sea-Serpent Gone! Innkeepers Want Him Back

Edinburgh, Feb. 7.—(CP Cable)—The celebrated monster of Lochness has either gone to earth or deep water.

It is now several weeks since anyone has professed to have seen him and Highland hotel-keepers are devoutly hoping he will resume his notoriously elusive appearance when the tourist season proper opens.

The monster, in fact, since he was sighted in December and his presence thereafter attested to by more than fifty persons, has put the Highlands on the map to such an extent the Inverness Council is reducing its grant to the Board which advertises the district as a holiday centre, believing the boosting of the monster may well save them their bawbees.

SHANNONVILLE SCHOOL BURNS TO GROUND

45 Scholars Without Accommodation May Meet in Church

BUILT IN 1874

100 Volunteer Firemen Fight Blaze But in Vain

Shannonville, Feb. 7 (Special)—Gutted by a raging fire which blazed fiercely between floors and spread rapidly through the building late yesterday afternoon in spite of the efforts of nearly one hundred volunteer firemen of the district to extinguish it, historic Shannonville school of Tyendinaga School Section No. 1 today is a mass of ruins. Only three brick walls are left standing of the building which was constructed in 1874. With the burning of the school 45 scholars are without accommodation, although it is expected that classes will be resumed in the Presbyterian Church which stands nearby.

A dense pall of smoke, visible for miles which climbed into the clear sky shortly after the outbreak of the fire at 2.30 o'clock in the afternoon while the children were at recess, drew hundreds of villagers and residents of the section to the scene. Bucket lines were hastily formed, and in the biting zero weather the water was passed along the lines from the Salmon River nearby to the burning building. While volunteers concentrated their attention on the work of fighting the fire, others assisted in carrying out almost everything movable in the class room. In spite of the buckets of water used to stem the blaze, the fire made rapid headway and lurid flames still leaped high at six o'clock in the evening.

Principal of the school, Phillip Knight, the only teacher, dismissed the scholars until arrangements could be made to continue studies elsewhere.

PHONE LINE BREAK TRACED TO GILMOUR

Employees of the local office of the Bell Telephone Company were tracing a break in the Bancroft-Belleville telephone line, said to have developed near Gilmour. Communication had been cut off from this city to points north of Gilmour on Tuesday.

TWO BLUE JAYS FIGHT IT OUT

Two screaming blue jays staged a flaming battle on the snow-covered road at the intersection of Front street and the upper bridge this morning while early morning workers on their way to jobs gathered in a small circle to watch the fight. Oblivious to the gathering crowd, the birds fought heatedly with beak and claw over the possession of a scrap of bread found on the road. The battle royal was carried to the limbs of a nearby tree when a passing dog, attracted by the hubbub and fuss interfered in the fight and appropriated the crust for himself. From the safety of the limbs the jays hurled taunts and epithets at the hungry dog who had taken their breakfast.

COMMISSIONER TO GO TO TORONTO

Commissioner Bruno Friedrich of the Toronto Salvation Army Corps who has been in the city since Sunday and has so efficiently assisted the local Corps in observing the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Salvation Army in this city, left at noon today for Toronto. Later in the week he intends to journey to New Brunswick for a short visit.

FROST DOWN THREE TO FOUR FEET

Hardened solidly by the continued zero weather, the soil underneath roads throughout the city has frozen to a depth of between three and four feet according to measurements taken in an excavation on an east side street where waterworks officials have been repairing a burst pipe. Under the paved streets of the city where the snow has been partially removed it is stated that the frost has penetrated to an even greater depth.

COLDER WEATHER FOR THURSDAY

The lull in zero weather and the rapid rise in temperatures on Tuesday evening and Wednesday is only temporary. Colder weather is on the way and you'll hunch deeper into your overcoat than ever on Thursday, if the forecast made by the official weatherman is correct.

He promises "fair and decidedly cold" weather on Thursday. It is probable that it will be even as cold as the record breaking temperatures received on Tuesday.

Throughout the district last night and on Wednesday, however, it was comparatively balmy. Pedestrians walked in the calm air with coats open and with loitering step. Thermometers had risen sharply during the afternoon from the lowest point in years of 31 below zero earlier in the day to ten and eleven above during the evening. High for Wednesday was 11 above with a minimum of just 2 below.

CORP. G. ELLARBY NOW QUALIFIED

Corp. George Ellarby of the ambulance corps of the Argyll Light Infantry qualified in a recent course of instruction from October 15 to November 28 as a "medical assistant". A certificate to that effect has been issued by the Medical Branch of Defence headquarters of Canada.

LITTLE FINGERS ARE BADLY MANGLED

Tiny exploring fingers of little 4-year-old Jeanne Cobourne, 55 Ridley street, were badly mangled today when they became caught in the moving rolls of a washing machine wringer the child had set in motion at her home, while her mother was temporarily absent hanging up clothes. One arm was drawn into the rolls up to the elbow before the screams of the child attracted her mother, Mrs. Fred Cobourne, who rushed to the house and turned the machine off. It is not expected that amputation of any of the members will be necessary, stated Dr. Gibson, who was hurriedly called to treat the injuries. During the absence of the mother who had been in the yard, the child had wandered from an inside room to the laundry, and seeing the machine running, had turned on the wringer switch herself.

OFFICERS OF HI-Y CLUB ENTERTAINED

The Hi-Y Club of the local Y.M.C.A. held its regular meeting in the Association Auditorium with President Elton McMurray in the chair and Mr. Frank Hitchon presiding at the piano. The supper was served by members of the Women's Auxiliary to the Y.M.C.A. The programme was provided by the various committee chairman. Jack Dickens on World Brotherhood spoke on the work of the Association among men and boys in other lands. Gerald Morris had for his topic the development of the Association along the intellectual and religious lines the main purpose of the Y.M.C.A.

Edward Porter spoke on the advantages of Membership. Douglas Chant's topic was the Physical and Recreational programme.

The club provides a very fine fellowship for High School boys in relation to the Y.M.C.A. The addresses were all well received.

Night Held at Chapter Old Timers

Some forty members of Moira Chapter, No. 7, R.A.M., met at the regular monthly meeting of the Chapter to observe Oldest Companions' Night, Tuesday evening in their rooms at the Masonic Temple.

Following opening of the Chapter, Excellent Comp. L. C. Pattrick turned over the work to the older members. Those filling the chairs were; 1st. Principal, Most Ex. Comp. W. N. Ponton; 2nd. Principal, Ex. Comp. W. C. Mikel; 3rd Principal, Rt. Ex. Comp. J. O. R. McCurdy; Scribe E., Comp. Geo. Greatrix; Scribe N., Comp. Chauncey Ashley; Prin. Sojourner, Comp. Harry Smith; Sr. Soj., Comp. W. Spence Clarke; Jr. Soj., Comp. Alf. Lazier; Outer Guard, Comp. Chas. Cochrane.

Acting as Scribe E for the night, Comp. Geo. Greatrix is the oldest living Companion of the Chapter. He joined Moira Chapter about this time of the year in 1883, which made him a member just one year over the half century. He was heartily welcomed by all present.

At the banquet following Chapter closing Col. W. N. Ponton presided and excellent music enlivened the proceedings furnished by the Chapter's own orchestra under leadership of Ex. Comp. H. S. McElrath.

The toastmaster's proposed to the King and Royal Craft was loyally observed, and was followed by a violin trio by Messrs Brown, Meburn and Osborne.

The toast to Grand Chapter and Grand Chapter Officers was proposed by Scribe E. Victor Graves, which was replied to briefly by V. Ex. Comp. J. F. Houston. Associated with the reply was Col. Ponton who said those who were older had something the younger have not, the past, history and memories. "You younger members have them but not in volume." The Colonel's remarks were of a reminiscent nature and he devoted them to the rulers of the Royal Craft in Belleville, who had presided over Moira Chapter. Names of the finest gentlemen citizens of Belleville, most of whom have now passed on, men who occupied prominent positions in the professional, civic and mercantile life of the city.

Toast Offered

To duly recognize the "Old Timers" of Moira Chapter a toast to them was offered by Ex. Comp. W. C. Mikel, and replying to the honor, Comp. George Greatrix made what all present acknowledged to be, the speech of the night.

Cherishing the memories of a long well-spent life, replete in happy friendships, Mr. Greatrix spoke of his long associations with Masonry in Belleville, which he had found pleasant, profitable and educational. Since 1861 he had lived practically in Belleville, and the friendships he had made hereabouts in those 72 years were most dear to him. To the striving to live an honest Christian life he ascribed the pleasure he derived in his declining life, when God was letting him down gently and easily. Masonry had strengthened his Christian belief. He was glad to be present at Moira Chapter again at the urgent request of Ex. Comp. Pattrick. "I have found ever a great good in belonging to the Masons, said Mr. Greatrix in conclusion. "That and my Sunday School work, for I love children," have kept me young in mind and body."

A much appreciated cornet solo by A. Wonnacott preceded the singing of the National Anthem which terminated the "Old Timers'" night of Moira Chapter.

Colling, 78 Queen Street, while proceeding northward on Charles St. in his motor car, the vehicle skidded in the deep icy ruts colliding with the Rawson bus proceeding in the opposite direction. The only damage reported was minor fender scratches. No automobile accidents were reported thus far this week by the Highway Traffic Department.

A pair of scales were found on the market square at the termination of Tuesday's market, and are at present in the possession of the police.

SOCIAL WORK IS EXPLAINED

Commissioner Bruno Friedrich, Gives Interesting Sidelights

Social work of the Salvation Army in the countries of Europe was vividly and fully described to the members of the Kiwanis Club at their luncheon on Tuesday by Commissioner Bruno Friedrich who this week is assisting in the Golden Jubilee of this corps in the city. The speaker is of a most entertaining type and his first hand information of conditions in these countries of Europe, which he visited and worked was a revelation to the members. His grasp on International affairs is varied and he made the prediction, that there was no desire for war in Europe despite the scary headlines in the newspapers. The speaker was introduced by Adjutant Martin and Kiwanian appreciation for his fine address was voiced by Eddie Logan.

J. Owen Herity, Booster

The booster of the day was J. Owen Herity, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce and he was happily introduced by Jack McIntosh, past president of the club. In part Jack told of Owen, a real club member that he was born in the Township of Huntingdon, in the County of Hastings, of Irish Canadian parents on a farm in the vicinity of Moira. He spent his boyhood days there and was educated in the real Red School House at Moira, later going to Stirling High School and finishing his education at Toronto University. Owen then started journalism in the town of Markham and after a very successful career there, came to Belleville and bought out the Daily Ontario of which he was editor for ten years. He retired in 1920 from that position to become manager of the Chamber of Commerce and Industrial Commissioner of the. City of Belleville, which office he still holds and the many fine achievements which he has accomplished are visible in the new industries that have opened in Belleville in that time and also in the many prospects he has interviewed on the other side of the line who are just waiting for the good times that are at hand to get going.

Owen is at present secretary of the Eastern Ontario Chamber of Commerce and Secretary of the Central Ontario Power Association. Two very important appointments of which he is most capable.

He is at present a member of the three service clubs of Belleville, Rotary, Kiwanis and Y's Men and the only one in our city to have that honour. He is a past president of the Rotary Club and at present Chairman of the Programme Committee. He is Past High Chief Ranger of the Independent Order of Foresters of Canada the highest office this Order can bestow on any of its members. He is also a past D.D.G.M. of Masonic Order, Past Noble Grand of I.O.O.F.; Past First Principal of Quinte Friendship Chapter.

Owen since coming to Belleville has been a booster from the start always ready and willing to give of his time and talents and in this connection he is in great demand as an after Dinner Speaker and some weeks will be out every night to some banquet in the district.

There are a lot more good things could be said in introducing Owen, but I will leave that for another time.

To each member was given booklets of the city, a manual on Ottawa and a road map of the province, with the idea, as Mr. Herity explained of knowing your city and the Capital City better.

Tells of Social Work

President Eddie Shapiro and Frank Domenico, chairman of the dance committee, reminded the members of the coming "Hop" next Monday night. Over 800 invitations have been issued and it is expected one of the largest crowds will be out. The "younger set" will be out in force and an energetic committee has been appointed to act as hosts for the evening. A number of guests were introduced, one being a member from the Ottawa Club.

Commissioner Friedrich explained to the members, that the Salvation Army was interested in social as well as evangelical work and took the club to far-off China, India and darkest Africa, showing the work that the Army was doing among classes that were outcasts from society and who gave the governments of the different countries considerable trouble. The leper colony of Java was fully explained and showed that the patients were receiving far more attention under the Army supervision, than by the government.

Germany was blamed by the speaker, for the depression, which has settled over the world during the past three years. He described the conditions in Germany even as late as 1927, to be deplorable and when that country inflated their money real hardships came. When they started to establish their currency, the country had to borrow money to get started and their inability to pay, when the time arrived precipitated the crisis and every country felt the result of their default. Commissioner Friedrich touched on the war scare and in reply to a question about Japan, stated that Japan was forced to seek an outlet for her population but the country was not classed as an aggressor nation.

The final event of the Salvation Army jubilee celebration in the city took place in the Citadel last evening, when the Citadel Band and the Songster Brigade presented a first-class program of the latest and best musical productions of the Army Musical Board.

Commissioner Bruno R. Friedrich, the city's guest for the last four days presided over the event.

The programme was as follows: March, "The Mercy," Band; vocal selection, "Thou Wilt Keep Him in Perfect Peace," Songsters; Cornet solo, "Wondrous Love," Bandsman Jack Green; vocal selection, "Comrades in Arms," Male Voice Party, Air Varie "Little Ship," The Band; Vocal march, "We Shall Win the Day," The Songster Brigade; recitation by Bandsman Jack Green; Cornet duet, "Hosanna," Band Secretary George Wardle and Bandsman Arnold Brown; vocal selection, "Goodbye Pharoah," Male Voice Party; March, "Campsie Citadel," The Band; selection, "The Earth is the Lord's," The Songsters.

At the close the Jubilee birthday cake was cut by Miss H. Clark, one of Belleville's oldest Salvationists.

The local Corps deeply appreciate the kindness of Dickens and Son for gift of birthday cake, worded on top "1884-1934"—50th. Anniversary.

Commissioner Friedrich also addressed the local Kiwanis Club at noon luncheon yesterday and by kind invitation of Principal P. C. MacLaurin, the students of the Belleville Collegiate this morning.

CORN BORER SLUGS WILL EMERGE UNHURT

Have Developed Considerable Resistance to Winter

Tiny fat slugs of the corn borer which will appear next summer in corn plots throughout the section now sheltered under a downy blanket of protecting snow, underneath the soil, may emerge through the coldest days of the coldest winter in years this season comparatively unscathed, in the opinion of experts at the local Entomological Laboratory.

"But," they add, "for the thousands of other insects and pests who have been exposed to the severe weather, it's going to be tough slugging to get through."

Corn borers imported into this country years ago have developed considerable resistance to Canadian winters, in spite of the fact that they were originally southern Europeans where cold weather was not so common. During the years they have become acclimatised and defy the freezing frosts. Other foreign pests, pointed out the laboratory, are fast becoming injured to the coldest weather

HENRY GOV'T CRITICIZED BY DR. McQUIBBAN

Moves Motion, That Government Has Not Confidence of People

ATTACKS HYDRO

Says Niagara Power Plant But Shell of True Picture

Toronto, Feb. 7 (CP)—Criticising the Ontario Government for its expenditures Dr. George A. McQuibban, new Liberal House leader, on Tuesday opened the "Leaders' Day" debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne. Dr. McQuibban moved the following amendment to the Throne speech:

"This House views with alarm the ever-increasing burden of debt and taxation this government is forcing the people to endure and regards the utter failure of the government to deal efficiently and in a business-like manner with the problems of vital concern to the people."

Premier George S. Henry, the Liberal leader said, "may turn the page and gaze with pride at a current surplus of $476,000, which he is vainly trying to conceal a deficit of some $38,000,000 or more in 1933."

The Department of Education, headed by Mr. Henry, was grossly overstaffed and inefficient, he declared. The department should close the gap between "department and teachers—give to them the place our province demands and expects of them. It should institute economy, cutting down tremendous expenditure and loss by establishing in its natural place the so-called lower school and enabling this class of pupil to benefit by a practical training." The "examination vice" should be replaced by a sane and honest measure of fitness effecting economy and more efficiency in pupils. There should be direction of pupils instead "of a policy of herding" in preparation for future life, and the natural trend of the pupils encouraged he declared.

Attacks Hydro

Dr. McQuibban turned his attack on the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission, declaring in 1929 the Commission had generated —½ times as much power as was purchased, and twice as much power in 1932. A deficit of approximately $2,500,000 was shown in the annual report of the Hydro Commission for 1932, he continued. "To overcome this, the Commission conveniently delves into the reserves to produce a surplus and cover this deficit. This deficit is not passed on to the public.

This fund is not for this purchase at all. The whole structure of power at cost is built up and takes care of this fund and its stability. Why a deficit? The trail leads back to Quebec. The total power generated, produced and purchased as less in 1932 than 1929—yet total expenses are 50 per cent. higher. Therefore the average cost of power must be greater.

The Niagara system, representing some two-thirds of the entire investment of the Province in Hydro, "and upon which there is a serious toll of financial obligation, is fast capitulating to the octopus of wild speculation or worse in purchased power. Into the wires of this system comes purchased power from Gatineau, Beauharnois, Chats Falls and McLean. It is idle for my honorable friends to tell the public that Niagara is straining to its limit. Niagara is but a shell of its true picture."

Outlined Project

He outlined the St. Lawrence waterways project, declaring power could be produced at Beauharnois eventually at $10.25 per horsepower, and Sir Adam Beck, late Hydro magnate, had stated St. Lawrence power could be produced at below $10 per horsepower. However, Premier R. B. Bennett and Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the Senate, had submitted general information to the public to the effect power would ultimately be supplied from the St. Lawrence at $15 per horsepower.

The Abitibi Canyon project, taken over by the Hydro Commission last year, had been "relegated to be a standby proposition."

Referring to government financing and provincial loans, Dr. McQuibban declared the recent Ontario loan of $40,000,000 had been issued, "but certain large reductions occurred and the government only receives the benefit from a sum around $39,000,000. These extractions were made in commissions to bond salesmen, commission or fees to financial advisors, advertising, sale at less than par of two of the three terms."

The government had deliberately broken down the market for their own bonds, he said, although the bonds were already on the market. The issue was sold at 97, "the market was established at 98 and here an additional $150,000 would have been realized and the market price more nearly approached."

"The tenure of this government has weighted down with debt every department," he concluded. "It has countenanced a policy in Hydro which has very seriously shaken the whole system. It has utterly failed to administer the finances of this province to the public good. There is no harbor for its safety. It has outworn its welcome in every port."

JERSEY MILK BEARS SEAL

Breeders Believe This Will Pay in Increased Sales

Toronto, Feb. 7—(CP)—Delegates representing three live-stock breeders associations left for their homes today after discussing means of improving their produce.

The Canadian Jersey Cattle Club passed a resolution yesterday that all users of the Jersey trade mark must pay a royalty of one cent per 100 pounds of milk, proceeds of which will be used to advertize Jersey products. The resolution specified that licenses for trade marks would be issued only to owners of inspected herds.

The Canadian Short Horn Breeders Association passed a resolution that all money paid in grants to exhibitions must be paid over to owners of winning animals on a proportionate basis and not on the prize list alone.

The Canadian Swine Breeders Association heard George Rothwell, Livestock Commissioner of Ottawa, outline means of establishing better connections with the British market. Mr. Rothwell advocated placing a representative in England. He also suggested institution of "rail grading" rather than "grading on the hoof."

Premier Henry Showed House Interest Rate on Loan Not High

(By Jack Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Feb. 7 (CP)—With its first major skirmish of the session concluded, the Ontario Legislature today resumed its normal course, with introduction of bills and similar matters awaits attention. The committee on legal bills which will investigate the charges of Magistrate Daniel McCaughrin of Orillia to the effect two cabinet ministers had tried to "buy" him out of office will meet early today for organization purposes.

Wordy warfare waged in the Chamber yesterday when the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the Throne got under way. Dr. George A. McQuibban, Liberal House Leader, and Harry C. Nixon, Progressive head, criticised the government's action in floating the recent $40,000,000 Ontario loan and the work of the Department of Education, and Premier George S. Henry in a fiery speech defended his administration and twitted the Opposition on their actions.

Moved by Dr. McQuibban, an amendment to the address—a motion of non-confidence to the government—is still before the House. A sub-amendment proposed by Mr Nixon, which covered practically the same ground, was ruled out by the Speaker on Mr. Henry's protest, but may be moved by another Opposition member when the debate is resumed Thursday. Mr. Nixon was given time to re-draft his sub-amendment, and on his failure to do so by adjournment last night, the measure was withdrawn.

Too High Interest Claimed

The loan came in for dual opposition criticism. Dr. McQuibban and Mr. Nixon claimed the interest paid was too high, and that the figure of 98 which was offered for the bonds might better have been taken by the Province, rather than the 97 at which it was sold.

To this, Premier Henry emphatically declared it is the figure at which individual bonds could be bought, but 98 is not the figure at which $15,000,000 could be sold." He was willing, he said, to face anyone on the issue, and the Opposition knew the difference but would not admit it. Mr. Nixon, he continued, critised the rate of interest paid—4.63 percent—and yet the Drury government at which he was a member had floated six loans in 1920-21 at an average cost of 6.29. "And may I tell him," he said, "that if it wasn't for the inclusion of those six loans by the Drury government, the rate would be much lower than it is."

The Speech from the Throne, Mr Nixon said, was longer than usual but was "simply a matter of platitudes spread over more pages to hide the absence of any programme or policy that might encourage our people in their difficulties or indicate that the government was doing anything at all adequate in the situation."

He attacked the Provincial Secretary, Hon. George S. Challies, for not making a clear statement regarding his connection with an Eastern Ontario bus line, which lists Mr. Challies as it President and declared he would again ask the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission to make public the salaries of its officials.

WASHINGTON SENATORS HAVE LARGE SQUAD

BILOXI, Miss. Feb. 7.—(CP)—The Washington American League Championship Club's spring roster this year will list thirty-three men, the largest number of Senators to come south in a decade, President Clark Griffith said on his arrival here to get the camp ready for the first batch of players scheduled to get here March fourth.

The squad includes 15 pitchers, four catchers, eight infielders and six outfielders. From all indications the Senators will start the 1934 campaign with the same line up that won the American League pennant with the exception of John Stone for Goose Goslin in right field.

50 Shot and Trampled to Death as Parisians Riot Against Acting Gov't.

Disorders Raged For Six Hours And Worst Since 1870

OTHER CITIES JOIN

Daladier And Government Unable to Cope With Situation

Paris, Feb. 7. — The newspaper Action Francaise estimated today that more than fifty men and women were fatally shot, trampled to death or mortally slashed with sabres during the night and early this morning in revolutionary riots against the government.

Previously this journal, a monarchist society organ, had placed its estimate of those slain in the disturbances which rocked Paris at 20.

Also raising its estimate of the dead, the ministry of the interior announced its available records showed twenty were killed. It previously had placed the toll at six.

The disorders, which raged for seven hours and were termed the worst in Paris since the revolution of 1870, spread outside the capital today.

Rioting on a smaller scale was started by Royalists in the provincial cities. At Lille, Nantes and Nancy mounted gendarmes had to be summoned to disperse the mobs.

At Lyons several thousand men and women hooting Premier Edouard Daladier, choked the main streets. There were manifestations by veterans protesting against the premier's dismissing Paris prefect, Jean Chiappe in other cities, but without rioting.

In Paris the rattle of machine guns from the steps of the Chamber of Deputies and charges of mounted guards with drawn sabres slashing to right and left formed Premier Daladier's answer to what he called "an armed attempt against the safety of the state".

The Socialist newspaper Populaire asserted at least twelve were dead, including four gardes mobiles, provincial troops brought in to supplement available Paris forces, and a captain of the mounted guard.

Set Fire to Ministry

The mob, including massed thousands of angry Parisiens, furious at the government over the Stavisky pawnshop scandal and generally restive because of financial and economic pressure, set fire to the Ministry of Marine, wrecking the ground floor.

They fired pistols at police and battled bitterly in the eerie light of bonfires fueled with wrecked newspaper stands, comfort stations—even automobiles rolled from parking places in the street. They threw up barricades in the famous Champs Elysee.

The Royalists, who led the bloodiest charges in the Place De La Concorde, declared they would start all over again today despite the government's instructions to bring charges against Charles Maurras, head of the Royalist action francaise, for inciting to "murder."

The riots, which had been brewing for months after the comparatively minor clashes of 10 days ago over the Stavisky scandal, reached their peak between 11 o'clock and midnight in the magnificent Place De La Concorde where the guillotine once stood.

Machine Guns in Action

Machine guns went into action at 12.15 from the steps of the chamber when the mob, led by Royalists, smashed police lines at the bridge head leading to the chamber. The chamber was still in session.

Bullets fired over the heads of the mob struck the upper stories of the Hotel Crillon, fatally wounded a French maid. A stray bullet struck a man in the heart, killing him.

Just before midnight the group in the Concorde opened rifle fire at the rioters who had built the barricades in the Champs Elysee.

Still unsubdued, the mobs surged back again and again, charging police. The third and bloodiest encounter was a running pistol fight at midnight. Police, fired from their hips, drove the panic-stricken throng of men and women across the Concorde and up the famous Rue Royale and thousands were trapped in a murderous crush before the Madeleine Church.

Men and women, struck by police bullets, dropped and were caught under the flying feet of their terror-stricken companions.

Lamp Post Smashed

Hundreds, crushed against the barred door of the fashionable Hotel Crillon, pleaded for admittance and finally got in. They took refuge in the richly furnished salons.

Along the Rue Rivoli, lamp posts were smashed and flaming gas blazed from the broken pipes, casting wild shadows in the Tuilleries Gardens, on one side of which were the hotels and on the other were gathered hundreds of visitors, watching the battle.

Half a dozen fires, fed by flaming automobiles, park benches, saplings and debris, blazed for hours in the middle of the streets while police and firemen were helpless to quench them.

On the Rue Royale side, the ground floor of the Ministry of Marine was wrecked. The huge windows were smashed and lighted rills of newspapers were hurled into the rooms, starting a fire which blazed for half an hour.

Smoke, pouring from the windows of the Ministry, added to the general confusion.

So serious did the situation become that two companies of the 23rd Regiment of Colonial Infantry were ordered to occupy the Ministry of the Interior.

Officials Beaten By Mob.

They camped there during the night while the entire cabinet of Premier Daladier considered plans for meeting disorders today.

Numerous French officials were among those beaten and injured. Senator Gaston Menier was kicked and beaten by the mob and was in serious condition. Former Premier Edouard Herriot narrowly missed the same treatment.

Director Marchand of the municipal police was wounded by a revolver bullet, while Xavier Guichard, police chief, was injured. Half a dozen municipal counselors were clubbed by police.

Premier Daladier issued a statement declaring "certain political leagues have repeatedly excited riots and tried to attack by force the Republican regime. Bands armed with revolvers attacked the police and the Garde Mobile.

"They opened fire on the defenders of order. Numerous police were wounded. The proof is clear through the identity of demonstrators that it was really an attempt by arms against the safety of the state."

He thanked police for their "coolness" in breaking the assaults.

TAXI STRIKE TIES UP NEW YORK'S NIGHT LIFE

Striking taxi drivers, on picket duty, were snapped in New York as they persuaded an independent chauffeur to take his car back to the garage. The current strike of the New York taxi chauffeurs, called to compel action in their favor in the disposal of the 2,000,000 or more extra nickels collected from riders under the "nickel-tax" law that has been declared unconstitutional is almost a complete tie-up, and even the independents are keeping their cars in the garage until the issue has been settled. There has been no violence on either side, and so far no attempt to import strike-breaking chauffeurs by the big companies. An early settlement of the strike is expected.

REALISM IN ARMS STUDY

Sir John Simon Says Time Favoring Disarmament

London, Feb. 7.—(CP Cable)—"Time is running against the friends of disarmament," warned Sir John Simon Secretary for Foreign Affairs, before a crowded and deeply attentive House of Commons, this afternoon as he initiated a full-dress debate on disarmament.

The key to the whole problem rested on finding a solution of the difficulties between France and Germany, Sir John declared, but it would be false to infer that agreement would be promoted by leaving the two to argue it out between themselves.

"I believe we will be able to do more if we approach the subject in a spirit of realism," he added. "It is more than two years since the disarmament conference opened. Time is running against the friends of disarmament.

Sir John re-stated this position with emphasis. "The British Government," he declared, "reached the inevitable deduction that Germany's claim to equality of rights can not and ought not to be resisted."

"Why not," demanded James Maxton, Scottish Labor leftwinger.

"For the reason that I think should be plain to any Scotsman," replied the minister.

ARGOSY OF PORTLY SAIL

The Lyman M. Davis which attracted a deal of attention last summer as a prospect for a fire spectacle, is again in the newslight as likely fuel for a bonfire at Toronto on May 24th. Protests will arise over this act for the sake of public spectacle especially as the schooner is a vessel of a day of commerce long past, a colorful day of spreading canvas sails and of heroic sailors who braved the early days on the Great Lakes.

Picton Gazette is strongly protesting against the destruction for a moment's pleasure of a craft which means so much to the interest in the historic past, and cites the fact that every spring a Mariners' service is held at Cherry Valley for the men who go down to the sea in ships. The Gazette also appeals because of the peculiar interest early shipping had to this county.

The viking-type of sailors of the lakes in the windjammer days still appeals to the people of this age which is content to witness steam barges do their work of transportation, though the steam barge is not so picturesque as the barque which with all sails spread took the storm as its aid. Today the barge or freighter may yet be buffeted by the wind and waves, almost as the daring windjammer was.

In respect to the destruction of memorials of the past, there is no doubt too much of this. The times move so rapidly and so many structures which might be called memorials or at least landmarks are in private hands and public action is too past, fossilized bones of men and even they fall under the wrecker.

Today our scientists go hunting into deserts to find remains of the old prehistoric past, fossilized bones of men and perhaps broken shard to learn of past ages. We build museums to house an Egyptian mummy and civilization is right in stressing the past but we often throw away relics we ourselves have without cost, just because they are so near us. Five hundred years from now a windjammer would be an attraction, today it has not so much appeal.

Of course times bring changes. Probably the freighter type will pass for some more efficient means of transportation. No one can tell what the argosies of the future will be like. They may be a combination of a railway train with plane wings, a boat (looking like a bird.) Who can tell!

The freighter will be preserved as a type probably or will the question come up a generation or two hence about scrapping all freighter antiques? Why not preserve the Lyman M. Davis, which in its preservation would be of special interest in the Bay of Quinte!

COSMOPOLITES

Readers are having brought to notice every day world news as never before. By cable, by press, and by radio the world has shrunk to this little measure. More and more difficult it is for an event of importance to escape notice and linking up with the greater world of human interest. Nationalism is developing in many lands but the world knows about it. Through the world does not accept Communism, it hears enough of it from Russia, though Germany wants to develop a Nordic German outlook, the rest of the world knows what is going on. So much for the politics which occupies attention in the press in turmoil days when so many governments are wrestling with problems which threaten to overturn them.

Man is doubtless baffled, not only the average man, but also the leaders at the multitude of forms which present day civilization is taking in its efforts to arrive at stabilizaton from the unrest whch has surrounded the entire world.

The chief fact is that the people have taken on a world outlook. This interest in things cosmopolitan doubtless means something of immense possibility in the days ahead.

The world can never grow insulated, one part from another, again. Press, cable, radio, flying machines, exploration, have made that impossible. Men and women today are citizens of a world.

EDUCATION ADVANCES

$750,000 went last year from the Carnegie Fund for the improvement of education, most of the money into university and college libraries, and some for the endowment of some of these institutions, but large sums are included for the advancement of public activities and other forms of educational service for the ordinary citizen. Canadian museums are to be subsidized to the extent of $40,000. There is $60,000 for the inauguration of a public library service to cover the whole of Prince Edward Island. There is also $18,000 provided for the training of librarians.

A survey of workers' education throughout the British Empire has been completed under the Carnegie Fund, the report being still in confidential form.

Through the fund a number of Canadian educationists have visited Scandinavian countries during the past two years to study the provision there for adult education. It is believed that Denmark, Norway and Sweden have much to teach western nations especially in educational provision for the rural population in their folk high schools.

LAKE CONSECON IN WINTER

Where the waters sang a merry tune
'Neath the tranquil skies of the days of June,
Where all along the shadowed shore
Trees waved green flags the waters o'er,
Where the rowers loitered neath sunny sky
Watching the swallows dip and fly,
Where on the breast of the waters blue
Diamonds sparkled the long day through—
Now nought but an icy plain is seen
Fringed here and there by cedars green,
Or, circled by the gaunt trees, gray,
That stand on guard in grim array.
And a dark network of shadow throw
O'er the level plain of ice and snow.

'Neath icy robes the waters sleep
Unmoved by the winds that above them sweep,
Content to rest till the voice of Spring
Awakes them again to laugh and sing.
Resistless, too, to their winter fate
Serving the while they stand and wait,—
For above is heard the skaters' steel
As over the glare they whirl and wheel,
And the clink of hoofs as on they go
While bells ring out across the snow.

And so when comes life's winter time
With Spring and Summer and Autumn's chime
Nought but a memory, and hearts are fain
To long for active life again,
May we, too, rest like the lake's calm flow
Beneath its fetters of ice and snow,
And know as we near life's sunset gate
"They also serve, who stand and wait."

HISSING THE BRITISH NATIONAL ANTHEM in Toronto is not altogether the most popular indoor sport, but it is being done at meetings there and has actually been done at Massey Hall where the Internationale of the Reds has been sung with fervor. Freedom is one of the greatest privileges and blessings of British countries, but some people sure do take advantage of the tolerance, kindness, and long-suffering of the loyal citizens of this great Empire. Folks who enjoy the blessings and freedom of this country and impose on good nature by hissing the National Anthem and singing the battle song of the Reds should be deported to a Communist country, and if that country refuses them it would be no great loss if they were accidentally spilled into the sea on the way back and replaced in ballast by that fine honest, God-fearing Scotch and Welsh coal which the Central Ontario Commerce Crusaders are bringing over in exchange for Central Ontario cheese and apples.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT BOB RIPLEY gave some interesting facts about freaks of lightning in his last radio broadcast, but when he said there had never been a case reported of an auto struck he was a bit off the road. Last summer a Belleville business manu driving an automobile along the Madoc road was struck by lightning in the car. The flash stopped the car dead for a few moments, then the power returned and the car took the ditch as the driver was incapacitated by the lightning which temporarily paralyzed one side of his body completely and made him a hospital patient for over a month. Ever since, this man claims that whenever there is an electric storm every nerve in his body is set tingling and he has a very bad time of it until the storm ceases.

WOMEN THINK MUCH FASTER THAN MEN DO

Men Think More Logically And Consider Precedents

(By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.)
(Famous Authority on Health and Psychology)

(Copyright 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

To be sure, there are exceptions to every rule, but few will be found as regards the greater rapidity with which women's minds function than men's.

A woman's mind is strikingly spontaneous. Stimulate it ever so lightly and at once a quick, impulsive response is obtained.

Man, on the other hand, is slow and plodding. He thinks logically, systematically and often laboriously. His mind is full of precedents. His steps in reasoning must be arranged in sequence and must be perfectly clear.

All of which, to be sure, takes time. And while this time is being consumed in fashioning male thoughts, a woman's mind has alrealy left the subject far behind and is busy about something else.

This explains why women are more quick-witted than men; more adept at repartee. It also explains why women so often become impatient with men. A man will theorise and speculate and "if and but" about a problem, trying to formulate a sound, forceful opinion while a woman will jump to a conclusion with lightning speed and will feel that the man can only be stupid to be talking so long.

Of course, a woman may not care much whether she is wrong or right, whether she makes a mistake or not. A man's pride does not permit him to be so carefree.

If a woman finds herself wrong she quickly forms another judgment and tries again. But if a man finds himself wrong he begins to mistrust his own reasoning ability and immediately becomes fearful of expressing another opinion until he has gone over his previous processes of reasoning in an attempt to find the flaw.

Women also show marked practicality in their thinking and this is largely due to the rapidity of their mental associations. While a man is deliberating which is the best way to put out the fire in the garage the woman has already thrown a bucketful of water. She may not throw it at the place where it will do the most good and she may be doing the very worst thing possible; but to do something she must, whatever it is.

A woman's thoughts must be translated into action as speedily as possible. A man's mind is built up of rules, precedents and regulations which a woman's mind scorns.

Woman has developed and learned without rules and she likes to continue that way. Instinct has been her greatest asset and instinctively she feels what she should or should not do.

Women, therefore, do most astounding things, as if through flashes of genius. Sometimes, however, because of her scorn of rules and regulations she commits blunders which might so readily have been avoided had she been willing to heed the experiences of the past and of others.

It is impossible for a man to imitate a woman's type of quick-witted thinking but a woman can train herself in imitation of man's mental reasoning. Men often try to make women think differently and in imitation of themselves. They seem to believe their own mental machinery is superior and therefore worthy of emulation. The results are frequently disastrous.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

Although leftovers should never be thrown away if it is at all possible to keep them, it is unwise to serve them again in the same style on the same day. In fact, to skip two days is best unless the food is perishable. Except for such staples as bread, milk, butter, potatoes and eggs, a person quickly tires of sameness, and if his stomach "revolts" it is bad for digestion.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself in his private chair and ma said, I payed a call on our little grandson this morning, Willyum, in fact I gave him his luntch, bless his big little appetite.

Have you taught him to like spinnitch yet? pop said, and ma said, That's a very appropo question because I did try spinnitch on him again, although I was resolved thick or thin not to use any method of persuasion on him except pure logic and reason, and I started in just as soon as he made his ferst instinctive outcry when he saw the spoonful of spinnitch on his plate. Now Willie, I told him remember that good little boys eat everything on their plate, and the spinnitch is on your plate. But he returned logic for logic. Now it's not, he ansered promptly, and with that he took the back of his little hand and brushed the spinnitch rite off onto the tablecloth, ma said.

And I sippose you brushed your logic aside for a moment also, pop said, and ma said, Not at all, in fact I considered it a good opportunity to prove that logic is equal to every emergency, and when Willie repeeted, It's not on myplate now, I said calmly, No, but it's on the table, and good little boys eat everything that's on the table. Well, I was sure I had him there, but he's a remarkable child even if I am his grandmother. What's on the table? he said, and in the same breath he brushed the long suffering little pile of spinnitch onto the floor, and I couldn't very well tell him that good little boys eat everything that's on the floor, but still I was determined not to jepperdise my rule of reason by the slightest display of force, so I called his mother and as soon as Gladdis saw the spinnitch-laden floor she gave him severel well distributed slaps and put another spoonful of spinnitch on his plate and stood there with upraised hand while he ate it like a little lam, and I sat aloof like the spirit of pure logic and reason and said triumphantly, Now you see, Willie, good little boys eat everthing on their plate, dont they?

Yee gods, pop said.

Saying it from in back of the sporting page.

At the opening of the second annual parliament of the Belleville High School the speaker, Mr. R. Robson, presided. The speech from the throne was made by Lieutenant Governor Yeomans. Premier Roberts delivered an effective address. He enumerated several of the measures which the government intend to submit to parliament for consideration. Among them he mentioned the building of a collegiate institute in the city of Belleville, the paving of Front street, the establishment of basket ball grounds in connection with the play grounds and last, but by no means the least the granting of the franchise to women.

Prowlers broke into St. Michael's Church last night, but no damage has been discovered as a result of their visit. The Tabernacle Church was also entered. The intruder started a fire in the kitchen stove and a pipe was found upon the table. No damage has been discovered.

Valued Hints on Modern Merchandising Given in First of Series of Lectures

Dr. W. A. Mackintosh of Queen's University is Forceful Speaker

NATIVE OF COUNTY

Problems of Small Business Man Many, Says Speaker

Speaking in the same friendly and confidential tone of voice he would employ in addressing a well behaved class room at the college he represents, Dr. W. A. Mackintosh, Director of the Department of Commerce and Administration of Queen's University, Kingston, held over one hundred and twenty-five business men and a fair representation of business women of the city at close attention in the Y. M. C. A. rooms last evening, while he dissected and discussed the trials and errors of modern merchandising in a modern age.

It was the first of five lectures, four more of which will be delivered on each Tuesday evening for the next four weeks, as part of the business training course arranged by the local Chamber of Commerce in collaboration with Queen's University for local residents. Readily assimilated addresses on other topics of the business world will follow, delivered by experts of the University. It is the first time in eastern Ontario that such a step in business training for its residents has been taken by any city.

In introducing the speaker Mr. J. O. Herity, manager of the local Chamber of Commerce, and chairman of the evening, called attention to the fact that Dr. Mackintosh had "come back home" to deliver the first address of the business course.

Native of County

"It is my proud and essential duty to inform you, that Dr. Mackintosh is a native son of this county, having been born in Madoc Village. His father was the late William Mackintosh, public school inspector for North Hastings for many years. His mother still resides in Madoc Village."

Dr. Mackintosh was educated in the village school and later attended Madoc High School. Leaving Madoc, he continued his studies at Queen's University, and then left for Harvard University, where his scholastic career was marked with a string of brilliant victories, ending in his degree. Later he returned to his Alma Mater, at Kingston, where he has since been engaged.

"We are proud to welcome such a distinguished son", concluded Mr. Herity's introduction.

As modern appearing as the topic he proposed to discuss, there was little about Dr. Mackintosh to suggest the college professor. Frank, friendly and informal, he immediately launched upon the subject at hand following his introduction. He spoke extemporaneously.

"Merchandising" said he, "covers a world of activity. Various men are interested in various phases and angles of this subject. Some have definitely taken one course, which they have followed along; others have taken an almost diametrically opposite course to attain their ends in the business world. One could not attempt to make a complete analysis of the whole."

"The most distinctive, perhaps, are the buyers and sellers markets. There has always been the question of the seller going to the buyer, instead of the buyer going to the seller. This has often been called 'aggressive salesmanship'. As year succeeds year it grows noticeably. Competition has become keener in the game of selling. Possibly one of the first examples of the more aggressive salesmanship can be traced back to Elizabethean days, when there was a hue and a cry among some of the early element about a shop keeper putting goods he had for sale in his window so that he could coax the money out of the pockets of the people, as it was quaintly put at that time."

Must Know Product

"A good merchandiser", continued the speaker, "is one who knows his own product, and the market for such product. He must be constantly on the alert to improve himself in both directions. New markets open up; he must be right there to take advantage of them on the instant."

"Salesmanship is an art. Some are born with this intuitive knack of being able to sell just what is wanted at the right time. Latent possibility in others must be aided by special training and special study toward that end. To sell, one must be able to know when and what and where. And here we come to the different classes and the different problems in selling, where each salesman strives to cover a particular field. One man's problems will differ greatly from another, who is also selling. Both may have entirely different fields."

Here various classes of goods were enumerated by the speaker.

"Industrial goods are sold to factories and industries. In this field each salesman has developed his own peculiar methods of disposing of his goods. There are few, however, in this audience, who are interested in this phase of selling.

"There is another group. Properly they could be listed "convenience goods", found in groceries, dry goods stores and retail shops. These are the sort of goods people buy repeatedly; the kind, that can be found at the cross roads grocery store, or the general store. They may be purchased anywhere, that demand may warrant. Some of the busiest locations in the larger cities are occupied by this sort of store". A well known chain of cigar stores amplify this point. "Generally you'll find this store on a street or corner, where the tide of traffic is heaviest", he pointed out.

"As a contrast to this we have the 'shopping goods'. These are not always standardised. They are bought frequently, but price and quality govern the sales. These stores tend to congregate in the larger cities. By doing so each store may bring trade to the other. They represent the shopping district of many a city. A store which handles the 'shopping goods' does not run away from competition". Clothing and articles of that nature are included in this group, it was explained.

Specialty Salesmanship

"Then we have the 'specialty goods', the relatively higher priced goods which possess individual characteristics. In buying this class of goods the consumer will go especially to such places, where they in so far as it pertains to a quality influenced by advertising, except in so far as it pertains ot a qualty name and a well known one. These goods, in which washing machines are included, sell on their reputation, and are not always sold in the higher rent districts."

One point was carefully impressed by the speaker:

"In all this an analysis of the products enters into merchandising and the selling programme. The wise merchandiser knows why goods are bought. He studies this angle carefully.

"Buying appeal can be grouped into two classes; rational, and not so rational, or irrational."

In the selling of specialty goods, Dr. Mackintosh pointed out, buying is generally rational, because the value of the particular service is recognized. One of the easiest ways to guage the appeal various products have for the purchaser is to leaf over the advertising pages of some national magazine and see how the appeals are made. In this manner it was very easy to distinguish between the rational and irrational.

Further amplifying this topic, the speaker turned to the advertising of certain cars.

Different Points Stressed

"One company will draw a word picture of the ruggedness and service that can be expected of their particular make. They will stress the comfort and easy running qualities, and will make sure that all advantages are outlined and easy to read. Another maker will merely advertise by inference, and through the medium of a pretty girl. They wish the appeal to express the fact, that it would be slightly different to own one of their cars. This is an important selling point," reminded Dr. Mackintosh.

He had not exhausted the important subject of knowing your merchandising angle by these examples. Instances of failure, which followed because manufacturers has not followed the simple tenets of merchanding their goods were cited in the case of a large company devoted to the manufacture of a certain cloth

"This company had been making a cloth, which took a better dye than other companies were making. So the heads of the company wanted to impress this upon the house wife. They appropriated a considerable sum to advertise the fact, that the goods which carried their name were better goods. At the end of a lengthy period, and after spending much money, they decided to check up and find out how the shopper did purchase the goods. They learned, that the name influenced her little. She took the goods, matched it with other goods on the counter for color and quality, and then made her own choice. The name had little value."

A large arms company failed because they did not find an outlet for the goods, which swamped the stores they had opened to sell a newly manufactured product.

"It happened this way," enlightened Dr. Mackintosh. "Following the war this well known concern found itself with an empty factory on its hands, and huge amounts of stock. They turned to the idea of manufacturing sporting goods and small hardware of all descriptions, of opening their own stores and selling from there. Stores were opened throughout the country. Shelves were filled with goods that did nothing except collect dust. The project was abandoned—a failure. The failure was that officials had not taken time to scan the market, or to heed the first principles of merchandising."

The type of goods manufactured is greatly influenced also by the market, or the outlet. When the demand is there, manufacturers will attempt to fill it.

Tip Given Salesmen

Salesmen were given a tip by Dr. Mackintosh.

"The modern salesman no longer overcomes sales resistance—he goes around it. And here, too, he must stand ready to give the customer more than he asks for, and not infrequently he must stand ready to actually refuse a sale if he believes it would be in the interest of the company he represents, and the consequent good will he would earn for the company in the future."

"Some years ago," said the speaker," a farmer in a certain section was sold a tractor. Others farmers saw it in the field and immediately wanted one. Times were pretty good, so the machines sold like hot cakes in that particular section and the salesman, helping it all along, was coining money. Rich and poor farmers bought them—and then they repented. Soon after they got them they found them useless for the small farms they owned. The machines stood and rusted, and the name of the company from which they were purchased was spoken of in anything but nice terms. A check up was made by the tractor company. They found that only the larger farms could afford to have their machines, so the salesmen were called in off the road, given instructions to go carefully in the matter of selling the machines, and to refuse to sell them unless where necessary. Gradually the company won the good will of the people back, but it took nearly ten years to do it. Meanwhile their business throughout the whole south was lost because an eager salesman wanted to make commissions."

Has Many Problems

"Problems the small business man has in plenty. And in this matter all the outsider can do is to offer comparisons," said the speaker. "The approach to each problem is essentially the same. Each problem, to carry it further can be broken up into component parts. A man's business isn't paying. If he can succeed in analyzing it to the point where he finds the loss exceeds the profit, then he is well on the road toward learning why. When such problems occur in business it is time to get down to the job of breaking these up into the various parts, then the rest will be easier, the audience was reminded. As an aid toward assisting in this work of carrying on the small business, a new system of standard figures, which is being used by many large and small stores south of the border is slowly being introduced into this country, and will help greatly in keeping accounts straight and accurate. In the past it has been difficult for the small business manager to keep accurate and useful records, which will give maximum service as to operating results, and which will also be economical in operation. New systems being evolved, intimated the speaker, would do much to remedy this.

Immediately following the highly illuminating address by Dr. Mackintosh, the meeting was thrown open to an informal discussion among those present. Questions of any topic of the address were also invited by chairman J. O. Herity.

No Estimate Given

"What relation, or rather, how should advertising costs of a business compare with sales?" questioned Mr. Russell Woodley.

"That would rest mostly with the experience one has had in the business," answered Dr. Mackintosh. "It would be impossible for me to give any definite answer on say, the fur business. There are other concerns, however, which are pretty well standardised in this matter of which figures are available. Some business houses set aside one per cent. for advertising appropriations. Others two per cent. and so on. In the patent medicine field there is practically no limit to the amount that may be appropriated to keep the preparation before the purchaser. Some well known remedies actually appropriate from 80 to 90 per cent. of sales for advertising each year."

Mr. Joseph Delaney—"Suppose we take the gross or net of a $50,000 turnover. What would you figure should be spent on advertising, say in the fur business. Would it be as high as two or three per cent?"

Dr. Mackintosh—"I couldn't give a useful answer on that, either. I am not acquainted with furrier's retail figures, and would find it difficult to give an opinion."

A wholehearted expression of appreciation for the splendid address given was tendered Dr. Mackintosh by Mr. E. V. Illsey on behalf of the audience.

"While listening to Dr. Mackintosh, one fact occurred to me," stated Mr. Illsey. "This is only the first lecture. Four more will follow. We must get the atmosphere of the college student to catch what is to be handed to us, and we must develop an absorptive sense to take full advantage of these splendid lectures. The speaker has dwelt upon selling. We are all selling something all the time, even ourselves. We may not have grasped the full content of the address that has just been given, but this is only the beginner's class. As it advances we must advance with it."

A storm of applause greeted the conveyance of the vote of thanks by Mr. Illsey relayed by Chairman J. O. Herity to the speaker. During the evening Mayor George O. Tice and Mr. W. G. Springer, president of the local Chamber of Commerce flanked the speaker at the table as a gesture of courtesy.

The first meeting of the course closed with the singing of God Save the King.

MANY ATTEND BETHEL PLAY

Comedy Is Presented Auspices of C. G. I. T. Group

Rawdon.—Despite the many attractions, a good number of folk gathered at Bethel United Church on Friday evening, February 2nd, to see the play, "The Cat Came Back," and besides the home folks, visitors were present from Wellman's, Salem and Springbrook.

The event was held under the auspices of Bethel C.G.I.T. group and about fifteen folks from Trenton journeyed up and staged their splendid play entitled "The Cat Came Back." These young people are from Grace Street United Church and have already presented their play at fifteen other points including Grafton, Campbellford and Belleville. Needless to say, they knew their parts to perfection and everyone was a star in his or her role. The play was given in three acts and the cast included six young men and six young ladies and a beautiful cat which was the centre of attraction. The play was full of fun and the audience was in continual gales of laughter. Rev. C. B. Bretten, pastor of Grace Church, accompanied the players and the proceeds amounted to over twenty dollars.

In the absence of the pastor, Rev. F. G. Joblin, through illness, the chairman for the evening was Mr. H. C. Tucker. Between acts the C.G.I.T. girls under the leadership of Miss Mildred Elliott, with Miss Irene Tucker as accompanist on the guitar, sang "If she has a sunny smile she's C.G.I.T.," and as an encore "Rig a Jig, Jig." Mr. John Chard delighted with two solos, Mrs. Haydon gave three appropriate readings, one being a poem of Edgar Guest and another "Suggestions For Men." Little Bobby Elliott was heard in two solos which were very cute indeed. The Misses Helen Farrell and Irene Tucker sang a duet and the former gave the guitar accompaniment. All in all the evening was a wonderful success and those not in attendance surely missed a real treat.

O.S.D. Students at S. A. Jubilee

He spoke very sympathetically on behalf of the children and pleaded that they be given an even break when the time came for them to take their place as citizens and wage-earners. He pointed out that the training now being given to the students was in some respects far ahead of the ordinary public and high school systems of education; especially so in social instruction.

Miss Ford also spoke and outlined the methods of communicating rhythm to the deaf children. She remarked that the program would show how they try to mix pleasure with instruction. The program was as follows:

FESTIVAL SHOWS C.G.I.T. IDEALS

John Street Church Hall Scene of Interesting Entertainment

Presenting the ideals and aims of the Canadian Girls in Training in a pictorial and engrossing fashion the three groups in John Street Church gave "a festival" last evening that proved very successful.

Built about the theme, "The Canadian Girl—A World Citizen", the items of the program, including the songs by the choir were selected from the regular activities of the groups, illustrative of the type of educational program that is being carried on by the C.G.I.T.

Miss Sylva Ross acted as reader, introducing and explaining each phase of the program. The background of lovely folk songs and favorite C.G.I.T. songs made a charming musical setting.

Part one of the program provided a series of pictures of Sunday, midweek and out-of-door activities. The aim of the latter is to help the girl to appreciate the world of nature. A camp scene was shown, the setting-up exercises, the camp-fire at night with Margaret Leslie performing the traditional fire-lighting ceremony and the dramatization of a "Winnie The Pooh" episode by Mary Davidson, Doris Smith, Shirley Brown, Florence Carr and Pauline Kelly showing a cross section of life at summer camp.

Group activities which interpret the "world heritage" of every girl in the culture and tradition of the various peoples of the earth made the basis of the second part of the program. Tableaux of three famous paintings and folk songs were splendidly done by the girls. Sir Joshua Reynold's "Age of Innocence" (Shirley McIntosh), John VanMeer's "The Girl With the Water Jug" (Doris Pine) and Jules Breton's "Song of the Lark" (Isabel Grant), were interpreted faithfully in every detail. As the choir sang a folk song Constance Williams and Catherine Williams in quaint costume were the lad and lass of the song. Singing games and folk songs, which form a special part of the C.G.I.T. program and which demonstrate the heritage of music from other lands made an interesting part of the entertainment.

To demonstrate the economic interdependence of the world a twentieth century tea table, its appointments suggesting the way in which the resources of other countries along with those of Canada contribute to one's well being was cleverly worked out. These tableaux of the romance of modern times began with a scene in Ireland, a spinning wheel whirring away and an old lady at work. Doris Smith and Phyllis Archibald took part in this on the stage and as the curtains closed, Mary Davidson and Florence Carr placed a snowy linen cloth on the tea table at the front of the hall demonstrating the use of the finished product in Canada. In the next scene Shirley Brown and Pauline Kelly were Hollanders sorting bulbs, and a lovely centerpiece of daffodils and tulips was placed on the table. A silver worker (Laura Snider), Czecho-Slovakian workers in pottery (Catherine Williamson and Constance Williams), colored folks (Elizabeth McGie and Ruth Barlow), planting sugar and Canadian farmerettes (Margaret Leslie and Elizabeth Davidson) made tableaux, the result of their work being shown as item after item appeared on the Canadian table.

The last part of the program interpreting the unique function of the C.G.I.T. groups in helping the girl to discover the reality of God was a candle-lighting ceremony, the light of the candle symbolizing Christ, the light of the world. All the girls took part in this impressive scene. Miss Helen Findlay acted as accompanist throughout the evening.

The program concluded with a social hour. The daintily arranged tea table was presided over by Mrs. Robert Hall and Mrs. S. Graham and C.G.I.T. members served tea.

The leaders of the C.G.I.T., Misses R. Templeton, S. Ross, M. Bertram and S. Denike were in charge of the splendid festival

CARTRIDGES ARE USED FOR MONEY

Other things besides money are used to pay for services rendered in this district these days. Haircuts, for example.

A heavy gentleman who slid into the chair in a popular downtown barber shop on Tuesday afternoon ordered a hair cut. The barber snipped steadily at the curling locks. The gentleman nodded in agreement at the finished job as he surveyed himself in the mirror. Then he reached for his loose change. With the change came a handful o f .22 rifle cartridges. There wasn't enough money to pay for the hair cut, but the difference was made up by handing over a dozen or so cartridges.

"Okay" said the barber as the deal was closed.

"Thanks," said the large gentleman as he reached for the door.

Both barber and customer are inveterate rabbit hunters.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE
"DINNER AT 8"

For sheer entertainment value it is doubtful if any motion picture has ever been devised which carries the interest, color and excitement of "Dinner at Eight" which opened to large audiences last evening at the Belle Theatre.

It is easy to understand why "Dinner at Eight" achieved its long-run popularity as a stage play. Its ingenious arrangement of plot and sub-plots, its diversity of characterizations and its shrewd insight into the complex emotions which rise to undermine the happiness of marital life are matters of engrossing interest, and as presented in this arresting and always vivid photoplay, they offer the moviegoer a panorama of dramatic entertainment which leaves very little to be desired.

Each Scene A Big One

Even if the play were not as clever as it is, the mere spectacle of seeing so imposing an array of celebrities in one film as Marie Dressler, the two Barrymores, Wallace Beery, Jean Harlow, Lee Tracey, Edmund Lowe, Billie Burke, Madge Evans, Jean Hersholt, Karen Morley, Louise Closser Hale, Phillips Holmes and May Robson would be enough to stimulate one's cinema appetite. Moreover, the picture has been so artfully contrived that practically each and every one of these well known Hollywood headliners has a big scene to himself.

A Perfect Cast

Of the acting in this unusual picture, one can only say that the various stars more than live up to the reputations which preceded them. The inimitable Marie Dressler offers another of her memorable performances, this time as an old-time musical comedy star. The two Barrymores, as usual, give flawless portrayals, John as a broken-down movie actor no longer able to secure parts; Lionel as the host on the verge of breakdown from overwork. Wallace Beery as an unscrupulous financier, Jean Harlow as his social-climbing wife, Lee Tracy as a breezy Broadway play agent, Edmunde Lowe as a society doctor more interested in his women patients than his wife, Billie Burke as the hostess, Madge Evans as her daughter, all act their parts with a finesse and finished sense of accuracy.

"Dinner at Eight" will be presented at the Belle until Friday, and we recommend it, without qualifications.

AT THE CAPITOL
'GOING HOLLYWOOD'

Six new musical numbers, which promise to become national song hits, will be heard in Marion Davies' new picture, "Going Hollywood", which opens Thursday at the Capitol Theatre with Bing Crosby supporting the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star.

It was the wish of Miss Davies that her newest film should be liberally spiced with contagious musical rhythm, so, in the conferences that preceded the actual shooting of the picture, Producer Walter Wanger assigned Nacio Herb Brown and Arthur Freed to the task.

One of the numbers, "Our Big Love Scene," is a melodic theme that threads its way through the length of the picture.

Gigantic Orchestra

"It is introduced by Miss Davies and Mr. Crosby," said the composers, "and is recorded by the largest symphonic orchestra ever used in motion pictures—an orchestra of one hundred and twenty-five pieces."

Another which Miss Davies believes will become nationally popular is "We'll make Hay While the Sun Shines."

"This song" said the composers, "carries the philosophy of Back-to-the-Farm, where the hustle and bustle of the city is forgotten and where the lovers sing, 'We'll make hay while the sun shines and we'll make love while it rains.'

"It is presented amid a series of beautiful country scenes and represents a dream that Miss Davies has. In the dream, she hears Crosby singing the tune over the radio. During the first few bars he sings in the broadcasting station, but Miss Davies appears and leads him away as he continues to sing.

"A few more bars are sung as she leads him by the hand through a beautiful field of dancing daisies that sway to the beat of the song as they pass through them.

Cottage of Glass

"The song is continued as the lovers enter and pass through their love cottage of glass, and then, in Mauve Decade costumes they are next seen driving along a country lane and into a hay field where a chorus of scarecrows come to life and begin dancing. Miss Davies dances with the scarecrows, and the young lovers next appear at a modernistic husking bee and barn dance, where they meet—in eccentric roles—the other characters in the play. The song continues as the lovers find themselves upon a glass island and as the last bars of the song fade away the dream leaves Miss Davies and Crosby singing in the rain beneath a giant mushroom which has taken shape from an umbrella.

"A third song, 'After Sundown,' is a melodic Mexican theme, introduced by Bing Crosby and sung by Miss Davies.

" 'Temptation', introduced by Crosby, is a melody built upon the monotany of a constant beat and is similar to an American version of the Bolero.

" 'Going Hollywood' is a rhythmic fox trot, sung by Crosby with a backgroupnd of kaleidoscopic scenes in New York's Grand Central railway station and with the group ensembles arranged by Albertina Rasch.

"Cinderella's Fella"

"Another song, 'Cinderella's Fella,' is introduced by Miss Davies. This song is in the same category as 'The Wedding of the Painted Doll' and 'The Old Woman in the Shoe', which also were written by us."

"Going Hollywood," directed by Raoul Walsh, has a cast including Fifi D'Orsay, Stuart Erwin, Ned Sparks, Patsy Kelly, Bobby Watson and the Three Radio Rogues.

Last time Wednesday "East of 5th Avenue" featuring Wallace Ford, Dorothy Tree, Mary Carlisle, Lucien Littlefield and Walter Connolly.

W. M. SOCIETIES

Bridge Street United

The regular meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the Bridge Street United Church was held in the church parlors, Friday afternoon, Feb. 2nd.

The meeting was in charge of Mrs. E. Farnsworth, in the absence of the President, Mrs. Chas. W. Bishop. Reports were given by the officers and secretaries. Mrs. W. E. Gartley, the Temperance Secretary, reported that 500,000 post cards had been sent to Premier Henry, asking that the proposed permission to sell wines and beer in hotels and other public places be not granted.

The Day of Prayer was announced as Feb. 16., meetings to take place at Christ Church Parish Hall.

The meeting was then taken over by Mrs. J. E. Shortt, leader of one of the groups, and by Mrs. W. D. Harrison, the Stewardship Secretary.

The Topic was "Christian Stewardship." A play entitled "Not Exempt" was given by the members of the group. This forceful little play was adapted by F. S. Robinson from "A Wartime Parable" written by L. D. Waterman. Mrs. Shortt, the Prolocutor, gave the Bible reading from Luke 14, verses 28-35, "For which of you, intending to build a tower, sitteth not down first and counteth the cost?"

Mrs. Shortt then explained the setting of the story: A King had two classes of subjects, one close to him and possessing every advantage, the other class, poor and living far away from him and needing help. The King levied a tax of ten percent upon his people and many came before his tax board to claim exemption.

The tax board members of the cast were: Mrs. E. Farnsworth and Mrs. W. D. Harirson.

Those claiming exemption were: Mrs. Marion Club—Mrs. Gilroy. (She belonged to too many clubs and her children had to be sent to such expensive schools).

Mrs. Poor Relation—Mrs. F. E. O'Flynn. (Those in her own family needed help).

Mrs. Carrie Dresswell — Mrs. J. Bateman. (The high cost of living was her plea, and besides her husband didn't believe in such giving).

Mrs. John Poormanager — Mrs. Arnott and her sister-in-law Mrs. Matilda Poormanager—Miss Knight.

Mrs. Stella Sparecash—Mrs. G. F. Cole.

Miss Eileen Newshop—Mrs. H. L. Pearsall.

Mrs. I'm in Debt—Mrs A. H. Bruein.

Mrs. Constant Knitter — Mrs. Campbell. (She had time for nothing but knitting; her boy was still in the army).

The King then summoned many from distant lands to plead their own cause. These were:

The widow of India—Mrs. Muir.

The working girl of China—Mrs. J. N. Boyd.

The woman of Algiers—Mrs. Farley.

Lady Lee Hung Chang — Miss Helen Solman.

The group then sang the hymn: "Take my silver and my gold, Not a mite would I withhold."

"The poor hold out their hands, but it is God who receives what is given to them."

The congregation joined in the hymn: "We give Thee but Thy own, whate'er the gift may be."

PAIN OVER KIDNEYS?

WHEN pain over kidneys or bladder irregularities keep you getting up at night; if you feel nervous, despondent, heed the warning. The kidneys may not be working as they should to filter the blood and keep you free from too much uric acid. Drink plenty of pure water and get Dr. Pierce's Anuric at the drug store. Read what George Girling of 43 Metcalfe St., Guelph, Ont., said: "I strained my back some time ago and it was hard for me to straighten up, without pain. I took one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets and was soon relieved of all pain in my back and was able to work again."

TABERNACLE C.G.I.T. ENTERTAIN MOTHERS

Last evening the C.G.I.T. group of Tabernacle Church were hostesses to their mothers at a social evening at which seventy-five were present.

The program started with a short song service, after which Rev. Naylor gave an address of welcome to the mothers and a few words of explanation of the plans and purposes of the C.G.I.T. training.

The senior group under the direction of Laura Dougherty gave a short skit, "The Wonderful Scholar". Phyllis Weese was the proud mother, Louise Newson the inquisitive neighbor and Edna Cherrie the supposedly educated daughter.

Each of the girls presented their mother with a beautiful daffodil.

A soap contest cleverly worked out was much enjoyed.

The junior group directed by Marjorie Naylor, presented a scene from Hans Andersen's fairy tale, "The Princess and the Swineherd". King, Betty Redfern; Princess, Dorothy Poste; Prince, Jean Redfern; Maids of Honor, Maud Parks, Mary Redfern, Gertrude Poste; Page, Elsie Langabeer; King's Messenger, Hazel Langabeer.

The intermediate group in charge of Dorothea Newson gave an amusing schoolroom scene, "Trixie at Her Tricks". Betty Shorey was the teacher and Irene Charlton was Trixie.

Other members of the class were Jean Redfern, Phyllis Campbell, Keitha Tennant, Fern Thompson, Jean Shorey, Audrey Thompson, Maud Parks, Margaret Atyeo, Doris Kerr.

Human spelling match was an amusing number on the program, the blacks winning. Lunch was served by the girls. The dainty table decorations were in blue and white. Mrs. Naylor and Mrs. Dougherty poured tea.

I Am 76!

When Shall I Grow Old?

The above is from a photograph of Robt. G. Jackson, M.D., at 75. When 50 years of age Dr. Jackson was given but four months to live by the famous Sir Wm. Osler, but through natural living habits and the use of alkaline foods Dr. Jackson is to-day in his 76th year the embodiment of youthful vigor and endurance.

WHEN a young man is old—that's a tragedy. When an old man is young—that's a paradox. Not long ago in a Canadian city there died a man of about 50. An autopsy showed that his body was that of a man of 90. His every organ, heart, stomach, digestive organs and nervous system were "burnt out" completely. He was an old young man. This man, a former country boy, had amassed a vast fortune but to what purpose? He died at 50, yet had he given thought to the health laws of nature he might have lived to be a hundred.

Recently while lecturing before a woman's society in British Columbia, on the subject "How to Be Always Young", I said my test for old age was this: "When a man or woman looks backward to a best time in life that never can come again, ceases to plan and work for the future, old age has set in, regardless of the years lived". Years do not enter into the discussion. Physical and mental resilience are the best measure of age. I am 76 but I'm not old—I'm young—from any standpoint. Why? Well, for years I have not had a moment's sickness. I work 14 hours a day and love my work. I run, skip the rope, play golf and other games, go on lecture tours of thousands of miles and operate a business that is constantly growing in size and importance, selling my products in six countries, and I live not in the past, but look to the future to provide me with better times and better success than I have known.

You say there are other men as vigorous and youthful at my time of life? I do not believe there are. But suppose there are. My great demonstration is in coming back to my state of physical perfection so that I can and do defy disease, even colds, after having never known good health until after I was 50, at which age I was given only four months to live by the greatest physician of modern times, Sir Wm. Osler.

How have I accomplished this seeming miracle? By learning and obeying Nature's health laws, chiefly those laws that relate to foods and feeding habits.

It cannot be doubted that the greatest evil of our civilization is wrong foods and feeding methods, trying to live upon dead, acid-forming and denatured foods. Our resistance to disease is maintained and measured by the amount of vitality we possess and vitality can be obtained and maintained only by eating foods that have in them a vital or life principle which they can transfer to us.

To correct my own devitalized, dying condition I invented vitalizing, alkali-forming Roman Meal. This together with Bekus-Puddy, Lishus, fresh fruits, nuts, vegetables, milk, Kofy-Sub constitute my diet.

"A normal alkali reserve in the blood stream is nature's first defence against fatigue, disease and premature death." So says science. To ensure a normal alkali reserve, 80% of your food intake must be alkali-forming. It is difficult to make 80% of your food intake alkaline without grain foods, and Roman Meal, Bekus-Puddy and Lishus are the only alkali-forming grain foods known. These grain foods also overcome one of the most constant causes of all sickness—constipation.

Bekus-Puddy and Lishus are two newer grain foods I recently put on the market—the equal of Roman Meal in their alkali-forming and laxative properties. They can be alternated with Roman Meal if a change is desired. These products, Bekus-Puddy, Lishus and Kofy-Sub, are daily growing in popularity, not only because of their health building properties but because of their deliciousness. A knowledge of the alkali-forming foods is a valuable bit of health education. If you will write to me I will send you free a list of alkali-forming foods and my pamphlet "HOW TO KEEP WELL". Address Robt. G. Jackson, M.D., 535, Vine Ave., Toronto.

Rolland near the Madeleine Church at noon today. He ran into a restaurant to protect himself from the jeering throng.

As the menacing growds gathered, Premier Daladier announced his decision to resign.

Previously he conferred with President Lebrun, with the ministers of his cabinet and with Presidents of the Senate and of the Chamber.

His lined face showed care. Oppositionists made it plain that they considered him responsible for authorizing the troops and police to fire on the people last night.

CRIES "RESIGN" HEARD

Grimly he heard the crowds cry "Resign! Resign!"

Occasionally the shout was heard: "Assassin!"

And there was another, more ominous shout:

"Now we know what to do. We also are armed!"

Wherever a crowd gathered, in the squares or in the boulevards, the shouts continued:

"Resign!" "Resign!"

Thousands were jammed into the square in front of the Bourse. Trading had to be suspended because of their deafening cries of: "Assassin! Vive Chiappe!"

The police attempted to disperse them but were powerless. They summoned reinforcements by automobile in an attempt to arrest the leaders.

But even with the reinforcements they could not wedge their way through the crowd to their quarry.

Instead, they had to retreat and watched powerlessly while the crowd waved its hands and sang the Marsellaise.

Office workers leaned from their windows shouting: "Assassin!" and "Down with Daladier!"

The news that Daladier and his ministers had resigned spread through the crowd like a flash. Immediately Gaston Doumergue, former president, was mentioned everywhere as a leader who might form a solid National Union Cabinet.

Doumergue himself left Paris yesterday to go to his country home at Tour Efeuil in Southern France. President Lebrun telephoned him there asking him to succeed Daladier even as he had asked him to take the Premiership last January.

But, as he had at that time, Doumergue refused.

The shouts of the crowd showed the popularity of Jean Chiappe, former Prefect of Police of Paris, whom Daladier discharged from that post.

Time and again the boulevards rang with the shout: "Vive Chiappe!"

TWEED OFFICER IS THREATENED

Forced to Use "Billy" After Man Brandishes Dagger Knife

Brandishing a dagger knife and threatening to stab Constable J. G. Hayes of Tweed in order to evade arrest John Weiman, aged 40, Finlander, was overpowered by the officer after the constable was forced to bring his "billy" into use and use it profusely over the threatening man's head. Weiman was apprehended by Constable Hayes in a Tweed restaurant in an intoxicated condition at an early hour this morning. The officer took his man into custody but, as he loosened his hold on his prisoner to unlock the jail door at Tweed Weiman bolted and made a mad dash for freedom.

The officer took up the chase and finally overtook his escaped prisoner some two blocks away. It was at this point that Weiman produced a large dagger knife and made two or three slashing blows at the officer who nimbly evaded the steel. Sensing danger the constable brought his billie into use and finally subdued his escaping prisoner by administering a number of forceful blows that brought Weiman to his knees. later the officer experienced little difficulty in placing the man under arrest and lodging him in the jail house.

Faced Three Charges.

Weiman appeared in the local police court held before Magistrate Mikel this morning looking none the worse for his previous night's escapades. He was charged with three separate charges: first of carrying concealed weapons, to wit a dagger knife; second, of assaulting a police officer in pursuit of his duties and of resisting arrest; third, a charge of intoxication. Weiman pleaded guilty to all charges presented but was sentenced on the intoxication count only.

When asked how he came to be intoxicated Weiman assured the court he did not remember threatening the officer as he was "too drunk". He had been drinking moonshine liquor, he said. Weiman was sentenced to serve [illegible] jail on the liquor count, being unable to pay a fine. At the suggestion of B. C. Donnan, K.C., Crown Attorney, sentence was enlarged in the other two cases until a complete check-up has been made on Weiman's past.

The accused man denied ever having been previously convicted in a Canadian court. Weiman was born in Finland forty years ago and has been a resident of Canada for the past twenty-three years, he said. He speaks very broken English and has been living in the "jungle" near Tweed lately, according to information given out by Constable Hayes this morning. Wieman will be finger printed and information as to his past requested from the federal police. The enlargement was set at one week.

East Bridge St. Owl Fails to Show Self

The East Bridge Street owl for the first time in weeks today failed to make his early morning appearance on the sun warmed eaves of the Carman Block, and a mild wave of excitement is rippling through business houses and offices on the street.

Almost daily for the past month the little owl, whose home is believed to have been made between the attic and roof of a store in that block, on the north side has come out to sit and blink in the bright sun. Behind him is a large opening in the eave, where a board has fallen away. Further back runs a chimney where it is believed the bird warms himself in the colder weather.

So punctual has been his appearance each morning that business men of the street could almost set their watch by his actions. Until late in the morning the little creature has held his station, and has then retired to the dark depths for his nap.

He picks up his living by hunting mice and rats throughout the city streets in the dark of night.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York, Feb. 7 (AP)—Stocks tumbled today over what the more cautious traders described as a long overdue but "healthy" reaction.

Profit taking in the recent vigorous industrials and rails, and heaviness of a few aircraft issues, set the list back 1 to 3 or more points at one time, which was the first substantial reversal this year. Bonds were mixed.

Shares of Homestake Mining got up 9, U. S. Smelting 6 and American Smelting, Alaska Juneau, Dome and McIntyre about a point each.

Aside from strength in Dome and McIntyre, Canadian stocks were generally quiet. International Nickel and Canadian Pacific eased slight fractions. On the curb Lake Shore was steady and Hiram Walker a trifle lower. Dominion Government bonds inactive. The Canadian dollar was 1-16 of a cent higher at 99.25 cents.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Feb. 7. — Profit-taking continued in Ford "A" and some of the construction stocks today in the industrial section of the Toronto exchange and quotations were further shaded. Volume slowed down at the lower price levels and the whole board had an appearance of firmness at noon.

Ford A's recent rise to 25 brought in a rush of profit-taking in the stock that has prevailed over three sessions and the price worked back to 23 today. At noon it was holding fractionally up from the day's low. C.P.R. took a narrow loss and Nickel was off 10 cents to $23.40. In the distillery group Industrial Alcohol traded unchanged at 15⅞, Walker's common at 49⅜, off ⅛ and Distillers Seagram down ¼ to 21¾.

A substantial mid-day sell off on the New York market and profit-taking in a few of the recently buoyant issues, particularly Ford "A" and some of the construction stocks gave the industrial section a soft appearance at the end of the second hour.

Ford "A" weakened to 23 before the realizing dried up after which it came back about half a point. Some buying came along for the distillery shares and these issues showed small fractional gains.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Feb. 7 (CP)— Traders took a bigger bite of the senior gold shares on the mining section of the Toronto Stock Exchange today than in more than a week and prices firmed in the group as well as in the silver and some of the base metal shares. Buying was heavy in Dome, McIntyre, Hollinger, and also in Nickel and Noranda.

Silver stocks were in better demand with Eldorado up a few cents, Nipissing up 5, White Eagle 1-2 and Mining Corporation 2 cents to 1.92. Nickel floated down to 23.20 in the first hour but partly recovered before noon while Noranda moved up 25 cents to 36.25.

McIntyre was the strongest of the big gold group, gaining $1 to 42.25. Dome also improved 25 cents, and Lake Shore, Wright Hargreaves and Pioneer were down a little.

The buying was better than the selling in the mining section today and quotations on some of the leaders edged forward moderately mainly in the gold group. Trading in Hollinger, McIntyre and Dome was the heaviest in 10 days.

Base metals merely held their ground with exception of International Nickel which sagged with the New York list. Silver issues were generally firm and strong.

Maroons Develop Scoring Punch and Win Over Ottawa Puts Team in Playoff Berth

Defeat Ottawa 6-2 While Amerks Trim Bruins 1-0

RANGERS WIN

Canadiens Could Make No Progress Against New York

By A. E. FULFORD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A latent scoring punch, concealed so long Maroons hardly knew themselves it existed, is being carefully nurtured today by Manager Eddie Gerard, who figures it's the only weapon he needed to bring his Montrealers a playoff position.

Maroons trotted out their concealed threat at the Montreal Forum last night and used it to whip Ottawa Senators 6-2, tieing them for the National Hockey league's Canadian division second spot with Canadiens, shut out 3-0 by Andy Aitkenhead and New York Rangers.

Lester Patrick's team used the win to give them a three point lead over Detroit and a margin of four over Chicago in the United States Division, more than they have enjoyed in ages. Now Patrick can sit back and watch Tommy Gorman and Jack Adams pit Black Hawks against Red Wings Thursday night with the comforting thought neither can take over the leadership.

Ottawa's loss last night and New York Americans' 1-0 win over Bruins in Boston just about counted Senators and Art Ross' team out of contention for playoff positions. While they both have mathematical chances, and will have for some games yet, their recent showings have led followers to believe they will be on the outside looking in when the money series starts.

Develop Scoring Punch

Maroons scored three goals last night before Senators could sandwich in a pair and they counted three more after the Ottawans had finished beating Dave Kerr. Russell Blinco, scholarly Windsor recruit, sent the Gerardmen on their way in the first period and Hooley Smith and Glen Brydson got the other two of the first trio.

Syd Howe, fiery young Ottawan, put Senators in the scoring column three minutes before the first period ended and Bill Touhey got their second goal early in the middle frame.

Brydson scored again in the second and Jimmy Ward also contributed in that frame. Herb Cain got their third period goal. Hooley Smith counted two assists as well as his goal.

Bill Cook tried hard for his 200th National League goal but he couldn't click against Canadiens. Rangers scored once in each period on speedy thrusts which took advantage of infrequent lapses of the Canadiens defense. Bun Cook got the first period tally, Murray Murdock scored in the second and Ott Heller got his first goal this season in the third.

Aitkenhead was unbeatable in the Ranger nets. Canadiens played fine, fast hockey and fired 46 shots at the New Yorker.

Eddie Burke was the hero of the American-Boston encounter, scoring the only goal of the game in the second period on a rink-wide pass from Deed Klein. Both are members of the "former Bruins" section of the American club.

Boston tried hard to chalk up a win but their attack was disorganized and Roy Worters, American netminder, refused to fall victim of their power play.

KI-Y LOOP

Staging a whirlwind third period rally the O.S.D. juveniles came from behind to play the group leading Rough Riders a 4 to 4 tie in a regular juvenile fixture in the local Ki-Y League at the Arena last evening.

The group leaders forged to the front the initial frame by out-scoring the lads from the O.S.D. by three goals to one only to add another in the middle canto when the boys from the School for the Deaf went scoreless. Headed by Lee, Bostnari, Kowalewicz and Hoist the O.S.D. juveniles came to life in the final stanza to play the Rough Riders completely off their feet and all but win the contest, when they scored 3 goals in quick succession and were pressing for the much needed extra goal, when the final whistle blew. The O.S.D. team are now in second place, one game behind the leading Rough Riders, who incidentally have not lost a single game in their group this season.

The line-ups—O.S.D.— Rolando, Lethbridge, Hawthorne, Kowalewicz, Bostnari, Thorlard, Hoist, Kosti, Evans and Compton. Rough Riders —Carson, O'Neil, Voisin V. Rowbotham Parks, Doran, Tapp and Reynolds.

Referee —Cliff Howie.

In an exhibition game, that preceded the Ki-Y game the local "transport" drivers downed the Bankers by the score of 8 to 2. The "coin counters" were slow in getting started but after being down 8 to 0 in the final period they staged a belated rally that not only kept the winners from scoring but added their only two counters of the pastime.

BETHEL STILL ON TOP RUNG

Defeat Mount Pleasant 3-1 While Bonarlaw Blanked by Glen Ross

Stirling, Feb. 7 (Special)—Bethel retained their position at the top of the Rawdon hockey loop on Monday night at Stirling when they defeated Mount Pleasant 3-1 in a clean, fast game, while Glen Ross made merry at the expense of Bonarlaw, blanking that club 6-0. In the first game Wallace scored from a scramble for Bethel for the only score of the period and Hagerman evened the count in the second frame when he beat Warren of Bethel. Ackers put Bethel one in the lead early in the last frame and Benedict cinched the pastime with a well placed drive in the latter part of the game.

The line-up:

Bethel—W. Warren, goal; E. Wallace and J. Ackers, defence; S. Kirkey, centre; J. Kirkey and L. Benedict, wings; subs, B. Sutherland, E. Warren, D. Broadworth.

Mount Pleasant— Herb. Higgs, goal; B. Jeffs and L. Hay; defence, H. Hagerman, centre; J. Coggins and I. David, wings; subs, Ken. Smith, Herb. Smith, Bert Jeffs.

Referee—Conley Ackers.

Minus two of their regular lineup, Bonarlaw could not put up a determined defence against the sharp scoring drives of the winning combination, Glen Ross. Gerry Fraser scored two goals unassisted for his team and Don Scott added another in the first frame, while Fraser tallied the only goal of the second frame. Scott and Fraser were the marksmen in the final frame and the winners were far superior to the losers in every department. The line-ups:

Glen Ross—Bert Hagerman, goal; Harry Brookes and Gerald Fraser, defence; Don Scott, centre; Harry Vandervoort and Roy Brookes, wings; subs, Ray Hagerman, Pyear.

Bonarlaw—Dick Knocker, goal; George and Jack Wellman, defence; Harold Stiles, centre; Wilson Campbell and Reg. Donnelly, wings, subs George Lummiss, Cliff. McInroy, T. Shier, E. Gray, J. Linn, T. Davis.

Referee—Earl Wallace.

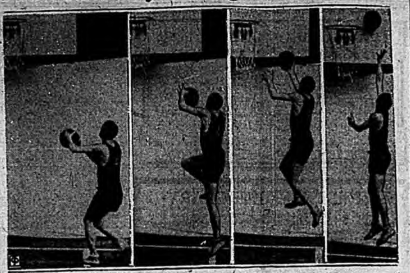
Basketball Fundamentals

Watch Your Feet in Making Crip Shot, Two-Count Rhythm Legal but Not Three



Written for Central Press Canadian and the Ontario Intelligencer

By JACK LIPPERT

The basketball shot discussed today is called, variously, the lay-up shot, the leap shot and the crip shot. Throughout the south and some parts of the middle west it is the crip shot, so-called because it is the most accurate shot in basketball, for there is certainly nothing humorous in the thought of a cripple attempting to do something involving so much co-ordination and timing as the running lay-up shot requires.

The shot is the most accurate in basketball because it brings the shooter high up in the air off his feet and his hand close to the basket. Very tall players have only to leap and virtually drop the ball through the basket as they would drop a lump of sugar into a cup. It is never quite as simple as this, of course.

Opportunities to use the lay-up shot come to players many times during a game. The most common occasion for the shot occurs when a player is cutting from the side-lines on a diagonal for the basket and receives a pass out in front of him. The pass is so timed that it reaches the shooter's hands at a spot five to twelve feet away from the free-throw lane lines.

The shooter catches the ball travelling at high speed. Just as it reaches his hands he leaps off his left foot, if the left is the next foot to strike the floor. If it is not, he usually waits until the left foot comes forward again (called the two-count rhythm) and then leaps off it. Not many players are capable of leaping effectively off the right foot.

Allowing the right foot to strike and then leaping off the left foot the next time it comes forward is perfectly legal, provided the ball had not yet reached the shooter's hand when the left foot struck the floor in the first place.

That is, if the shooter catches the ball while he is running, and his left foot is striking the floor or is the next foot to strike the floor, the shooter may not take the stride with his right foot and then leap off the left foot the next time the left foot comes forward. This would make three counts, whereas two counts is the legal limit.

• • •

The rule covering this point was newly phrased last year, and has been clarified still further for the current season. It is much less complicated than it used to be, but it still requires study and interpretation in actual demonstration before it can be fully understood.

Let me give you the exact phrasing of the rule, so that you may decide for yourself what it means to you:

Rule 7, section 9, item 2—"A player who receives the ball while he is progressing or upon completion of a dribble may use a two-count rhythm in coming to a stop or in getting rid of the ball (such as shooting or passing it). The first count occurs:

"(a) As he receives the ball if either foot is in contact with the floor at the time he receives it;

"(b) As the foot strikes the floor or as both feet strike the floor simultaneously after he receives the ball if both feet are off the floor when he receives the ball."

• • •

The rule continues: "The second count occurs when, after the count of one, the other foot strikes the floor, or both feet strike the floor simultaneously."

The accompanying moving picture sequence shows the running lay-up shot executed by a player who receives the ball with the right foot in contact with the floor (first count); then his left foot strikes the floor, which is the foot he leaps off (second count). He gets rid of the ball before either foot again touches the floor, making the manoeuvre legal.

In later articles I will illustrate some of the more complicated variations of the one-count and two-count rhythm rule, and also give more detailed explanation of the use of the hands on the ball in executing lay-up shots.

Belleville Juniors Cinch First Place by Tying Hastings 1-1

Referee Refused to Allow Goal Legitimately Scored By Locals

Playing the Hastings Juniors a 1 to 1 seventy minute tie game at Norwood last night, the Belleville juniors cinched first place in their section of junior O.H.A. hockey and will now await the result of Thursday night's game in Trenton, when the Hastings and Trenton kids battle off for second position and the right to meet the group leading "Maroons" in the play-offs.

Arriving 30 minutes late owing to impassable roads and sub-zero weather the game was held up 50 minutes until the Thomas-coached aggregation absorbed enough heat to commence hostilities at about 9 p.m. The ice surface at Norwood is the largest the locals ever played upon, being 25 feet longer than the local Arena and fully 12 feet wider but, it gave the Belleville youths an opportunity to display their speed and combination.

Sinfield turned in an average performance and was capably defended by Greer and McElrath, while the front line of Barriage flanked by Ethier and McGuire proved better than their other team mate forwards. Tharby turned in a stellar performance, continually thwarting the local marksmen by his miraculous saves in the Hastings' net. Rogers and Puffer looked the best of the forwards used.

Disallowed Goal

A disputed goal late in the third period caused no little end of excitement in the local camp after Referee Hogan disallowed a goal scored by Barriage on a pass-out from McElrath. The play started at the Belleville defence, when McElrath rushed but was forced into a corner at the Hastings end of the Arena. When penned in McElrath pass-out to Barriage who was camped in front of the Hastings net. As McElrath shot out, however, Rogers fell in checking him and after the goal was scored the official in charge disallowed the goal and penalized McElrath for tripping.

The Play

No score was registered in the first half of the initial frame although both teams missed numerous chances to bulge the twine. Eighteen minutes after the game started Ethier took a rink-wide pass from Bob Greer to sail in on Tharby and open the scoring. The homesters bagged their only counter in the second period, when N. Rogers out-footed the local forwards evaded the Belleville defence and rifled an ankle-high shot past Sinfield. No score was registered in the third period, except the disallowed goal scored by the locals, while the ten minute overtime period also went scoreless.

The Hastings kids can now cinch second place in the local group by defeating Trenton at Trenton tomorrow night. A win for Trenton, however, will eliminate Hastings and place the Bowen-coached team in the play-off position.

The line-ups—

Belleville—Goal, Sinfield; defence, Greer and McElrath; centre, Barriage; wings, Ethier and McGuire; subs— High, Lee, Harvey and L'Heureux.

Hastings—Goal, Tharby; defence, L. Rogers, McCoy; centre, C. Puffer; wings, N. Rogers, and Boyle; subs, Innis, G. Puffer Sargent and Hamblin.

Referee—Hogan of Hastings.

Summary

First Period—

Second Period—
Hastings—N. Rogers 9.55
Third Period—

ART ANGELL WINS BY K.O.

South End Boxers Take Part in Kingston Show

Three boxers, Art Angell, Johnny O'Neill and Bobby Fisher of the S.E.A.C. took part in the boxing show held in the Memorial Hall in Kingston on Tuesday night under the sponsorship of Relief Project 42 of Barriefield Camp and returned home with some of the laurels. There were ten high class bouts on the card and the show was witnessed by over 2,000 fans. Art Angell at 135 pounds put Gallagher away in four rounds after having all the better of the going up to the time of the knockout. The decision against Bobby Fisher, who boxed McGee was most unpopular and the crowd held up the other bouts, while they voiced their displeasure. According to Joe Semaine, who handled the boxers for the South End Club, Fisher should have had at least a draw and there were many, who believed he had won with plenty to spare. Johnny O'Neill, took a trimming from Horricks at 126 pounds.

The South End have arranged a splendid card for February 28 in the City Hall. There will be ten bouts and the matchmakers have provided for plenty of action with the usual amount of scientific ability. All the boys, who will compete are in serious training, and will come into the ring in perfect condition.

PLAYOFF BERTH SLIPS AWAY FROM SAILORS

Torontos Shoved Them Further in Mire by 4-1 Win

Port Colborne, Ont., Feb. 7.—(CP)— Port Colborne sailors today were six points away from a playoff berth in the Senior Ontario Hockey Association Wars. Port Colborne still rested in fifth place, six points behind Niagara Falls, and were helped farther away from the charmed circle by Toronto last night who defeated them 4-1, cementing their hold on second place.

It was one of the fastest hockey battles witnessed here this season. Hodges, Grivel, Lough and Smith were Torontos' marksmen, the Lone Sailors' tally going to Upper. The game became fairly rough in spots as the players bumped each other about.

George Wade, Sailors' speeding pivot man, was the fastest skater on the ice. He raced around Torontos' territory and several times was right on top of Goaler Goldie only to miss. Superior marksmanship and a more finished style around the net brought victory to the visitors.

POLICE COURT

No session of the police court was held Tuesday morning before Magistrate Mikel, while no arrests were made by the local police department during the past 24 hours.

The Highway Traffic Officer on duty reported no accidents in this immediate district thus giving the local circles a rather quiet time.

Owing to the sub-zero weather in vogue the past 24 hours five transients were offered a warm night's lodging Monday night in the police cells.

Constable Taylor found a bicycle parked on Front Street early this morning and took the wheel to the police station. It is a reinforced frame and apparently was not left outside by its owner. The bicycle awaits its owner at the police station.

FOUND KILLED ON HIGHWAY

Port Hope, Ont., Feb. 7.—Struck by a hit and run driver on the King's highway seven miles west of here about nine o'clock last night, William Bebee, aged 50, was instantly killed, and the police are combing the district in search of the driver. Bebee is a widely known resident of Hope township.

Bebee was found on the snow covered highway.

CURRENT SPORT

(Day By Day)

It looks as though the Toronto Maple Leaf Baseball Club fell into a bed of roses when they hooked up with the Cincinnati Reds recently. Following the linking up of the Leafs and the Reds, Powell Crosley, Jr., of radio manufacture fame in the Ohio city, purchased controlling interest in the Red Stockings, named Bob O'Farrell manager and then proceeded to re-construct the present floundering Reds. Mr. Crosley took the rubber band from the well known bank roll and placed it at the disposal of the club. What does all this mean to the Leafs? Well—just this —the Reds will have a host of young players trying out this spring, the majority of whom will be farmed out to the Leafs for seasoning. It begins to look as though the Queen City organization would have been well advised to sever connections with the Detroit Tigers many seasons ago. About the time Gerald Walker took a "walk-out pill" and returned to Tigerville would have been the most opportune time to call it a day. Why already Manager Boone has some conception of what players he is to expect from the Reds while, when the Leafs were on working (?) terms with the Tigers they never knew from one day until the next what farmed-out players they really had on hand. It looks as though the "new deal" for the Leafs is O.K.

A number of the foremost speed skaters, fancy skaters and trick skaters throughout the entire North American continent are at present in competition in Toronto for the North American championships. In going over the lists of celebrities we observed the name of various speed skaters and fancy skaters, who have appeared locally in recent years. Andy Simons, who gave a demonstration of barrel jumping in Belleville about a year ago before but a handful of local fans, is advertised as holder of the world's record of barrel jumper, which he will endeavor to shatter some time today.

Open war has at last been declared between the two amateur branches operating in Ontario. The fuse was ignited when no sanction for last night's Lennox Athletic Club boxing bouts was issued by the Southwestern Ontario branch. The bouts were staged in Hamilton with a previous permit being issued by the Central Ontario branch, with headquarters at Toronto. The amateur mogule in Hamilton and Western Ontario are up in arms over the action of the newly formed Toronto organization and a showdown will undoubtedly follow. The entire procedure will be watched throughout the entire province, the entire Dominion as a matter of fact.

Manager Walter Patterson of the Belleville Arena announced yesterday that the Belleville Arena would be thrown open to all school children every afternoon of the week from 4 until 5 p.m. and on Saturday morning. Mr. Patterson informs us that the numbers to skate at the arena since the lowering of adult prices has increased considerably. The announcement relating to school kiddies being allowed free skating every afternoon will naturally be thankfully received by all.

Apparently the Belleville Skating Club has made its mark in surrounding carnival circles. Recently they appeared, collectively and individually, during a carnival staged at Tweed. Now comes the information that they are to appear during a similar function at Wellington and also at Campbellford. So well did they please the patrons during their Tweed performance that an invitation was extended to them to return at a later date and give another demonstration. The local skaters give various demonstrations of figure skating interspersed with a few acts of comic and trick skating to give the fans a varied program that is highly appreciated.

In yesterday's issue a local citizen proposed that the local curling club building, now lying idle on George street, be dismantled and moved to the Exhibition Park, where it could serve a double purpose, during Fair week and for curling in winter months. The idea is well taken and, as suggested, could be completed as a local relief project. Curling has been a dead issue in Belleville of late years despite the many championship rinks that have represented Belleville in Canadian curling circles in years past. What is really needed is a few live wire boosters at the helm and the rejuvenation of the sport would be assured.

Following the 2 to 0 win of the Trenton intermediates over the Cobourg Waverleys on Monday night the stocks of the Bowen-coached clan have elevated to a point where they are now talking of a probable Trenton-Campbellford series up around Mark Tripp's cigar store. The followers of the black and white seem to think that because their pets romped home to a 4 to 3 win over the local Dohertys here last Thursday their troubles are all over insofar as Belleville competition is concerned. "Tut, tut, boys," there's many a slip 'twixt the cup and the lip. For the information of Joe Gould and his merry men we might say that after a week's absence, owing to illness, Coach Wilf L'Heureux returned to the helm of the "oilmen" last evening and put them through the stiffest workout they have experienced this season. Skipper Patterson does not intend letting the local marksmen miss as many scoring chances as they did last week. The locals are nightly practicing shooting, 'tis rumored. Friday night may have another tale to tell.

Eddie Thomas' juniors finished their group by playing a one-all tie with the Hastings kids at Norwood last evening. According to reports brought back by the locals any chances of winning the game were obliterated by the incompetent bell ringing of the referee in charge. On a pass out from behind the net by McElrath, Cy Barriage whipped home the winning goal but the "ref" was not for having the home kids lose. The local juniors finished their group without sustaining a single loss and will now meet the winner between Trenton and Hastings in the group play-offs, starting next week.

"LOVE'S LOTTERY

— by —

Katharine Haviland-Taylor

Slowly, lurching a little, he made his way toward the rise and the dense woods. A sudden seizure of faintness made him sway and a low bough struck his arm to start it to bleeding afresh. He tightened the bandage once more. The blood was frozen on his sleeve and under his glove upon his wrist.

CHAPTER 29

He would have to rest now and again, Terry realised, and in some manner, keep warm. But, no matter how weakness urged him, he must not knuckle under to it to lie down. Once down in the snow, he'd be lost. He began to repeat, "Must—not—lie—down!" His tongue was thickening, his mouth growing dry.

At eight, Pierre, Tilden and their men from the ranch found him at the edge of the first valley, babbling a little of not lying down and of one called Cicily. They carried him in, Pierre running ahead to [illegible]phone to the village for the old [illegible]or.

When Terry came back to full consciousness he saw Mrs. Higgins panting in, and Tilden and his followers making ready to go out.

"I know what you're after—" he said, eyes on the group of men and guessing their quest of the other man they planned to find that night, "and I want you to bring him in to meet justice. No stringing him up on my land—or anywhere —you understand?"

Unwillingly Tilden nodded. "Yes, Sir Terrill. And we're going to bring him in," he prophesied, and truly.

The doctor got the bullet and gave Terry a bromide that made him sleep; but at two he woke to see a shaded light and Mrs. Higgins sitting by his bed and Pierre peering at him from the doorway.

"You'd better turn in," he whispered. "I'm no end fit now. I'm going to pull through and I'm going to do it speedily!"

Mrs. Higgins, who had forgotten that she tended Sir Terrill, the owner of the land, said, leaning toward him, "We're all right, dearie, you go to sleep again. Me and Pierre we want to be here—"

She saw his eyes brim. About starved he was she realized, for some one to show a little love for him. She dabbed her own eyes with the corner of the apron that seemed a physical part of her. He slept restlessly and ill, after that; a drugged sleep from which he roused constantly to murmur of "Cicily, [illegible] my dearest".

In New York, a week later, a very plainly attired doctor (for Miss Ella's apartment) sat with a white-faced girl before a fire.

"I am about tired of this," he said harshly, "of dealing with cowards. Each day of my life I have to deal with people who whine, 'Happiness has passed me by'. Those same people, if starving, would somehow find food, and needing money, they would earn it. They do not, will not, realize that they must earn happiness. Do you enjoy your misery?"

She told him her pallor increased by resentment, that she did not.

"What would make your happiness?" Cicily heard after her heated denial.

She did not answer immediately; at length she said slowly, "Making—the man I love—love life and want to live long——"

"Ah," said the plainly clad doctor, "you are growing up. Some day, if you are brave, you will be a good and a useful woman!"

He left her then and she sat before the fire thinking. Suddenly the pattern of her thought changed; the idea of Terry's turning his kind face from her, did not matter; his realization that she had learned him to love him, did matter.

His was the right, she decided, to know that she had matured to care, that thought of him would always influence her to make her better, and that, no matter what pain [illegible] to her, she was glad she loved. [illegible] almost forgotten peace settled in her heart; she sat sagged, without knowing that tears were upon her cheeks and lashes; and she did not realize that she was crying until Miss Ella appeared to whimper a tremulously worried and stricken, "Oh, my pet! My pet!"

And then ——suddenly—— Cicily laughed. "Darling!" she said, warmly, "I'm getting well! And I've grown up! I'm not going——to trouble you any more! If I can't have —that for which I'm going to fight—I shall make another fight —for sanity! You have been so good to me—so good to me!"

Miss Ella mopped her eyes. "Life," she admitted, "is not so simple as it seems—dear."

"I'm well," said Cicily she thought, "But I shall never be whole ——without him!"

Cicily flew the next day over the fields, which looked a white quilt made of shining, satin wedding garments; the fences that pricked the snow made the seams; the rivers were rents in the old fabrics....Dr. Denton had struggled hard with her, she realized, and he had won, and he deserved to win! She was going now—to fight for happiness—for hers and for Terry's. How the world swayed below her; but not so wildly as her heart.

Dr. Denton had said the voyage through clouds would take two hours and a half, or three, and that they could land, he had found by telephoning, back of Sir Terrill's house. Back of —Terry's house.

Then she would go in—to know whether he would give her another [illegible]ance. She closed her eyes; she [illegible]s saying her prayers.

The pilot turned to smile back at her—a deep-sea looking creature in his goggles and warm helmet. She smiled back her message of well-being and comfort; the whir of the wind and the roar of the motor made other communication impossible.....She was on her way, she realised stupidly, to Terry...and, if he could give her her second chance, she would be well. And if he could not, Dr. Denton had promised her that he would help her to grow enough well to face life bravely, to do good where she could and to keep thus from increasing the world's minor tone—the duty of everyone, he had stressed. A fine man he was; and of the best of men. If Terry would give her a second chance—she closed her eyes again. "God, please!" she entreated, her throat knotted. "Never—another thing—I'll never ask another thing —for myself—if I can have this!" she promised.

Again she nodded at her pilot; it was a message of being comfortable, warm, and free of that sickness which comes to some in air.

She was "one wow!" he decided, and "a good sport". The boys had all raised eyebrows at him, signifying their envy of his luck after she had kissed the older woman who had been with her, and as she climbed into the plane. And he had been in luck. She was a good passenger; she hadn't gone green at any sudden rise or swoop and he'd made good time. She'd asked for that. She seemed in a hurry. Funny place for her to head; most of her sort were flying to Palm Beach and from there to Havana. Below and before him he saw the village from which he was to go north for about two miles. Then a big place with a gray roof set on a hillside with fields behind it, he'd been told and then a forest. He might have to circle a bit, to find it. No, quite clear, and a good field for landing; not a wire or a fence anywhere near.

Terry, that morning had been bathed and shaved by Pierre, and now he lay abed, ashamed of himself. He was quite strong enough, he knew, to get up. His luncheon tray, hardly touched, was on the table by him; the latest papers, which were a little old, lay in their original creases on his bed.

He ought to stir; he ought to want to stir. But—what was the use of wanting? Certain sorts of wanting gave to you a good dose of straight hell. Perhaps she was—now—married to the boy who believed in nothing but "getting on". There he was again, thinking of her!

Then he heard the low zoom of an airplane engine coming near and nearer. It was an odd sound for the place, he decided in his new, uncaring way; possibly some pilot had been driven down by engine trouble. He didn't want to see anyone. But he must remember to ask about the plane when Pierre appeared. Pierre was so pathetically grateful for any small show of interest which Sir Terrill could evince. He must not forget to ask Pierre about it.

Pierre, in his kitchen, moved quickly toward a window. Above the frosted pictures that covered half the plane, he saw an airplane glide to the rising field. He ran to the door.

A pilot was crawling from the plane, a trifle stiffly. Pierre, hurrying up the gentle slope, saw the pilot loosening the straps that had tied in his passenger, a rarely lovely girl who swayed a second after she stood upon the ground. She turned to Pierre, who was now close. "This is——Sir Terrill Brown-Thorpes" place?" she asked, uncertainly, a little breathlessly. Pierre knew her. It was the Cicily of whom Sir Terrill had murmured, during his uneasy, drug-induced, half sleep. Pierre had felt, with Mrs. Higgins, that the utmost of scorn was due to her, but how he said a meek "Yes, Mademoiselle!" as he made a low bow. Truly, hers was the face that should, in picture, smile at one from above the altar. In such heart as must be in her, there could be no evil! It was, then, this rift that had so crippled their beloved master, one of those misunderstandings that came to mar the most beautiful of passions. And now—Pierre felt certain—it was over.

The pilot was taking her luggage from the plane, Pierre saw, and he breathed a deep, satisfied "Ah!"

"I came to see Sir Terry —Sir Terrill. —Is he—is he here?" the girl asked.

Pierre nodded as he said, "Yes, he very bad hurt; he shot!"

CHAPTER 30

Pierre saw Cicily lose color then; he saw fright deepen her eyes to violet, and he saw her hard, yet short, intake of breath. He put a hand under her arm. "He be all right, now you come," he reassured her quickly; "he need you very much; he sleep very bad that night he shot; he talk—'Cicily! Cicily!' Mrs. Higgins, I, we his nurse—"

"Say," put in the pilot, who had felt nothing of the drama and a great deal of his cold and hunger, "can't we get inside? And can you give me a meal?"

"Come!" Pierre ordered, as he nodded assent.

The pilot then picked up two suitcases from the hard crusted snow; they were capacious and well packed. It looked "as if she was going to stay," he decided.

Pierre led Cicily to the guest wing where, with trembling hands, she took off the small toque that had felt so tight and, with hands that trembled even more violently, tried to rearrange her long, heavy hair. Pierre helped her from her swaddlings to see her as a wind-blown reed. Then, telling her where, when she was ready, she could find Sir Terrill, he moved toward the door.

TARZAN AT THE EARTH'S CORE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

© 1931, by Edgar Rice Burroughs, Inc. All rights reserved.
Rex Maxon

Gridley recovered from the mysterious blow, shouted to his companions to follow him. He pulled himself out just in time to see a bronze giant disappearng in the forest. For a moment his heart leaped within him, the figure so suggested Tarzan's. "No," he said to himself, "it cannot be. Thoar himself saw Tarzan carried to his doom by the thipdar." Anyway the fellow was not a Horib and Jason decided to track him.

Guided only by the sickening scent of the Horibs, Tarzan ran through the dark woods. Then, fearful lest he come upon them in numbers he took lightly to the trees. Soon he saw beneath him a single Horib dragging the still struggling Jana. Without a pause the ape-man launched himself like an arrow straight for the lizard-man. He struck with such force that the creature was half stunned as Tarzan bore him to the ground.

A sinewy arm encircled his neck as Tarzan arose dragging the creature up with him. Turning quickly and bending forward, Tarzan swung the body over his head and hurled it violently to the ground, still retaining his hold upon its neck. Again and again he whipped the mighty body over his head and dashed it to the earth, while the Red Flower of Zoram, wide-eyed with astonishment at this exhibition of Herculean strength, looked on.

At last satisfied that the creature was no more, Tarzan released it. Taking its knife, he turned to Jana. "Come," he said, "there is but one safe place for us." He lifted her to his shoulder and sprang into a low-hanging branch. Once in the trees, Tarzan lowered her to her feet, and as he looked into the Red Flower of Zoram's smile he had all the reward he desired. Only for a moment were they permitted to think they were safe.

STUDY CLUB FOR FARMERS FORMED

Michael Shea, Angus Farrell, Arnold Forestell Conveners

Stirling, Feb. 6—In accordance with the wishes of his Excellency, Co-Adjutor Archbishop O'Brien of the Diocese of Kingston expressed and set forth to the clergy of the diocese at the recent meeting of the deanery held in Trenton, Farm Study Clubs are being organized throughout the district. St. James' parish, Stirling was divided into three study groupings. At the meeting held for organization purposes, one Stirling group embracing all farmers whose land is situated relatively near the village and two Rawdon groups. Conveners of these divisions were appointed with M. Shea acting for the Stirling group and Angus Farrell and Arnold Forestell for the Rawdon divisions. The first meeting of the Stirling group is being held Friday evening at the home of Thos. McGrath and the subject for discussion is "How to Raise Hogs on a Paying Basis."

The purpose of the club is to educate the farmer in the new methods of farming in keeping with modern conditions. Unquestionably, those who continue to follow the old regime whether it is in farming or any of the professions will fall behind in the present keen competitive struggle for existence. Hence the need arises for the study club by means of which the farmer is literally taken back to school in following out a program of reading, discussion and argument on questions relative to their daily activities.

Subjects being dealt with are the profitable raising of live stock and grains. Pamphlets on the subjects and prepared by the Department of Agriculture have been secured from the government and have been distributed among the members for study. The club shows an enthusiastic membership and shows that the farmers are willing and anxious to make an attempt to improve their farming knowledge and perhaps in producing farm produce of a superior quality, restore the better price level.

CABINET OF "SAGES" WILL RULE FRANCE

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Omaha, Neb., Feb. 8—(CP)—Ralph Scalso, seven, with a penny in his possession, darted across the street to buy a toy balloon and was struck by an automobile.

In some manner he managed to turn and seize the radiator cap of the car, hanging on until the car could be brought to a stop. Unhurt, he complained that he had lost his cent. Spectators showered him with pennies.

Atlantic City, Feb. 8—(CP) — Teddy, a middle-aged mongrel of careless parentage, struggled for three hours in the freezing waters of the bay before police rescued him. By way of a pick-me-up, the rescuers gave the rescued a goodly shot of whisky. Teddy downed it and licked his chops appreciatively. That's the story, unless you believe the police officers who swear that Teddy wanted to jump back in so he could get another drink.

Williamsport, Pa., Feb. 8—(CP)—A tire went flat on Edwin J. Good's automobile during the wee sma' hours.

While he was inflating the tire his lights went out.

As he cranked the car the engine "kicked" and almost bowled him over.

When he closed the door the glass broke.

Finally on the way again, the car hit a tree in a vacant lot.

Good called a taxicab.

London, Feb. 8—(CP Cable)—Because another 1,000 "war widows" receiving pensions were married during the past year the treasury will be able to save $250,000 in the new budget. There remain 134,650 war widows who have not re-married.

The allowances for children of soldiers, born during the war, will also drop off this year because they will reach the age of 16 years, the limit.

Altogether 1,107,000 adults or children are still receiving war pensions or allowances since its establishment. The Ministry of Pensions has disbursed the staggering sum of $5,000,000,000.

Civil War is Avoided, Aged Doumergue Ends Two Day Riots in France

Debris Cleared up by Re-enforced Bands of Laborers

QUICK ACTION

National Government To Take Office Before Night

Paris, Feb. 8.—Gaston Doumergue, aged servant of France, told a suddenly tranquil nation today that he would give it a government of sages—an "elder statesmen" cabinet.

Premier-designate Gaston Doumergue, whose new cabinet may be formed by tonight seemed today to have ended Paris' two days of rioting and terror.

The 71-year-old former president and France's new man-of-the-hour took only fifteen minutes after his arrival today to tell president Albert Lebrun what he meant to do.

Then he immediately started to carry out his program.

On all sides it was freely admitted that France was close to civil war and revolution in the bitter fighting between rioters and mounted guards which swept Paris.

Today, as re-enforced bands of laborers went to work cleaning up the debris left in last night's conflicts, the riot dead were counted at twelve and those injured and wounded in the thousands.

National Government.

A National Government under former president Gaston Doumergue born of the present crisis, will probably be installed by night. And a census of the groups in the Chamber of Deputies by the Canadian Press indicated that even without the support of the Socialists it would have an easy parliamentary majority.

Parliamentary groups of the right and centre declare their willingness to support the government of "public safety". The Radical-Socialists, 160 strong and the largest individual group in the Chamber, have authorised their leader, former premier Edouard Herriot, to co-operate.

More Troops Move to Paris.

More troops were moving into Paris today in precaution. The 20th cavalry regiment of Limoges was stationed in the Place de la Concorde, their field kitchens steaming outside the Palace de Glace.

Their carbines slung across the horizon—blue uniforms have a business-like look boding ill for further rioters. The curious crowd wandered freely among the soldiers, chatting with acquaintances and friends without any sign of hostility. Other regiments also arrived.

MISSING TRIO FOUND CAUGHT IN BLIZZARD

R.C.M.P. Find Men Making Way to Cameron Bay

EDMONTON, Feb. 8.— (CP)—Missing since they left Manitou Island in an attempt to walk across Great Bear lake two months ago, Lorne Brotherston, 28, Calgary, Frank Dwelle, 20, and Frank Morrison Port Resolution, were located by a Royal Canadian Mounted Police Patrol.

Marooned on Manitou Island last fall when their barge was caught in the ice the trio set out in an attempt to reach Cameron Bay Settlement. Caught in an Arctic blizzard, they struggled on to succeed in reaching a small sawmill located at McVicars arm of Great Bear lake.

The R.C.M.P. Patrol encountered the men travelling toward Cameron Bay with a caterpillar tractor drawing a load of lumber from the mill to the settlement.

DR. PRATT SENT TO TRIAL

SMITH'S FALLS, Ont., Feb. 8.—(CP)—Dr. Wilton Pratt was formally committed for trial on nine charges of abortion when he appeared in police court here this morning before Magistrate B. E. Sparham.

FORMS CABINET

GASTON DOUMERGUE

Coming back into public life after years of retirement, Gaston Doumerge, 71-year-old French patriot and former president of the republic, has accepted the post of premier of France in the face of threatening civil war, and while thousands riot in the streets of Paris.

Sacrifices Peace For Republic

Paris, Feb. 8—(AP)—Gaston Doumergue makes two sacrifices in becoming Premier of France, but he has at least two compensations. He is a man without a fortune and his principles require him to resign from the lucrative directorship of the Suez Canal.

This position, to which he was named only a year ago, was estimated to pay him between 200,000 and 400,000 francs annually.

He also will be forced to forego the life of peace, quiet and rest that he loves at 71 after having held office previously for 39 years.

On the other hand, his compensations are the great honor of being chosen as the saviour of France in a dark hour and his pleasure at sharing this honor with his wife.

Doumergue, who became the only Protestant and only bachelor President in France's history, was married immediately after his presidential term expired in 1931.

He entered the presidency in 1925.

INFLATION IS ADVOCATED

J. H. Stitt, M. P. of Selkirk Tells Commons of Need

OTTAWA, Feb. 8.—(CP)—A call for forward-looking action reduction of interest rates, increase of currency in circulation, a gigantic reconstruction programme including Public Works and stimulation of private industry from a supporter of Prime Minister R. B. Bennett was the chief topic of discussion in the lobbies of parliament today.

It was sounded by James H. Stitt, member of Selkirk and came on the heels of a proposal from the so-called left-wing United Farmer Group for a Public Works program financed by non-interest bearing notes.

Drastic changes in the general financial policy of Canada were urged on the government by Mr. Stitt. He suggested compulsory reduction of interest, conversion of government bonds at lower interest rates and the issuing of $100,000,000 in cash to establish a reconstruction purchasing board.

KIDNAPPERS FREE BANKER RANSOM PAID

Edward G. Bremer Arrives Home Weak and Exhausted

TAKEN JANUARY 17

Authorities Will Make a Determined Drive to Capture Gang

Washington, Feb. 8 (AP)—Attorney General Tomer Cummings said today that release of the kidnapped Edward G. Bremer of St. Paul, was effected through payment of a ransom.

ST. PAUL, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Weak and exhausted, Edward G. Bremer, wealthy St. Paul banker, was at home today after being freed at midnight by the kidnap gang, which had held him 23 days for $200,000 ransom.

His captors, who numbered six or seven, close friends of the family said, released him near Rochester, Minn., 85 miles south of here. He was turned loose by three men in a small sedan, they said.

The 37-year-old President and owner of the Commercial State Bank, for whose life fears had been expressed, was uninjured.

Whether any of the ransom demanded had been paid was conjectural. The family, happy in being re-united with the banker, was protected from interruption by Department of Justice Agents, who guarded the home of Adolph Bremer, father of the victim.

The banker, friends said, took a bus from Rochester to St. Paul, then went to his father's home in a taxicab.

Friends said his eyes had been taped during the 23 days of his imprisonment.

First announcement of his release was made by Werner Hanni, chief of the Department of Justice Office.

It was not learned whether Bremer had suffered an injury at the time of the abduction. Shortly after he was seized between 8.20 a.m. and 8.30 a.m., January 17, his blood-stained automobile was found the next day, abandoned in an outlying residential district.

Washington, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Department of Justice Officials indicated today that the search for the abductors of Edward G. Bremer, wealthy St. Paul banker, would be intensified now that he has been returned alive.

Asked About Connections

Howard McGonn and Mrs. Jennie Haight, employees in the bus depot at Rochester, were believed to have been the first persons to see the banker after his release.

He entered the depot, they said, about 8 p.m. yesterday, asking about bus connections with the twin cities. They told him he had missed the last bus that night to the Twin Cities but that he could take a train to Owatonna, nearby and catch a bus there.

Bremer was quoted as saying he couldn't do that. McGonn and Mrs. Haight paid no particular attention to the unshaven stranger, who appeared dazed, they said, and did not know he was the long-sought St. Paul banker.

They did not know, they said, whether Bremer took a train to Owatonna and caught a bus there.

WINTER WAVE HITS ONTARIO

Records Smashed in Some Centres in Province

All eastern Canada was held today in the grip of one of the most intense cold snaps of the current winter.

From Winnipeg east to the Atlantic seaboard Arctic chills, carried from the frozen wastes of the north by a 12-mile-an-hour piercing wind, closed in upon six provinces. Communication lines in some districts were disrupted and along highways automobiles and other vehicles were stalled by the sudden drop in temperature.

Centering about the Northern Quebec region the Arctic surge left temperatures in that sector of the Dominion hovering in the vicinity of 50 below zero. The coldest spot reporting was Doucet, Que., where the mercury plunged to 58 below.

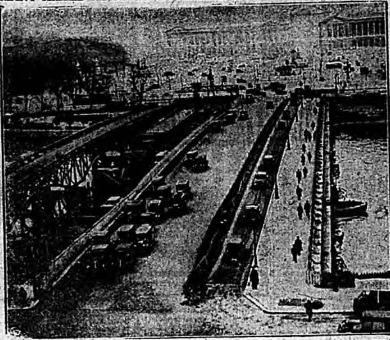
Leaving mercury in Eastern Manitoba 15 below, the wave rolled into Ontario from the north hitting Kenora at 23 below and gaining in intensity until it struck White River to the tune of 52 below. This centre was the coldest in Ontario. In the approximate vicinity, Cochrane recorded 40 below, Haileybury 36 below Parry Sound 30 below, Southampton 26 below, and Sault Ste. Marie 36 below.

Spend More on Development of Fish and Game Resources

Toronto, Feb. 8 (CP)—Larger expenditures to develop Ontario's game and fish resources rather than a balanced budget of the Ontario Department of Game and Fisheries was advocated by George W. Ecclestone, Conservative member for Muskoka today before the Legislative Fish and Game Committee.

"We should spend more money to develop an attractive business in game and fish rather than seek to have a balanced departmental budget," urged Mr. Ecclestone. "I do not think there is a member of the committee or the House who is as anxious to balance the departmental budget as they are to develop our game and fish resources. There is not another branch of the government on which the money would be as well spent."

MANY KILLED AS RIOTING PARISIAN MOB SCATTERS POLICE



Torn into a shambles by the fury of the mob, the Place de la Concorde, in Paris was, and still is, the scene of fierce rioting between 15,000 Parisians and Paris police and militia. The crowd, which has been storming the French government for the past several weeks, finally became violent when police and militia were ordered to fire into the mob. The rioting then became too serious for the forces of law to cope with. Scores were killed and hundreds injured in the worst scenes of disorder Paris has witnessed since the revolution. As a result of the rioting, the Daladier cabinet, in power for only eight days, was forced to resign. This is the sixth government in the last five or six months in France. None has had sufficient power to last. The recent rioting started with the Stavisky scandal and the dismissal of Chiappe, head of the French police, a popular figure with the people.

Government Falls, New One Formed As Civil War Threatens Paris

The Place de la Concorde turned into a shambles of rioting Frenchmen as mobs demand the reinstatement of Chief of Police Jean Chiappe, the return to monarchy, and the overthrow of the government, branded grafters, assassins and crooks, as a result of the Stavisky scandal. The ABOVE shows one of the earlier riots which have been occurring for a period of several weeks. The most recent riots have resulted in violence, bloodshed and death to scores.

FRENCH WOES DUE TO GOLD

Refusal of Republic to Capitulate With Depression

New York, Feb. 8 (AP)—The unrest in France has its roots, in the opinion of Wall Street financial authorities familiar with French conditions, in the refusal of that republic to capitulate with the depression.

Desperate efforts to maintain the economic structure of the boom days have kept the cost of living high, and tax burdens remain crushing. Incomes have dwindled.

The flarcup is regarded primarily as another manifestation of the dilemma of continued high outgo with persistently shrinking income. French business and financial statistics have seemed until recently to indicate the world-wide spell of hard times was dealing lightly with France, but students of international finance say the statistics have failed to reveal the whole story.

Unemployment statistics for France have at no time presented an alarming picture, but the droves of migratory workers who have been coming annually into France from border countries for seasonal work have been excluded.

20,000 CATTLE LIMIT

Ottawa, Feb. 8 (CP)— Canadian exports of cattle to United Kingdom markets will be limited to 20,000 for the five-month period February to June, Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce announced here today.

SUFFERING AFTER 11 DAYS OF COLD

Albany, N.Y., Feb. 8—(AP) — Widespread suffering accompanied a still lower dip in the mercury in New York State today as all-time records were broken or equalled in many places. No relief was expected before Saturday, the weather bureau said.

Police stations and municipal lodging houses throughout the state were filled to capacity with the homeless as sub-zero temperatures prevailed again, in some places for the 11th consecutive day.

MEAT GRINDER TARIFF

Ottawa, Feb. 8 (CP)—Hon E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, has referred to the Tariff Board an application from the Peterborough Fox Supplies, Peterborough, Ont., for amendment to the tariff on meat grinders and bone cutters used in the fox breeding industry.

YARD ENGINE BUMPS TRAIN

London, Ont., Feb. 8 (CP)—Passengers on Canadian National Railway train No. 14 Port Huron to Toronto and Montreal, received a shaking up and a freight today as a yard engine crashed into the rear of that train in the London yards.

The passenger train left the local station but made an unscheduled stop in the east end of the yards to permit repairs to a broken steam coupling and was stopped when the light engine crashed into the rear, the engineer of the yard engine apparently having failed to see the rear of the train in the fog and steam. No passengers were injured as far as could be learned.

Fishing Boats Adrift at Sea; 25 Men at Mercy of Bitter Waves

Halifax, Feb. 8 (CP)—Somewhere, far out on the cold, grey Atlantic off the rugged coast of Nova Scotia, two disabled fishing schooners with 25 men were drifting today at the mercy of a cutting, wintry gale.

No word had been received from the Canadian Cutter Arleaux, combing the fishing banks 100 miles off the coast for the missing schooner, Dot and Hillie of Liverpool, N S., with a crew of 20 men. Meanwhile, down along the south shore marine authorities were checking isolated, little ports for some word of the 20-ton Hazel A.G., unreported since Tuesday when she left on an early morning trip to the banks.

Only 15 gallons of fuel and minor food supplies were carried on the Hazel A.G., for her five-man crew when she left for a one-day trip to the fishing grounds. A passing vessel reported seeing her the same evening but reports indicated the little vessel was not making for port at that time.

Last word of the Dot and Hillie, given the skipper of the passing schooner Jean and Shirley, said the vessel's engine was crippled and available canvas was insufficient to carry her to port in the teeth of the howling blizzard.

EXPLOSION OF MERCURY CAPS KILLS WORKER

One Injured And Teamster Knocked Down by Concussion

WARMING SELVES

Party Clearing Stumps on New Highway, When Fatality Happens

Peterboro, Ont., Feb. 8—Foster Calberry of Peterboro, was almost instantly killed and Dexter Pilling was painfully injured yesterday by an explosion of fulminate of mercury caps in Calberry's pockets as the two men were warming themselves at a fire on the new Burleigh to Bancroft road more than five miles south of Apsley.

Henry Oliver, of Selwyn, a passing teamster, was knocked down by the concussion, but was unhurt.

Dexter Pilling, wounded in the right side, was removed to the Red Cross Hospital at Apsley. Dr. J. Cameron Smith of Lakefield said Pilling's condition was not serious.

The three men have been employed on the number four section of the Burleigh-Bancroft road which the government is constructing this winter partly as an unemployment relief project.

Calberry and Pilling were at work during the afternoon blasting out stumps. The fulminate of mercury caps were used in exploding charges that were set beneath the stumps.

Blowing Stumps

As the stumps were blown out they were thrown on to fires at points along the road, and on account of the severe weather the workmen warmed themselves in this heat from time to time.

Calberry with some of the percussion caps in his pocket was standing beside one of these fires and Dexter Pilling was about six feet away from him. Just as Henry Oliver was driving his team of horses past the fire, the mercury caps in Calberry's pocket exploded, apparently from the heat of the fire, with such force that the right side of his chest, abdomen and thigh were torn and mangled so deeply that Dr. Smith believed death must have been instantaneous. Oliver was hurled to the ground on the roadway, and Pilling only six feet away from Calberry fortunately escaped with injuries to his right side.

Coroner Dr. Smith decided to hold an inquest at Lakefield, the date of which has not been set.

WORK AT ISLAND DESPITE COLD

Belleville relief workers can take it.

On the coldest day in local history, the same large number of men were still working away on the Zwick's Island relief project, with only occasional periods out for a warm up at the stove in the building on the island. The same large number of men, who awaited to be called from the list for the work were gathered at the city hall early in the morning waiting to hear their name called.

TRANSIENTS STILL ON THE MOVE

Despite the cold weather, transients beating their way across the country are still using the railway trains as a medium of travel during their aimless wanderings. Early last evening two numbed and frozen wanderers knocked on the back door of a home on Bleecker Avenue, pleading for a bit to eat and a chance to get warm. While they attacked the warm meal, that was provided they told of a desperate trip from near Toronto, hanging to grab irons between box cars, with frozen hands, that curled so tightly around the irons that when Belleville was reached it was almost impossible to release them. Other transients, they said were observed on the same train.

SUPERSTITION OF WITCHERY

Police Are Told of Fork as Flying Without Human Aid

Since a trial here some years ago in which an adult Indian was found guilty and sentenced to a term for an assault on an aged woman under belief that his children were being bewitched, the belief in magic spells and witchery, said to be harbored by some Indians has lain unnoticed (if it still exists) until this week when investigation into a series of very small fires in the upstairs of an Indian's home in the Reservation in Tyendinaga several weeks ago brought to light that, according to the Provincial Police belief in witchcraft is not yet quite extinct. How widespread it is, is very difficult to say, and the probabilities are that it is very limited. Police Constable Kelly states that the aged Indian woman, Mrs. Josiah Brant, gave him the explanation that a magic spell was responsible for fires.

Such an explanation is contrary to the matter-of-fact western civilization, but it was just this view which was offered as a cause for the incipient fires which were discovered and put out almost as soon as started. Police say that members of the household say they believe that their home has come under certain spells, cast by some witches, four or five being the number mentioned as possibly capable of casting a spell.

If police were to believe what was told them yesterday by one person, a pitchfork was seen to fly across a room piercing a panel of the door of the house without human aid or agency. This incident was no later than last week, he was told. Mrs. Brant, according to Provincial Constable Kelly, had produced a glass sealer last week with articles which she says were found in her grandchildren's pockets and were evidently placed there by wizardry. These things were handed over to the police by Mrs. Brant in whose house the fires were discovered.

Police visited the reservation yesterday and questioned members of two families only. One man of the second family questioned goes by the name "Horse" Maracle and according to police he was at the Brant home yesterday afternoon when the police called. He is said to have assured the officer that he is still of the opinion that "evil spirits" are at work.

Blame among those who pin faith in witchcraft is directed it is said at four or five unnamed Indian women who are supposed to be in common parlance, witches.

Some years ago it was pointed out at a trial of assault arising out of the removal of an old woman from a home at night under a belief that she was exerting a spell, that some few Indians prove the existence of witches by the mention of them in the Bible. If witches are mentioned in the Bible, according to a witness at that time, that is evidence enough that they exist. All the Indians are nominally Christians but in a small group prominent at that time, the legendary faith in witchcraft seems never to have been extinguished by the pure light of Christian teaching. Very many references in Scripture were quoted at that time to show how the believers in witchcraft prove the existence of witches.

The question of health was one which figured in that trial when evidence was produced of children falling in a faint, parents or relatives crediting this to Indian magic. Noises in rooms were then spoken of.

At that time the crown gave a solemn warning that anyone found guilty of playing upon the susceptible of the superstitious few on the reservation by claiming occult powers would be severely dealt with.

Septuagenarian Past Masters Moira Lodge Receive Jewels

Grand Lodge Veteran Decorations For Officers

SCOTS PROGRAM

Homage was paid to veteran past masters of Moira Lodge No. 11 A.F. and A.M. over 70 years of age, on Wednesday night, at the Masonic Temple, when a special mark of distinction, the Past Master's Veteran Jewel was presented to three in person and to three others who were unable to attend.

The three past masters to receive this token of esteem were Rt. Wor Bro. J. W. Barlow, Wor. Bro. R. E. Colling and Wor. Bro. Chancey Ashley. The three other veteran past masters who will receive the jewel were absent, V. Wor. Bro. Geo. Dulmage, Wor. Bro. Wm. McIntosh and Wor. Bro. Alf. Matthews.

The presentation, on behalf of Grand Lodge was made by Wor. Bro. W. C. Mikel, assisted by Bro. Hope McGinnis. Each veteran past master was given a medal-like jewel suitably inscribed, marking his years of service and untiring efforts towards the betterment of the craft. V. Wor. Bro. Dulmage sent his regrets regarding his inability to be present owing to his present illness.

The speaker of the evening at the banquet which followed the regular business was Bro. P. C. MacLaurin principal of the Belleville Collegiate, who spoke on "Bobbie Burns". Bro. MacLaurin reviewed the early history of Scotland holding the ancient traditions of that country as an example that might well be copied in this present day and age. He noted the early life of Burns, referring to his trials and tribulations before his poetry was finally accepted and he was later acclaimed as one of Scotland's greatest men. Mr. MacLaurin pointed to other great Scots poets whose names will also ring down through the ages with that of Burns. Wor. Bro. Jerald Anderson personally thanked the speaker for his educational and exceptionally interesting talk on, not only Robert Burns but on the history of Scotland, as the speaker dwelt at length on early Scots education.

During the program Mr. Jamie Clarke gave numerous Scots bagpipe selections while the Moira Lodge Orchestra rendered suitable Scots music to add to the success of the evening's entertainment.

POLICE NEWS

Maybe it's due to the present cold snap but regardless there was no session of the police court this morning nor were there any arrests reported by the local or Provincial Police during the past 24 hours.

No motor accidents occurred on the provincial highways, while two automobile accidents were reported in the city yesterday.

About 2 p.m. yesterday a motor car collision happened at the corner of Front St. and Victoria Ave., when a sedan driven by Miss K. J. Langill, 145 Glendonine Rd., Toronto, collided with a car driven by Guy Bradshaw of this city. Mr. Bradshaw had previously stopped on Victoria Ave. before turning south on Front St. Miss Langill was proceeding northward on Front St. and endeavored to pass the Bradshaw automobile by sweeping to the right as Mr. Bradshaw came out of Victoria Ave. Miss Langill's car skidded, the right front bumper striking the left front fender of the Bradshaw car. The police investigated.

The second motor accident happened north of the upper bridge when an automobile driven by Joseph Delaney, 25 Yeomans St., crashed into a tree and struck the guard rail bordering the river opposite Pinnacle on Station St. Mr. Delaney was proceeding southward on Station St. when suddenly a horse and cutter loomed up in front of him. Mr. Delaney swerved his car to the left to avoid hitting the southbound cutter and collided with a nearby tree. The car came to a stop on the brink of the river wall and flush against the iron railing. The car was badly damaged and later towed to a local garage. The police investigated.

With sub-zero weather in their midst 11 cold and shivering transients applied at the local police station for a warm night's lodging last evening.

The action arose out of a motor accident, that happened at Milltown on April 25th last, when a car driven by Mrs. Knox was struck by a truck owned and driven by Mr. G. G. Roote, of Mallorytown.

Mr. Roote, the defendant in the case, entered a counter claim for $100.00 Judgement for the plaintiff was set at the amount sued for $500.00 while the counter claim was dismissed. The costs of the matter were also assessed against the defendant.

B. C. Donnan K.C. appeared for the plaintiff, while the defendant was represented by J. D. O'Flynn, local barrister.

PUMP HOUSE USING TWO THERMOMETERS

Two official government thermometers will be used at the city pump house from now on to check the vagaries of the weather.

It was believed by Manager E. T. Austin of the local waterworks department who forwards the official readings to the weather bureau at Toronto each week, that the coldest weather in years this winter may have affected the thermometer furnished some time ago by the department. A request was made by him last week for a second instrument to check the first one, and on Wednesday the second one arrived. An immediate comparison made by the two showed the readings to be within a fraction of a degree of each other.

The thermometer used records a semi-permanent registration of highest and lowest points of the day and night. A colored fluid which rides up and down with the shifting mercury stains the tube at the highest and lowest point, which remains until the thermometer is shifted from its normal position.

The first governmental thermometer issued to this city was obtained by Mr. J. Bone of this city in the year 1919 when he served as alderman in the city council. A request made by Alderman Bone to the government for an instrument was immediately honored and since then official readings have been forwarded to the city.

And just to remind you, that the much discussed and talked of topic —the weather—is a live issue among residents, a total of nearly two hundred phone calls for temperatures were received at the city pump house on Wednesday morning from interested citizens.

STUDENTS WOULD ABOLISH "FRATS"

Kingston, Feb. 8—By a majority vote of 1,000 students at Queen's University at a mass meeting amended the constitution of the Alma Mater Society, abolishing fraternities from the campus and forbidding undergraduates to belong to any such secret organization.

Henceforth the penalty attached to membership in a society having a secret constitution and pledge will be loss of rights to participate in student political, social and athletic activities for a period of not less than one academic year.

Many of the undergrads—including How Hamlin, Bill Glass and Red McNichol of the senior intercollegiate football team—have privately announced their intention of remaining attached to fraternities.

O. P. P. MOVES ANNOUNCED

D. Gordon Campbell of Headquarters Staff is Moved to Brighton

Official confirmation of several moves in and out of this immediate district were announced by Inspector F. Gardner of District Headquarters No. 8, of Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville today.

Provincial Constable D. Gordon Campbell, who for the past four years has been stationed in Belleville at district headquarters, will be moved to Brighton, where he will replace Constable W. H. McBrien of that town who in turn is being moved to Haliburton.

Provincial Constable D. H. Porter stationed at Haliburton will be moved to the Mattawa District No. 10. All the above mentioned moves are to take place on February 15th. The various officers concerned in the move were notified today and given one week in which to prepare for their new appointment.

When reference to the filling of Constable Campbell's post was made by the Ontario Intelligencer this morning Inspector Gardner said—"The post will undoubtedly be left open for some time. I expect a new man direct from the Provincial Police School in Toronto, when the appointment is finally made."

Provincial Constable Campbell's advancement was naturally received with satisfaction and he will depart from the city leaving a host of friends who will convey to him their good wishes in his future endeavours.

34 BELOW IS CITY RECORD

Coe Hill in North is Coldest Point With 53 Below

Where's that weather prophet! . . Where's that Sidney farmer forecaster!

Official temperatures for the city:

Pump House, 34 below zero; Dominion Entomological Laboratory, 28½ below; North Station, 26 below.

Through the district:

Corbyville, 30 below; Cannifton, 32 below; Foxboro, 35 below.

Throughout the County:

Coe Hill, 53 below; Bancroft, 44 below; Maynooth, 44 below; Tweed, 43 below; Bonarlaw, 40 below; Marmora, 46 below.

Temperatures of county points are furnished through the courtesy of the local office of the Canadian National Railways.

It was Belleville's coldest day in history. Not even the memories of oldest can recall similar temperatures in this city or district. The lowest mark of 31 below, registered some days ago had been the lowest ever recorded since the inception of the system kept by local weather laboratories many years ago.

If all the chains and ropes used by towing trucks and cars for the purpose of hauling frozen motor cars off city streets were stretched in one long line, it would reach from here to there and back again. If all the sighs for the return of warmer weather emitted by residents of the city were rolled into one, it would make a gasping sound that could be heard across the ocean. If all the telephone calls received at the city pump house and local Dominion Laboratory during the morning Thursday from shivering residents requesting information on temperatures were continuous, it would take a battery of switch board operators to answer them.

Cold weather is getting to be an old story. Not even the fact that local records for lowest points ever registered in this district have been broken this week can stir up any enthusiasm among residents of the city. It's too cold to talk about the weather. Now, if this were spring . . . with dandelions peeping out of grassy lawns . . and birds twittering in the budding branches . . . the story might be worth a few "sticks". But as it is . . . Where's that weather prophet? . . . .

Her activities in the Red Cross work during the war and later in the canteen work of this society and her many acts of charity made her an outstanding figure. DR. THOMAS EDWIN BELL

(St. Petersburg, Florida)

A letter from Mr. C. M. Reid, who is spending the winter in St. Petersburg, Florida, records the sudden death of Dr. Thomas Edwin Bell, of Hammond, Indiana, who maintained a winter home in St. Petersburg. Dr. Bell was born at Sharpton, near Odessa, his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. John Bell, well known residents of that section and afterwards of Kingston. As a young man Dr. Bell went to Brockville, where he was employed on the Grand Trunk Railway for some time. Leaving Brockville, he took a course at the dental college in Pittsburg, Pennsylvania. Upon graduation he began to practice at Hammond, Indiana, afterwards studying law, and becoming a State Senator. The St. Petersburg Times speaks of Dr. Bell as follows:

"Dr. Thomas Edwin Bell, 69, influential Republican leader in Indiana, where he resided at Hammond, died suddenly Saturday afternoon at his winter home here at 1236 Jackson street north. Death was caused by a heart attack.

"Dr. Bell was a retired dentist and had made his winter home here for 18 years. He was state senator from Lake County, Indiana, for four years, starting in 1902. He was also coroner of Lake County, a state oil inspector and a delegate to Republican national conventions both from Indiana and Florida. He was a thirty-second degree Mason with membership in the Hammond Masonic lodge, a member of the Shrine in Indianapolis and belonged to the Elk lodge in Hammond. In St. Petersburg he was a member of the Lawn Bowling Club.

"Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Lena Hohman Bell; two brothers, Dr. Samuel A. Bell of Hammond, and James Bell of Kingston, Ont.; and a sister, Mrs. Charles Martin of Toronto, Ont.

"Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at the John S. Rhodes funeral chapel with Chaplain E. A. Edwards officiating. Interment in Royal Palm Cemetery.

Deferred Payments

"I'd like a Fur Coat like Mary's. I don't see how she can afford one. It costs so much for a fur coat."

Now, Mary's friend is all wrong. In the first place, it didn't cost nearly as much as her friend thought it did, and besides she bought it on our plan of deferred payments, which makes the owning of a fur coat a simple matter. The main difference is that Mary saves systematically each week and is able to meet her payments on her lovely coat without any difficulty.

BACON PRICES MUCH HIGHER

Increase in City For Housewives Nearly 15 Cents Pound

Local housewives who purchase bacon these days may lift their eyebrows slightly when told by shopkeepers that the price is anywhere from 30 to 35 cents. Only a few months ago, she will recall a price that was around 15 to 20 cents a pound.

But that was when hogs were cheap. Since then the humble porker has taken a leap higher than the proverbial cow who jumped over the moon. A year or so ago the chief ingredient of bacon, ham and other cuts was selling at from six to eight cents. Now the price is in the neighborhood of 11 and 12 cents per pound for good quality. So No. 1 quality bacon has been quoted at from 20 to 30 cents this morning by the larger stores in the city.

It's pretty much due to the demand that prices have arisen, it was explained. Export to Great Britain made possible by the Ottawa conference has had much to do with conditions one faced by the local housewife. A steady demand is expected from now on, with the consequent firm price.

Throughout Canada, also, there is a shortage of bacon, due to the same export of whole sides of the meat. Hams, too, have jumped in price. Other cuts are on the way.

The price of feed, according to dealers, has not risen to the same extent, and the farmers with hogs in this district have struck the nearest thing to a gold mine that has come their way for many a day. Many farmers this year state that if the same prices prevail, they will turn to the raising of hogs as the most profitable line on the farm.

Mr. Williams left Picton, Friday last by bus for Belleville, presumably to attend a lodge meeting, and that was the last seen or heard of him by his family and friends here.

Milk is being supplied, beginning this week, to children needing it by the Home and School Club, at the Mary Street and York Street schools. This will be of great benefit to many children and will be continued at least during the winter months. Many other pupils are paying ten cents each a week for milk and straws. The teachers cooperate with the club in distributing the milk at the morning recess.

Less than three months ago, Sunday school papers were burned in the basement of the Presbyterian Church here. No clues were found as to the persons who entered the church and caused the mischief. On Tuesday night fire was again discovered in the church and the fire reels were called out and extinguished it. There is a general feeling that there is something strange about the origin of each of these fires.

AT FOURSCORE

One of the veteran figures about Belleville is Col. William Nisbet Ponton, who recently celebrated his eightieth birthday, hale and able to attend his office of law every day. The occasion is one for felicitation. A few days ago his great friend, Sir William Mulock, celebrated his ninetieth birthday.

To the young, a man of eighty years may seem to have lived long; to those of middle age and those passing the middle age period of life, eighty does not seem so far away. To those in the twenties, the glorious romantic 'teens are so far away. Indeed those wondrous years of budding girlhood and youth are brief and are gone forever. But much remains—the later years.

Col. Ponton has found in his life of eighty years many worlds of interest. He has occupied post after post of honor, and has served the cause of his city and nation well.

Eighty years does not seem long to a man of eighty, particularly if he has enjoyed good health. Yet in that eighty years many things have happened, vast transformations have taken place in the world about and yet a man of eighty years is the same personality with the same abiding interest in life and every new interest. Though the body may age the mind may still remain alert to the least reaction in the world around.

Just as in life, the years individually are long and their total short, so are periods of history. To a man of the twentieth century, Julius Caesar lived long, long ago, for the world has moved at tremendous strides since the great Roman dictator swayed the vastest empire of the ancient world. Caesar died at the hands of reactionaries because of his dictatorial acts in a world which required a dictator after the failure of the Republic in 44 B.C. That is 1978 years ago, or sixty-six generations of thirty years. If the age of men of eighty is taken as a yardstick then the mighty Caesar is only the lifetime of twenty-five men away. Think of it, a row of 25 men of eighty years dating back to the pre-Christian era, would clasp hands with the great Julius!

So time is short after all. Some men now living are great grandchildren of men who knew Robert Burns or Walter Scott. It does not seem long ago when the span of a generation is used.

Yet this brief time is that on which is woven the fate of men and of nations and of the world. To think of it, all English history is comprised within the span of about twenty lives of men of eighty years, all modern history too. Historic records of the world do not go back much beyond 3000 B.C. as tablets, tools and relics in the Ontario Museum in Toronto show, and that is but the span of life of some sixty-three men of eighty years each.

If one was ever in doubt of what can be performed in a life time or a series of lifetimes, he must realize that there are great men who have changed the whole aspect of national life in a brief span—not even of eighty years, but of thirty-three years as in the case of Alexander the Great, who came at an opportune time to open up the Orient, to be followed three centuries later by the great Teacher from Nazareth whose religion followed the trade channels opened by Alexander's break-up of the old world.

The man of eighty, like Col. Ponton, has seen life and has seen it whole. His ripe experience is something youth cannot know until the years mellow and man is caught into the sweep of things as they go to make up life.

That he will have many years yet to share with his family and the people of his community is the wish of those who know and honor him. To them Col. Ponton is not old, for his appearance is still of stalwart manhood, he is as keenly interested as ever in the progress of events and able to study them through the experience and glory of fourscore years.

It is not a question whether we shall live forever, the real question is whether we are worthy to live forever.—Rev. J. H. Holmes.

GYPSY SPELL

I shall throw all my cares away,
Just when the wind blows by;
I'll toss to it my every grief
And every little sigh!

For now I have a gypsy spell
To make me glad once more,
And I can fling away regrets
Like ashes from my door.

My cares along the wind will drift
And sink into the sea,
Then I shall carol like the lark,
So free from grief, so free!

And I shall bless the gypsy queen
Who gave me lore like this,
To turn dismay into delight
And burdens into bliss!

Upon the wind I'll cast my grief
And say the gypsy spell;
She whispered it, the gypsy queen,
And I have learned it well!

—Aline Michaelis.

PROHIBITION may be said to be finally ended in the United States, now that the courts have thrown out all remaining cases concerning charges of infraction of the prohibition law.

ONTARIO MUNICIPALITIES with scenic, fishing and hunting attractions should be busy right now planning publicity campaigns with a view to making the Yankee motor tourist Canada conscious and anxious to spend his next summer holidays here. Last summer the tourist traffic from Uncle Sam's land dropped alarmingly and now that Uncle Sam has put beer and wine in the soda fountains and whisky in the departmental and cigar stores there will not be so much excuse to come north, perhaps. Canada has many attractions for the outdoor lover, away from the hustle and bustle of modern city and suburban life and these need only be placed before the motoring public of the United States to stimulate travel this way all summer long. People go away for a change and no greater or more pleasing and beneficial change can be gained than through a visit to Canada, Ontario, and Quebec being particularly rich in attractiveness, besides being so easy to reach over good roads. Hastings and Prince Edward Counties are particularly rich in the things summer tourists most desire, so it is high time to get busy on the invitations.

"AFTER THE UNITED STATES will have expended in the neighborhood of fifteen billion dollars they will not have a per capita debt as great as that of Canada," said Premier R. B. Bennett Monday evening in addressing the annual meeting of the Toronto Board of Trade. That's something to think about, after all the ballyhoo about "bologny" dollars and financial frightfulness, daring unprecedented experiment in high finance, and all that sort of thing. President Roosevelt can spend fifteen billions on his prosperity banquet and still have enough left for a hot dog or so, the morning after the day before. Canadians are not the boastful kind but they invested heavily in the proposition that an alien nation should not rule the world including Canada, and paid for it in life and limb and Canadian one hundred cent dollars. Canada also discounted the future heavily by pushing transcontinental railways ahead of settlement and population. Hence the large per capita national debt. And the investment is considered, aside from the price paid in humanity, to be worth every cent of it. Defeat of the Allies would no doubt have meant a much larger national debt for all the Dominions. Canada with 10,500,000 population has a direct national debt of three billion dollars, and an indirect debt of one billion dollars, according to Premier Bennett. So, President Roosevelt's adventure into the billions in search of prosperity is not such a big thing after all, comparatively speaking.

A group of laborers were discussing whether it was cheaper to move or pay rent, and referred the question to the oldest man of the company, who had listened silently. "Well, mates," said he, "I don't know as I'm in a position to say. You see, I've always moved!"

The schoolmistress was giving her class of young pupils a test on a recent natural history lesson.

"Now, Bobby Jones," she said, "tell me where the elephant is found?"

The boy hesitated for a moment; then his face lit up.

"The elephant, teacher," he said, "is such a large animal it is scarcely ever lost."

INFLUENCE OF CHILDREN IN FAMILY LIFE

(By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.)
(Famous Authority on Health and Psychology)

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

That children constitute the strongest tie that exists between a husband and wife is a well known and well established fact.

After the romance of the courting stage as well as of the honeymoon have passed, and a man and woman settle down to the sterner business of building the home, a stage of relationship that might well be termed anti-climax is inevitably reached. It is just at this point that a child entering upon the scene keeps the interest alive. What the arrival of the child really does is replace a waning physical attraction with another novelty that enhances the ego of both the sexes and brings to the fore inherent and instinctive urges—in short, parenthood—which they scarcely were conscious of before.

On the other hand, what are married couples to think if they cannot or do not have children?

With them, too, romance tends to wane and the tie between them to loosen. Must they conclude that their love cannot surmount the handicap of not having children? Are all childless marriages bound to go on the rocks?

Theoretically, this should be the case. Yet all of us know of instances where such couples have lived together for years and years, and happily. Indeed, such childless unions are often so successful that one is tempted to think that they spell victory for the very fact that they did not have children.

Study the lives of such couples carefully, however, and one must conclude that in first place, these couples would also have made a success of it had they had children and, secondly, that they succeeded primarily because they were able to find a substitute for children.

I think you will agree that such childless couples are always persons particularly suited to each other. The sex attraction between them is likely to be strong. What is more important still, they are always temperamentally and intellectually well mated. And if I were to add a fourth general characteristic, I would say that the emotional make-up of both such husband and wife possesses the possibilities, far beyond the average, of sustaining sentiment.

In other words, those without children must needs be able to "sublimate" the parenthood urge into the strongest kind of mutual feeling and respect, one for the other. Or to put it another way, they must substitute and make "sublime" the purely personal relationship between them in order to compensate for the absence of a child which is the usual bond.

Besides, for a childless marriage to be successful it is highly desirable that the contracting parties widen their field of interest as much as possible. Outside social contacts, hobbies, friends, art, games and the like, help mightily in adding variety to their lives. In this way they ward off boredom.

Persons who marry only because love sweeps them off their feet, and who do not consider the more sober sides of such a relationship, run a grave risk, however, if their home is not blessed with at least one child. To make a go of it without children calls for a high grade character on both sides.

But it can be done! And it often is done!

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

After the baby is three months old egg yolk may be added to the regular diet. The yolk is prepared by soft boiling, coddling or even hard boiling. If the last method be chosen the yolk must be mashed before feeding it to an infant. Only very small amounts should be given at first and only once a day, this amount gradually being increased until the child is getting the entire yolk of one egg. When the amount given is large it is best to divide it into two feedings.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Asselstine Celebrate 50th Anniversary

Well-known Frankford Couple Feted by Friends

Frankford, Feb. 8—Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Asselstine celebrated their golden anniversary of their wedding at their home on the 8th of Sidney on Monday Feb. 5th with a large group of their children and grandchildren present. Their marriage had taken place on Feb. 5th, 1884, at the Manse, Deseronto by the Rev. Mr. Craig who is yet still quite active at his home in Demorestville. Mrs. Asselstine was formerly Miss Lydia Emily Wagar, daughter of Mr. Elias Wagar of Richmond township. At the time of their marriage they lived at Morven about 18 miles from Kingston and moved to Kingston about 45 years ago. 29 years ago they moved to Trenton. Of their five children four were present at the anniversary, Mrs. A. R. Waldie of Trail B.C., being absent. Those present included Mrs Clarence Young of Athens, Mrs. Lydia Nelson of Codrington, Mrs. Wm Waldie of Kimberly, B.C. and Arthur Asselstine on the farm here. There were also present six grandchildren and four great grandchildren. Mr. W. A. Rogers a ninety year old friend of Wooler and Mr Barton Hill of Wellington were also present.

The Rev. Mr. Lane of Frankford on behalf of the family and friends presented the happy couple with a purse and two occasional chairs.

It was also the occasion of the 7th wedding anniversary of their son Arthur and his wife. Mr. Burton Hill on behalf of the sister presented Arthur and his wife with a beautiful bedspread and a pair of sheets.

Many other presents and cards of congratulation were received from their many friends who all join in extending to them their good wishes for many more years of happy wedded life.

At the dinner when 24 were served Miss Vera Tackabory and Miss Mildred McColl acted as waitresses.

Mr. W. Crowe one of Hasting's county youthful public speakers is honored by being requested to speak before the Prohibition Union which meets in the King Edward Hotel, Toronto soon.

Frankford School hockey team won the match with Wooler on Friday evening by the score of 4 to 3 and with another win will have the championship of the Southern school league within their grasp. It is probable that the winner of this group will play the winners of a Central Hastings group composed of Marmora and Tweed.

An interesting game between the Frankford Benedicts and Bachelors was played on Monday night with the stiffer-jointed gentlemen coming out at the tail end of a 7-0 score.

TO 60,000 MOTORISTS WHO SAID "Abolish Jar and Bump and Bounce"

Drive the New McLAUGHLIN-BUICK

A GENERAL MOTORS SILVER ANNIVERSARY VALUE

Enjoy A FLOATING RIDE

WHAT is this FLOATING RIDE that people are talking about? It's the greatest advance in riding since the invention of the shock absorber . . . the result of Knee-Action Front Wheels, another revolutionary new system of car design pioneered by McLaughlin-Buick.

It banishes the jar and bump and bounce of the ordinary motor ride—it is a comfort beyond description to back seat passengers—it ends steering jerk and wheel shimmy. Too good to be true? We urge you to be your own judge—to convince yourself—by driving one of the new McLaughlin-Buicks today.

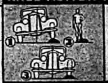
Amazing as this FLOATING RIDE truly is, it is only one of the many great ways in which the new McLaughlin-Buick crowns twenty-seven years of automobile progress—and takes advantage of the practical suggestions of 60,000 Canadians gathered in General Motors "Customer Research" questionnaires.

Others, almost as important, are —Vacuum-Power Brakes . . . super-balloon Air Cushion Tires . . . Automatic Starting . . . dash-controlled Octane Selector . . . the 100,000 mile McLaughlin-Buick Straight Eight Engine . . . Sturdier, Roomier Bodies by Fisher, with improved No-Draft Ventilation . . . to name only a few.

We invite you—come to our showrooms today. Enjoy your first FLOATING RIDE now. M-248

PRODUCED IN CANADA

KNEE-ACTION FRONT WHEELS



(1) Your present car—front springs rigidly joined by an I-beam axle. When you hit a bump the front of the car bounces. (2) A man steps over a bump. No jar—because the knee bends freely. (3) New, 1934—each "Knee-Action" front wheel of the new McLaughlin-Buick, on its own soft coil spring, rises and falls like a knee to absorb the shocks, the car gliding steadily on.

VACUUM-POWER BRAKES

Vacuum-controlled to give a smooth, quick, silent stop with only one-third the former pedal pressure. Adjustment required only half as frequently as with conventional brakes. Cast iron brake drums with outside cooling flanges insure long life.

AIR CUSHION TIRES

New, extra low-pressure balloon tires running on only 21 to 25 pounds of air, giving amazing comfort. Much wider tread puts more anti-skid on the road, for greatly improved traction and safety. Mounted on new, steel-spoke wheels.

STURDIER FISHER BODIES

The famous Fisher type of all-steel body plus sturdy hardwood reinforcement. With sloping V-type radiator, longer hood, deeper fenders. Chrome plating is satin-finished to prevent glare. The Fisher Ventilation System has been refined. Roomier interiors.

Dickens' Manuscript on Faith Brings $15 Word

LONDON, Feb. 8.—Eighty-five years ago Charles Dickens, father of six small children, sat down to answer their eager questions on religion.

The man who had made Oliver Twist and Micawber and Scrooge and all the others never to be forgotten, penned for his brood 14,000 words and called it "The Life of Our Lord".

Into it he wrote his own affirmation of faith in the Scriptures and the message which, as a father, he wished to impart to the six young Dickens. He wrote in simple words and phrases, so that even Alfred, the youngest, might understand.

The finished work was given to the children. Through the years it remained the one Dickens' manuscript which the public never saw. It was neither exhibited nor published.

But now, a few weeks after the death of Sir Henry Fielding Dickens, last of Dickens' children, announcement was made that this work which the famous author wrote for six small children instead of his countless thousands of readers, has been sold for the staggering price of $15 per word. The London Daily Mail bought the world rights, and the United Features Syndicate, of New York, was awarded all serial rights for North and South America.

Brilliant Performance of Drama Entered in Festival

Young Thespians Put on "They Refuse to be Resurrected"

Completing their dramatic season the Green Room Club and the Literary Society of Belleville Collegiate Institute presented last evening a program of one-act plays, the chief of which was the play of The Young Thespians, which will be their contribution to the Drama Festival in Kingston, on Friday night.

Before the plays the Collegiate Orchestra gave a group of selections. Under the direction of Mr. Ross Hunter, the orchestra has become a splendid ensemble, smooth and pleasing in tone. The selections were well chosen and admirably executed. The Literary Society programs of the season have been enhanced by the music of the orchestra.

Mr. Jack Carmichael spoke briefly before the curtain, expressing appreciation of the co-operation of the press and the orchestra throughout the season. The first two plays were student-directed and their directors were called upon to introduce the presentations.

Miss Betty Illsey who with Miss Peggy Templeton directed "Helena's Husband" explained the setting and characters of the first play which presented the famous Menelaus—Helen—Paris triangle in a new and amusing light. The setting for this, as well as the other plays, was artistically worked out and reflects credit on the care and attention to detail on the part of the stage management. In Helena's Husband are found that Menelaus was rather tired of his beautiful but rather talkative wife and was casting about for some way of getting rid of her. The dramatic entrance of the infatuated Paris seemed the answer to Menelaus prayer and the flight of the Queen with Paris was, unknown to her, anything but dangerous. It was even assisted by the King. The parts were taken by Peggy LaRoche as Helena, Bill Logie as Menelaus, Jim Andrews as Analytikos, Isobel Clendinnin as Tsu Mu, and Bill L'Heureux as Paris, who did well in their parts.

The dramatic "The Scarlet Thread" directed by W. B. Gerard had an entirely masculine cast and the scene was the sitting room of an Old English Inn. Three old friends still unnerved by the morning hanging of one of their associates discuss the case. The most wrought up of these is Butters, who was on the jury which pronounced the verdict of guilty. A thread of a scarlet scarf was the thin evidence which hanged the man. A traveller arriving late tells of a man with a scarlet scarf with whom he nearly collided. A noise at the door makes the men frightened of ghostly visitations, the group is relieved to find that Breen, a familiar habitue of the inn is the visitor. Demanding drinks, Breen throws down a bag of money which the hanged man is supposed to have stolen and his loosened coat collar reveals the scarlet scarf. The startled men are struck by the confirmation of their fear of the early evening that the wrong man has been hanged. The true climax is reached, however, when Butters, the juryman, rousing from a doze, in one unwary sentence reveals that it was he who committed the brutal murder and robbery that sent an innocent man to the gallows. Those taking part gave very good performances, the cast including, D. Haig Frink as Breen, D. Newton Spring as Migswoath, E. Gerald Brooks as Smith, William A. Argue as Butters, L' Anthony Flagler as the traveller, John Morgan as the landlord.

"They Refuse to Be Resurrected", the Young Thespians' offering is a brilliant little play in which the century-old characters, Pierret, Columbine and Harlequin at last refuse to act and a distracted amateur playwright after imitating in vain the styles of Shaw, Coward and O'Neil, is completely frustrated by the rebellious trio, who will no longer respond to his ideas.

An admirable choice for the Drama Festival, the actors show progress during the past year. A more pronounced air of ease and assurance, better voice control, and a genuine attempt to live their characters are noticeable, and a more successful appearance in the contest is promised. Miss N. Merry directed the play. Jack Carmichael as the author, who does not speak. The success of his part depends on the perfect timing of his writing with the speeches of the characters and this is very well worked out. The lovely costumes of the characters add a colorful touch to the scene. As the author comes on the stage and starts to work, one sees three figures evidently arousing from a long sleep, struggling to their feet and Pierret (Harold Carruthers), Columbine, (Sylvia Tett) and Harlequin (Douglas Newby), reluctantly strive to respond to the inspiration of the would-be-author. Between his attempts the characters converse. The clever dialogue is given its full value by the characters. Miss Tett made a dainty figurine as Columbine, Pierret was very bored and annoyed by the whole proceeding and Harlequin, rather disgusted, nevertheless attempts to do his acting part. The final bit where the characters "strike" and the author must give up, is especially good. Lighting effects in the play are splendid as were the entire stage arrangements for the evening by John A. Lill and his electrician, Henry Liddle. Ken Brenton, business manager, Rose Lazier, make-up artist, Miss MacPherson and the Technical girls costumers and Jim Moon in charge of properties, co-operated in a splendid way with the actors.

Current Attractions at Local Theatres

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL "GOING HOLLYWOOD"

Now is the opportunity for Belleville playgoers to enjoy the season's best and outstanding film production

Marion Davies plays one of the most entertaining roles of her film career in the novel musical production, "Going Hollywood," her new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer starring vehicle which is to be seen now at the Capitol Theatre.

The picture, an original story from the witty pen of Donald Ogden Stewart, actor, humorist and playwright, is a key-hole view of the real Hollywood, yet one spiced with catchy song hits and bizarre dance ensembles which make it one of the most entertaining films of the year.

Practically Plays Himself

Bing Crosby, noted crooner of radio and motion pictures, plays the radio crooner role opposite Miss Davies.

Six jingly melodies have been created for the film by the noted composing team of Nacio Herb Brown and Arthur Freed, co-authors of the national song hits, "Wedding of the Painted Doll" and "The Old Woman in the Shoe."

Their new numbers — "Our Big Love Scene," "Going Hollywood," "We'll Make Hay While the Sun Shines," "Temptation," "Cinderella's Fella" and "After Sundown," written exclusively for Miss Davies, promise to become nationally popular overnight.

To beautify the musical numbers, numerous original dance ensembles in gorgeous, colorful settings were created and supervised by Albertina Rasch, famous dance instructor.

Written by Humorist

The story deals with a lonely girl in love with a crooner's voice, who trails him to Hollywood, where he is to make his first appearance as a film star and who, after much difficulty with a flighty, temperamental French actress, who likewise loves the crooner, becomes a picture star in her own right.

Beginning with the Grand Central Station in New York, the novel settings include scenes upon a transcontinental train, intimate views of motion picture life and film studios, the haunts of the film people, a beautiful Spanish garden scene, activities within a radio broadcasting station, fields of dancing cellophane daisies, a love cottage built entirely of glass, a modernistic farm, a hot-cha corn huskin' bee, a glittering glass island and numerous other entrancing scenes.

Last but not least Lennie Hayton's 125 piece orchestra. Added short subjects include "Mickey's Touchdown" a rattling good comedy; Cinderella Cartoon; Capitol News second-to-none!

AT THE BELLE "DINNER AT EIGHT"

Upsetting all traditions of either theatre or screen, the talking-picture version of the George S. Kaufman-Edna Ferber stage success, "Dinner at Eight", which ran on Broadway for more than a year is the attraction at the Belle tonight, and Friday matinee and evening with the most breath-taking aggregation of stars ever gathered together in the history of motion pictures.

Marie Dressler Heads Cast

There are no less than fourteen outstanding film names in this super-ambitious production. The universally popular Marie Dressler heads the cast in the role of an old-time musical comedy star whose faded glories have not impaired her sense of humor. John Barrymore has a striking role as a matinee idol who has lost his hold on the public. Wallace Beery is cast as a nouveau-riche millionaire and Jean Harlow as his none-too-faithful wife who wants to "crash" society.

Lionel Barrymore, plays a shipbuilder who finds his business crashing about his ears. Lee Tracy, a snappy Broadway theatrical agent. Edmund Lowe is seen as a young doctor, and equally prominent roles are filled by Billie Burke, Madge Evans, Jean Harlow, Karen Morley, Louise Closser Hale, Phillips Holmes and May Robson.

Four Marx Bros. Next

Four Marx Brothers — Groucho, Chico, Harpo, and Zeppo—appear in their new Paramount laugh epic, "Duck Soup". It comes to the Belle, Saturday and Monday, matinee daily.

While the Profits for the year were $280,955.32, as against $396,871.71 for the preceding year, these were ample to cover the dividends of $210,000 or 7 per cent., for 1933; provide for the Federal, Provincial and Business Taxes, $50,000 add $20,955.32 to the amount carried forward from 1932 and bring forward a balance of $104,649.55 to the credit of Profit and Loss.

Increase in Assets

The Assets and Liabilities Statement shows a net increase of assets for the year of $4,611,559.33, or a total volume of assets under administration of $228,658,606.28, which constitutes a new high record for the Corporation.

The assets held in the Estates Trusts and Agencies Section in connection with which the Corporation exercises its major function, viz. that of administering estates and trusts, show an increase of over $6,000,000 for the year which is more gratifying at a time when estates which are falling in for administration represent, in the main, values very greatly reduced from those which obtained in 1929 and having regard to the substantial distributions of Trust funds and other assets which are annually made to beneficiaries under the terms of Wills and Trust Deeds.

The Guaranteed Section which includes the Savings on Deposit shows a small decrease of $517,570.87, as against the total in hand at the end of 1932, divided between Guarantee Funds and Savings in the sums of $376,579.16 and $140,991.71 respectively, leaving Guaranteed Funds on hand of $17,669,294.84 and $6,027,742.59 in Savings on Deposit or a combined total of $23,697,037.43.

PRODUCE PRICES IN MONTREAL

For the third consecutive day fresh eggs prices at Montreal showed substantial gains yesterday. Further gains of 2c to 3c per dozen were recorded, similar advances having been scored on each of the two preceding days. Graded shipments in l.c.l. lots were being quoted 38-40c for A-large, 36-38c for A-medium, and 35-37c for A-pullets. Most of the day's sales were reported at the minimums quoted to 1c higher, with some sales at the maximums of the above ranges. Receipts were again light, being 982 cases, against 1,121 on the same day last week. Extreme cold weather has affected production materially, but owing to the week's sharp gains some caution was being expressed. U. S. eggs cannot be imported under 45c here.

The butter market held steady at the week's advance, quotations for carlots or l.c.l. lots of No. 1 ranging from 26 1-2c to 27c per lb. Receipts, 190 boxes.

The cheese market was firmer, current make Ontarios generally being 10 3-4c per lb., up 1-4c Receipts 33 boxes.

The potato market was stronger being quoted at $1.10 to $1.25 per 80-lb bags.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Feb. 8 (CP)—Weakened margin accounts supplied a flow of stocks into the industrial section of the Toronto Stock Exchange early today that broke prices down nearly two points among the leaders and gave the general tone a rather weak appearance. The selling dried up before noon and prices firmed all along the line.

Ford A sold down to 21 in the first hour but at the end of the distress selling the price came back quickly to 22 3-8 at noon, off only 1-2 point net. Brazilian at 13 5-8, was down 1-8, Nickel was 22.70, unchanged and C.P.R. at 16 7-8 off 1-8.

Walkers Common sagged to 46, off 2 points in the early selling and was holding at 47 at noon for a 1-point loss. Distillers Seagrams at 21 was down 1-4 and Canadian Industrial Alcobol fully recovered its loss holding at noon at 15 1-2.

An early sell-off was followed by a substantial rally in which losses were more than half erased but the early afternoon saw another reaction of less intensity.

Ford A, Brazilian, Canada Cement, Canada Dredge, the Distillery Shares and Brewing Corporation were offered freely in the first hour apparently from weakened margin accounts and amounts from fractions up to 2 points were lopped off. Most of these leaders partly recovered though Canada Dredge appeared feeble on the upturn.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Feb. 8.—Traders turned to the big gold shares today and buying in the morning session of the Toronto Stock Exchange mining section was heavy in Dome, Hollinger, Teck Hughes and Wright Hargreaves with prices firm and higher in some instances. Base Metal issues were generally unchanged.

International Nickel weakened 15 cents in the first hour but recovered later and Noranda held steady at $35.50. Other base metals held steady.

Dome was taken in heavy blocks at $36.00 for a gain of 10 cents, Hollinger was steady at $13.75, Lake Shore 30 cents higher at $44.85, McIntyre was off 25 cents at $42.00 and Teck Hughes and Hargreaves remained unchanged.

The revival of interest in the senior gold shares was carried along today with trading in volume in Dome, Hollinger, Hargreaves and Teck. These issues held practically unchanged or slightly higher. Lake Shore pushed up on light volume.

With exception of Nickel the base metal shares remained quiet with the group firm on the whole.

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York, Feb. 8 (CP)— Stocks continued in the grip of a selling urge today and, despite intermittent rallies, orderly realizing was the rule.

Depressing news was scarce and the majority of market analysts attributed further reactionary tendencies almost wholly to technical causes. The Paris flare-up appeared to be dying down and the progress of business and industry was viewed as satisfactory. The ticker tape occasionally lagged behind floor transactions, but the activity was considerably under that of yesterday.

Domestic bonds were in moderate supply. French loans were strong. Some of the Canadian stocks eased under the general selling. Dome was fairly steady but shares of Canadian Pacific, International Nickel and McIntyre yielded fractionally. On the Curb Lake Shore was even but Hiram Walker dropped more than a point. Dominion Government 4s gained 1-2 point. The Canadian dollar was unchanged at 99.12 1-2 cents.

"Just Average" Number State City Police

Eleven frost-numbed transients dragged weary feet into the local police station last evening, gave their names through chattering teeth to the desk sergeant and then wandered to the cold cement room where they dreamed nightmarish visions of cold snow banks, colder handouts from back doors and the interminable miles of snow-banked highways they would be forced to continue on tomorrow. The number was "just average," stated Sergt. Booth at the station today.

Trenton Intermediates Win Game and Round from Cobourg Meeting Belleville Next Round

Score on Game 4-2 And Win Round By 6-2

FAST GAME

Cobourg Robbed of Goal According to Report Given

Trenton, Feb. 8—(Special) —On to Belleville and Walt Patterson's Doherty A. Cs.

The local O.H.A. group is now one team less by Trenton's 4-2 win over the Cobourg Waverleys here last night and the round was taken 6-2. The black and white will now meet Belleville in a two game series with the winner meeting the Campbellford Maroons for the group honors.

With the mercury far below the zero mark an exceptionally fast sheet of ice greeted the teams with a fair crowd on deck.

The kid line of Burley, Bohan and Miller took the scoring honors of the game. These three figured in three of the local counters with Norm Johnson and Roy Smith notching the other.

The first line of Johnson, Powers and Rosenplot continually broke through the Waverley defence only to miss the net or be stopped by McCoubrey. For Cobourg, Archie Campbell, Max Geraldi and Toey Ibey and a junior lad named Henderson, looked the best. Campbell played a real game with Joe Gould being the big stumbling block. Joe really had less to do last night than any game he has starred in yet. Norm Johnson was rendered hors de combat in the second period and had to be taken to the dressing room but returned for the third stanza.

Locals Open the Scoring

The locals started off with a bang when Johnson, Powers and Rosenplot combined beautifully to continually beat the opposition defence. Norm Johnson missed the open net and a few seconds later he did the same on a pass from Rosenplot. This pair were in three times only to be off balance or fall on the ice, which was like glass.

They tested Joe on a solo but the play was centred in the Waverley territory. Bill Miller beat McCoubrey, when he took a perfect pass in front of the net from Bohan at the boards behind the Cobourg net. Staples drew the first penalty when he gave Johnson the knee as he went to round the defence. Geraldi, Freeman and Campbell combined with Joe making a beautiful save and Geraldi slashed him as he cleared the puck for a penalty. Campbell missed an open net on a pass from Henderson as the period ended 1-0 for the locals.

Cobourg Net Two

Rosenplot was right in when Henderson held him to get a rest. He no sooner got back than he returned for the same offence. Cobourg were forcing the play and kept Gould in hot water. Powers drew a rest for a slash and Smith for bouncing a Cobourgite off the boards.

With two short, Cobourg bombarded the local net with Parker beating Joe on a nice shot from straight ahead. Parker fell with the shot and was knocked out when he crashed the goal post.

"Hoot" Gibson beat Joe but referee Barrett disallowed the goal, when he claimed two players were in the crease. Cobourg really were entitled to the counter. Campbell and Geraldi sailed in but Joe stopped them and it was nothing short of a miracle.

Ibey and Campbell combined to beat the defence. Ibey skated directly at Gould then passed back to Campbell who notched Cobourg's second and last tally. Rosenplot, Johnson and Powers again stormed McCoubrey at will but could not tally. Gibson and Campbell collided and Campbell went down bleeding from a smash in the nose. He was led away for repairs. Near the closing of the period Burley took the puck all through, in behind the Cobourg net, and passed to Bohan in front for Trenton's second counter to even the count 2 all.

Norm Johnson scored on the opening of the third frame when he took a nice pass from Roy Smith in the corner. Barney Yorke made two long rushes through the entire Cobourg squad only to have McCoubrey save.

Bohan, Burley and Miller rushed through and on two short passes from Miller to Burley to Bohan another counter resulted. Yorke missed a wide open net after taking a pass from Rosenplot. Three times Rosenplot was robbed in quick succession. The front line trio could not get the scoring punch last night when they were afforded several golden opportunities. The local squad have improved by leaps and bounds but have, and will have, a lot of hockey to play Friday night at Belleville to cross sticks with the Dohertys. We noticed President Patterson of Belleville Dohertys looking over the boys last night. Well it won't be long till Friday when we meet again.

Line-ups:

Trenton—Goal, Gould; defence, York and Smith; centre Johnson; wings, Powers and Rosenplot; subs, Burley, Bohan, Miller and Utronki.

Cobourg—Goal McCoubrey; defence Geraldi and Staples; centre, Campbell; wings, Ibey and Freeman; subs, Gibson, Henderson, Pearce and Parker.

Referee—"Stub" Barrett, Belleville.

FIRST GAME ON FRIDAY

Trenton And Belleville Meet to Decide Team For Finals

Fresh from a two game victory over the Cobourg Waverleys that elevated them into third position in the group, the Trenton intermediates now meet the Belleville D.A.C. intermediates in the first group semi-final at the Belleville Arena on Friday night with the return game being played at Trenton on Tuesday night next. The total number of goals ennassed in the two games played will decide which club will ultimately meet the Campbellford Maroons for the group championship.

Going through the group schedule without registering a single win until their final appearance in Belleville the Bowen-coached crew played a wide open game to not only win from the locals here on Feb. first, but, go on and eliminate the Waverleys in two straight games. The Trenton club have improved by leaps and bounds until they are now travelling at top speed and will undoubtedly give the locals their stiffest opposition of the year on Friday.

The Trenton Club have recently secured the services of Ross Burley, a speed merchant, who possesses plenty of ability, from Wellington. Burley should be seen at an advantage on the large sheet of ice in the local Arena. Joe Gould, the veteran shut-out goalkeeper wearing the black and white, is still travelling at top form as is Powers and Norm Johnson, who is acknowledged to be the fastest forward in the loop.

Manager Patterson announced that he had secured the services of Jack Connors to replace Rene St. Denis for a game on the local second line. Connors has been practicing for the past two weeks with the Dohertys and seems to fit perfectly into their style of play. The rest of the local organization are reported to be in excellent condition and ready for Friday night's fray.

KI-Y LOOP

Counting a single goal each individual period the Maroons defeated the Red Wings by the score of 3 to 2 in a junior series KI-Y League game played at the Arena last evening.

The Red Wings were kept off the scoring sheet until the final period, when they opened up an offensive barrage, that netted them two goals and tied the game only to have the Maroons put on a last minute splurge and count the winning tally.

The line-ups — Maroons—Lloyd Sager, Miles, Jenkinson, Elvins, Hogan, S. Lloyd, Bawden, Whalen, and Calbury. Red Wings—McKinney, Andrews, Ling, Thomson, Burtt, Hanna, L'Heureux, Liddie and Mattis.

Referee—L. Shiels.

ST. MICHAELS WIN BY 4-2

Defeats St. Peters R. C. at Trenton in Exhibition

In a friendly inter-church hockey game, St. Michael's of Belleville defeated St. Peter's R.C. church of Trenton by the score of 4 to 2 at the Belleville Arena last evening.

The local pucksters always held a decided edge over their Trenton rivals despite the fact, that the visitors notched the first counter early in the initial frame. Coach Doyle had the locals clicking in perfect unison throughout as their combination and power plays clearly demonstrated as the game progressed.

St. Denis scored for the St. Mikes sextette in the initial frame to knot the count, when he drilled home a hard shot from Doyle's pass at the Trenton blue line. Jack Doyle, on a solo effort put the locals in the lead in the second canto while St. Denis scored for the homesters, with Kerr counting for the visitors in the final stanza.

The game was clean throughout with plenty of fast hockey played by both clubs to give the few fans on hand numerous thrills. Twice previous the local sextette have defeated their Trenton rivals this season, with both previous games being played in Trenton.

Line-ups:

St. Michael's (Belleville)— Goal J. McNabb, defence J. Peets and A. St. Denis, wings J. Forester and B Doran, centre J. Voisin. Subs. J. Doyle, T. Haslip, A. Doran and S. Amo.

St. Peter's (Trenton)—Goal B. Long, defence, J. Jones and D. Long, wings B. Holmes and J. Ellis, centre J. Kerr. Subs. B. Lamoore, E. Davis and P. Chercuit.

WINDSOR BULLDOGS IN 4TH PLACE OVER TECS

Blank Cleveland 3-0 to Move into Play-off Berth

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 8.—(CP) —Windsor Bulldogs today had hopped over London Tecumsehs to take fourth place in the International Hockey League standings. Windsor made the jump by blanking Cleveland Indians, cellar occupants, here last night, 3-0.

Winger Frank Steele flipped in two of Windsor's goals, all of which came in the last session after two periods of scoreless, fast hockey. Lorne Guguid broke through Goaler Roberts for the third Windsor tally. All of the goals appeared in the last seven minutes of play when the rushing Windsor forwards found the Cleveland defense weakening and bombarded Roberts with the rubber.

ONTARIO TANKARD WON BY THISTLES OF HAMILTON

TORONTO Feb. 8.—(CP)—Hamilton's Curling Campbells today held the right to represent the Ontario Curling Association in the leading curling event of the year, the Macdonald Brier. Gordon Campbell and his curlers Duncan Campbell and Donald Campbell and Gordon Coates, romped home with the Ontario Tankard yesterday with one of the greatest displays of rock twirling seen here for some time.

It was the second time in three seasons a team from the Hamilton Thistle Club won the Tankard and the eighth time in the 59th years of the competition. To emerge on top the Campbell Rink had to beat Dick Butler's men from Lindsay, one of the best teams in the province.

Thistles, however, had little difficulty with the Lindsay curlers. After the ninth end there was no doubt as to the superiority of the Hamilton players. They excelled both in sweeping and drawing their shots. At the fourteenth end Lindsay conceded victory and Thistles emerged with a 25-9 win.

The Governor General's trophy for rinks in the District Cup Groups was captured by the Toronto Victoria Curlers led by J. H. Duff. Victoria team defeated R. Wright's Thornhill rink in the final 18-9, the match ending on the fourteenth end. It was the Victoria Club's fifth victory in 27 years of competition.

Today victors in the Burden Trophy event, consolation competition for those knocked out of the Tankard play, and in the Mail and Empire Trophy event, consolation for teams in the Governor-General's Trophy, will be known.

H. W. Sanders' Stouffville rink this morning meets W. A. Watson's Sarnia Curler in the semi-final of the Burden Trophy play, the winner to meet W. H. Keller's Midland rink in the final. R. Thurston's Bobcaygeon rink faces A. Loveless' Wexford rink in the Mail and Empire semi-final, the winner to meet W. H. Weller's Hamilton Thistles in the final.

To Receive Loving Cups And Purse of Gold From Admirers

BRILLIANT PLAYER

Weighs But 136 Pounds But Wiry And Full of Courage

Montreal, Feb. 8 (CP)—The years roll back for Aurel Joliat tonight, a "grizzled veteran" at the age of 32, the crafty little left wing of Montreal Canadiens' crack forward line skates into his 500th professional hockey game here tonight against Montreal Maroons. It was in the autumn of 1922, that a nervous youngster in a bright new Canadiens' uniform made his bow in the National Hockey League.

Tonight roaring thousands of admirers will show their appreciation of his hockey skill. Little "Quette" will probably tremble at the knees once more as he faces the thousands of fans there to acclaim him. Joliat will be led out into the face-off circle at centre ice to become the focus of all eyes as friends and teammates celebrate his 500th hockey battle.

From a legion of friends and admirers he will receive a handsome silver service. As the cheers die away he will step forward again to take into his hands a beautiful gold loving cup presented to him by his teammates in token of their friendship.

Does Not Like Glare

When the pandemonium dies away, Aurel will tuck his trophies away on the Canadiens bench, give his cap the typical twitch and get down to business against the Maroons, gliding smoothly to his post at left wing.

His friends know Aurel, no matter how deeply he is touched by the expressions of friendship, will heave a sigh of relief once the ceremony is over, for he is not a demonstrative type. He is quiet and even taciturn on the ice, and even more quiet and unassuming in private life. He likes books, music and golf. He spends most of his spare time at home with his wife.

Aurel is a son of Ottawa's Chief of Police. He was brought up in the Capital and learned his hockey there with the kids. His most important amateur affiliation was with Iroquois Falls. In his day Aurel was a canny football player and was an outstanding fullback.

He went out west to play hockey for Saskatoon but a broken leg prevented him from fulfilling that contract and he came to Canadiens in 1922.

Joliat weighs about 136 pounds stands five feet six inches high and is as tough as iron. His wiry little frame has withstood all the punishment of nearly 12 seasons of big league hockey. A stickhandling wizard and an elusive skater, Joliat has proved a hard man to check. He moves an inch or so and the intended bodychecker goes sliding by him.

At the threshold of his 500th game, Joliat is still one of the stars among stars and one of the first seven leading scorers. He thinks he has many seasons of good hockey in him yet.

PRE-GAME PREDICTIONS

(By A. E. Pulford, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal hockey fans haven't been so keen this season about clashes between their rival National Hockey League teams but tonight's meeting has everything to attract a monster crowd.

Maroons' supporters and the Habitants fans who have cheered Aurel Joliat all through his long career will flock to the Forum in thousands to applaud the Canadiens' mite left winger as he plays his 500th N.H.L. game.

Minus Joe Primeau, Buzz Bol and Charlie Conacher, the section leading Leafs play New York Americans tonight in Madison Square Garden. The centre star, threatened with appendicitis, will be out of the game for a week or so but Conacher and Boll will play against Canadiens here Saturday.

Corporal Joe Simpson and his ever amazing Americans need the win badly tonight to keep in touch with Maroons and Canadiens leading them by five points. They catch the Leafs with their kid line riddled and figure to take the league champions.

While New York Rangers, United States section leaders, are idle, Detroit and Chicago battle in Chicago tonight. Tommy Gorman's Black Hawks could close up half the four point gap between them and Rangers with a win over Jack Adams' men. A victory for Red Wings would leave them trailing the New Yorkers by only a point.

OTTAWA FIND NO SIGNS OF MAPLE LEAF SLUMP

The Toronto Maple Leafs may be in a slump on the road, but when they're at home, there's no sign of disintegration. Ask the Ottawa Senators. They absorbed an 8-4 defeat on their last visit this season to Toronto last Saturday. The Maples were all over the young Senator team which shows signs of breaking down after a brilliant start. Too many youngsters is probably the answer. But Beveridge in the nets for Ottawa didn't back down any and ABOVE is seen Happy Day and some of his cohorts right inside the goal crease trying to push in another goal—as if they didn't have enough already. And from the look of the sticks, the game wasn't any too pleasant, either.

Even if the Moira River is at present frozen to the bottom and fully 20 inches of ice in the Bay of Quinte, plans are steadily being introduced towards the completion of the newly-proposed Belleville Yacht Club. On Friday evening the election of officers for the local unit will be held at the Y.M.C.A. when the committee recently appointed to nominate the initial set of officers will make their report. All interested parties desirous of affiliating with the local yacht club are asked to attend.

• • •

Although definite plans regarding the future of the organization are still somewhat vague, it is understood that various propositions relating to the welfare of the organization will be presented on Friday night. It has been suggested that the new club use the present Zwick's Island location as its base. Later, however, a clubhouse and adequate headquarters are to be erected. Tommy Mason, president pro tem, has been in communication with the National Yacht Club in Toronto, through whose officers considerable information relating to proposed by-laws and constitutional data has been received. The Rear-Commodore of the Toronto organization has volunteered to appear at a local gathering of yachtsmen and go into details regarding the formation of a local club. Following the complete organization of the Belleville unit similar clubs are to be formed at Trenton, Wellington, Picton, Deseronto and other interested centres bordering on the Bay of Quinte.

• • •

In years past the yachtsmen from the Bay of Quinte sector have been held in high esteem by all other organizations of fresh water sailors on the continent. With a live-wire executive at its helm the proposed Bay of Quinte Yacht Club could do much to stimulate the returned interest of sailing in this immediate district. At present there is no active yacht club between Toronto and Kingston, thus necessitating long jumps for inter-club meets. A club formed in the Bay of Quinte district would naturally meet with outside approval as it would furnish a central point where all yacht clubs on the Canadian side could meet in friendly competition occasionally.

Just when everything seemed serene in Toronto amateur baseball circles and the breach between the T.A.B.A. and the Ulster Stadium League completely healed, the worst bombshell of all burst on Tuesday when, after an amalgamated meeting of the two factions, the Ulster Stadium crowd split in twain leaving a wider breach than ever in amateur baseball circles in the Queen City.

• • •

Joe Townsend, who recently resigned as president of last year's Ulster Stadium loop, has formed a new Ulster Stadium loop affiliated with the T.A.B.A. and including the Riverdale Grads, Toronto Danforths, possibly Oshawa Dukes and three other teams yet to be chosen. The Valley Views, Beaches and Native Sons, members of the old organization, it is understood, will continue as an outlaw organization.

• • •

President Kerr of the T.A.B.A. and Mr. Townsend did all in their power to bring about a mutual agreement among the various clubs concerned in the breach between the Ulster Stadium and the T.A.B.A. without avail. As is pointed out by Bunny Morganson of the Toronto Telegram sport staff, certain ex-Ulster Stadium officials were operating absolutely too much in the "clique" atmosphere and proved a dire hindrance to the proposed amalgamation. What does all this conglomeration mean to baseball locally, a fan may ask? Well, merely this—"two and possibly three more clubs are needed to round out the new Ulster Stadium League and make it one of the strongest senior loops in the province, so why not the C.O.B.L. officials approach Chairman Townsend relating to a possible amalgamation among the three Toronto clubs, Oshawa, Peterboro and Belleville? With the present situation in a quandry in Toronto perhaps the above suggestion would be of mutual benefit to all concerned. At least it's worth trying.

Although the Trenton intermediates could not register a win over the Cobourg Waverleys in the regular playing season they seem to have struck their stride in the present play-offs as their recent dual win over the Cobourgites would indicate. Last night the Trentonians downed their Cobourg rivals 4 to 2 in a wide open game that saw the Bowen-coached clan much too speedy for the Campbell-Geraldi-Freeman outfit. The Trenton club forged to the lead in the initial frame but due to the untiring efforts of Campbell and company the Cobourgites staged a hectic second period rally that all but knotted the round. A disputed goal that was disallowed the Waverleys followed by a subsequent injury to Archie Campbell sapped all the initiative that had been instilled into the Cobourg club.

• • •

Coming out of practically sure elimination the Trenton intermediates now are the "team to beat" in the local intermediate group. Coach Will L'Heureux and Skipper Patterson were present at last night's game getting in a little scouting and feel that despite the fact the Trenton club are travelling at top form, their charges will come down in front on Friday night when the first game of the group semi-finals is staged at the Belleville Arena.

• • •

Two new players will be introduced to the fans on Friday night. Jack Connors will be at centre on the second line for the Dohertys while Ross Burley, a speedy youth from Wellington, has been added to the Trenton roster. Burley carries plenty of speed and outshines many of his team-mates.

Tumultuous Welcome to G. Doumergue as Plans Made to Form Cabinet

Out of Political Life Since 1931 Makes Demands

CALLS FOR TRUCE

Wants Right to Rule by Decree if Premiership Accepted

(By Alexander H. Uhl)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

PARIS, Feb. 8.—(AP)— Gaston Doumergue came to Paris today to try to form a cabinet, which could rescue France from the horrors of French rioting against French."

Thousands roared a tumultuous welcome to the 71-year-old former President.

"Vive La France!" came the cry from the crowd time and again as throngs surged about his automobile.

Cheering Parisiens followed his car all the way across the Seine River as he was whirled away swiftly to see President Albert LeBrun.

It was understood that Doumergue, out of political life since 1931 demanded the dissolution of Parliament and the right to rule by decree if necessary.

He called for a "truce" among political parties.

Truce Would Bring Order

"If the Chamber (of Deputies) itself asks the Chiefs of each big party and the former Premiers to meet and declare a truce," he said, "order will quickly return."

Even as he spoke, the Socialist Party—without whose support no government has long remained in power in France—struck out defiantly.

A manifesto was issued appealing to all men and all organizations to join the Socialists and form a Government to "wrest the Republic from parties and Fascism."

At the same time, Thenduc Be Guise, pretender to the French throne, sought to "rally all Frenchmen of all parties to the Moparchic Princille", in a manifesto published in the Royalis newspaper, Action Francaise.

Summoned By President

Doumergue was summoned by President Albert Lebrun a short while after Edouar Daladier and his cabinet resigned yesterday as a result of Tuesday's anti government rioting.

Even as he neared Paris on a train from his home near Toulouse, continued disorders led by Communists and street headlums raised a further threat to his success.

In the early hours of today, as fighting waned between mobs and mounted police, the known dead in the two-day violence reached 12.

Two were killed during the night. Two hundred were injured and wounded, some by gunfire.

These, added to those previously dead of Tuesday night's more violent revolutionary outbreaks, raised the death list officially to 10, the injured numbered thousands.

Tuesday's rioting was led by the Royalists, seizing an opportunity to demonstrate against the Republic. Mobs joined, protesting against alleged government implication in the Bayonne banking scandal and general economic stress

Today the character of the fighting had changed. Communists and street hoodlums dominated the situation. They were augmented by citizens infuriated by the shootings Tuesday.

The Socialists, angered at the turn of events politically, called for further huge demonstrations. They called Daladier's resignation "a surrender to reactionaries," "a Fascist threat to liberty."

Joining in the opposition, the French Federation of Labor, called a 24-hour general strike of protest starting Monday. The Communists and street hoodlums running wild last night destroyed property right and left. They wrecked the boulevards.

Fired at Police

They fired pistols in the faces of police who strove to halt them.

They blocked the railroad station at Saint Lazare, building the traditional revolutionary barricades.

Under cover of darkness, for the street lamps had been smashed, the rioters destroyed everything breakable. They even held up private cars demanding ransom not to burn them.

Looting broke out along the Ru Rivoli. Windows were smashed in shops which had no iron shutters. The contents were borne away. The famous Galignani bookstore was among the establishments sacked. Witnesses said they saw rioters loading the plunder in automobiles.

Finally, the mob seized two omnibuses and 10 private cars. These they used to block the street. When police broke through, they fled into the Tuileries Gardens.

A pitched battle ensued among the trees. Pistols blazed. Several dropped on both sides. One group of rioters broke into a gunsmith's shop. They carried away guns and ammunition.

Hundreds of pistol shots were fired in fighting along the main boulevards between the Opera and the Old Madeleine Church.

Police insisted the shots were fired by rioters, but slugs flew in both directions. At least 10 civilians suffered bullet wounds.

Last night's riots started in the Place de la Concorde. Little damage was done there. Then they spread to the Elysee Palace.

As rioting spread beyond this region, scene of Tuesday night's bitterest battling, 2,000 persons tried to rush the gates of the Presidential home. They were beaten back after fierce fighting.

Rioting All Night

Spasmodic rioting continued until 2.30 o'clock in the morning. The mob around St. Lazare station finally was dislodged. It fell back toward the Montmartre, spreading destruction. Police gave pursuit and finally dispersed them in the Place Clichy.

Projected into this maelstrom, Doumergue hoped to form a cabinet of powerful personalities capable of dominating the situation.

Former Premier Pierre Laval played a prominent part in negotiations today. He was considered a likely cabinet possibility.

In the manifesto published in the newspaper Action Francaise today the Dec de Guise, from his "cruel" Belgian exile, "blamed 60 years of the Republic" for Tuesday's "flow of blood in the streets of Paris which would never have been spilled except for a sacred cause."

W. TER MARSCH FOUND GUILTY

Jury Finds Manslaughter And Judge Will Pass Sentence

Kitchener, Feb. 8.—William Ter Marsch of Kitchener was found guilty of manslaughter by the jury at the Criminal Assizes here Wednesday night. The jury were out two hours before finding the man guilty of manslaughter in connection with the death of Mrs. Lois Hughes of Westmeath caused by an illegal operation the Crown charged. Mrs. Hughes died Nov. 1 last.

Mr. Justice Eric Armour declared he would pass sentence today. "The jury has found you guilty of the charge of manslaughter and I might say it is a verdict with which I quite agree" His Worship said. "In view of the fact that your counsel is not present I will defer sentence until today."

Ter Marsch was unmoved when the last stage of the trial defense counsel E. B. Dowdall of Kitchener offered no evidence and did not call on the accused to make any statement.

The last two Crown witnesses called by the Crown prosecutor Hugh John Macdonald of Toronto were W. Fiscus and Thomas O'Rourke both of Kitchener who declared they had been shown letters by Ter Marsch from different women thanking him for his services.

Both testified they had been asked by Ter Marsch if they knew of any women "in trouble" Fiscus said Ter Marsch offered him "a split' if he brought him any such women.

In the course of the hearing the exhibit list included articles found in Ter Marsch's room which included needles syringes and numerous bottles, which, it was claimed, were kept for no innocent purpose.

Numerous letters, allegedly written by Mrs. Hughes, were also found in the room of the accused. These letters, entered as evidence against the argument of the defense, referred to Ter Marsch in endearing terms, indicating she knew him well. They were written over a period of eight months.

Two young women from Galt were called as witnesses Wednesday, and told of going to Ter Marsch in his hotel room and receiving treatment allegedly for the purpose of bringing about an abortion. A man from Mattawa was also called to tell of corresponding with Ter Marsch in connection with Mrs. Hugnes' condition.

DOES DESTINY OF FRANCE LIE IN HANDS OF ONE OF THESE MEN

LEON DAUDET

For many years prime mover of the Royalist party in France, Daudet has poured forth vitriolic criticisms from his powerful pen in recent weeks leading to the riots in Paris, and the fall of the Daladier government. He declares, "this could be avoided with a king at your head." He supports the Duc de Guise to return to monarchy.

PIERRE LAVAL

Still prominent in the French government, and said to be ally of Andre Tardieu is Pierre Laval, former premier of France. Laval was in opposition to Daladier and sided with Tardieu when the latter criticized Daladier leading up to the latter's resignation as all Paris rioted in the Place de la Concorde.

EDOUARD DALADIER

"Power is not worth the sacrifice of those people killed," said Edouard Daladier, 8-day premier of France, who resigned his post when rioters stormed the government demanding his resignation for having issued the order to the militia to fire into the mob. He is known as France's "iron premier" but he couldn't withstand the onslaught of the mob.

EDOUARD HERRIOT

Once again President Le Brun of France issued a call to Edouard Herriot to become premier of France in a crisis. Herriot, who enjoys more popularity with the French people than any other man in public life, and has consistently refused the reins of office until such time as France pays her war debt to the United States.

ANDRE TARDIEU

Former premier of France, Andre Tardieu is seen as the man behind the move which ousted Edouard Daladier from the premiership of France as a result of the recent rioting. While Tardieu was never mentioned as France's next premier, he nevertheless holds a position of considerable power in the French government.

THREE BURNED TWO INJURED IN EXPLOSION

Tried to Replenish Oil in Lamp Without Extinguishing

TRAPPED UPSTAIRS

Two in Hospital Liable To be Added to Death Toll

Hearst, Ont., Feb. 8 (CP)—Fearfully burned in an explosion that took a toll of three lives, Absolom Nolet and his 15-year-old son, Laurent, waged a fight for life in hospital here today.

Meanwhile, police withheld plans for an investigation into the disastrous fire that razed the Nolet home at Parthia, 20 miles west of here, and burned to death Mrs. D. Plamondon, 58, Mrs. A. LaFontaine 30, neighbors, and Victorian Plamondon, aged one, granddaughter of Mrs. Plamondon.

The fire occurred Tuesday night. Neighbors of the Nolet family, Mrs. LaFontaine and Mrs. Plamondon arrived for a visit just before darkness set in while they were upstairs removing their coats, Laurent, noticing the light from a table lamp was fading, attempting to re-fuel it without extinguishing the flame.

Blinding Flash

There was a blinding flash and immediately the little home was transformed into a raging inferno. Trapped in an upstairs room the two women screamed for aid as darting flames blocked their escape.

Repeated attempts by the elder Nolet to effect a rescue proved futile. Badly burned about the head and body, he was found in the snow a short distance from the house by Mr. Plamondon, who was attracted by the flames and smoke. Father and son were immediately rushed to hospital here where their burns were cared for.

Pending definite recovery of the father and son police are withholding plans for an inquest. Funeral arrangements for the three victims will be completed today

ATTEMPT TO RAISE VESSEL

Working on Legend Long Told Around Campfires

St. Ignace, Mich., Feb. 8—(AP)— Guided by a legend long told around Indian campfires, white men soon will attempt to wrest from Lake Huron's sandy bottom a secret 250 years old—the whereabouts of the ship Griffin, first sailing vessel on the Great Lakes, which was lost with all hands in 1769.

The Griffin was built by Rene Robert Sieur De La Salle on Lake Erie above Niagara Falls and it made one trip through the upper lakes to play a part in the growing fur trade for France. With a crew of 15 men aboard she sailed out of Green Bay, Wis., Sept. 18, 1769, passed through the straights of Mackinac during a gale and disappeared completely.

Interest in the Griffin was revived with the death recently of Captain Louis Goudreau, who sailed the Great Lakes for more than 50 years, believed to have been the only white man who knew the secret of the vessel.

Now, however, John Osogwin, Lescheneaux Indian, has revealed a legend which places the hull near Birch Island, off the town of Lescheneaux. Led by Oliver Birdge, a diver, citizens will begin the search by making soundings through the ice at the supposed location of the old hull.

The project, to begin this week, is planned in spite of the identification in 1930 of a hull found in Manitoulin Island as that of the Griffin.

Farmers are Entitled to Fee from Anglers Using Stocked Streams

Toronto, Feb. 8.—Though there seems to have existed a good deal of misapprehension about it, farmers have a perfect right to charge the public a fee for the privilege of fishing in streams from their land, even when such streams have been stocked by the Government at public expense.

The provision that landowners whose property abuts on a stream shall permit public fishing as a condition of having the stream stocked, does not mean "free" public fishing, a reporter was told of the Department of Game and Fisheries at Queen's Park.

No Exclusive Rights

..As a matter of fact, no objection As a matter of fact, no objection is seen by the department to a landowner charging the public, who he is required to allow to fish from his land a uniform fee. The principle underlying the requirement of permitting public fishing is simply that no select coterie shall enjoy exclusive rights on a stream stocked at public expense. For instance, the department is not willing to stock a stream and then have the fishing privileges from the abutting land leased to a private club.

The agreement on the form of application for restocking a stream reads: "The undersigned owners of land abbutting the waters named above agree to allow public fishing in the waters in question for at least five years after this restocking unless the department deem it necessary to close the same for any given period of time."

Depredations Feared

This provision has made many landowners hesitate about getting streams through their properties restocked. The experience of many farmers respecting an inconsiderate section of the fishing public who invade their property as a "right" under these terms has made others pause. There have been reports of such visitors leaving gates open and allowing cattle to wander, breaking down hedges, tearing up and removing shrubs, and generally acting as though they realized they were away from home.

These objections have been aggravated by a feeling that the guests can't be made paying guests.

But they can; so far as the department is concerned. 'The only stipulation, is that all the public shall be treated alike by the landowner in the matter of the charge for the privilege of using his property for fishing.

In fact, they believe, that the requirement of a moderate fee from the public might have the salutary effect of making it in the landowners' interest to see that the protective game laws were observed.

ROYALIST LEADERS PRESERVE SILENCE

Brussels, Feb. 8 (AP)—The Duc De Guise, 60-year-old claimant of the Bourbon throne of France who is here in exile, refused to comment upon the situation in France.

Another claimant to the throne of France is Prince Louis Napoleon 20, who lives in Switzerland with his mother, Clementine.

Each is regarded by various sections of the Royalist party, which has participated in the riotings in Paris, as the rightful ruler of France.

Stirling Guild Has Interesting Weekly Meeting Monday

Stirling, Feb. 7—Mrs. Clifford Baker and Mrs. Mae Nolan were in charge of the programme for Monday evening's Guild meeting while Mrs. R. W. Meiklejohn in a very capable manner, occupied the chair. The Devotional period preceding the programme consisted of the singing of two hymns, Scriptural reading by Mrs. Harper Rollins and prayer. Following the business section of the meeting, a trio "I Know Whom I Have Believed" was rendered by Mrs. J. A. Koffend, Mrs. Mae Nolan and Miss Inez Elgie accompanied on the harp by Mrs. Koffend. Mrs. C. N. Baker gave the topic "The Young People's Part in Interdenominational Tasks," in which she stressed the note of fellowship with organizations and societies of other religious sects. A fitting conclusion was afforded by the reading of a poem relative to the topic by Mrs. James Montgomery. Mrs. Meiklejohn and Mr. W. L. Anderson held a discussion on the evening's subject in which they exposed the best points and their argumentation resolved down to the fact that striving to help others was the main item. Mrs. Harold Foster gave a selection, "If We Knew Us" and was followed by a second reading "A Worker's Prayer" given by Miss T. Eggleton. The helpful gathering dispersed with the singing of a hymn and the Mizpah Benediction.

At the Monday evening meeting of the Stirling Legion following the business section of the gathering Col. A. V. Yates of Deloro addressed the members on "The History and formation of the Canadian Militia in time of Peace." Col. R. Vanderwater was to have been the guest speaker but in his absence, Col. Yates delivered an interesting and instructive address.

The Monday evening meeting of St. Paul's Y.P.S. was conducted under the able direction of the Christian Endeavour Department and was rewarded with a splendid attendance of seventy people. The Devotional period over which the president presided consisted of the Scripture lesson read by Miss Margaret Simpson following which Mrs. Jas. Balmforth gave an interesting and skilful treatise of the life of Dr. Isaac Watts, the father of English hymns dealing in particular with his outstanding missionary composition, "Jesus Shall Reign Where'er the Sun, doth his successive Journey Run." A fitting conclusion to the talk was brought about when the hymn was sweetly rendered by Iva Lemmiss and Irene Bronson. Short sentence prayers by Russell West and Miss Mary Hulin terminated the section of the programme. Mrs. James Balmforth, 1st vice president conducted the remainder of the programme, interesting features of which were a guitar selection "Honolulu Harmony" by Messrs Maurice Bell and Charles Irwin accompanied by Mrs. E. W. Rowland as pianist and the topic "Martin Luther and his famous text, the Just Shall Live by Faith," dealt with in a masterful manner by Mrs. Lawrence Munro. Her interesting discourse was based on information gleaned from the Study Book, "A Bunch of Everlastings," by F. W. Boreham. A menu contest was the concluding number of the evening. The white side carrying off the honors and the gathering dispersed with the Mizpah Benediction.

Services in St. Paul's United Church on Sunday evening were of a rather especial nature when the Sunday School conducted the evening devotions. Sunday School superintendent Fred T. Hulin was in charge and was assisted by assistant suptrintendent William Fitchett. The opening feature was a fifteen minute service of song during which time all the old favorite hymns were sung. The Sunday School orchestra was present and rendered excellent music during the evening. The Sunday School choir was also in attendance. Mr. Fred Elgie delivered a splendid address entitled "The Cure For Worry," following which a talk on that organization, "The Canadian Girls in Training.", was given by Miss Pansy Lansing. The service was an inspiring and helpful one and it is a regretable fact that Rev. E. W. Rowland, pastor, was prevented from being present due to illness.

The annual congregational meeting of St. Paul's United Church has also been postponed indefinitely due to Mr. Rowland's illness.

RECOVERING FROM ACCIDENT WHILE WORKING IN NORTH

Owing to the cold weather and the condition of the roads the church services at Aikens and Centenary were not as well attended as usual.

Rev. H. B. Johnson spent the dinner hour on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. S. Westover.

Miss Clara Adams of Toronto spent the week end at her home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Reg Reddick, and children of Belleville, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Hinchcliffe.

DORIS DUKE

Threatened with kidnapping, besieged by money-seekers, hounded by photographers and newshawks, the poor little rich girl, Doris Duke, finds that for all her wealth she has little freedom. At present she has surrounding her, more guards than servants. She can never appear in public at any time, unescorted. Why? Because she's worth around $50,000,000. Perhaps the richest girl in the world.

"This is the Test that convinced me...

it pays to use only Old Dutch Cleanser. I've put all of them to this 'safety test,' and now I know the money-saving value and safety of Old Dutch. It has proved that it doesn't scratch because it contains none of the harsh, sandy grit found in ordinary cleansers.

Practical experience proves that because of the absence of such chunky, gritty material Old Dutch not only cleans quicker and cleans more things, but, because its particles are flat-shaped, it goes further and does much more actual cleaning per penny of cost. Old Dutch doesn't harm my hands or clog the drains. It has no odor and removes odors. I'm convinced that there is no substitute for its quality and economy."

LOVE'S LOTTERY

— by —

Katharine Haviland-Taylor

"One minute——" she said, and after a gasp, Pierre paused. "I would rather not be announced. Do you think—I might go to his room —unannounced?"

"I think —anyway—any time," Pierre answered solemnly, "he would like you to come to the room— where he is."

In the kitchen, Pierre gave the pilot his dinner and the pilot's appetite and approval added to Pierre's growing happiness. Pierre went to the telephone.

"Mrs. Higgins," he said, "we need very much nice wedding cake this afternoon, I think. You make?"

She answered with an excited affirmative in which was scattered a good deal of interrogation. Pierre answered her fully. "You will not blame him when you see," Pierre stated—he meant, "see her"—"and she have suffered, too—very plain that for all to see—very much she have suffered."

Picking up the dishes that the pilot had left, Pierre considered the clergy of the village. Old Mr. Lethby would be "pleasant for wedding," Pierre considered, and the fee which would be large, would serve him well.

Cicily, freshened by water and brushes and another frock and absurdly fragile slippers and thin stockings for a northern camp, stood at a window watching the pilot away. She had promised Dr. Denton that she would not see Terry until the pilot was gone.

"He can put you up at some other house, if he and convention make it necessary," Dr. Denton had pointed out, "but I hardly think he will suggest it. And remember, child 'something old and something new, and something borrowed and something blue' and—a penny in the bride's small shoe—"

He had known the full force of her feeling from her blanching at that. And he knew too, did Dr. Denton, that if the man were definitely lost to her, he would have a hard job ahead, for Dr. Denton had, at last, persuaded his patient to make her fight.

The plane rose to the sky; Cicily [illegible] trembling, turned toward the door. She followed a long hall to the living room, which she saw even through her shaken perturbation, as "a charming, charming place!"

Down another long hall. At the end of this, Pierre had said, was his room. The door was closed. She drew a deep breath, and tapped.

"Come—" she heard. She opened the door. Terry was staring at her, from the bed; Terry gone as white as the white sheets. She couldn't move—for a minute. He saw her gasp, close her eyes, open them and smile with lips that trembled.

He moistened his lips. If she were not —as real as she seemed—it had —floored him and he was mad. And if madness it were, he would ask nothing better. Wide-eyed, steady-eyed, he watched her move toward the bed, to sink down beside it with a gasp. On her knees, she groped for his hand, to hold it against her cheek, then her heart, and——he knew it was real! Real!

"Cicily!" he whispered.

He heard a gasped shaken, "Terry!"

"This—is real?" he questioned fearfully.

Her lips trembled on the smile she gave him with her nod. It was real! And she would—with time—prove it to him!

"I love you so! I love you so!" she said. He drew a sharp, deep breath; for a moment his eyes closed and when he opened them he saw she was crying, face hidden in the crook of her arm.

"My dearest, you mustn't cry!" he broke out, as he felt a new and a beautiful agony fill his heart; "you mustn't cry!"

With one arm he raised her to the edge of his bed, and sitting up, he gathered her close, to hold her as he had dreamed of holding her, his own tears dampening her cheek as he told her, brokenly, that there was nothing—nothing to cry about!

She drew away, to look at him; she laughed unsteadily; sobbed suddenly again and, slipping her arms around his neck, she tightened them.

He had not imagined, in all of his boldest imaginings that she would thus show her feeling; he heard, "Terry, I adore you! Worship you!"

His world was swaying wildly.

"When you kissed me—that last time—I knew how I cared and—I thought you didn't care!"

"I—didn't care?" he questioned with a rather dulled amazement.

He smoothed her soft hair with fingers that shook; his eyes searched her face.

"I've been really ill, Terry, from thinking you didn't care—"

"My dearest child! My dearest child!"

. . . . . .

"I'm not a child, Terry. I'm grown —full grown—I think, for the first time. Terry, I want to marry you so much. If you'll give me another chance. . . . Terry, I want to be—your wife!"

He kissed her then, as he had in Florence; very gently, almost fearfully. She drew away, to shake her head, and then she kissed him and suddenly he hid his face against her throat—as he had in his dreams.

An hour later, with Pierre's help, Terry got into his clothes, and after another hour old Dr. Lethby went down the hall with Mrs. Higgins who had eaten of the wedding cake that she had made.

"She's a real little beauty and sweet," said Mrs. Higgins, warmly and unsteadily, for somehow, at that wedding, she had had to cry even more than she usually did at weddings; it had been, "so awful solemn" for them both, "as anybody could see!"

Dr. Lethby answered rather dazedly and he kept slipping a trembling hand into an inner pocket to see that the amazing fee was safe. A fee it was, that was larger than would have been his two years' salary, if the salary were ever paid. And Sir Terrill had said that each year it would be renewed as a thank offering.

"They seem," he conceded, in a voice that would shake, "deeply—rarely—attached and suited to one another."

Just then Terry was looking at Cicily as Dr. Lethby had looked at his fee—incredulously, probingly, yet —blindly. Cicily, after one glance at Terry that had made her heart turn, stared into the fire before which she and Terry were standing.

"Aunt Ella and Uncle Albion will be so happy, Terry. We must telephone them later."

"Yes—" he answered, dully, staring down at her. Staring at her, he thought, "It is true and it is —but beginning."

"Terry."

"My darling?"

"Terry— you usually do know what I want, but just now—you're worlds away form me—and I don't want that!"

He heard her, a moment later, saying a stifled, unsteady, "Dearest, your arm! Your poor arm; we must not hurt that!"

"We"; that "we" would divide all hurts by half.

"Nothing," he said unsteadily, "will ever hurt me again!"

She had, he knew, looking down upon her, put heaven into his heart and she would keep it there. He wanted, with a fervor that shook him, to tell her something of his gratitude for her coming, for her "divine giving" and—he could do no more than look at her——look at her! Smile down on her unsteadily; touch her hand fleetingly, almost fearfully.

"I want to tell you much that's in my heart, Cicily," he said, "and, you know, I can't?"

"I know quite," she answered; You know Terry, we always feel things in the same way!"

And later, as Terry held her clasped hands pressed above his hard-beating heart, Pierre opened the door softly; he closed it yet more softly, and smiling, he returned to his kitchen. It was well; all was well. They loved—le Bon Dieu —ah, he smiled!

As he rattled his pans, he paused a moment to wipe his misted eyes with the back of a faithful hand.

Piles Go Quick

Without Salves or Cutting

Thousands of sufferers from itching, bleeding or protruding piles have learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with an internal medicine. Neither salves nor cutting remove the cause.

Bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To end Piles an internal medicine must be used to stimulate the circulation, heal and restore the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was the first to discover a real internal Pile remedy. He called his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1000 patients with the marvelous record of success in 960 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID tablets from their own druggist with a rigid money back guarantee.

Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID has an almost unbelievable record of success right in this city. So why waste time on external treatments or worry about an operation when J. S. McKeown invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID with guarantee of money-back if it does not end their Piles, no matter how stubborn the case?

TARZAN AT THE EART H'S CORE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

H-88. ©1933, by Edgar Rice Burroughs, Inc. All rights reserved.

The ape-man soon found that Jana could follow him through the trees. So they started back to the point where Tarzan had left his Waziri warriors. Presently he heard approaching footsteps. After waiting a few silent moments he saw a half-naked, mud-coated man coming toward them. What he was doing there alone in the grim forest puzzled Tarzan, as he dropped to the ground in front of the surprised stranger.

At sight of the ape-man the other cried: "TARZAN!" It took a moment before Tarzan could recognize the speaker. "Gridley—Jason Gridley," he exclaimed, "Jana told me you were dead." "Jana?" replied the bewildered Jason, "you have seen her? Where is she?" "Here!" replied a silvery voice as The Red Flower slipped to the ground near them. Jason started eagerly toward her but stopped mid-way, as he saw her eyes held no welcome for them.

Tarzan looked silently on, perplexed, but he never questioned affairs that did not concern him. "Come," he said after a moment, to Gridley's relief, "we must find the Waziri." Some distance farther on the three encountered the warriors who were bringing with them Thoar and the three Korsars as prisoners. Only when their Big Bwana explained the four were not enemies did the Waziri release them. Jana rushed forward and threw her arms about Thoar. And as Jason watched, jealousy smote him and he knew he himself loved this little barbarian.

Tarzan took charge of future plans. "If we are ever to find the O-220," he said to Gridley, "we must follow the river. Thoar and Jana shall come with us. If we locate the ship we can take them to Zoram." Thoar's face clouded as he looked first at Jason and then turned to Jana. "Before we go as friends with these people," he said, "I must know if this man offered you injury when you were with him?" Jana, avoiding Jason's eyes, answered, "You need not kill him. Had that been necessary, The Red Flower of Zoram would have done it herself."

TOWN COUNCIL OF STIRLING HOLD SESSION

Rest Room of Community Hall to be Open Night And Day

DANCE HELD

O.H.A. Trent Valley Junior Team Host to Many Friends

Stirling, Feb. 8 (Special) — The February meeting of the town council convened on Monday evening, February 5th at 8 o'clock with Reeve Wm. C. West and Councillors Thos. Cranston, Harper Rollins, Joseph Whitehead and D. Burkitt present. Following the submitting of the minutes of the previous meeting for confirmation, the accounts were ordered paid on a Rollins-Whitehead motion. It was decided to renew the Municipal Liability Insurance for the year. On a Rollins-Cranston motion the moving of the pump house was entrusted to the Property Committee. Councillor Rollins gave notice that at the next session of the council he would introduce a bylaw for the authorization of borrowing money for current expenses. A motion was made and carried by which the tax collector was bonded. It was moved by Cranston and seconded by Whitehead that the reeve and Councillor Burkitt be appointed as a committee to investigate the matter of insuring the municipal employees. The tax collectors' time was also extended until the next meeting. The treasurer was properly authorized to procure all the necessary books. On a Cranston-Burkitt motion the ladies' rest room of the Stirling community building is to be left open night and day under the supervision of the night watchman and caretaker. It was decided, too, that the gas for the fire truck as well as the oil should be purchased from the several Stirling garages in turn. The taxes on the Presbyterian Church shed as well as on St. Paul's United Church shed were ordered refunded minus the school tax.

The concluding item of business was that dealing with the purchase of the new talkie equipment. On a Rollins-Cranston motion the clerk was instructed to write the Dominion Theatre Equipment Company informing them that the council did not feel disposed to purchase the equipment without first interviewing personally a representative of that organization.

The following are the accounts:

Municipal World $6; Houston Co. $13.40; L. and R. W. Meiklejohn $9.45; McGee and Lagrom $9.13; McGee and Lagrow $1.49; Wm. Chambers 75c; Chas. Scott $3; Thos. Dance Held

The Stirling Junior O.H.A. Trent Valley Hockey team staged a most enjoyable dance in the Stirling Community Hall on Tuesday evening, February 6th. This is the fourth of the series and proved most successful. Music was supplied for dancing by an orchestra composed of Bernard Gibson, pianist; Clarence McKeown, violin, and Maurice Bell, banjo.

The Stirling juniors once again went down to defeat in a regular fixture in the Trent Valley loop in Campbellford on Monday evening when the hometowners took the locals into camp for a 3-2 victory. Only tough luck robbed the Stirling boys of the win. As usual the Campbellford team took the lead and in the first period piled up a 2-0 lead. This was evened up in the subsequent frames when Joblin and Robinson, leading marksmen for the locals each turned in a tally. Just before the gong sounded the wind up of the game, Campbellford slipped another counter past Sprentall to take the fixture by a 3-2 score. The locals are hoping to be able to reverse the proceedings when Campbellford next invades the Stirling arena.

The outstanding feature of the regular Monday evening meeting of St. John's A.Y.P.A. was an illustrated and illuminating address on "Turkey," delivered by Mr. Harold Disbrowe, B.A. President Gerald Craven was in charge of the meeting.

Mrs. Alex. Fargey has returned home after spending the week end in Toronto the guest of her sister, Miss Mary Millar.

Mrs. J. S. Demorest was hostess to a number of lady friends at a charming bridge on Tuesday evening. Mrs. W. H. Pedley was the winner at bridge.

Mrs. J. B. Belshaw is confined to her bed for a few days with a severe cold.

Mr. Art. Duncan is in Toronto with his mother who recently suffered a double break in her ankle. She will be confined to her bed for the next six weeks with the necessary plaster of paris splints.

BACK DOOR ETIQUETTE—

Life gets more complex and specialized for us all the time. A local youth who felt the urge to become a house to house salesman for a certain large specialty concern wrote the company and asked them for samples. Back came the samples in return mail. With them came the first lesson on the art of approach." It seems that the main point in selling is to get past the dog. The sales talk to the housewife comes later. So the first lesson contained the following rules regarding Fido:

1 Make a little noise to let the dog know you're coming.

2 Show no alarm at growls or barks. They are simply challenges.

3 Welcome the dog's acquaintance making sniffs.

4 Speak only in a confidential or friendly voice.

5 Impress the dog with the propriety of your visit.

6 Make no sudden or unnatural movements.

They told him in a foot note that the second lesson—how to sell the goods—would be sent in the next letter.

LETTERS—

Letter writers of the present day may fancy the product which they turn out from time to time, but for pure simplicity and clarity of thought one must go back to the old masters of the quill. Perhaps one of the finest examples of clear thinking is that contained in a letter written by Abraham Lincoln to his stepmother's son. The sage wisdom and practical counsel of the great President is reflected.

"Dear Brother:—

"When I came to Charleston day before yesterday, I learned that you are anxious to sell the land where you live, and move to Missouri. I have been thinking of this ever since, and cannot but think such a notion is utterly foolish.

"What can you do in Missouri better than here? Is the land any richer? Can you there, any more than here, raise corn and wheat and oats without work? Will anybody there, any more than here, do your work for you?

"If you intend to go to work, there is no better place than right where you are; if you do not intend to go to work, you cannot get along anywhere. Squirming and crawling about from place to place can do no good. You have raised no corn this year, and what you really want is to sell the land, get the money, and spend it. Part with the land you have, and, my life upon it, you will never own a spot big enough to bury you in. Half you will get for the land you will spend in moving to Missouri, and the other half you will eat, drink, and wear out, and no foot of land will be bought."

'ARF A PINT—

To settle a bet, a Cockney had to walk from one point in London to another in 40 minutes. The man who bet against his doing it acted as checker and timekeeper, and being out of training, kept falling behind and had to run to catch up.

When nearing the finish (a public house) the checker, perspiring and exhausted gasped at the walker as well as he could: "Sam, if I can't speak when we get there, 'oller oct 'Pint'."

THREATENED SHOCK BRINGS SOLDIERS IN

Meanwhile Premier-elect Grimly Struggles For Truce

PARTISANSHIP

Fascist Demonstration is Threatened For To-night

(By Stuart Moroney)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

PARIS, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Premier-elect Gaston Doumergue struggled grimly to bring about a political truce in France today, while troops were concentrated in Paris for a threatened shock tonight.

His new cabinet was expected to be found by the time Communists, defying police, planned to occupy the Place de la Republique in the heart of the workers' district.

Company after company of provincial forces were bivouacked in and around public buildings, and 14,000 police were braced for a fight.

Meanwhile, partisan politics loomed to handicap Doumergue in his efforts to form a government designed to restore peace to France.

Radical Socialists sent former Premier Edouard Herriot to tell Doumergue that they might refuse to participate in his ministry unless they were given a full share of the cabinet posts.

Tonight's manifestations were called against a government "of parties and Fascism."

Aged Statesmen

PARIS, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Gaston Doumergue, 71-year-old Premier-designate, turned his back on youthful enthusiasts this afternoon, to make a cabinet of experienced veterans banded together by the crisis threatening their France.

Some half a dozen former Premiers were named in the ministry which Doumergue planned to present later in the day to President LeBrun for the Chief Executive's approval.

Two of the strongest political veterans in France today—former Premiers Andre Tardieu and Edouard Herriot—agreed to serve in this time of need as "Ministers of State" without portfolios.

The Cabinet is slightly Leftist or Advanced Liberal in complexion with only the Communists and the Socialist faction headed by Deputy Leon Blum left out of the selection.

Cardinal's Appeal

PARIS, Feb. 9.—(CP Cable)—In a message of sorrow to the faithful of his diocese, venerated Archbishop of Paris, Cardinal Jean Verdier, who visited Canada last year, today expressed the earnest hope the "sacrifices" of those killed in the Paris rioting would result in "a more honest France".

"We pray this sacrifice might serve as the salvation of the nation. Our children have fallen crying for a more honest France a France more pleasing in the eyes of her patriots. Their desire, written with their blood, will be gratified We promise them that.

"Let us rise above all political strife and realize unity and peace among ourselves. Let all sacrifice their partisan quarrels in the supreme interests of the country."

The verdict was given by the jury of nine men and three women after 15 hours of deliberations.

Belleville in Grip of Coldest Wave on Record as Temperature Slowly and Steadily Rises in North Parts

Waterworks Department is Delayed With Freeze-up Orders

PIPES FROZEN

Happenings of Night And Day Never to be Forgotten

A stinging, bitter wind which swept through the district last evening and early Friday morning added to the misery of residents of the district who bowed further to a night and an early morning unprecedented for low temperatures.

Thursday's low mark of 34 below zero which had previously been set up as the coldest day in memory of the oldest residents, was shattered today with a new low of 39 below, officially recorded at the city pump house. At the Dominion Entomological Laboratory the mark was higher, 34½ below. At Lindsay it was 32 below while through this district few points could be reached by the local office of the Canadian National Railways telegraph.

At Foxboro the lowest reading was set at 43 below, Tweed was 36, and at Bancroft, according to the office of the Bancroft Times, the lowest point was set at 34.

Two hundred men employed on the relief project on Zwick's Island laid down their tools at ten o'clock this morning by order of Mayor Tice and marched to their homes to await until the cold weather has abated.

Coldest In Memory.

The coldest day in memory today brought grief for some and action for others. Scores of houses in the city found themselves waterless from frozen water services. Waterworks officials stated they were powerless to cope with the demands upon the emergency crew which toiled all day with electric thawing machines. An average of twenty-five calls an hour were being received at the office of Mr. E. T. Austin, manager of the department from arid householders seeking relief. It is expected that the emergency crew will work throughout the evening in relays on the work of thawing the pipes. At the pump house thousands of extra gallons of water were being pushed through the pipes to keep up with the opened taps.

ST. MARK'S IS CONSECRATED

Early English Gothic Edifice Scene of Impressive Ceremony

St. Mark's, the new Anglican Church, erected at Bonarlaw, on the rectory property, a prominent site on the Marmora-Stirling highway, was today consecrated to the service of God by the Right Rev. John Lyons, D.D., Bishop of Ontario, in the presence of the parishioners and many others. Clergy from all parts of the rural deanery and other parishes were present at the impressive service.

The church takes the place of the red brick structure on the Twelfth concession of Rawdon, about half a mile to the west, by which the parish has been served for many years

The rector of the church is the Rev. W. G. Swayne, formerly of Bath, and of Belleville, (Christ Church), who has won a name as a church builder.

Mr. J. Arnold Thomson, architect of Belleville, drew the plans of the structure and supervised its construction. Messrs W. Spencer and Son built the masonry and Mr Floyd R. Amstrong, the carpentry and interior work.

Marmora limestone with a warm grey tone which gives the new edifice a richness of coloring, is the stone used in the building. The style of architecture is early English Gothic.

St. Mark's faces east and will be one of the most picturesque churches in Eastern Ontario. Its accommodation is one hundred and fifty worshippers.

The funds for the church came from a gift left the parish.

Province Still Shivering in Depths of Mercury Bulb

PROSPECT

Indications Point to Moderation of Temperature Saturday

Flood, fire and frostbite caused extensive damage and suffering throughout Eastern Canada today as temperatures continued to drop to all-time lows.

Although the mercury climbed slightly above last night's extreme lows in Quebec and in the Maritimes it continued to fall throughout Central Ontario and with high humidity, it penetrated the stoutest walls and left little escape from the biting chills. Fires stoked to overheating in numerous Ontario homes, caused scores of fires and left several families homeless.

Ice, congested in the junction of the St. Lawrence and Ottawa Rivers near Vaudreuil, Que., backed up the river waters which swept over the lowlands flooding numerous farmhouses, In some houses 15 inches of water had seeped through and it was still rising early today.

Firemen, Frost-Bitten

Firemen combatting a house fire in Hamilton suffered frost-bite and one was taken to the hospital. Scores of school children in the same city arrived at their classes today with similar injuries. Frozen fingers, toes and faces were reported from Northern Ontario where the temperature hovered about 40

NEAR RECORD AT WINDSOR

Firemen Busy Answering Alarms, Most Fires in Roofs

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 9—Fifteen below zero was registered officially here early today with little promise of much relief from sub-zero weather for another 24 hours at least according to the United States weather Bureau in Detroit.

Only twice in the 64 years records have been kept in Detroit have lower temperatures been recorded. February 5, 1918, the record was 16 below and the all-time record for the area came on February 9, 1875, when the mercury dropped to 20 below.

While Detroit has had many cases of frost bite and hospitals are hard pressed to care for victims there have been few in the Border Cities so far reported. None of the local cases are serious.

Fire departments in the border have been busy responding to alarms but in no case has there been any particular loss. Most of the fires have been in roofs from sparks with a few inside houses as a result of overheated stoves.

Sharp Drop in Cases of Sickness as Cold Snap Kills Contagion

When your ears are freezing, when your feet are icy, when you stand shivering on the cold, cold street corner waiting for the bus—try and find some comfort in the statement of Dr. G. S. Cronk, medical officer of health for this city. The M.O.H. thinks that the present cold snap is all to the good for residents of the whole district.

Most of the contagious diseases can't take it this cold weather, it was pointed out. A sharp drop in the number of cases of sickness among adults and the juvenile population has been noted since the start of the actual cold weather.

Add to this the fact that the number of cases of frost bites treated by medical men of the city were nil and the statement from the Belleville General Hospital that no cases due to the cold weather have been received since the start of the record breaking cold wave, and there's still a little comfort to be had.

J. PRIDMORE HELD AS "HIT RUN DRIVER"

Police Allege Man, Responsible For Death on Highway Tuesday

TAKEN IN CITY

Removed to Bowmanville Where He Will Answer Charge

Following information received from the Toronto Provincial Police Department after a two day provincial-wide search for a hit and run drived, who was alleged to have struck William Bebee, age 50 years a resident of Hope Township, instantly killing him on highway No. 2 just west of Port Hope on Tuesday night, John Pridmore of this city was taken into custody pending investigation in the case by Plainclothes Constable Isard and Provincial Constable A. Stringer early last evening. Pridmore was arrested on Front Street after having been secretly identified by members of the local police department following the information received from Toronto.

Pridmore is alleged by the police to have been the driver of the hit and run car that killed Bebee on Tuesday night. The information leading up to the arrest of Pridmore is alleged to have been given by a Toronto youth picked up by Pridmore on the highway, between Belleville and Port Hope, prevous to the illfated accident. According to the Toronto police the youth is supposed to have ridden with Pridmore at the time of the accident and became frightened upon reading the account of the death of Bebee in Toronto newspapers on Wednesday, later informing the police.

GIRL TO KEEP "DRAWN CAR"

Grace Sugg Fears No Sinister Design on Car

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 9 (CP)—Grace Sugg will keep the auto she won in a drawing and Theodore Braithwaite had no sinister designs in being a "common informer" in court action to get the car. His action to be withdrawn at once.

So summarizes the situation in which the girl, man and auto held the stage and public opinion was deeply stirred. David A. Croll, counsel for Miss Sugg, and Roach Riddell and Dore, counsel for Braithwaite, declare these facts correct.

Miss Sugg won the auto in drawing last Saturday night. Monday in the name of Braithwaite, a 'common informer' action was started in county court. Braithwaite later said he had no part in the action other than to allow his name to be used and he was to be paid $25.

Counsel for Braithwaite would not confirm or deny the intimation that it was a 'friendly suit' on his part but said 'make your own guess' after they had declared a 'friendly suit' should not be so announced.

Miss Sugg declared she does not know Braithwaite and never asked for counsel to take legal action.

So sendeth in sub-zero weather a summer anecdote.

Air is Perfect for Aviation

"Perfect flying weather," stated officers of the Royal Air Force Camp on the Trent Road, when questioned today.

Conventional landing gear on the machines has been changed over to skis for winter flying.

ENTERPRISE MAN KILLED

Riding in Truck Near Barrie Struck By Train

BARRIE, Ont., Feb. 9.—(CP)—Everton Smith, aged 45, Enterprise, Ont., northwest of Kingston, was fatally injured, and Herbert Armstrong, aged 20, Stayner, was less seriously injured and will recover as the result of a collision between a heavily loaded transport truck, driven by Armstrong crashing into a southbound Canadian Pacific Railway freight train at Midhurst crossing on King's Highway 26 west of here, late last night.

Smith died from a fractured skull and other serious injuries shortly after admission to a Toronto hospital today.

Formerly on O.P.P.

The dead man, formerly a member of the Ontario Provincial Police stationed at Hamilton and Toronto, lost his wife in a street car accident a few years ago. He has no surviving children.

Armstrong lies in a hospital here suffering from bruises and cuts to his face and knee, but has no fractures. He was saved by the steering wheel of the truck.

Driven by Armstrong, the westbound truck, owned by Maguires' transport, Stayner crashed into the seventh cars of a 30-car freight train. The mercury was at 25 below zero, and the truck windshield is said to have been frosted.

The dead man, on his way from Camden, near Kingston, to visit his brother, Howard Smith, in Collingwood, was picked up on the way from Toronto.

Dr. W. C. Little Barrie, rendered medical attention.

The place and date of an inquest has not been decided by Coroner Dr. N. W. Rogers, Barrie.

NOVA SCOTIA NOT IN DEAL

Will Not Import Welsh Coal For Exchange With Pit Props

Halifax, Feb. 9.—(CP)—Premier Angus L. Macdonald today denied a report that the Nova Scotia Government planned to take part in a purported trade arrangement whereby 1,000,000 tons of Welsh anthracite coal would be brought into Canada in exchange for Nova Scotia pit wood and Ontario Farm and Dairy Products.

"No agreement under which large quantities of anthracite coal would be imported into this country is contemplated by this government," Premier Macdonald said. Neither he nor his Cabinet, he added, had any knowledge of the reported plan.

Fire Truck Crashes Turn and Overhangs Steepest Embankment

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Feb. 9.—(CP)—Driver Hugh McIntosh of the Owen Sound Fire Brigade, had a narrow escape from injury when in coming down the treacherous 10th Street West Hill, which has a sharp turn, the brakes failed to prevent the skidding of the fire truck and the two front wheels went over the embankment the rest of the truck remaining on the road.

The firemen were returning to the station from a chimney fire at the time. The accident occurred after dark. An effort is being made today to remove the truck.

ONE-MAN CARS HIT HEAD-ON NEAR LONDON

Eight Passengers And Motorman Suffer Minor Injuries

ANKLE BROKEN

Conductor Has Ears And Nose Frozen Going For Help

London, Ont., Feb. 9 (CP)—Two electric one-man cars of London and Port Stanley Railway crashed head on at Westminster Station, 5 miles south of London at 10 o'clock this morning. Eight passengers and a motorman suffered minor injuries, while the conductor had ears and nose frozen.

HOLLOWAY STREET W.M.S.

The February meeting of the W. M.S. of Holloway Street Church was held on Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 7, at three o'clock in the church parlors, with the president, Mrs. Denton in the chair and Mrs. Morden at the piano.

The attendance was splendid regardless of the severity of the weather, and the meeting proved to be attractive and instructive.

Mrs. Denton opened the meeting with "The call to worship" Phil. 4: 8, and the hymn "O Master Let Me Walk With Thee."

The minutes of the January meeting were read and approved and the various reports showed interest and activity. Special reference was made to The World's Day of Prayer, to be held in Christ Church Parish Hall.

Mrs. J. Cordes and Mrs. H. Sager were elected delegates to the Presbyterial to be held in Napanee in March.

Mrs. F. Scott, leader of Group 2, then took charge of the Devotional period and the hymn "We Give Thee but Thine Own" was sung.

Mrs. Sweetnam spoke briefly but convincingly on Peace, and concluded with prayer. A short talk on Temperance was given by Mrs. Leavens, and Mrs. McCarthy read the Scripture reading from Luke 18: 35-43. The Devotional leaflet, "Among the Multitudes" was given by Mrs. Denyes.

The Study Book "Living Issues in China" was then introduced by Mrs. McKee, who gave a most interesting synopsis of the first chapter. A solo "A Better Day" was given by Mrs. Coleman, which was greatly appreciated. The meeting closed with the hymn "Where Cross the Crowded Ways of Life" and the Benediction.

After the meeting a social half hour was spent and refreshments were served by members of Group 2.

Letters to The Editor

Watertown, N.Y.

To the Editor Ontario Intelligencer:
Dear Friend:-

In Friday's issue, I noticed where several names were mentioned for the renaming of Zwick's Island. I believe a lot of fellows like myself will miss the name of (Zwick's Island) as we had many a swim there, many a game, and in the fall always hiked out to see if any hickory nuts were left.

Now I would like to submit a name, a name which everyone in Belleville is familiar with, and I believe will say should be used in renaming Zwick's Island. It is (Mikel Island Park or Mikel Park) in honor of Magistrate W. C. Mikel, K.C., and former Mayor.

During my early days in Belleville I cherished the memories of the Junior City Council sponsored by Mr. Mikel, (Billy as we used to call him amongst ourselves).

Mr. Mikel was always agitating the fixing up of Zwick's Island into a park and many other worthwhile enterprises. The people of Belleville sure are fortunate to have a man like Mr. Mikel, who has been for Belleville to the last notch. His foresightedness of years ago are realizing one by one. I remember years ago when Mr. Mikel ran against a certain doctor for mayor, after Mr. Mikel had finished his speech this doctor said, (Mr. Mikel is having a pipe dream). Well anyway a lot of the pipe dream has been realized in the past ten years or so. So why not give a little honor to a fine man and name Zwick's Island (Mikel Island Park or Mikel Park).

From an Old Belleville Boy,
Charles (Bing) Hayes.

SCHOONER ABANDONED

Eastham, Mass., Feb. 9—Abandoning their ice-coated schooner in the teeth of a stiff northwest blow the crew of a ship which had been in distress a mile and a half off shore started a hazardous attempt to reach land just before noon today. Watchers on the shore said there were apparently seven men in the schooner's boat.

Judge Deroche Elected as Chairman of Police Board

Police Annual Report Shows Little Serious Crime

RECORDS

At the regular meeting of the current year of the Belleville Board of Police Commissioners the annual report of the Chief Constable was submitted by Chief of Police Alex. Kidd late Thursday afternoon at the Judge's Chambers in the County Court House.

His Honor Judge Deroche was elected chairman and appointed secretary-treasurer of the commission replacing the late Judge Wills. The other members of the board, Mayor Tice and His Worship Magistrate Mikel welcomed Judge Deroche to his new office previous to the presentation of the police report.

While summing up the year's activities of the police department Chief Kidd especially stressed the absence of serious or capital crime, no murders or cases of manslaughter being recorded in the city during 1933. It was pointed out that there had been a slight increase in the number of break-ins and petty robberies, the most of which had been successfully solved by the officers of the department, however. A large number of these small thefts are credited to transients stealing but foodstuffs.

"The absence of serious crime for the past twelve months in Belleville speaks well for our citizens as a whole, especially in these times," pointed out Chief Kidd in presenting his annual report.

POLICE NEWS

Activities were actually at the minimum in local police circles during the past 24 hours. No session of police court was held before Magistrate Mikel on Friday morning and but one arrest was made by the police during the past 24 hours. The arrest concerned an automobile accident, that occurred outside of this county.

No automobile accidents were reported in the city of Belleville or along nearby highways. Numerous cars were seen frozen and in a stationary condition owing to the sub-zero weather.

A purse recently found by the police department was returned to its rightful owner yesterday afternoon.

Ten transients were afforded warm sleeping quarters at the police station last night.

COUP IN AUSTRIA

Prince Ernst von Starhemberg, leader of the heimwehr and member of the triumvirate governing Austria, whose sensational coup in establishing his own men in office in the Tyrol preceded Austria's appeal to the League of Nations for protection against what Chancellor Engelbert Dolfuss called German aggression. CONVICTED OF MANSLAUGHTER

William Coursey of Peterboro Given Reformatory Sentence

Peterboro, Ont., Feb. 9 (CP)—William Coursey, 28, was sentenced to two years less a day in the Ontario Reformatory today by Mr. Justice A. C. Kingstone, and William J. Chesney was given four years in the Kingston Penitentiary. Coursey was found guilty of manslaughter in connection with the death of Hugh John Walkem, student at the Grove School, Lakefield, and only son of Col. and Mrs. Hugh Walkem of Montreal, on October 7. Justice Kingstone in sentencing Coursey said he might have taken a more lenient view if Coursey had acted like a man and waited at the scene of the accident instead of playing the part of a hit and run driver. Chesney was found guilty of a serious offence against his daughter.

The case of Roy Walsh, 25, who was also charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of Joseph M. Maher last September was taken from the jury and set over until the next assizes.

PARRSBORO, N.S., Feb 9—(CP)—The Parrsboro Tug Vanessa sank in the Bay of Fundy, today, while bound from Saint John to Parrsboro. Captain M. F. Tupper and his crew of three Parrsboro seamen made shore safely in the ship's lifeboat.

NATURAL LAW

Natural law is at work today as it always has been. The only difference that time brings is the discovery of more efficient means of giving this law greater vent to exert itself. Greater study has been given in the past twenty-five years to all lines of endeavor than in all the history of the world before.

Not the least of these discoveries is the discovery of the science of releasing nature's forces in the human body. This science is called chiropractic. The chiropractor releases nature's forces within the human body so that all organs and parts of the body work in harmony and health is the result.

INDIAN BOY IS LIBERATED

Lack of Corroboration of Original Story Leads to Withdrawal

Lack of corroborative evidence necessitated in the releasing from custody of the 14-year-old Tyendinaga Indian boy held on a charge of arson in connection with recent fires alleged to have been started in the home of Josiah Brant, Mohawk Indian Reserve on January 27 and 28th last. The lad first appeared in local juvenile court held before Magistrate Mikel on Wednesday of this week, being remanded in the custody of the Children's Aid Society until late yesterday when he was released following further investigations in the case.

The boy had previously informed the Provincial Police that he himself had started the fires while the origin of the blazes is suggested by some Indians as due to evil spirits as weird stories of the home and members of the family being bewitched were related to Constable Kelly during his investigation. At the trial the lad said he was frightened when he made the statement to the police, and then denied anything to do with the setting of the fires.

The matter will be further probed by the police who will investigate fully the possibilities of arson in connection with the fires.

Paris Threatened with Tie-Up of All Public Utilities on Monday

Water, Light, Gas, Mail And Railways May Be Shut Down

GENERAL WALK-OUT

G. Doumergue Proceeds With Formation of Cabinet

(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer).

Paris, Feb. 9 (CP Cable)—Premier-designate Gaston Doumergue today continued his difficult task of forming a Cabinet, faced with a threat that the nation's public services would be paralyzed Monday by a general strike.

M. Doumergue's plan to form a National Government embracing representatives of all parties having a joint substantial majority in the Chamber of Deputies struck a snag last night over distribution of portfolios.

Outwardly the capital appeared to have returned to normal. Streets in which kiosks burned fiercely as crowds rioted two nights ago were orderly. Restaurants again placed on the sidewalks their little tables and seats and traffic moved as usual.

In the background however, was the strike call of an executive committee of 800,000 state functionaries. The call was issued by the French Federation of Labor, because, it said, Tuesday's rioting "dictated its will, and democracy is threatening dangerously."

Sweeping Changes

Even while M. Doumergue's Cabinet-making proceeded there appeared indications, that sweeping political changes are in store for the country. Paris passed through an insurrection aimed mainly against the Chamber of Deputies were destined for severe curtailment.

The Premier-designate, former radical Socialist Deputy, Colonial Administrator, Speaker of the Senate and first Protestant to become President of France, was said to have strong views on the subject. Since the Presidential term expired in 1931 M. Doumergue has lived in retirement. As a member of neither the Chamber nor the Senate he is free from political affiliations, and he is said to hold that a Chamber elected for a four-year term without risk of dissolution means dictatorship by 600 Deputies, responsible to nobody and often out of touch with public opinion or serving private interests.

Establish Equilibrium

True democracy, in M. Doumergue's view, implies establishment of equilibrium between the legislative and executive powers, who now are so often in conflict.

M. Doumergue is said to favor revision of the constitution and as his first step in that direction he would establish the British expedient in political crisis—dissolution of parliament and an appeal to the people.

The right of dissolution exists technically in the French constitution but has been employed only once since formation of the third Republic. In practice the Deputy is immune from the threat of dissolution and, therefore, can overturn successive ministires with complacency. The Premier-designate would make dissolution part of normal procedure. If public business were at a standstill because of conflict between the Government and the Chamber, then the government would appeal to the people.

The Government which M. Doumergue is understood to have in mind to meet the present emergency would consist of 12 or 14 Ministers with a minimum number of under-secretaries.

BAY SOLIDLY FROZEN

For the first time this winter the Moira River has almost frozen over, leaving only narrow open cracks in the ice just above the upper bridge. Here where the water runs swiftest ice has refused to form over the open current, although the coldest day on Thursday and Thursday evening almost completed the actual freezing all the way across. It is suggested by one resident, that a skater could travel from Cannifton to Kingston on the ice with perfect safety.

To one aristocratic resident of Brussels, the present disturbances in Paris mark the beginning of the end of the French republic, and hopefully he awaits the call to ascend the throne of the restored monarchy. The Duc de Guise, 60-year-old head of the Royalist party of France, and French monarchial pretender, is in exile here, but he is keeping in touch with political developments and continues to hold to his belief that the salvation of France depends on restoration of the monarchy and the setting-up of a dictatorship.

CAR OWNERS TAKE PRECAUTION

Local car owners have become motor-wise and have learned to take precautions in the matter of warming their machines up in garages during the cold weather. So far this season the city has been singularly free from carbon monoxide poisoning from the exhaust fumes. Not a single near accident from this source has been reported this winter.

"I haven't heard of a single case this year," commented a local well known doctor, when the subject was broached in a downtown office today. "Last year I was called to six or seven cases, one of them a bad one."

VERNE SANKEY KIDNAPPER HANGS SELF

Cheats Law to Send Him to Prison For Life

GANG LEADER

Intended to Plead Guilty To Abduction in Denver

SIOUX FALLS, S.D., Feb. 9—Verne Sankey, kidnapper and gangster, called "America's public enemy No. 1", cheated the law Thursday by committing suicide.

Hanged With Ties

He hanged himself with two neckties in his cell at the South Dakota State Penitentiary here, where he was held on Federal charges of conspiracy to kidnap for $60,000 ransom, last February, Charles Boettcher II, Denver broker.

The notorious outlaw after fashioning the crude noose with the ties, knotted it to a bar, then stepped off his cot.

E. M. Neeley, Deputy United States Marshal, one of the two guards assigned to Sankey's cell block, discovered the body. Although he had been in the corridor at the time, he was out of sight of Sankey.

Thus ended the law's plan to send Sankey to prison for life. His counsel, Ben B. Laska, Denver, had disclosed that Sankey planned to plead guilty tomorrow to a charge of conspiracy to kidnap Boettcher.

Ready to Plead

With his companion, Gordon Alcorn, Sankey, was to have gone into court today to plead. Both Sankey and Alcorn were arrested last week at Chicago, after a search of almost a year in connection with the Boettcher kidnapping in Denver, and had been transferred here to await trial. He confessed readily, Federal men said, and had waived extradition from Illinois.

He was arrested by Department of Justice agents after an intensive hunt for the man who collected $60,000 for the Boettcher abduction and $12,000 from the father of Haskell Bohn, son of a refrigerator manufacturer in June, 1932.

Simultaneously with Sankey's arrest his wife was taken into custody at the Sankey turkey ranch near here, where the Sankey gang had held Boettcher prisoner. Mrs. Sankey, then at liberty on $5,000 bonds, was placed in the county jail and her bond raised to $25,000.

Denies Lindbergh Case

Sankey was long suspected of implication in the fatal abduction of the Lindbergh baby, but after lengthy grilling following his arrest Federal officials said they had been unable to connect him with the case, although Michael Kinkead, County Attorney of Ramsay County, Minn., who made a search of the Sankey ranch, said he discovered a complete account of the Lindbergh kidnapping there.

An alleged plot to abduct for ransom Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight boxing champion, and Babe Ruth, baseball star, also was charged against Sankey by Kinkead.

State's Attorney H. D. Brown of Buffalo County said he had talked about 5 p.m. to Sankey, who appeared in good spirits, and asked whether arrangements could be made for him to see his wife.

Guards attempted to resuscitate the prisoner, but their efforts were futile.

In Sankey's mouth was found a handkerchief, indicating that he had placed it there to stifle any sounds of strangulation after his leap from the cot.

COE HILL IS COLDEST SPOT

Outrivalled Both Moosonee And White River With 53 Below

Coe Hill in Hastings County bid for and gained on Thursday the title of being the coldest spot in Ontario. With the lowest mark of 53 degrees below zero registered during the morning yesterday, the northern municipality gave several points away to her nearest competitors, Moosonee and Blind River who have previously been victorious challengers of the "coldest spot". Only one point in the Dominion is believed to have bettered the low mark of Coe Hill. Doucet, Quebec, was officially registered at 58 below.

Both Toronto evening papers and Canadian Press despatches erred in conferring the title of coldest spot on Moosonee, which basked in a balmy temperature of 44 below, and White River, at 52 below, named by Canadian Press as Ontario's lowest point.

Claims French Throne

Prince Louis Napoleon, 20, who, with the 60-year-old Duc de Guise, constitute the Royalist claim to the throne of France. Prince Louis lives in Switzerland with his mother, Clementine. Duc de Guise lives in Belgium. Each is regarded by various sections of the Royalist party, which has participated in the riotings in Paris, as the rightful ruler of France.

ROYALIST ARRESTED

Charles Maurras, the director of the Royalist newspaper, Action Française, who was arrested in Paris at the height of the rioting. Action Francaise repeatedly has charged the government with participating in the Stavisky scandal. Some time ago it called for demonstrations against the Chautemps government, the demonstrations at that time resolving into rioting.

VOTE LIKELY TO COME SOON

Amendment of Opposition Only One to be Voted Upon

Ottawa, Feb. 9 (CP)—Signs of an early end to the debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne were apparent today on Parliament Hill. The debate has been carried on in the House of Commons for two weeks now and a vote is likely to take place early next week with a slight possibility it may come tonight.

With the United Farmer Amendment expressing lack of confidence in the official Opposition ruled out of order only one amendment is before the House. That is the straight want of confidence in the government proposed by Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader.

Yesterday saw a long succession of Liberal speakers with one Conservative and one Laborite contribute to the debate. The Liberals had a wide range of critical remarks to direct at the government. Dr. J. K. Blair of Wellington North objected to the re-introduction of titles to Canada. Others dealt with topics ranging from tariffs and trade to the government's alleged failure to deal with unemployment.

BELIEVE POTATOES WILL BE SCARCE IN SPRING

Heavy Frosts Have Done Considerable Damage

A decided scarcity of native seed potatoes next spring, and a sharp advance in prices for the imported varieties is indicated by local seedsmen and produce pealers. An actual famine in this district, however, is declared unlikely owing to the fact, that the best varieties of potatoes for seeding are those imported from the east, principally New Brunswick.

Throughout Hastings, Prince Edward and adjoining counties throughout the past few weeks, the coldest weather experienced within the memory of oldest inhabitants of the district has driven the sharp frost through the solid walls of root cellars, destroying thousands of dollars worth of roots of all varieties. Potatoes and cabbage have suffered heavily, in many cases frozen to the centre of the bins. Other roots have also been destroyed for seeding purposes.

Storage bins in eastern Canada have not been affected it is stated. "They haven't been getting the cold weather in the east, that we have here, and I believe that little damage has been done", stated Mr. Chas. Bishop, well known local seedsman.

"It's almost certain, however, that prices will be higher this spring."

Premier Henry Gives Record, Dares Liberals to Fight on That Ground

Fighting Speech Delivered on Debate on Throne Speech

WEATHERING STORM

Showed Relief Costs Had Depreciated Over 6 Millions

By JACK HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, Feb. 9—(CP)—The Conservative administration of Premier George S. Henry stands by its records today and dares the opposition to fight on that ground. In a fighting speech yesterday, Premier Henry made his contribution to the debate on the address in reply to the throne speech, and moved an amendment to the address, which would have the virtual effect of "killing" a motion made previously by Dr. George A. McQuibban, house Liberal leader, which condemned the government.

Today, the legal bills committee will hear five witnesses in the now-famous McCaughrin case, in which Magistrate Daniel McCaughrin of Orillia charged two cabinet ministers with attempting to "buy" him out of office. Two of the witnesses are from the Toronto Globe, which first published an affidavit signed by the magistrate. The others are the lawyer, stenographer and notary, who assisted in the preparation of the document. Magistrate McCaughrin will also appear before the committee. The cabinet ministers to whom he referred were Hon W. H. Price, Attorney General, and Hon. William Finlayson, Minister of Lands and Forests.

Three speakers participated in the resumption of the debate yesterday, Premier Henry, Charles A. Robertson, Liberal whip and Wilfrid Heighington, Cons., Toronto St. Davids. Mr. Henry defended every branch of his administration, and in this was assisted by Dr. Heighington. Mr. Robertson devoted his time to an attack on the government's policies with regard to highways, education and an appeal for reduction of interest on farm loans.

Challenge Liberals

The Premier ended his address with a challenge to Mitchell Hepburn, M. P., Provincial Liberal leader, and the so-called "board of strategy" of the Liberal party to "come out and fight."

Undoubtedly, the province is weathering the storm of depression, he declared. Relief costs had dropped from $38,000,000 in 1931 to $31,800,000 in 1932-33. There were 483,000 relief recipients in Ontario in March, 1833, but in November this number had declined to 396,000, he said. The industrial employment index for the whole of Canada, issued at Ottawa, was 77.9 in December, 1932, and 87.2 for December, 1933. Building permits had increased greatly in the past year.

"We have the brightest picture before us in many weary months, and look forward with confidence to this year showing a large improvement for our people generally," he said "We feel confident the government is carrying on to the satisfaction of the people of this province, despite the ideas of those across the way."

Critical of Highway Dept.

Mr. Robertson was particularly critical of the Highway Department. The revenue of the Department for 1930, 1931 and 1932 had been $55,435,000, he said, while ordinary expenditure was $13,100,000. Capital expenditure was $32,267,000. In other words, he maintained, the government had received a motor revenue of more than $55,000,000 in three years, but had added more than $32,000,000 to the road debt.

Mr. Heightington confined his address to an attack on Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P., Provincial Liberal leader and at the same time suggested members of the House should relieve cabinet ministers of the responsibility of receiving deputations. Ontario, he said, was becoming "depuation-conscious" and frequently the member of the legislature could save many delegates a trip to Toronto and also save cabinet ministers increased worries.

38 BELOW AT PUMP HOUSE

All Time City Record Believed to Have Been Established

The lowest of all-time city records of temperatures was officially recorded during the night of February 8-9, when the thermometers at the Pumping Station of Waterworks Department showed 38 degrees below zero. Last night by nine o'clock 36 below was the standing at the Pumping Station, while down in Thurlow at a Hydro Station, 43 below was the showing there at that time. This morning on Front St., at 6.30 o'clock, 33 below was recorded on a fairly authentic instrument.

NO CHINESE NAME ON RELIEF LIST

Those on the relief lists in the city at present represent a cross section of the population of the entire country. Although anglicised names are naturally in the majority, the relief lists also contain a fair proportion of representatives of other races. Registered are Greeks, Jewish, Scandinavian, Italian, French and other races. The city, however, has yet to give aid to a Chinese.

Tradesmen and mechanics of all professions are represented by those on relief. Names are listed as farmers, auto mechanics, truck drivers office workers, factory workers, painters, paper hangers, carpenters, shoemakers and even cabinet makers.

QUICK! STOP THAT COLD
IN THE DRY OR FIRST STAGE!
A cold ordinarily goes through three stages: The Dry Stage, the first 24 hours; the Watery Secretion Stage, from 1 to 3 days; and the Mucous Secretion Stage. It is twice as easy stopped in the first as in the second or third stages. In fact, to let a cold run beyond the first stage is inviting trouble.
As your doctor will tell you, there is nothing better you can take for a cold than Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. It is expressly a cold remedy and not a "cure-all". It is internal treatment which a cold requires. It is complete in effect. It does the four things necessary.
First, it opens the bowels. Second, it combats the cold germs in the system and reduces the fever. Third, it relieves the headache and grippy feeling. Fourth, it tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack. Anything less than that is inviting trouble.
Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful and is absolutely safe to take. For more than forty years it has been the standard cold and grippe tablet of the world, the formula always keeping pace with Modern Medicine.
Every druggist sells Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. Only druggists more interested in making an extra profit rather than in your welfare offer you a substitute. When a cold threatens, don't wait or delay, but go right to your druggist for Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine.
Ask for it by the full name, and insist on getting

LITTLE SERIOUS CRIME

That Belleville is an orderly city may be gleaned by the 1933 annual report of Chief Constable Alex. Kidd which has been made public. There were a few more investigations than in the year before but there is no great volume of crime, as the detailed statement shows. For a city of the population of Belleville there cannot but be, as men are at present, some offences committed but there is an absence of crime in any volume.

A social problem looms of course in these days—the transient question, no fewer than 5,062 admissions being made for a night's lodging at the station. For the year this is an average of approximately one hundred per week of the year, including the warm months when the average falls far beneath the winter rate. Even among these men who might be tempted if any were, there was order, and crime was absent. These men of course cause concern to social workers who realize the handicaps under which they move while preserving their sense of order. Social workers realize too that these men have to be taken into the recovery and must be found jobs when work opens up in volume.

Many of the infractions deal with modern transportation by motorcar, a dozen cases are over charges of being drunk in charge of a motorcar. There is the old classification—intoxication, with a total of 96. Fourteen persons were "up" for unlawful consuming of liquor, 16 faced charges of illegal possession, five of keeping liquor for sale and two of selling liquor.

There were twelve cases of breaking and entering and five of disorderly conduct.

Though there were twenty-eight charges of theft, much of the stolen property was recovered.

The age between twenty and thirty years accounts for 131 out of the 353 cases listed. However youth under twenty accounted for only 32 cases, while persons from thirty to forty number fairly high average with 89, and from forty to fifty they number 59. Over fifty years of age were 39 cases.

Does this mean that youth today is losing the record for offences? What is somewhat surprising is the number of older persons figuring in police investigations.

Fires appear in every report, no fewer than an average of three per week being reported.

Policemen do many duties the public recks not of—they preserve life and limb of course, they attend fires, they collect taxes under the bylaws, they recover stolen property, they operate the ambulance in cases of sickness and accident, and do a thousand other things in the discharge of their duties.

BONARLAW CHURCH

Another church has been consecrated—the latest being the Anglican Church at Bonarlaw, which stands as evidence of the loyalty of the people of that parish. The sacred edifice is of marked beauty of design and is built of stone with sufficient color to please the eye.

Construction of a church in these trying days is a proof of the hold of the church on the lives of the people and of the vitality of religion. It is one of the best signs of the times. The building of this temple of worship has meant sacrifices which have cheerfully been undertaken for a great cause.

Bonarlaw Anglicans have builded for ages. May this church, its minister, and the organizations which cluster about it serve the community for many years to come.

THE FRENCH SCENE

Attention which has been focussed on many theatres of interest is now attracted to France where the second government has fallen in less than two weeks. Scenes which followed the outbreak of rioting on Tuesday evening were likened to those which occurred in 1870 when the Second Empire was overthrown. Some were killed and scores wounded in the firing by the troops.

What is ahead in France no one can tell. Some quarters state the Monarchists ready to offer themselves. However for the time being Gaston Doumergue is trying to establish order.

Governments have been rising and falling at such a rate in France as to discourage the people.

The question is made the more acute owing to the position of the French franc. Many predict that France will soon leave the gold standard. France, next to the United States, is said to have more gold than any other nation.

It may be that France is finding her way to stability through some yet other form of Government. Eyes that have been watching Hitlerite Germany will have a change of scene for a time as the theatre of interest has shifted to the French capital. Interest in France is naturally more sympathetic than interest in Hitler.

NOT UNUSUAL

By peering from her window
In a certain tip-toe way,
She could glimpse a meagre strip of park
And, beyond, the bay,
Where snub-nosed ferries pushed their awkward courses
Night and day.

And there were words that she had said so often
She thought them true:
"Of course, our rooms are dark and crowded,
And far from new . . .
Sometimes the stairs seem long in climbing . . .
But there's the view!"

BREVITY IS WIT, so they say—sometimes it is both wit and wisdom. Tale is told of a budding young author from this vicinity who sent a full length novel to a New York critic asking for a frank criticism of his work. He got it. "Too far between covers," wrote the critic.

SENORITA BUTTERFLY and Andrew H. Brown, presented by Currinklovitch and Company, perhaps. Andy has no liking for the leap for life in the act which lands him in the basement packing trunks while Senorita Butterfly and the trained seal are taking the bows before the curtain. How'd it be to put up in the bright Broadway electric lights, ANDREW H. BROWN PRESENTS Senorita Butterfly?

THE RED TERROR IN FRANCE, a haunting memory of human beastliness for so long, is revived in all its scarlet hideousness by the present threat of mob violence in France necessitating machine gun fire on the crowds which stormed the barricades and attacked police and military. The brooding spirit of the revolution still lives in France and soon shows itself when any excuse presents, helped along by the royalist faction, who hope to restore the throne by taking advantage of some such disturbance as the present one.

FISHERMEN AND FARMERS will be interested in the decision handed down by the Department of Game and Fisheries, Toronto, that streams stocked by the government must be open for public fishing and not farmed out to private clubs. Farmers owning the property abutting on the stream can charge a fee for fishing from their property, but it must be a uniform one; one fisherman can not be charged a higher fee than another. Streams restocked must be open for public fishing five years, according to the agreement entered into at the time between government and property owners.

"AWAY DOWN UNDER" in Australia things happen, but it takes an earthquake or a tidal wave to put Australia on the Front Page, owing, no doubt to distance and cable tolls. However, a story has just come out of Kalgoorlie, Western Australia, worthy of Front Page attention. An Australian was killed in a bar-room brawl and as a result long standing grievances against seven thousand foreigners working in the mines at low wages flared up with mob violence. Three hotels thirteen houses and two boarding houses were burned before the police gained control. Buildings owned by foreigners were raided, furniture taken out and piled on the street, where, after being saturated with whisky, the torch was applied and huge bonfires blazed heavenward. Street cars and automobiles were commandeered by the rioters and the police fought to a standstill, until the arrival of police reinforcements.

SALESMANSHIP WITH SATISFACTION is reflected in the modern school which sizes a prospective customer's needs and refuses to sell him an article he has no use for. This is illustrated in tractor salesmanship, as told by Prof. Mackintosh, of Queen's University Commerce Department. In the old days the salesman would unload on the farmer the biggest tractor he had, if the farmer was willing. Now the salesman will size up the needs of the farmer and may decide that the farmer does not need any kind of a tractor, frankly telling him so. Or he may only need a small or medium sized tractor. Modern salesmanship sells what will satisfy the customer only. One firm selling an expensive line of office equipment advertises "You cannot buy one of these . . . unless you need it." Quite a long leap from the old horse trading days when the deal was made and both parties got as far away from each other as possible immediately after.

FULL MENTAL DEVELOPMENT NOT REACHED

No One Ever Gets Best Possible From Mind

(Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.)

It is a mistake to believe that we are all born mentally equal. It is likewise a mistake to believe that such inequalities at birth do limit and fix the degree to which the mind may be developed.

Heredity, to be sure, plays an important role in establishing the pattern of our minds when we first see the light of day. The potentials or possibilities of mind, as they lie dormant and inherent in the plastic and immature brain substance of one child, differ from those of another. And that surely sounds like a handicap for the child who is not lucky enough to have inherited as good a brain as his neighbor.

But, first of all, we must remember that the inequalities at birth are not so marked after all.

Secondly—and this is really the crux of the whole matter—each and every individual, no matter what his heredity, is possessed of so much undeveloped mental power when he is born that it may well be described as limitless.

What you are, what you have been, where you come from, doesn't actually count when it comes to the question of what you may be able to do with your mind.

For no one ever gets all the best possible out of his mind. Nobody ever reaches his capacity of mental development. Even the greatest men and women could be greater still. And surely those who do not happen to be born with unusual gifts need not feel discouraged, for their brain cells will carry them, if they know how to use them, just about as far as they themselves decide to go.

Of course they must know how. They must learn how. The person without a specially alert intellectual endowment very often achieves much more in life than the one finds accomplishment coming easy to him. This is simply because the first tries harder and makes it his business to learn how to improve himself, while the latter takes things for granted, is careless and lazy, and therefore soon falls by the wayside.

If you are conscious of your own limitations but keep on trying to overcome them, you can accomplish things in a way that will surprise you. Understand your own mind and you will release the latent powers that beget success.

Make your thoughts and actions constructive and uplifting. Thus you obtain the maximum amount of efficiency out of each brain cell while your mind as a whole becomes accustomed to superlative activity and soon runs smoothly and effectively by habit and without unnecessary stress and strain.

But do not sidetrack or sidestep facts. No one of us is perfect. We all have weak links in the chain of our mental and emotional makeup and these places that undermine and retard our progress should be discovered and repaired.

Discouragement may beset you every now and then. It may seem to you that you are not measuring up to your desires and ambitions. Do not let temporary setbacks stop you from pushing ever onward and forward. Your mind has plenty of power to help you over the rough places. Your mind, I want to emphasize again, has limitless possibilities.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself in his private chair and I was thinking about doing my homewerk saying, Hay pop, do you read books on account of what other people say about them or do you just read them so as to find out what to say about them yourself?

In this golden age of forced education everybody thinks he can write a book and the majority of people prove it, pop said. The result is that the werld is so full of a number of books that we need literary critics to separate the bad from the werst. These poor devils read themselves into an erly grave in order that the average reader may suffer a little less, and in the herly berly of modern life we shouldn't scorn the literary critics any more than we should scorn any other labor saving devices, he said.

Yes sir that's what I thawt, I said. I saw a book in the lyberry today, and the title of it looked pritty good but it didn't have any pictures, and I was wondering to myself whether to take it out or not, and I noticed somebody had wrote on the ferst page, This is a swell book, I said.

Well, that mite come under the head of literary criticism, pop said. A bit unorthodox, perhaps even radical, but no doubt sincere and werthy of consideration he said, and I said, Yes sir that's what I thawt, and I was just deciding to take the book home and reed it and I looked to see how many pages there was and there was 209 and somebody had wrote on the last page, This book is punk.

By gollies, that put you in a quandary almost amounting to a dilemma, didn't it? pop said, and I said, Sir? Yes sir, so I didn't know wich to bleeve so I decided to be broad minded and take the book and reed at least the ferst half and by that time I'll proberly know whether to reed the 2nd half too or just skip it.

That's a splendid ideer and I think more people awt to apply it to their reeding, pop said.

Wich maybe they awt.

When the Earl of Aberdeen visited Belleville ten years ago as Governor General of Canada, he presented a silver medal to the public school board and also to the separate school board to mark the event. The board of education decided to commemorate the Governor General's visit by giving annually a silver medal to the pupil of the public schools who being the youngest in years obtained the largest number of marks at the entrance examinations to the high school. The medal given by the Governor General was placed in a large frame with the picture of the Governor General under it the names of the winners are recorded. Yesterday afternoon the medal for the year 1903 was presented to Master Frederick Stephenson Leavens, son of Mr. Geo. Leavens, Mill Street, who was twelve years old when he passed the examinations. The presentation was made at the Cannifton Road school by Mr. F. E. O'Flynn the chairman of the board. The clever young student has always been a pupil at the Cannifton Road school and has had but two teachers, Miss Waterhouse and Mr. D. Barrager. The other medalists have been: 1894, Geo. E. DISTRIBUTIONS

OTTAWA, Feb. 9.—(CP) — A number of changes in the electoral districts had been submitted to the House of Commons today in a return from Jules Castonguay, Chief Electoral Officer. Most of these proposals result from omissions when the Redistribution Act was drawn last session.

The town of Orangeville, Ont., was omitted and is now placed in Dufferin-Simcoe.

The Township of Sarawak, also omitted is placed in Grey North.

An error developed in defining the boundary line between High Park, Toronto and York West. This was corrected by making the Toronto city limits the boundary between Weston Road and Northland Ave.

Part of the Village of Tavistock in the Township of Easthope will be in Perth and the part in the Township of Zorra East in Oxford.

The Township of Pembroke was omitted. It is placed in Renfrew North.

Error in Dividing

An error in the dividing line between Spadina and Trinity constituencies in Toronto is rectified by making the line run up Christie St. to St. Clair Ave., west along St. Clair and then up Homewood Drive to the City Limits.

The Town of Mount Forest was left out. It is placed in Wellington North.

The Town of Palmerston remains in Wellington North.

The boundary line between Laurier and Cartier, two Quebec constituencies left a strip of land outside of any constituency. This is righted by making the limits of the city of Outremont the boundary line for the two constituencies from Mount Royal to Laurier Avenue.

The dividing line between Outremont and St. Denis is fixed up by having it follow Henri Julian Ave. to Mozart Ave., thence to Droiet St., thence to Jean-Talon St.

Ile Ronde, uninhabited, is placed in St. James, Montreal and Ile Heron, near Lachine Rapids, in Verdun.

TWEED, Feb. 9 (Special)—Grills' Garage meeting Tweed Intermediates for the third time on Monday evening at the local Arena defeated the home squad by the decisive score of 8 to 2, and were just about full value for their win. Incidentally, it is many a long day since a Tweed team has been as badly defeated in a league fixture. It is difficult for the local fans to understand how Madoc has been able to hand Belleville two straight defeats in their last two meetings, at the same time submitting to a similar number of losses at the hands of the Tweed boys. Davies in goal did not have a great many hard chances as his defense took pretty good care of the attacking forces. Connors a new figure on the defense gave a good exhibition scoring two goals in the second period. The two Cannings were outstanding, J. Canning getting three goals and his brother one. Walsh and Day scored the other counters. P. Geraldi and J. Orr were the marksmen for Tweed. Thompson in goal did not appear as steady as usual. LaFontaine sustained a severe gash over his right eye when he fell and came into contact with a skate. A number of stitches were necessary to close the wound. Cordy, sub. forward, suffered a slight concussion and painful bruises to the shoulder and side when he was accidentally upset near his own goal and fell heavily against the goal post. Tweed players gave "one-man" hockey a real test and the experiment had disastrous results to say the least. Two and three man combination plays were used by the visitors for most of their goals and they deserved their win. G. Geraldi and Pete Clark refereed the game which was quite lacking in unnecessary roughness. The small crowd which braved the sub-zero weather to witness the game was greatly disappointed at the showing of the locals.

Line-ups:

Grills' Garage:—Goal, Davies; defense, Connors, Henn; centre, H. Canning; wings, J. Canning, H. Day; Subs—Ridley Walsh, Semark Blaker.

Tweed—Goal, Thompson, defense, LaFontaine, A. Geraldi; centre, Maguire; wings Quinn, Rupert, Subs—P. Geraldi, Cordy, Orr Meraw.

MARMORA IS DOWNED 3-1

Central Loop Fixture Won by Madoc Quite Easily

Marmora, Feb. 9 (Special) — Madoc accounted for Marmora in a Central League feature on the latter's rink on Monday evening, winning after a hard fought game by 3-1. In the first period Henderson drew first blood and Weir drew Callery out to net the second goal. In the second period, Weir found the net again, and though Marmora did some good shooting, the Madoc goalie was on the job to nullify the efforts. Marmora lowered the margin against them in the closing moments when Wm. Shannon beat Wallbridge on an assist by Hewitt.

Marmora through this defeat are now out of the running for league honors.

Line-ups:

Madoc—Goal C. Wallbridge, defence K. West and T Rupert, centre J. Henderson wings R. Weir and P. Akey. Alternates, A. Blue, E Armstrong, E. Alexander, and P. Embury.

Marmora—Goal F. Callery, defence K. Wilson and W. Shannon, centre, G. McWilliams, wings, H. Hewitt and T. Shannon. Alternates G. Stewart, F. Burns, and R. Neal. Referee—J. Watson, Madoc.

NUMBER "13" NOT FEARED AS MOTOR LICENCE PLATE

Medical Men Not Taking Advantage of Having Letter "D"

Just about half of the medical profession of the city have taken advantage of the distinguishing license plates for their motor cars, it was learned at the office of Mr. Geo. E. Ketcheson, issuer of licenses for this district. The plates which bear the letters "D" with the usual numbers, may be secured from the Toronto office of the Ontario Medical Association by members of that association.

A consistent drop in numbers of licenses issued during the past three years is also noted by the local office. During the year 1932 a total of 3600 had been issued for the district. In 1933 it had dropped to 2100 while up to the present date this year only 650 licenses have been given out.

No longer does the number "13" influence the car driver. The significance of this unholy combination of letters has been lost. No longer do clerks in the office rack their brains to dispose of the plates, whose numbers began with 13, ended with 13, or had the same numerals in the middle. Modern applicants have been accepting them without question, and in one case at least, have asked for them. A Trenton stage driver is at present proudly exhibiting on his machine the number 1913.

Allowed to Issue

Observant citizens may have noted several cars on city streets bearing a broken issue license in the series of the 5500's. Just one hundred plates of this series were issued by the local office out of order. It was explained, owing to the fact, that a shipment received here had been broken in the middle of the series. Permission had been obtained to give these out.

Official notice that last year's licenses would be good until the end of March has resulted in a sharp drop in numbers of plates given out this week, it was stated. This has been a boon for those, who are applying for plates, however, owing to the fact, that assistance is now given them in making out the forms. "We'll be able to give this assistance as long as we are not too heavily rushed at the office", promised Mr. Ketcheson.

An error in the price of licenses contained in a news despatch from Toronto was pointed out at the office. The fee for a four cylinder reported in the despatch. All license is $7.00 and not $4.00 as censes are the same price as last year.

BROOD MARES SCARCE PRICES TO BE HIGH

The Younger Class of Horses Have Been Sold off

Farmers of the district, who refused to raise colts last year and the year previous, and who destroyed or sold their extra animals when it was indicated that the cost of feeding through the present winter would be prohibitive will feel the pinch for farm horses next summer, and will probably pay fancy prices for a work horse next spring when he needs one most, stated a prominent farmer of the 4th Concession of Thurlow today.

A survey made of several farms throughout this district revealed that only a few old and dependable horses had been kept by the farmer, generally those well over the ten year class, known to breeders as "aged". Breeding mares are scarce, leading to the belief, that the animals for sale next spring will bring better prices than for past years.

On Tuesday evening, Madoc Rebekah Lodge held a thimble tea at the home of Mrs. R. P. Wellman on Prince Albert Street. The first part of the evening was spent in sewing, knitting and social intercourse. The balance of the time was taken up by two humourous contests. Refreshments were served. A large crowd of Rebekahs and their friends were in attendance.

Trinity Y.P.S.

Trinity Young People's Society met in the Sunday School Rooms in the basement of the church for their regular weekly meeting. In the absence of the President, Miss E. MacDermid, the vice-president. Mrs. W. Hulin was in charge. Prayer was offered by Rev. G. W. Rivers.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Communications were read in reference to lantern slides and also a debating society. Mr. Charles Johnston thanked the Young People's for the letter of condolence sent to him.

Mrs. Jack, the Christian Fellowship Convener, took charge of the balance of the program. The Scripture Lesson was head by Alec Broad and explained by Loreen Bennett. Following a prayer led by Lorna Roberts, the members joined in singing Hymn 352.

Mrs. Hamm gave a paper on "The Enrichment of Community Life through Young People's Work", which was very interesting and helpful. Miss Leila Empey favoured the audience with a piano solo. Mrs. Jack read a poem entitled "The New Year House".

The feature of the evening was a travelogue by Miss Loreen Connor of the Madoc Public School staff. Her subject was "Customs and Ways Noticed on My European Trip last Summer". In a clear and concise manner Miss Connor narrated the customs and habits of the various countries she visited. This is the second address of this type that the Young People's Society have been privileged to hear and they are of great benefit to the members.

Miss Salisbury and Miss Minnie Ferguson rendered a very pleasing piano duet. The Mizpah benediction closed the meeting.

UPSETS ARE REGISTERED

West Huntingdon Handed First Defeat in Centre Loop Schedule

Stirling, Feb. 9—In a Centre Loop fixture played in the local arena on Tuesday evening, Zion Hill moved another notch up the ladder by defeating Evergreen 4-2 and West Huntingdon suffered their first defeat of the season at the hands of Cannifton who handed them a 4-2 loss.

Evergreen held the Zion Hill scions in the first frame to a 1-0 score when Maurice McGee of Evergreen beat Seeley of the Zion nets on a lovely shot from the blue line. Parks threatened and twice beat Rodgers on clean shots just after the bell had rung for offside. Caverley missed a great chance to score when he shot wide of the open net from which Rodgers had been coaxed.

Play in the second canto became more heated and once again Zion apparently scored. However it was disallowed and the play was resumed. Just before the close of the period Parks evened the score by tallying on a nice shot from in front of the goal.

The puck had scarcely been faced off at the opening of the third stanza when Parks had it nesting in the Evergreen goal to put Zion in the lead 2-1. Another was added on a Ketcheson-Parks-Caverley combination with Caverley giving the final poke. Townsend a newcomer to the Zion team and incidentally a strengthening factor went through on a solo play to register the fourth counter. Shortly before the period ended, Don Rodgers tallied for Evergreen on a long shot and the game wound up with a 2 count. Penalties were handed out to Sills, M. McGee, C. McGee, and Townsend.

Line-ups:

Zion Hill—A. Seeley goal, K. Denyes and R. Sills defence, R. Caverley centre, H. Ketcheson and O. Parks wings. subs. H. Townsend, Art. Hall, and H. Palmer.

Evergreen—W. Rodgers goal, B. Stapley and McGee defence, D. Rodgers, centre, M. McGee and P. Gibson, wings. Subs. O. Casement, B. Heath and L. McGee.

Referee—Earl Wallace.

Cannifton 4; West Huntingdon 2

Cannifton took West Huntingdon for their first ride of the season when they handed them the short end of a 4-2 score. The game was fast right from the start and each team battled through to the very finish.

Cannifton took the lead in the initial stanza by a 2-1 count with Empson scoring on a Jarrell rebound and Jarrell tallying on a Johnson rebound. Mott registered the West Huntingdon counter when he made a beautiful shot in the corner of the net to beat Sharpe of the Cannifton nets.

The second period saw the play become very even and the frame ended scoreless. Both Sarles of Huntingdon and Sharpe in the Cannifton nets were called upon for a number of beautiful saves and each responded nobly.

Cannifton added two more counters in the final frame and resorted to shooting the puck up the ice to maintain their lead. The final Cannifton goal was credited to Empson on an assist from Johnson while Chas. Wright of Huntingdon tallied for the second counter for the vanquished team. Penalty went to Carmichael. Outstanding for Cannifton were Empson, Carmichael, the Jarrell boys and Johnson, while Mott, Kerby and J. McGowan were the most effective for the losers.

Line-ups:

Cannifton—Sharpe goal, Bleekman and Carmichael defence, Johnson centre, J. Jarrell and J. Empson wings. Subs. E. Jarrell, McInig W. Hannah and Williams.

West Huntingdon—Thos. Searles, goal, P. Murray and J. McGowan, defence, H. Mott, centre, S. Kerby and Chas. Wright wings. Subs. G. McGowan, E. Murray, E. Post, Jim Bray, Dan Cooke, C. Thompson.

MADOC JUNIORS ON BOTTOM RUNG

Blow Three Goal Lead And Lucky to Break Even in Overtime

MADOC, Feb. 9.— (Special) — Madoc juniors are now firmly entrenched in the cellar position as a result of dropping an overtime game to Tweed for their third straight loss. Going into the third period with a three-goal lead the Madoc team seemed disorganised and were lucky not to be beaten in the regulation time. The Madoc team were weakened by the absence of Alexander and Embury. The overtime was distinctly Madoc's only some phenominal saves by McCutcheon in the Tweed goal staving off defeat for the visitors. Ross missed a perfect chance when he could not hit the open net. Akey was the stand-out player on the ice scoring three goals. Jerry Keller, a juvenile also turned in a nice game.

First Period—

When Arbour was penalized West carried the puck to the Tweed blue line and passed to Armstrong who scored. Madoc made some nice rushes and Kellar, Akey and Armstrong missed some nice chances. Marsh evened the score when he pushed the puck in from a scramble. Mickey McGuire carried the play down and passed to Casey Rashotte who scored. Akey knotted the count when he shoved in West's rebound. McCrea, the bad man of the game, received his first penalty and Madoc went into the lead on a nice play by Akey, Keller and Armstrong. Just before the period ended Mickey McGuire skated through the Madoc defence and gave Nickle no chance.

Second Period—

Ashley was penalized for tripping McGuire. Akey scored on a lone rush. Madoc were two up when Ashley scored on Akeys' rebound. Madoc's last goal was scored by Akey on a pass from Armstrong. Leal was penalized for hitting Ross. Shanques was put off for tripping. West was sent to the cooler for tripping. The period ended 6-3 in favour of Madoc.

Third Period—

Tweed scored from a scramble. Ashley was penalized for throwing the puck. Marsh scored a questionable goal juggling the puck with his body before deciding to put it in. McGuire was penalized for talking back to the referee. Madoc scored but the referee had stopped the play to penalize McCrea. McGuire tied the score when the defence failed to clear the puck.

Overtime—

Akey and Armstrong missed some nice chances. Cotton was penalized for tripping. McCrea received his third penalty. Cotton pushed in the winning counter when some loose play by the Madoc team in from the nets failed to clear quickly enough. Rashotte was penalized for slashing. The game ended 7-6 in favour of Tweed.

Line-up:—

McCutcheon, goal; Arbour, r.d.; Leal, l.d.; Rashotte, centre; Cotton, r.w.; McGuire l.w.; Subs, McCrea, Leal, Shanques, Marsh.

FISH SO HUNGRY THEY BITE AT RED YARN

Fishermen on Bay Getting Quota Every Day With This Bait

Fish in the cool green depths of the Bay of Quinte these days are either dumb or hungry. They have been biting furiously during the past week or so at nothing more than a little red ball of wool at the end of a fish line. One local unemployed man by the use of this inexpensive bait has managed to fill half a bran sack each day with perch, sunfish and other smaller fry.

Other fishermen have caught on to the use of the red wool-yarn bait and have also been using it with decided success. For the first time since the secret leaked out the fishermen in the tiny shacks have been able to get all the fish they need.

Previously common ordinary fishworms bred in a shallow earth-filled box in cellars or behind the family stove, from parent worms picked up in the summer time, had been the dependable bait. But it's a little too bothersome to thread worms on a hook, when a simple little ball of yarn will do. It is said the fad started, when the first fisherman having run out of bait unravelled some threads from the wool mittens his wife had knitted him, and dressed up the hook.

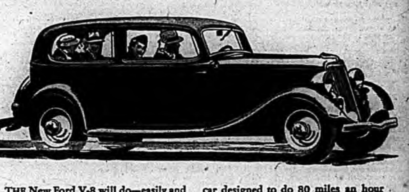
INEXPENSIVE · SATISFYING

ESPECIALLY GOOD AT 55 AND 60

BECAUSE IT CAN DO OVER 80



THE New Ford V-8 will do—easily and accurately—over 80 miles an hour. But it is not likely that you will ever need to go that fast. This top speed means that in ordinary, every-day driving you get the ease and safety of great reserve power. It means that your car is not straining itself at 50, 55 or 60.

The New Ford V-8 is mighty smooth in that range because it has the reserve power to go a lot faster. That means efficient, economical running without strain or vibration.

The advantages of a high-speed car are not in the speed. A car designed to do 80 miles an hour easily must be extra strongly built. It must have a better and stronger steering gear. It must be correctly poised and balanced. Body, wheels, springs, axles, frame, brakes—all must be of the best design and greatest strength.

Everything in the car must be up to the 80-mile-an-hour standard to give you superlative performance at lower speeds.

Drive the comfortable New Ford V-8 for 1934 and see how this extra power gives you extra pleasure and motoring satisfaction. And extra economy too.

P.S.—Ford speed is honest speed. The speedometer is not "fixed" to mislead you. The limit of variation, for speedometers, a limit that cannot be avoided in manufacture, is 2½ at 70 miles an hour. : : : No car is so easy to handle. New 15-to-1 steering gear ratio makes steering easier.

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

The last meeting of the W.M.S. auxiliary of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was held in the hall of the church on Wednesday afternoon, February 7. Mrs. Seymour presided and a large number were in attendance. The devotional period was conducted by Mrs. Perry, who with her group had charge of the program. During the business session, reports were given by the secretary and treasurer. Correspondence and various other matters were taken up. A full and very interesting report of the annual Presbyterial meeting held on January 19 in Gananoque was given by the delegate, Mrs. Bateman.

Mrs. (Dr.) Baker was guest speaker and her address on the subject "Missionary Enterprise" was of an inspiring character. Calling it the "supreme work of the church," Mrs. Baker dealt with her subject under three heads, "commission, task and resources". The first, commission, was a personal message from Christ and broadly outlined the second. The "task" is great, but the "resources" are unlimited. Mrs. Baker was introduced by Mrs. Penny and the appreciation of the auxiliary was fittingly voiced by Mrs. Rutherford and Mrs. Moore. A pleasing feature of the meeting was the presentation of a life membership certificate to Mrs. Lee Ketcheson, Mrs. Morrice making the presentation on behalf of the Birthday League.

Mrs. Seymour announced the World's Day of Prayer to be held in Christ Church on Friday, February 16, urging all to attend.

The hymns and scripture reading were selected by Mrs. G. A. Reid and following the last hymn, a moment of silent supplication was offered for Mrs. Reid. The meeting closed with the Lord's prayer repeated in unison.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

HE LET STRANGERS TAKE HER HOME

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl of 16 and go around with a boy of 18. One night he invited me to a party and, as I was having a dull time, we left about two o'clock. It was raining, and we waited for a street-car for almost three-quarters of an hour; none came.

Just then some boys and girls, coming home from a party, hailed a cab. Not knowing the crowd, my boy friend walked up to them and asked if they had room for one more girl, as I had no other means of going home. I rode off with these strangers. My boy friend went back to the party.

My father objects to this boy coming to our house, but doesn't object to my seeing him occasionally at parties. Is it wise for me to go down to his club, or should I forget him?

Blue Eyes.

You can hardly blame your father for objecting to your acquaintance with a young man who would hail a group of strangers and send a girl of 16 home with them, at two o'clock in the morning. In your place, I should try to make friends with boys who showed a greater sense of responsibility.

LIVES ON A FARM AND IS A TOMBOY

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 20 years old and have a high school education. I live on a farm and am very much of a tomboy. Everyone seems to like me but the boy friends, and I don't get along with them at all.

They bore me nearly to death. First thing they want to do is to start petting and kissing, which I can't stand. I think it's all right when you know and like the fellow, and have gone with him long enough to decide how much you like him. But this thing of fighting all evening for a kiss is too much for my common horse sense.

I want to go away some place and find work, but my parents won't think of such a thing, so that's that. I don't drink, smoke, dance or swear, and try to live as my mother has taught me.

Do you think there are any decent boys left? And if there are, where on God's green earth are they to be found?

Disgusted.

At 20 do you feel you're quite fair in condemning the entire male sex? You just haven't met the right type yet, so those young men who put on a kiss marathon every time they call on you seem dull and lacking in imagination.

Have you considered taking up vocational training, which the Government is now offering everyone? To me, it seems one of the most splendid projects of the New Deal. If you're interested, send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope, and I will give you a few more particulars.

HE SAYS SHE'S TEMPERAMENTAL

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Elaine is a very lovely little lady of 19, a charming conversationalist, skates, swims, and is an all-around good sport. She's a treat for the eyes, too, with curly, chestnut hair and greenish gray eyes.

But what can a man do when he's desperately in love with a girl who is so utterly temperamental? I've tried to please, but sometimes she's absolutely unreasonable; I'd like to spank her. If I try to be unconcerned and indifferent I'm afraid I might really lose her, and what would life be like then?

Worried.

Often the "iron hand in the velvet glove" is the proper treatment for these temperamental young ladies. I'm afraid you must have been spoiling Miss Elaine, and perhaps if you show a little more independence in dealing with her, you won't have so much to worry you.

SHE HAS TWO SUITORS

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm going on 20, and should have enough sense to know about whom I care. Somehow, I don't. There are two boys courting me. One is rather handsome, has money, also a bad temper, and lives on a farm. The other is going to college, so doesn't have much extra cash.

Both claim to be in love with me, and both have proposed marriage, but I don't know which one to accept. I care a great deal for both of them.

The collegiate has gone "steady" with me for three years; then we broke up on account of his parents, who dislike me. The other boy's parents approve of me highly. Sometimes I think I love one, then the other. I simply can't choose.

The college man writes thrilling love letters; the farmer just plain tame ones. If I marry the college student I shall have to wait until he is graduated and has found a job. I could be Mrs. Farmer immediately.

Undecided.

It sounds to me as if you were more "in love with love" than with either of these boys, my dear. If it were a genuine case of the real thing, you wouldn't hesitate over which young man to choose. How fortunate you are in having two of them, when some girls haven't even one! Just keep on and have a good time, until your heart leaves no room for doubt.

GIFTS FOR WEDDING ATTENDANTS

Dear Mrs Beeckman:

I am about to be married and I would like to have some suggestions as to suitable gifts to give my attendants. Will you give me some suggestions, please?

Bride-to-be.

The bride's gift to her attendants in commemoration of the happy event of her marriage may be a "considerable" present, if the bride is well-to-do, or it may be some modest remembrance, if the bride has to make a careful budget. Formerly brides made a great point of giving presents that could be worn by the attendants on the day of the wedding, and these were usually monogrammed, sometimes even lockets were given with the date of the wedding and the monograms or last initials of the bride and groom were engraved on them.

But now there are several stock presents that are most often given; bracelets and novelty vanity-cases are now the most popular. Some piece of jewelry is often given; a wrist watch, a chain of some kind, earrings, a pendant, a brooch or bar-pin. These are also appropriate: the popular gold-key-case with the "dummy" gold key, a purse of any kind, an evening bag, a bead bag, a plain, enamel, silver or gold pencil, a card-case, and plain or fitted over-night bag, dressing bag, or traveling bag, a jeweled hat ornament, a portfolio, a pair of buckles, a monogrammed silver or gold purse-mirror, a scarf for day or evening wear, a traveling clock (gold, silver, enamel, or leather), a jewel box, a short key-chain with gold tag for monogram, a gold key-ring, or a monogrammed bill-clip. If the bride prefers she may make her gift to her attendants in the form of some detail of their costume, for example, their hats, their shoes and stockings, their gloves, bandeaux, or fans.

FLOWERS AND FINGER TOWELS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Is it correct to place a low bowl of flowers on a coffee table? If not, what is correct?

2. When using finger towels, should they be hung on a towel rack, or placed carelessly about the bathroom?

W.

1. Yes, often we keep a bowl of flowers on the coffee table, when it is not in use for the serving of coffee or tea, or we keep a book or two on it, and usually there are some cigarette accessories, a box for cigarettes, one or two ash trays, and match boxes or a table lighter.

2. Finger tip towels should be very carefully hung on a towel bar or rack in the bathroom. If there is room they should have their separate space on the towel bar, and if not, they may be hung over the larger towels, that is, the hand towels or face towels, not bath towels. They should never be "placed carelessly about the bathroom."

BLESSED EVENT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please give me some information regarding the sending of birth announcements?

1. Is it proper to send an announcement to my last employer or should it be sent to the employees of the company? My former employer is a bachelor.

2. I would like to send one to a man friend of ours who is a bachelor also. We are also acquainted with his family. In that case should we send separate ones, or just one to the family?

3. We are sending formal birth announcements. Will the same ones be proper to send to relatives?

M.

1. If your former employer is a friend of yours, it is proper to send him an announcement.

2. This is just as you choose.

3. Yes, except to very close relatives.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on Good Manners submitted by readers).

FOXBORO W.M.S.

Quite a number attended the dinner given at the S. S. rooms on Wednesday under the auspices of the Mission Band. $9 clear was realized and every one enjoyed the hot dinner.

The W.M.S. held their monthly meeting with the first vice-president Mrs. W. Wickett in the chair. The worship service was taken by Mrs. Hodgen and different members assisted. It was relative to Christian stewardship in our lives. The president then took charge and the business was discussed.

Mrs. W. Wickett was asked to fill the office of president-elect (Mrs. J. Gowsell) who had resigned on account of sickness. The Christian Stewardship Secretary gave a report of the finance committee meeting and arrangements were made to hold a dinner jointly with the Association. Mrs. W. Hodgen was chosen as delegate to the Presbyterial in Napanee and Mrs. M. C. Reynolds as an alternate. Roll was called and a number paid their membership fees. The Watch Tower was then taken charge of: Canada, Mrs. J. G. Sills; China, Miss Clarke; Peace, Miss Adams, an interesting paper, and Temperance, Mrs. Frederick. Miss Clarke then sang a solo, "Help Somebody Today," after which Mrs. J. G. Sills gave a talk on medical work in China and Mrs. Walter Scott led in prayer in this behalf. Two verses of a hymn were sung and Miss Adams gave the synopsis of a chapter from the Study Book, and after the singing of another hymn the benediction was pronounced. $7 was contributed through the envelopes

ARE HONORED AT FAREWELL PARTY

Program And Presentation at Johnson Home

Rawdon — On Wednesday evening, February 7th. a number of friends of Mr. William Johnson and Miss Lulu gathered at their home on the fourth concession Rawdon and tendered them a surprise party before their departure to their new home in Stirling.

In the absence of the pastor, Rev. F. G. Joblin, the duties of chairman were capably discharged by Mr. George Weaver and the following programe was enjoyed:

Solo with guitar accompaniment, "The Red River Valley," Mr. Alfred Powell; instrumental music, piano and harmonica, Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Summers; solo with guitar accompaniment, "Come Back to the Valley" Miss Faye Andrews; reading, "A Voice from Afar," Mrs. Frank Smith and in it Mrs. Ken Smith sang "Home Sweet Home"; musical selection, Harmonica and Jews Harp and encore, Percy and Ray White; vocal solo, "Juanita," Mrs. Kenneth Smith; reading, "Aunt Jerusha's Visit to the City," Mrs. Arthur Phillips; musical selection, guitar and mouth organ, Miss Faye Andrews; vocal solo, "That Old Home Far Away," Mrs. John Reid; guitar solo, Mr. Alfred Powell; vocal solo, "Annie Laurie," Mrs. Kennth Smith.

The guests of honor were then seated and Miss Florence Hay read a very appropriate address and Messrs. Conger McConnell and Edgar McKeown presented them with a lovely electric table lamp, Hot Point iron and electric heater.

Mr. Johnson was visibly touched by the kindness of his friends as he has lived on this farm for the past 71 years and it means pulling up home ties and going to another community. However both he and Lulu graciously thanked their many friends and invited one and all to visit them in their new home in Stirling.

A delicious lunch was served after which Mrs. Edgar McKeown presided at the piano and all enjoyed a half hour sing-song which Mr. Johnson thoroughly enjoyed.

Mount Pleasant, Feb. 7, 1934
Mr. Wm. Johnson and Lulu:

It is with regret that we, your friends and neighbors have assembled in this home tonight to bid you farewell, and to spend another social evening with you, ere you leave this community, which has been home to you for so many years.

We know that while we shall miss you sorely, you will not be far away and we may see you often. We trust you will not forget us and that your footsteps may wander often to Mount Pleasant.

You have worked side by side with us for the welfare of this community for which we are truly grateful.

Our thoughts, prayers and wishes shall be with you in your new home in which we sincerely hope you will find peace and happiness.

We ask you to accept these gifts and may they bring pleasant memories of your old friends and neighbors.

Signed on behalf of this community:

Edward Montgomery,
Conger McConnell
George Weaver

Trenton Juniors Eliminated from O.H.A. Group by Hastings

Losers Allege, Player on Hastings Team Ineligible

Trenton, Feb. 9 (Special)—Trenton Juniors are all done—maybe? A handful of spectators who braved the twenty below weather last evening saw a very ragged game of hockey between the local junior squad and Dr. Hay's Hastings kids, and won by the latter 4-2.

This morning reports were about the town about protesting the contest. Someone got wind of an alleged little shody deal last evening on Hastings part. Although the lineup read the same as the last encounter some faces looked different. One lad, whose name is not ascertained is alleged to have been playing the first period as G. Puffer. The news leaked out and this G. Puffer didn't grace the ice in the second and third periods when the local management went to check up after the game Dr. Hay had left with the certificate. "Bill" Chambers, local secretary, took specimens of the two Puffer boys signature and that's how the situation now stands.

The weather was really too cold to play hockey. Players froze their toes and ears while in the game.

Scored After Opening

Hastings opened the scoring a minute after the opening bell when Boyle and McCoy combined with the former beating Cottrell. The locals could not seem to get organized at first but later centred the play around the opposition without results.

Thompson evened the count, when he beat Tharby on a shot from centre ice. The northerners went one up, when G. Puffer shot with Cottrell going down on the puck and it never left the ice. McCoy skated in to push the rubber over the line for a soft counter Bun Lott missed an open net on a pass from Jack Kidd as the period ended 2-1 for the visitors.

Each Count in Second

Burt, Leal and Lamgre kept the play in their hands on the opening of the period but could not beat Tharby who was right on.

Boyle who was playing centre for the visitors was the fastest man on the ice and continually broke up plays as the locals advanced into the visitors territory. [illegible] Puffer got an easy one in a scramble near the local net when he shot and the puck hit Leal's back and careened into the local net. Lott, Fox and Kidd tore in time and time to miss the net or have Tharby turn away their shots that looked like sure counters. Mitchell got Trenton's second tally on a nice lone rush, rounding the defence and outguessing hte goalie on a nice shot.

Cottrell played his best in the last stanza. The locals were playing all up and could not get the counter to tie the contest which if the game resulted in a tie the locals would have forced Hastings out of the play off. L. Rogers grabbed a loose puck and rushed in on Cottrell who was unprotected but he failed to get the rubber past.

With but one minute to play L' Rogers and McCoy got away with Rogers beating the local goalie to end the scoring which resulted in a 4-2 for the visitors.

Lineups:

Hastings—Goal Tharby, defence McCoy and L. Rogers, centre C. Puffer, wings Boyle and Penton, alternates Sargent, N. Rogers, G. Puffer and Stewart.

Trenton—Goal Cottrell, defence, Jones and Thompson, centre, Lamore, wings Burtt and Leal, alternates Kidd, Fox, Lott and Mitchell.

Referee—Ross Burtt, Trenton.

MARCH UPON PARIS FEARED

Huge Strike Impends, and Miners May Take Lens-Paris Road

Paris, Feb. 9.—Technical workers, from the army and navy alike, are under orders to meet the threat of Monday's general strike called by the French Labor Federation in protest against what it believes to be a new dictatorial government.

Naval mechanics from Brest, numbering 150, arrived today ready to replace striking mechanics in essential public services. Army engineering units have been notified to hold themselves in readiness to fill key positions in the postal and telegraphic offices.

The strike call runs from midnight on Sunday to midnight on Monday. It is observed Paris theoretically will be without her underground, motorbus, street car, electric, gas, telephone and telegraph services, and without means of feeding herself.

A number of the Associated Workers' Federations have already issued manifestoes accepting the strike call but it is not expected the response will be general. Paris has eight days gas supply on hand and probably enough electricity to carry her over Monday.

Field kitchens smoked as the men camped on the scenes where action threatened.

Officials refused to disclose military information but the insignia seen on uniforms showed that many of the soldiers had been brought in from the provinces.

The principal fear was that a vast mass of unemployed and discontented miners from the Lens region might attempt to march on Paris.

The Place Republique was sanded to give footing to horses in case a cavalry charge were needed.

Suspicious pedestrians were searched by police for concealed weapons.

These street-war preparations apparently meant nothing to the calm Doumergue who labored quietly and steadily to mold a government which might please the people and avert further developments in the internal crisis.

BOYS FOUND DEAD IN BED

Fire Causes Deaths in North Country, Rest of Family Saved

Cochrane, Ont., Feb. 9—(CP)—The mortal remains of two boys, Hector, age 9 and Armand age 8, have been brought to Cochrane following the tragic fire which occurred yesterday morning when the home of the Fortier family fell a prey to fire.

The remains of one body were found n the springs of the bed upon which he had been sleeping, and the other was near the window where the father, Omer Fortier had severely cut his hand in trying to get into the room to effect a rescue, when it was discovered by him that the two boys were not with the other children.

Apparently neither of the boys had stirred from their beds, death coming to them in their sleep. Five of the remaining nine children are suffering from frozen feet and the father, in addition to the cut hand had his feet and ears burned, while the mother had her back from the shoulders to waist severely burned and her feet frozen.

The Fortier home was a one storey log shanty where the family have been living during the eight years in which they have been resident in Newmarket Township, some twenty miles south of Cochrane.

The fire was discovered by the father, Omer Fortier, about four o'clock when he was awakened by the crying of their youngest child, a baby of eight months. About an hour earlier the mother had put on a fire and apparently the stove pipes became overheated and set fire to the ceiling.

GENERAL DIES WHILE A-HUNT

Sir Percy Radcliffe of Southern Command Heart Victim

London, Feb. 9 (CP Cable)—General Sir Percy Radcliffe, Chief of the Southern Command since last year, collapsed and died of heart failure while hunting near Salisbury today.

General Radcliffe was 60 years of age today. He was a specialist on field artillery and in the wider sense was a noted tactician. He was director of military operations at the War Office for four years following the war.

Educated at Winchester and the Royal Military Academy, he served in the South African war. He entered the Great War as a Major and served throughout, being mentioned in despatches six times and being awarded the D.S.O., the C.B., and K.C.M.G. He was promoted Major-General in 1918.

STEAMSHIP IS AGROUND

Victim of Cold Snap at Saint John, N. B. Today

SAINT JOHN, N.B., Feb. 9.—(CP)—The 64-ton steamship Connors Bros., was aground today on Moose Island Beach—a victim of the intense cold snap.

Plowing her way out of Black's Harbor early today through thick ice which had formed during the night, the little vessel punctured her prow.

Once in open water, she started to leak so badly, according to meagre reports reaching here, that Captain E. E. Benton was forced to run her aground on Moose Island Beach to keep her from sinking. The Beach is only a few miles from Black's Harbor.

The steamship was heavily-laden carrying, besides other freight, between 3,000 and 4,000 cases of canned fish from the plant of Connors Bros. Ltd., at Black's Harbor.

The Bernadine, Captain Will Matthews, and the Lucille B. Captain Gradis Cook, were sent to Moose Island Beach in an attempt to salvage the grounded steamer's cargo.

NEW YORK CLOSE

New York, Feb. 9 (AP)— Stocks declined sharply on suggestive selling waves today. Quiet offerings in the forenoon gave way to active liquidation in the late dealings and shares conceded 1 to 5 points over a wide front. Losers of 3 to 5 included Allied Chemical, Case, U.S. Steel, Johns Manville, New York Central and American Alcohol. Transfers approximated 300,-000 shares.

NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

TORONTO MINES

TORONTO, Feb. 9.—(CP)—Medium-priced gold shares showed the main action in the Mining Section of the Toronto Stock Exchange today, San Antonio, Sylvanite, Siscoe and Reno moving up strongly. Silver issues were also stronger than usual and the general tone elsewhere was steady.

Some of the senior gold issues recorded narrow gains in sympathy with the steady tone on the New York Board. Dome was unchanged at $36.25, Hollinger up 10 to 13.90, Lake Shore unchanged at $45, McIntyre unchanged at 42.25, Pioneer unchanged at 12.50 while Teck, Hargreaves and Bralorne were slightly higher. Dome, Hollinger, Teck and Hargreaves were active.

San Antonio pushed up 10 cents to 2.45 on good volume Sylvanite gained 7 to 2.04, Siscoe 10 to 1.73 and Reno 4 to 1.18. International Nickel remained unchanged at 22.90 and Noranda, in slow volume, held steady at 35.75.

Gains registered by the big gold producers in yesterday's late rally and added to lightly early today, disappeared in a new selling drive that developed in the early afternoon. McIntyre drifted down from 42.50 to 40.25, off 2.00 net Dome dropped 1.25 to $35, Lake Shore 50 cents to 44.50 while the other issues of the group maintained a better appearance of firmness.

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York, Feb. 9 (AP)—Financial markets froze up with the weather today and price movements generally were recessionary in relatively torpid trading.

Speculative forces were said to have turned a little nervous in advance of disclosure of the United States administration's complete proposals for federal regulation of stock and commodity exchanges.

Bonds were irregular.

Some irregularity occurred in Canadian stocks. International Nickel and Canadian Pacific showed slight changes but Dome and McIntyre yielded sizable fractions. On the curb Lake Shore and Hiram Walker were steady. Dominion Government 4s edged a trifle higher Other maturities were inactive. The Canadian dollar was unchanged at 99.12½ cents.

Shares of U.S. Smelting lost 5 and Allied Chemical and Case dropped about 4 each. American Can and United Aircraft were down around 2.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Feb. 9—(CP)—A mild reaction from yesterday's late rally in the industrial section of the Toronto Stock Exchange developed in the early session today, the board at noon showing recessions up to about a point, mainly in the interlisted group.

Ford A was again the leading performer, the price moving up early to 23 7-8 for a gain of a half point at which level it again invited profit-taking and by noon the price had sagged back to 23, off 3-8. Brazilian and C.P.R. eased back narrow fractions and Nickel dropped 15 cents to 22.75.

Walkers Common was off 5-8 to 47 7-8, Industrial Alcohol down 1-2 to 16 and Distillers Seagrams unchanged at 22 1-4. Brewing Corporation dropped 1-8 to 9 1-8 and the preferred was off a half point.

Prices made moderate headway on the upside in the early transactions, in sympathy with a better second-hour tone on the New York Board but selling became active again around 1 p.m. and the price trimming was renewed.

Ford A was the main trader with the price swinging between 22 3-4 and 23 7-8. Distillery shares were shaded 1-2 to 1 1-2, the brewery stocks weakened also under the afternoon selling. Nickel was quite firm around 22.75, off slightly and the other recent leaders including Brazilian, C.P.R., Canada Cement and Massey Harris fell back.

Our Mother

Dear mother how we miss you,
Our hearts are sad today,
For life has never been the same,
Since God called you away.

Not a murmur not a sigh,
Passed your lips as death drew nigh,
As she lived, so she died,
Peace, loving, satisfied.

She always had cheerful words,
Her smiles we see them yet,
Her tender words for everyone,
We never shall forget.

Joliat Scores Goal, Assists in Other, Celebrating His 500th Game in the N. H. L.

Canadiens, However, Are Beaten by Maroons by 3-2 Score

OUTSTANDING

Leafs Tie Amerks 3-3 But Sands Injured in Pastime

By A. E. FULFORD

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Montreal Maroons think Aurel Joliat is a great hockey player. They are even willing to admit he's a gentleman, a scholar and kind to children. But when two National Hockey League points were at stake they found themselves unable to join wholeheartedly in celebration of his 500th big league game.

It was a memorable night for the Canadiens' veteran left winger at the Montreal Forum. Presentations were showered on him before the game. The rafters shook when he scored a goal in the third period and again when he gave a pass for a goal, that wiped out Maroons' two first period goals.

Maroons admired the modesty of the flashy little hockey man as he received richly deserved plaudits becomingly. But second place in the Canadian section was at stake. Aurel was a good fellow and all that but Maroons were going places.

That old meanie, Cy Wentworth injected the sour note into the celebration, when he flicked Earl Robinson's pass into the net for the goal, that gave the Gerardmen a 3-2 overtime win.

But no matter where the victory went it was a night of personal victory for Joliat. He played a wonderful game. As tenacious a backchecker as he ever was, he worried Dave Kerr all evening with his sorties into Maroon territory and richly deserved the added glory, that came his way when he figured in both Habitant goals.

Outstanding Player

If little Aurel never played another game of hockey he could boast—but he wouldn't—that in his 500th game in the big time he was the outstanding player. And, as he toiled against Maroons, more recognition came his way.

Lester Patrick, manager of the all-star team that will meet Toronto Leafs in the Bailey benefit game at Toronto Feb. 14, announced Joliat as his selection for the left wing position on the starting lineup.

Maroons' win over Joliat and the rest of the Habitants gave them second place by two points over their intra-city rivals. Tieing Toronto 3-3 in New York, Americans moved up to within two games of Canadiens, while Detroit and Chicago edged a point each nearer New York Rangers, United States division leaders, by tieing 1-1 at Chicago.

Jimmy Ward, standout among the Maroons, sent the Gerardmen away to a good start in the first period of the Montreal game with a goal on Herb Cain's passout from the boards and Irvin Frew flipped in a backhand shot for their second.

Joliat beat the whole Maroon team for his goal, stickhandling his way from his own blue line. Later he darted behind the Maroon goal and passed out to Pit Lepine who was parked in front of Kerr and couldn't miss.

Earl Robinson made the play for Maroon's winning goal. Wentworth swung at his rebound and it glanced into the net off Lorne Chabot.

Sands Injured

Another small player held the spotlight at New York. Rabbit McVeigh, tricky American, scored two of their goals. He got a goal in the first period, equalized by Andy Blair's Toronto score, and when Harvey Jackson put the Leafs ahead in the second he came back with another to tie up the game again.

Hal Picketts got another goal for Amerks before the middle frame ended and Bill Thoms finished the scoring in the same period. The Leafs, riddled by injuries lately, lost another player, when Charlie Sands suffered an injury to his spine.

The draw at Chicago brought the Hawks within two points of the leading Rangers and left Red Wings three behind the leaders. Paul Thompson gave Chicago a lead with his goal in the third period and Larry Aurie tied it up later.

N. H. L. STARS

Aurel Joliat, Canadiens, celebrated his 500th N.H.L. game with a goal and an assist against Maroons.

Jimmy Ward, Maroons, stood out among his team mates and scored one of their goals.

Rabbit McVeigh, Americans, got two goals when Americans held Toronto to a 3-3 tie.

Buffalo and Syracuse Tied For First With Windsor and London Third

Buffalo and Syracuse were locked in second place and London and Windsor tied in fourth place of the International Hockey League standings today. With Syracuse Stars idle Buffalo obtained the one point for the jump into second place by holding London Tecumsehs to a 1-1 deadlock last night at London, the tie putting Tecs alongside Windsor.

In the other fixture of the night Detroit Olympics scraped out a 3-2 win over cellar occupants, Cleveland Indians in the Michigan city to grasp in firmer hold the league leadership. Massey Carr, Detroit wingman, and Regan of Cleveland enlivened the close battle with a bout of fisticuffs that earned them each a major penalty in the third period.

RUTH TO PLAY FAIR WITH BOYS

New York, Feb. 9—"Babe" Ruth announced today that he would carry out himself the provisions of the "Babe" Ruth Boys' Club contest he conducted for an oil company, and which was abandoned after United States Government protests that it violated NRA oil-code provisions against prize awards.

After a discussion with his manager, Ruth issued the following statement:

"I am a friend of the boys, and the boys are my friends, and I am not going to disappoint them now. There are 150,000 boys who have joined the club since it was started over a month ago, and I want to keep faith with the boys.

"I personally will carry out the contest and see that the fifty boys who win the prizes will go down South."

In addition to other prizes Ruth had promised that fifty ultimate winners would visit the baseball spring-training camps as guests of the oil company.

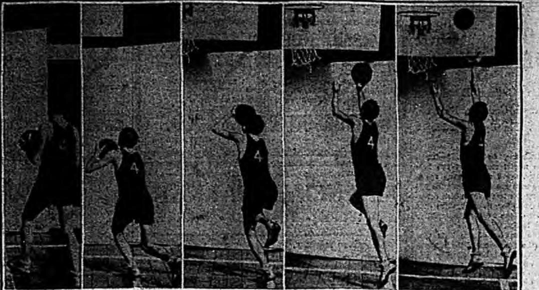
Three Mistakes in Making Leap Shot Discussed by Lippert—How to Avoid 'Em



Written for Central Press Canadian and the Ontario Intelligencer

By JACK LIPPERT

The running lay-up or leap shot does not always come easy to beginners.

The mistakes they commonly make are: 1—"Sticking" on the left foot, rather than leaping off it. 2—Banging the ball against the board instead of laying it up there gently and accurately. 3—Applying too much spin to the ball instead of allowing the spin to be merely incidental.

For beginners who have difficulty leaping off the left foot and coordinating the subsequent movements of body control and function of the hands on the ball, the practice drill here pictured is recommended.

The player stands still with the ball held in front of him, as in Picture No. 1. Now he steps out with his left foot and lets his left knee bend in order to give him the spring for leaping off it, as in Pictures Nos. 2, 3 and 4.

Beginners who get tangled up in doing this should not hold the ball. They should simply practice leaping off their left foot. They should be careful to "high jump" off their left foot rather than "broad jump" off it. The idea, after all, is not to send the body hurtling out of bounds of the court and into the bleachers, but to lift the body into the air to bring it closer to the basket.

After the beginner has learned to leap up off his left foot, let him have the ball in a standstill position and go through the movements illustrated here. Observe how and when the ball is brought up past the ace in its final shooting position.

Notice that the left (protecting) hand does not leave the ball until almost the moment of laying the ball up to bankboard. The ball is always aimed to bank off the bankboard on a shot of this kind, taken from the side. Beginners should also aim to place the ball on a spot high above the bankboard, rather than attempt to edge it over the rim of the basket.

CURRENT SPORT

(Day By Day)

After years of what might be termed as mediocre efforts between the goal posts Joe Gould, veteran goalkeeper of the Trenton intermediates, has at last assumed the spotlight in intermediate O.H.A. circles. Joe is a veteran at the art of puck-stopping having played up around Barrie, Parry Sound and points north, previous to which he tried his luck between the flags in Trenton without any marked success but, of recent years he has been laboring all the year 'round as a goal tender. In the summer months Joe has been guarding the twine in various lacrosse games, all of which added to his ability in the winter pastime. Joe has been the bulwarks of the Bowen-coached crew thus far this season but tonight faces the toughest opposition of the year when the Trenton club steps into town to open the semi-final play-downs in the local intermediate loop.

* * *

The Dohertys are still smarting under the defeat handed to them at the hands of the LaBrash-managed crew recently and have been practicing faithfully all week with a united and determined effort to sweep their Trenton rivals into submission. Both teams have injected new blood into their rosters to add a certain punch for the play-offs. Belleville recently signed Jack Conners, while Trenton took on Ross Burley from Wellington. Burley is a fast skating lad who will please the local fans. After watching the Cobourg-Trenton game the other night it is quite evident that the most prolific manner in which to score on Gould is with hard low drives. Shots above Joe's knees are so much "apple pie" for him. If the L'Heureux-coached marksmen keep their shots in the lower extremities this evening they should garner at least a three-goal lead. The locals are now in the play-off series so resurrect all your old mufflers, toques and woolen mittens but be sure and be on hand to witness the big struggle this evening.

* * *

Instructor Ralph Morden announced yesterday that the present operating volleyball league at the Y.M.C.A. would cease activities for a couple of weeks and resume at a later date playing their league games on Wednesday instead of Tuesday, as here-to-fore arranged. The local volleyball loop got away to an excellent start and seems to be headed towards a banner season.

* * *

Following the announcement that there had been a split in the ranks of the Ulster Stadium League and a new organization formed including the Oshawa Dukes, the Motor City scribe immediately threw out his chest and in a lofty manner assumed the "I told you so" attitude. On the other hand it is understood that the fundamental reason for the break in the Ulster Stadium loop was solely and wholely because the "rebellious" members of the old executive would not hear to a proposed amalgamation with the T.A.B.A. The Oshawa scribe knows perfectly well that the Dukes have been "angling" or groping about in the Queen City for a berth this long time since. They apparently fell into the well known bed of roses due entirely to the "break" that so recently occurred in the Ulster Stadium organization. It is without fear of contradiction we say—"The Dukes would have still been homeless if the break had not come".

* * *

But apart from all the hokum—here's a new senior baseball league hoving on the horizon (Joe Townsend's new Ulster loop). The league officers are apparently desirous of returning to the O.B.A.A. so why not the C.O.B.L. executive endeavor to link up with them? Beyond a question of a doubt the strongest senior loop in the province would follow with say—four or five teams in Toronto, Oshawa, Peterboro and Belleville. The project is a perfect natural if one but sits down to reason the matter out. Inter-games could be played without any great inconvenience to any club concerned. Double-headers at Belleville and Peterboro on holidays would solve the transportation problem, while the same would hold good for Saturday dates at Ulster Stadium for the return games. For instance the Dukes should not be adverse to coming to Belleville, say on July 1, to play a twin bill. The only other date they would need to journey down here would be for one other game, if a triple schedule was adopted. On the other hand the locals would make three Saturday trips to the Motor City. All in all the Dukes would perhaps be asked to play two afternoons in an entire season away from their band-box ball park. The same could hold good for the Toronto clubs as well.

* * *

Credit must be given the executive of the Dukes for their untiring efforts towards securing an adequate grouping for the club. With a new senior baseball league practically assured in the rejuvenated Ulster Stadium League the executive members of the Belleville and Peterboro clubs should personally interview President Townsend in reference to securing a berth in the new organization NOW, not a week or a month hence. Personally we do not blame the Dukes for their stand in the matter as they have done precisely as either Belleville or Peterboro would have done under similar circumstances. To sum the entire situation up—"the Dukes are IN; so it's now up to the other C.O.B.L. clubs to GET IN". And get in as soon as possible as other clubs are clambering for but the chance.

BASKETBALL

Both the Deacon A. C. Juniors and the Y.M.C.A. Intermediates hae been practising hard this week in preparation for their basketball series with the Queens' University teams. Saturday of this week the local Quintes engage the University teams down in the Limestone City and on the following Wednesday, February 14th, the College teams will be seen in action against the Deacons and the Y Intermediates at the Collegiate Gym in this City.

Queens' Basketball Teams have always provided the local aggregation with plenty of opposition and there is no reason to believe the 1934 representatives will prove any exception to the rule. The Deacon A. C. have yet to drop a game in the junior division of the league and they are bent on keeping their string of victories intact. In order to do so they will need to play up to top form as the Tri-color are unquestionably their strongest opposition. The Y Intermediates have not been so fortunate but following their sterling performance against the Kingston Y team, they are resolved to put the remainder of their scheduled games in the win column.

Next Wednesday's games should go to make up the outstanding basketball cards of the season, one that all followers of the game can ill afford to miss. The game will be played at the Collegiate Institute.

FAIR WINNIPEG SPEEDSTER BROKE RECORD

A Canadian champion in the making is pretty Edith Kingsmill of Winnipeg, who recently broke the U. S. national indoor speed-skating record for 440 yards at Chicago, defeating such outstanding stars as Kit Klein, North American indoor champion, and Lela Brooks, former title-holder. Miss Kingsmill, who is on her way back to Winnipeg and will not compete in the Canadian championships at Saint John, found the ice surface much too small for her liking at Toronto in the North American championships. The Chicago ice was much larger.

Larry Gains Drops Decision Losing British Empire Title

Outpointed by Len Harvey of London Over 15 Round Route

London, Feb. 9—(CP Cable)—The long, lean Negro England has looked up to as the leading heavyweight in her midst for four years, Larry Gains of Toronto, had been driven from his British Empire throne-room today by the thudding gloves of a scarcely-graduated middleweight, 178-pound Len Harvey of London.

The Briton punished Gains severely in the closing rounds of a 15-round title bout at Royal Albert Hall last night to win the decision from the champion who outweighed him by 37 pounds. After being knocked down for no count in the second round, Harvey outslugged and outboxed the old Toronto-born campaigner the rest of the way.

A crowd of 10,000 saw Harvey rise to the head of the empire's heavyweight division. It was a sorry evening for Gains whose dominance over British contenders has seldom wavered since he came here four years ago to get bouts and stayed when he found there were plenty. It was the end of trail, that has led nowhere.

His color was a bar to the select heavyweight circles in United States. While he was fighting to make a reputation for himself, there was lots of work. Once he became established as a dangerous foe. He was out in the cold. Leading American battlers would have nothing to do with Gains after he fought George Godfrey twice—and won one on a foul—and held Mike McTigue to a draw.

Master Boxer

In those days Larry was a master boxer. He was never a terrific hitter. But he held up his end against Godfrey when big George was travelling at a fast clip. Most of the crowd, that saw him hold McTigue to a draw believed Gains won by a comfortable margin.

Since coming to England, Larry has been peerless. He knocked out Max Schmeling before the German rose to prominence and he outpointed Primo Carnera little more than a year ago. Just as his color barred him from having a crack at the world title in England it made him ineligible for the British championship. But he won the empire title and held it.

Harvey, whose sensational rise through the middleweight, light heavyweight and heavyweight ranks was climaxed last November when he defeated Len Peterson for the British heavy crown, was hardly conceded a chance against Gains. Fully dressed he stepped on the scales a few hours before the fight and weighed 178. Gains weighed 215 1-2.

STIRLING H. S. WINS BY 4-1

Downs Frankford, Group Leaders in Fast Game

STIRLING, Feb. 9.—(Special)—Stirling High School students downed the Frankford students, group leaders of the South Hastings Interscholastic loop for the second time this season in a scheduled game played in the Stirling arena on Wednesday night by a 4-1 score.

The play was fast and clean with Stirling having a slight edge on their opponents from the south. The locals looked much better than in their previous appearance in the local rinkhouse when Wooler tied them with a 1-1 count.

Munro of Stirling opened the scoring in the initial stanza by beating Lawrence of the Frankford nets when he garnered up the rebound from Robinson's shot. F. Dafoe on an assist from Vincent Loney evened the count but Stirling again took the lead when Munro, on a solo rush was sandwiched at the defense only to pass the puck to Roy Brookes who batted it in for the second goal.

Shortly after the bell sounded for the second period, Lockwood of Frankford was injured and had to be carried from the ice. Medical aid was summoned and he was able to return to the game in the last of the third period. The play was resumed, Stirling added to their 1-goal lead when Joblin of the defense came though the midst of the Frankford defense to notch the third counter. The Stirling goal was seriously menaced but Sprentall succeeded in turning away all shots and the period wound up with a 3-1 score.

The third frame opened with Munro making a valiant attempt to score. Coming through with only the goalie to beat, the latter came out to make the save sending Munro directly over his head. Joblin again added to the Stirling count when on an assist from Munro, he made a beautiful shot right in the corner of the Frankford net. The locals had a decided edge on the play in this period and although the skirmishes were for the most part, around the Frankford goal Sprentall of the Stirling nets, was called upon to make some marvellous saves and to him goes a good deal of credit for the Stirling win. For the visitors—F. Dafoe, V. Loney, McGillivray were outstanding while Robinson, Joblin and Munro were most effective on the local line-up. Jones played a good game on defense as did Brookes on right wing.

Line-ups:—

Stirling—Goal, Sprentall, defense, Joblin, Jones; centre, Robinson; wings, R. Brookes, Munro; Subs—B. Morton, D. Rodgers, A. Rodgers, B. Sutherland.

Frankford—Goal, Lawrence; defense, Bonisteel, V. Loney; centre, F. Dafoe; Wings M. McGillivray, Lockwood; Subs—E. Dafoe, Conley, F. Loney, H. Foster.

Referee—Earl Wallace.

HOUSEKEEPER DEATH PROBED

Inquest Jury Hears Evidence in Mystery Death

Smith's Falls, Ont., Feb. 9.—With much puzzling and startling evidence already before it a coroner's jury today resumed the inquest into the death of Miss Eva McLean, 60-year-old housekeeper for Dr. Wilton Pratt, who died from burns following a fire at Dr. Pratt's home on December 31.

Interest in the inquest is keen owing to the charges of performing illegal operations standing against Dr. Pratt who is about 60 years old himself.

Expert medical testimony last night was to the effect Miss McLean could not have endured the agony of the burns she suffered without a struggle or an outcry unless she was unconscious or in a hypnotic state.

No surface marks of violence were found on the woman's body which was badly burned from the neck to the knees, but Dr. E. R. Frankish, medico-legal expert from Toronto found a blood tumor under the scalp.

Dr. H. W. Kerfoot testified the tumor was a fresh one and might have been caused by a blow from a blunt instrument which would have knocked the woman unconscious. He said Miss McLean was a normal, healthy woman, and from conditions surrounding the burning he suspected alcoholism but was unable to find any trace of it.

Witnesses told of the doctor seeking help from a neighbor when the fire broke out, of entering the house and finding Miss McLean lying outside the doctor's bedroom door with the clothes burned from her body and moaning, of smoke pouring from a smouldering mattress in the bedroom and of burned matches scattered about the floor.

Unconscious Says Doctor.

In response to a question from the coroner, Dr. C. L. B. Stammers, Dr. Kerfoot said if the woman had been knocked unconscious and placed on the bed she might have been burned without feeling it.

Traces of blood were noted on Dr. Pratt's sleeve by a police officer and another told of finding a handkerchief with blood stains on it. Dr. Pratt denied there was any blood on his sleeve.

Another witness, Mrs. Lila Parker, said she had worked for Dr. Pratt when Miss McLean was away. The doctor had told her Miss McLean had "ruined his life and his business" and he would never have her back.

Mrs. Parker said she had left Pratt's service because there were too many cats in the house and because she objected to the doctor walking around in his short tails in front of her children.

Police Chief G. C. Bromley, testified Dr. Pratt had a vial of morphine tablets in his pocket when he was arrested and that hypodermic needles, some of them broken, were found on a dresser in his bedroom. It was also brought out that although Dr. Pratt maintained he did not sleep in his own room on the night of the tragedy, one plate of his false teeth was found on the side of the bed on which Miss McLean suffered her fatal burns. How part of the underneath section of the bed could have been burned without fire affecting the top of the mattress, was a puzzle witnesses could not fathom.

LAW AT HEELS OF KIDNAPPERS

Ten or Twelve Said to be in Gang Who Took Bremer

(By D. R. Mackenzie)

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 9.—(AP)—The law bayed close on the heels of Edward Bremer's kidnappers today.

The hunt swung in widening circles, blazed by several definite clues, while the 37-year-old victim of the kidnappers remained abed under doctor's orders.

The department of Justice, priding itself on a near-perfect record in running down abductors, bent methodically over a trail, three days cold, that led from St. Paul and ended at Rochester, Minn., where Bremer was freed late Wednesday night.

Other trails were being swiftly followed, too. There were leads which gave definite indications the law was not far behind the kidnappers and the $200,000 ransom the gang exacted for Bremer's release.

The officers had, among other information, the story of Bremer himself. The President and owner of the Commercial State Bank was not as helpful as they had hoped, officers admitted, but his story gave them several pegs on which to hang a plan of action.

Large Gang

There were 10 to 12 members of the gang, Bremer said. He based the estimate on the sound of their voices as they held him captive 22 days. He got no view of any of them, he said, for he was kept captive in a dark room from the time he was kidnapped, January 17, until three men took him in an automobile and pushed him, blindfolded, from the car in Rochester.

During his imprisonment, he said, they threatened to kill him if he disobeyed their commands; and guards, working in relays of two, were with him constantly.

Adolph Bremer, father of the kidnap victim and the man who arranged for the money with which to meet the huge ransom demand, had little to offer in the way of help to the officers.

Communications exchanged with the kidnappers, however, were available to the State, City and Federal officers who are joined in the hunt. It is on these communications and the experience of Walter Magee, the intermediary who delivered the ransom money—in $5 and $10 bills—that the officers pin their hopes.

run car in Toronto, Pridmore said: "You keep your mouth shut about that accident." A vague description of the hit and run car was received directly after finding of Bebee's dead body along side of the snow-covered road. It was described as being a coupe. Pridmore's personal automobile is a Chrysler coupe and bore the license plates C-229 of 1933 but, upon his return to Belleville, early last evening, Pridmore is alleged by the police to have purchased a new 1934 pair of license plates in Toronto bearing the number B-4517 and had them in place of the 1933 plates.

Pridmore was arrested early last evening as he was proceeding afoot and northward on Front Street. Later Constable Evans found his automobile parked in a local garage. After a preliminary investigation Pridmore and his car was taken to Bowmanville, where he will be held in connection with the death of Wm. Bebee. Provincial Constables Stringer and Campbell took both the man and his automobile to Bowmanville, where a preliminary hearing will be held today. The accused man had nothing to say relating to the matter, when taken into custody. It is alleged by the police, that Pridmore left Belleville on Tuesday afternoon, Toronto bound. He returned to the city shortly after seven p.m. last evening and was later apprehended.

The case was investigated by the city police in conjunction with the Provincial Police. Sergeant Harman, Constables Evans and Isard assisted Provincial Constable Stringer in identifying the man described by the Toronto police department after the youth allegedly riding in the car had made his confession. They also assisted in the arrest and subsequent investigation.

William Bebee, the aged man to be instantly killed by a hit and run driver near Port Hope was widely known in the vicinity in which he met his untimely death.

Upon the finding of the Pridmore automobile in a local garage by Constable Evans, the police stated that the right front fender of the car showed signs of having been recently repaired and repainted. Although Pridmore refused to comment on the matter he will undoubedly face serious charges in Bowmanville police court today. The youth, who alleges he was travelling with Pridmore at the time of the illfated accident will also be brought into court today to identify Pridmore as the man, who drove the hit and run car and warned him to "keep his mouth shut about the affair."

The accused man was arraigned in police court at Bowmanville this morning and charged with manslaughter arising out of the death of Bebee. His case was enlarged for one week pending the inquest looking into the death of the dead man, the inquest has been set for February 14th. Bail will be applied for late today.

Gave Statement

According to statements given out by Inspector F. Gardner of the Provincial Police, District No. 2, it is alleged that Pridmore gave the authorities a signed confession relating to the entire matter at an early hour today. In the statement Pridmore is said by the police to have admitted hitting some object on the highway near Port Hope last Tuesday night, but, was of the opinion, that the object was a dog. It was yellow in color, he is quoted by the police in saying. Bebee, at the time of his death, wore a pair of khaki colored trousers. It was snowing considerably at the time of the illfated accident, while the windshield of the Pridmore car was covered with a thin coating of frost, according to the statement given by the accused man. He is also alleged to have stated, that he stopped his car after hitting the object and listened for the howl of the dog he struck, upon hearing no response Pridmore is alleged to have continued his journey westward.

According to information given out by the Provincial Police later today the name of the young lad to have stated he rode in the hit and run car was given out as being James McGinn, a transient from New Brunswick. He was given "a lift" at Trenton.

PROVINCE STILL IS SHIVERING

below.

White River, Ont., upheld tradition today by being the coldest spot in the Dominion. Fifty-two below was the official reading there.

Algoma district challenged the record, however, and reported unofficial temperatures of 54 below at Hawk Junction, 55 below at Goodream, 52 below at Oba and 34 at the Soo. A dense fog had settled over that district.

No shivering Eastern Canadians were pitying the Eskimos today. In the lower Arctic rim a wave of comparatively moderate weather had set in. Aklavik reported only eight below zero, Coppermine on the northern shores of the continent was two below and Mayo was zero.

North Quebec Very Cold

Northern Quebec came in for its usual share of the frigid surge with 38 below being registered at Doucet, St. Hubert, 28 below, Quebec 26 below and Montreal, to the south, 18 below.

In the Maritimes the cold wave had begun to lift today as crippled ice coated fishing schooners and other vessels were towed in or limped in to port. Halifax recorded 12 below, Chatham 28 below, and Fredericton, 29 below.

Jack Frost played unusual pranks in some of the cities he visited. In London he glued a cynical schoolboys tongue to an iron rail in a railway subway. It took a pail of hot water to release it. In Kitchener a funeral ready to proceed to the cemetery, after the service, was unable to continue when the horses balked at the cold. A cow in Sault Ste Marie refused to give milk until a small fire was built under her by farmer Dick Moore of Cora Township. The lowest temperatures were heralded into Hamilton by the song of a robin in a downtown street.

New York's Record

New York, Feb. 9 (CP)—The United States Weather Bureau, celebrating its 64th. birthday, found temperatures in the east and northeast that made certain there would be no garden parties.

New York City had the coldest weather ever recorded in February with the mercury at an unofficial 13 degrees below zero. The temperature equalled the all time low record established December 30, 1917, which, however, was official.

The lowest February temperature ever officially recorded in the city was 6.2 degrees below February 5, 1918.

An incessant flow of cold winds from the north started the mercury down throughout the northeast yesterday and with the coming of night the mercury's drop was accelerated.

Bernard Reill, 72, died in a Newark, N.J., hospital after being picked up on the street suffering from exposure. St. Albans, Vt., had its 48th day of sub-zero temperatures this winter. Lake Ontario was frozen over for the first time in 60 years.

Traffic on the Hudson River was at a standstill with 14 inches of ice reported by rivermen at Tarrytown. That was mere skin ice, however, compared to Lake Oneida's 48 inches.

There was no promise from the Weather Bureau for any relief today. "Fair and continued cold," the weather man said, adding the crumb of comfort, "not quite so cold tomorrow."

BELLEVILLE IN GRIP OF COLD

pump house and the editorial room of the Daily Ontario Intelligencer buzzed, tinkled and sang throughout the day with requests for exact temperature readings. Hundreds of calls were answered.

Bell Telephone Company officials stated today that at least one third more calls had been handled through the local switchboard than would be registered on a normal day.

Rail traffic on the lines of the Canadian National Railway was being maintained pretty much on schedule, according to a statement from the office of the local despatcher.

Throughout the north, station agents appeared to be isolated by the cold. Several attempts on the part of the head office of the C.N.R. system to get temperature readings of the early morning were fruitless. For some unexplainable reason the agents could not be reached by telegraph key, it was reported.

Thermometer Bursts.

In the doorway of an apartment house on Victoria avenue last evening or early this morning, a small thermometer burst with the cold. Shattered fragments were picked up from the walk. Scores of other instruments along the business section sulked at various points along the scale, several of them varying as much as fifteen degrees.

Belleville General Hospital attendants failed to report the admission of a single frost bite case.

Dr. G. S. Cronk, M.O.H., stated that the weather was all to the good. A sharp drop in disease of all sorts has been noted.

No appreciable drop in attendance at local schools has been noted, except at the local Collegiate Institute, where it was reported that only among the rural scholars was attendance slightly below normal.

Milk delivery men on city routes were given two standing orders today by the larger dairies. The first was to warm the metal bit before putting it into the horse's mouth when harnessing him. An order was also given to place the filled bottle in some sheltered position on the verandah, between storm door and house door when possible.

Services Frozen.

Department store and other store owners found themselves hard put to find some means of keeping the heavy frost off display windows. Electric fans buzzed in the windows all night in a hopeless attempt to keep the glass clear.

Telegraph boys at both offices found it necessary to thaw the frozen grease in the hubs after almost every trip.

Static in the air caused by the continued cold and dry air was so heavy on Thursday that distinct shocks were felt by numbers of residents when their fingers touched metal door knobs. Pressmen in newspaper plants watched the running presses anxiously, hoping against a break in the web of paper which clung tenaciously to the steel rollers from the effect of the same static.

From throughout the district stories connected with the cold weather, filter into the city. A farmer in Sidney has been reported using woollen mitts while milking the cows. Another resident of the same concession has been handling the frozen milk from the pails to separator with ice tongs. Frozen sparrows and other birds are noted on the country roads and in the city streets. Stray dogs and cats have disappeared entirely from the streets.

Relief officers stated that the cold weather was causing suffering and misery to many needy families, and reiterated their appeal to local residents for help in supplying warm clothing and other needed articles for the applicants who have been swamping the office.

Fuel dealers report the past month's business almost equal to any three months of previous winters in amount of sales.

For the first time this year the Moira River has been almost frozen over the whole length, except for a small open gap in the swift water above the upper bridge.

Daniel Boland, Dundas street, caught thirteen rats in a trip in the hen house on Thursday, and the majority of them froze to death before they could be disposed of.

Ice on the Bay of Quinte was said to have added another four inches in thickness during the past week.

Janitors of schools and other public buildings report the use of considerable extra quantities of fuel, but little difficulty is being experienced in keeping the buildings warm during the day time. The absence of wind has been the chief reason.

At the office of the local Hydro everything was reported "normal". "Although," stated manager O. H. Scott, "I believe that people are using a little more current these days owing to heaters and so on."

The plumbers worked all night. One well known mechanic stated today that he had been on the job with blow torch and tools since nine o'clock last night, and expected to be very busy until nine o'clock this evening, with only a half hour or so off for lunch.

Ice is believed to have formed on the stand pipe of the city water works system on the east hill to a considerable depth from the top, although just how thick the ice is will not be known until spring, when expansion will life the mass to the top.

Farmer Milks With Mits On

Here's how cold it was in the second concession of Sidney. One prominent farmer on that line stated today that it was so cold while they were milking last evening that the milk froze solidly in the pails. Dumping the solid block of frozen milk out of the container it was then carried into the kitchen, where, after it was melted, it was fed to the separator.

The same farmer said that a neighbor of his has been milking with woollen mitts on since the start of the real cold weather.

A joint meeting of the Women's Auxiliary and Guild of St. John's Anglican church was held in the church vestry on Wednesday afternoon. A general business discussion was held pertinent for the most part, to the pancake tea of next week. The ladies spent some time at quilting following which Rev. A. S. McConnell, rector, addressed them asking for their co-operation and assistance in making the Lenten services of paramount importance in their family lives. The program of which Mrs. Hiram Rogers and Mrs. Earl Morrow were conveners was an attractive one and was centred around Pauline Johnson and her poems.

The life of Pauline Johnson was excellently given by Mrs. Edgar Morrow following which Mrs. Hiram Rodgers recited "Easter" and Mrs. Clarence Chard, "Ojistoh," with depth of feeling. The concluding number was a violin solo by Miss Alice Calow, B.A., accompanied at the organ by Mrs. H. H. Alger. A dainty luncheon was served after which the gathering dispersed.

Rev. J. A. Koffend returned home on Wednesday having completed the anniversary services and their attending social obligations at Evangel Hall, Toronto. Large crowds flocked to the old church on Queen Street and vast numbers were turned away. Rev. R. J. (pastor of the church) and Mrs. Koffend were presented with a letter of appreciation, a silver tea service and tea wagon by an appreciative congregation.

Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Coombes were Friday and Saturday guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Morgan of Halloway.

Miss Jean McCubbin of the Stirling Public School staff, is ill. Mrs. Harper Rollins is relieving in her place.

Little Miss Edith Cranston was rushed to the Belleville General Hospital on Wednesday night where she underwent an operation for appendicitis. Dr. E. A. Carleton is the attending physician while Dr. Stobie performed the operation.

Mr. Chas. Allen spent a few days visiting friends in Belleville this week.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

"GOING HOLLYWOOD"

More than a baker's dozen of moviedom's most tuneful and funniest leading citizens are with Marion Davies in her Metro Goldwyn Mayer production, "Going Hollywood" now at the Capitol.

At the top of the unbeatable cast stands Miss Davies, one of the screen's loveliest comediennes who has scored successive triumphs in "Blondie of the Follies," "Peg O' My Heart" and more than a score of other picture romances.

In "Going Hollywood", Miss Davies plays the role of a lovelorn girl who falls in love with a radio crooner's voice, pursues him across the country to Hollywood, where, quite accidentally, she achieves fame as a film star.

Throughout the film story is woven a musical romance which includes a series of six song numbers composed for Miss Davies by Nacio Herb Brown and Arthur Freed, two of the musical world's most successful young song writers and co-authors of the national song hits, "The Wedding of the Painted Doll" and "The Woman in the Shoe".

Dance numbers and group ensembles illustrating the song hits have been created by Albertina Rasch, premier dancing instructor and whose originality of dance medium has been copied and followed by other dance supervisors.

Bing Crosby, radio's topmost crooner of love ballads, supports Miss Davies as the crooner whose mellow voice entrances her in "Going Hollywood", and who eventually is captured by her persistent love-pursuit.

Fifi D'Orsay, vivacious French comedienne, is the third tangent in the love triangle. French-Canadian born, Miss D'Orsay only recently swept the theatre public with enthusiasm following her discovery by Will Rogers with whom she played in her first motion picture.

"Mickey's Touchdown".

On the same program there is a comedy that will delight not only the kiddies but the adults. titled "Mickey Touchdown", Cinderella Carton and Capitol News Reel, that is news. On Saturday Chapter Eight of the "Whispering Shadow".

AT THE BELLE

4 MARX BROS. IN "DUCK SOUP"

The Mad Marxes....all four of them. Girls, girls, girls, headed by vivacious Raquel Torres and songs you'll be humming for some time. Put them all together and they spell "Duck Soup", the comedians newest Paramount rib-tickling comedy, which comes to the Belle tomorrow (Saturday) and Monday, matinee daily.

In addition you'll see Margaret Dumont, the dignified actress who has been stamped on and clowned with in several of the Marx Brothers' other pictures and Louis Calhern, who plays "the menace".

Directed by Leo McCarey, "Duck Soup" presents Groucho as the Dictator of Freedonia, mythical country badly in need of funds, the ambassador of Sylvania has two spies, Harpo and Chico, upon whom he depends for much of his information. But he doesn't know that they will work for any country where the food is better and the blondes more numerous.

Naturally Groucho knows their weaknesses and sees to it that they work for him too. Groucho, though, has to watch his step. One spy, Raquel Torres won't be misled so easily. In fact, she misleads Groucho. Finally to get rid of his enemies Groucho declares war. The enemy has 2500 men. Groucho has 7500. and to even things up, he sends 2500 of his men to the other side.

From the opening of the pictude ....a typical Marxian explosion.... to the final barrage of war, the film is one continuous uproar of merriment. Gags happen so fast and so furiously that it is impossible to "catch" all of them.

Excellent Shorts

FATHER HUBBARD AND HIS HERO

Father Bernard R. Hubbard, padre of the glaciers, is back in Los Angeles after his explorations in volcanos in Alaska. With him came a puppy-faced, blue-eyed brunette, a matinee idol—even though his father was a big, bad wolf. That's Magiek, No. 1 sled dog for Father Hubbard. Magiek was the chief topic of conversation and has become Father Hubbard's faithful bodyguard. Magiek is the only one of his kind known in Alaska. His mother was half wolf. His father was all wolf, but he looks like a cross between a bulldog, a St. Bernard and a shepherd. And his eyes are pale, childlike blue. Photo shows Father Bernard R. Hubbard with his faithful dog, Magiek.

Apparently caring little for the wagging tongues of gossips who assert they are engaged, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., American movie star, and Gertrude Lawrence, famous English star of the stage, are snapped while dancing at a club in London where Fairbanks is vacationing. Reports are that young Douglas and Miss Lawrence may consider matrimony when his divorce from Joan Crawford, film star, becomes final. Meanwhile Doug Sr., is in another part of London.

Miss Rambo, a dancer, will leave soon for London where she and her prince are to be married in February. They plan to live in London and later, perhaps in India.

(7)—Width of face across cheeks equals two lengths of nose. Judged the possessor of the most perfect face in the movie kingdom, Sylvia Sydney, Paramount star, has been selected by a group of beauty experts presided over by Wally Wastmore, Hollywood makeup authority, as having the most perfect face for make-up. Her face has been accepted by the Southern California Cosmetologists as a standard for beauty.

HE LEARNED THE ART IN THE SWISS ALPS

Canadian honors for needle threading are claimed by Martin Antoine of Brockville, Ontario, but Felix Locher (ABOVE) of Los Angeles, is apt to dispute the claim on the grounds that Antoine used too big a needle and too small a thread. Felix himself mastered the art on a mountain-climbing expedition in the Swiss Alps and can thread 73 strands of thread through a No. 4 needle, where the Canadian used a No. 3. Thus another international squabble is in embryo. Locher suggests an international sweepstake with no holds or splices barred.

Newsy Reminiscences Along Main Street

AIRING OUT—

Whatever became of the old-fashioned housewife whose first chore in the morning after the kids had been chased off to school was to wrap a dust cloth around her head and then throw open the doors and windows of the downstairs part of the house for an hour or so "to air out"? She still survives reports an East Hill observer. While the observer walked along one of the residential streets on his way to work on Thursday morning he saw the active housewife vigorously shaking a dust mop from one open window, while all the other doors and windows of the house stood open to the vagrant winds of the coldest day of the year. He remembers he shivered slightly at the sight, in sympathy with a very old and bored looking family dog which sat on the mat just outside the open door and also chattered his teeth in the cold.

SO HELP ME!—

This has the added feature of being true, and is relayed by one Gordon Street resident as being a good joke on a neighbor on the same street. The gentleman in question very carefully wound up the family alarm clock the other evening just before retiring, set the alarm, and then walked to the front door and carefully deposited the clock on the door step. Then he collected two milk bottles, put them under his arm and mounted the stairs to bed. He didn't snap out of it until he saw his wife eyeing him in a sort of curious fashion when he put the milk bottles down. This sounds kind of flat in print, but you should have heard the neighbor tell it.

FUR HATS—

A gentleman of the city says that things are going to the dogs. For days now he has been trying to get a regular he-man's fur hat of the style worn years ago, but not a store in town seems to carry them. He says he's tried them all, but the best the clerks can do is to rustle up something that looks like a cross between an aviator's helmet and one of those patent ready-made nests for a hen house. One clerk, he remembers, tried to sell him a sort of turban-like thing that he said was all the style. It had bare spots here and there, and little patches of fur in the other spots, like a collie dog that had been clipped with the sheep shears for summer. He waved this one away and went to the next store. They told him there they didn't have any in, and didn't expect to get any. No call for them, it was pointed out. But, they'd order one. T[illegible] about a week. The man said [illegible] and went home and drew a picture on a piece of paper of a regular old fashioned fur hat. He said he had a few more stores to try, and he was getting kind of tired explaining just what it was he wanted.

MAKING A LOCOMOTIVE

A young lady recently visited the locomotive works, and then later told some of her friends how a locomotive is made.

"You pour a lot of sand into a lot of boxes," she explained, "and you throw old stove lids and things into a furnace, and then you empty the molten stream into a hole in the sand, and everybody yells and swears. Then you pour it out and let it cool, and then you pound it, and put it in a thing that bores holes in it. Then you screw it together and paint it, and put steam in it and it goes splendidly; and they take it to a draughting room and make a blue print of it. But one thing I forgot—they have to make a boiler. One man gets inside and one man outside, and they pound frightfully, and then they tie it to the other thing, and you ought to see it go."—New Zealand Railways Magazine.

LAUREL AND HARDY

Did you know that the fa[illegible] comedy team of Laurel and H[illegible] has become so popular that they have twelve pseudonyms in the countries where their pictures are played in foreign languages? They are known as Helan and Halvan (Norway); Dog and Cokkle (Germany), Dik and Dof (Hungary) Stan es Pan (Poland); Flip I Flap (Roumania); O Bucha e O Estica (Portugal); Crik and Crok (Italy); Xonapoe and Azmoe (Greece); El Tikhin and Puel Roufain (Egypt); Hashamen ve Haraze (Palestine); Simon ve Zaif (Turkey).

17 YEAR OLD FIRE IS OUT

Started in Soft Coal Mine in Year 1917

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 9.—The Civil Works Administration is getting ready to answer a 17-year-old fire alarm in Pennsylvania. Intermittently since 1917, public and private interests have battled a subterranean blaze in a soft coal vein on the outskirts of Connellsville. The fight has been costly, but futile. Families who for years lived within a few feet of the flames, oblivious of them, are now being forced from their homes by deadly fumes. Eating its way to the surface, the blaze has caved in a State highway. The CWA Federal relief agency came to the rescue today, with announcement that more than $20,000 had been appropriated for the firefighting project. Eighty men will get two months' work. Engineers plan to use dynamite, plows, picks and shovels. The object is to seal the mine, long ago abandoned.

RACE HORSE SUIT HEARD AT NAPANEE

Judge Deroche Dismisses Both Claim and Counter Claim

NAPANEE, Feb. 9.—An interesting case was heard in Division Court before Judge G. E. Deroche of Belleville on Wednesday, the case starting in the morning and concluding in the early afternoon.

Robert Graham sued F. D. Marsh for services of training horses, the amount being $175.50. Mr. Marsh counter claimed an account and certain charges for entrance fees on race horses, the sum involved being $150.20. The whole counter claim was disputed with the exception of two items amounting to $10.50, which Graham admitted.

Judge Deroche accepted the plaintiff's version of the transaction between him and Marsh, but found as no bargain had been made with respect to the training of the seven horses, and since he had made a bargain previously to train another horse for half the winnings, he assumed the other horses had been trained on the same terms.

Judge Deroche dismissed both claim and counter claim with the exception of the $10.50 admitted by Graham, each party to pay his own costs.

J. M. Simpson, K.C., appeared for Mr. Graham, while W. S. Herrington, K.C., appeared for Mr. Marsh.

RELIEF OFFICE MAKES APPEAL

Somewhere in this city, stored away neglected, there's a stove—a bed—a child's cot, perhaps useless to the present owner.

Cold weather, the coldest in memory of the oldest residents of the district, has struck a crippling blow at the city's needy. Actual misery, distress is felt in certain quarters of the city, wherein even the more kindly weather, certain families have had a struggle to survive. The Central Relief office in the city is swamped by needy applicants, who beg pleadingly for help and assistance in combatting the elements, which have dealt so unkindly with them.

Beds, warm clothing for children and adult, stoves, a child's cot—other necessaries are vitally needed by the Central Office. Some donations have been made by local citizens, but they haven't been half enough. Just a 'phone call to 69W is all that is necessary to have a city truck call for anything that may be of us to some needy family.

TARZAN AT THE EARTH'S CORE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Under Tarzan's leadership his strangely assorted party set out toward the river. Luckily they found the long boat of the Korsars' war-party, only three of whom remained as prisoners with the ape-man. The Horibs had killed all the others and left the boat where they had moored it. It proved big enough to hold them all and under the oars of the Waziri the staunch craft was launched out upon the waters of the River of Darkness.

As they floated toward the sea the river widened and it became possible to hoist a sail. Progress then became more rapid. Dimly visible in the distance, Tarzan sighted an island toward which they steered. Upon it, they found game aplenty and fresh water. Making camp, they prepared for the long voyage across Pellucidars upcurving sea to the city of Korsar. Meat was dried or smoked, water put in bladders and great quantities stored abroad to last them if a storm should sweep the boat from its course.

Jana worked willingly with the men at the task of preparing for the voyage. Never once had she betrayed any interest in Jason's presence or spoken to him. It got on the American's nerves. "What's the big idea, Jana?" he said one day. "Both of us would be a lot happier if you would find your tongue." Over her shoulder she tossed him a mocking laugh as she replied, "I am as happy as possible —until Thoar takes me back to Zoram." Rebuffed again, Jason concluded the stalwart Thoar was her accepted suitor.

At length, all preparations ended, the company embarked upon the hazardous sea trip toward distant Korsar. They were often beset by angry and voracious monsters of the deep. But when all other methods of defense failed, the Waziri's rifles proved a sure protection. So without chart or stars to guide them, the never-moving sun of Pellucidar shining straight upon the dancing waves, the monotonous timelessness continued without a sign of land or men.

Police Win Possession of Riot Ridden Streets After Night of Fighting

Shots Exchanged Freely And Several Fatalities Reported

STREWN WRECKAGE

Riots Extend Over Wider Area Than on Previous Occasions

(By Stuart Moroney Associated Press Staff Writer).

Paris, Feb. 10 (AP)—Hand-to-hand fighting and pitched battles across burning barricades ebbed shortly before dawn today when thousands of police won possession of several miles of riot-ridden streets terrorised throughout the night by Communist bands.

Shots were exchanged freely. There were unconfirmed reports of several fatalities. Two score police and hundreds of rioters were in hospitals, some wounded gravely.

Police held the Place De La Republique—a Communist rendezvous —but columns of rioters that split into small bands produced a hundred hot fights simultaneously over an area a mile square in northeast Paris.

While the night-long fighting raged, Premier Gaston Doumergue had the streets of Paris posted with a proclamation calling upon all Frenchmen to "do your duty" by refraining from rioting for the sake of France.

Streets Strewn With Wreckage

Hardly had his "political truce cabinet" been formed than riots in which 14 have died this week blazed anew. It was morning before the last band of rioters had been dispersed, pulling down telephone poles and leaving dozens of streets strewn with wreckage as they fled.

Today the Premier and the 20 seasoned statesmen hand-picked for his "salvation ministry" concentrated on plans to end disorders and show the world "this country has no need for a dictator to assure its existence."

But government officials saw in last night's outbreak a foretaste of what Monday's 24-hour general strike, called by the French Federation of Labor, might bring.

Two rioters called their demonstration against what they termed a "wave of Fascism." The cry was echoed in Socialist quarters supporting the strike movement.

Neither Socialists nor Communists were included in the new government.

Leon Jouhaux, President of the Labor Federation, disclaimed any intention to manifest in the streets Monday, but police feared Communists would stir up trouble on a larger scale than ever.

Demonstrations Tuesday were directed against the government, it was charged high officials were implicated in manipulations resulting in the failure of the Bayonne Municipal Pawnshop. Royalists joined in.

Wednesday's disorders rose partly from public indignation at the shooting of civilians Tuesday.

Extended Over Wide Area

Since then, Communists and street hoodlums have taken the lead in violence. The riots which raged last night and early today extended over a far wider area than either Tuesday's or Wednesday's battles. The Communists took the streets not so much to manifest, police charged, as to fight.

When police broke up their march toward the Place De La Republique where they had announced a demonstration, they broke into small sections.

Groups would flee into side streets, only to reappear and attack police anew. Running battles quickly developed. The rioters fired freely into the ranks of the police who fired mostly into the air.

Finally the Communists built huge street barricades of newspaper kiosks and benches. Torches were applied. From behind these blazing barriers they battled with gunfire and showers of paving stones.

The two biggest barricades of fire were reared in the boulevards Voltaire and Belleville. Police were repulsed time and again, but finally closed in from the rear.

In a last desperate stand, in Belleville Boulevard, the rioters overturned a private automobile on a sidewalk and fired it.

Then they fled howling defiance as police bore down upon them with clubs swinging.

PLEAS FOR FARMER

And A. H. Wagstaff (ex-sergeant-major of the Royal Artillery) presented a plea at the ministry of agriculture in London for the farm laborer. As he stood outside the ministry building in Whitehall fettered in chains, he brought back to the passing throng memories of the militant suffragettes, who, in another day were wont to chain themselves to light standards, when the authorities refused them the right to picket.

Judgment is Reserved In Blasphemy Case

Montreal, Feb. 10.—(CP - Placards allegedly plastered on the walls of the French Anglican Church, corner Sherbrooke and Cartier Streets, by the pastor, Rev. Victor Rahard, a former Roman Catholic, which bore statements about the mass said to constitute blasphemy, were weaker in wording than the articles of faith of the Church of England, A. H. Tanner, K C., submitted to Judge J. O. Lacroix here when the minister appeared for trial on a charge of blasphemous libel

"How can the King, represented by a Crown prosecutor, reproach a minister of the Anglican Church for the use of weaker language than the very language of that church of which His Majesty is the material head?" the lawyer asked.

Judgement was reserved until Feb. 20 on Mr. Tanner's motion challenging the jurisdiction of the court to hear the case.

Former Follower of Gandhi Feigns Blindness and Deafness

Calcutta, India, Feb. 10. — Nila Cram Cook was carried aboard the steamship City of Elwood bound for the United States today after three hectic hours during which she locked herself in a bathroom and refused to dress.

Feigning blindness and dumbness, the American woman who formerly was a follower of Mahatma Gandhi, refused to speak to her seven-year-old son waiting aboard the ship.

For hours afterward, she would not open her eyes.

Anticipating a violent outburst, police were on hand at a women's lodging house where she had taken refuge in a bathroom.

It was only after prolonged persuasion that she permitted members of the lodging house staff to dress her in clothes provided by the United States consulate relief committee.

Staff members then carried her to a taxi and finally to the ship. Ahere, fearing yet another outburst pending the vessel's departure, police were stationed near her cabin.

FOUR-MAN DIRECTORSHIP STRIKES HARD

Foreign Affairs To Deal With German Problem

PACT WITH DUCE

France Endeavours to Head Off German Union With Austria

Paris, Feb. 10.—The new French government today set up a four-man directorship headed by Premier Gaston Doumergue to handle foreign affairs swiftly and vigorously and strike hard against the possibility of a German union with Austria.

With Doumergue, the directorship is composed of vice-premier Andre Tardieu, vice-premier Edouard Herriot, and Louis Barthou, minister of foreign affairs.

The directorship intends to seek an agreement with Premier Mussolini of Italy and the little entente —Rumania, Czecho-Slovakia and Bulgaria—for the strong support of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss of Austria and for a general solution of the central European situation.

The continuance of Austrian independence is viewed by the new French cabinet as an urgent matter superseding the problems of disarmament, war debts, and import quotas.

The composition of the foreign affairs directorship is made possible by the fact that Doumergue, Tardieu, and Herriot are without portfolios and thus are able to concentrate with any ministry on any particular problem.

$20,000 FIRE AT PRESTON

Business Block in Centre of Town is Wiped Out

Preston, Ont., Feb. 10—Fire of unknown origin breaking out at midnight, did damage estimated at $20,000 to the Ziemann Block during early morning hours today.

Local firemen battled the fire through 40 degrees below zero weather and finally got the flames under control. The block is occupied by N. Jacobi Ltd. dry goods who suffered $10,000 loss to stock through smoke and water; the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. who suffered only slight water damage; the Masonic Lodge, whose properties covered by insurance, were almost totally destroyed, and three apartments.

A bible on the altar in the Masonic room, in the very midst of the flames, was undamaged by fire, the only damage being caused by a slight coating of ice on the top cover.

A ladder company from Galt assisted local firemen. Two fire fighters were slightly lacerated, while several were frost bitten.

TOSSED FROM BEDS AS BOMB BURSTS

Meat And Baker Market Blown up By Two Men

Cliffside Park, N.J, Feb. 10—(CP) —A dynamite bomb early today demolished the baker and meat market of Stephen Russo, tossed the family from their beds in living quarters back to the store and shattered windows for a block around.

Police are seeking two men who drove quickly away in a green sedan after one of them touched a match to a fuse of the bomb placed in the bakery doorway.

River Flows Backward Ice Jams Are Cause

Vaudreuil, Que., Feb. 10.—Spring floods loom as a certainty in the Vaudreuil and Cascades region of Soulanges County as a result of ice blockades at the western confluence of the St. Lawrence and Ottawa Rivers.

The black waters of the Ottawa have been reversed in their flow and are now swirling back over the adjacent mainland and Ile Perrot shores; back under the main line bridges of both railways and the Ottawa-Montreal highway bridge into the Lake of Two Mountains from whence it came.

Huge New German 'Plane Under Construction

The projected construction of a 170-passenger transatlantic airliner by the Rumpler Aircraft Company of Germany, once again revives the dream of giant aircraft, the size of present-day ocean liners, to span the oceans between sunrise and sunset. The ABOVE shows one artist's conception of the "Aeroplane of the Future" as it would appear at a loading dock, taking on passengers and freight for its hop to foreign shores. A craft of this type would carry 1,500 passengers in addition to the huge amount of baggage, freight, mail and autos. The aeroplane designed by the Rumpler company is a bit more conservative, carrying but 170 passengers and 13,000 pounds of mail and freight. It has a wing span of 288 feet and will be powered by 10 motors of 1,000 horsepower each. The ship, a flying boat, will weigh 72 tons and will carry a pay load of 20 tons at a speed of 187 miles-per-hour, or fast enough to span the route from Berlin to New York in about seventeen hours.

W. E. TUMMON AS ALTERNATE

May be Member on Federal Probe, It is Said

Ottawa, Feb. 10—Organization of the special Parliamentary committee which is to probe mass buying by chain and department stores, the live stock marketing business, and trade and finance in all its ramifications, is virtually completed.

An interesting development will be a demand from the Liberal members for an exhaustive investigation into the textile industry and the agricultural implement industry, in which the farmers of Canada, particularly, are interested. It is said the agrarians are not so much concerned with the mass buying policies of the department stores.

The marketing of live stock and the alleged absence of any real competition on the Toronto cattle and hog market will also be thoroughly probed as the Government is convinced the farmers have a grievance against the huge meat packing concerns which dictate prices for fat cattle, hogs, sheep and lambs.

The purchasing methods of the great tobacco companies will also be ventilated. It is reported representative tobacco growers of Western Ontario are prepared to come to Ottawa and reveal something about the lack of competition among the buyers for the big manufacturers who are thus enabled to fix their own prices.

British Columbia will be represented by Mr. Stevens; Alberta by a Progressive, D. M. Kennedy (Peace River); Saskatchewan by a Liberal, E. J. Young (Weyburn); Manitoba by a Conservative, W. W. Kennedy (Winnipeg); Ontario by two Conservatives, who are likely to be Alex. Edwards (South Waterloo), a well known business man, and Mark Senn (Haldimand), whose effective work in directing the milk probe before the Committee on Agriculture last session won him wide commendation. An alternative Conservative member of the committee for Ontario is W. E. Tummon (Hastings South), while the third member from Ontario on the committee will be a Liberal, Samuel Factor (Toronto West Centre).

BACKFIRE CAUSES BRIGADE RUN

A backfire on an automobile in a Coleman Street garage just below West Bridge Street on Friday afternoon gave firemen a run through the zero whipped streets. Threatening clouds of smoke issuing from the hood of the machine in the garage was the most dangerous aspect of the trouble. No damage was caused the machine.

MILD WEATHER SOON FOLLOWS

Cold Wave is Definitely Over According to Weatherman

(By the Canadian Press)

"Becoming milder."

These two words from the Meteorological office in Toronto today brought the first promise of relief for Eastern Canadians since the most ruthless cold wave of the current winter set in over the greater part of the Dominion two days ago.

Throughout last night temperatures began to moderate slightly as the Arctic wave started on a south-eastern course for New York State. Temperatures would moderate gradually during the week end, Meteorological officials promised, and Canadians will enjoy comparatively mild weather during the next several days.

Easing of frigid temperatures was noticed in Canada's cold spot, White River, Ont., where the mercury jumped from below the 30 mark, where it rested yesterday to a mere eight degrees below zero today. The "cold-spot-in-Canada" title was seized by Doucet in Northern Quebec where the mercury today remained at 44 below. This was the lowest official recording on the continent.

Still Low Temperatures

But while there was a slight rise from the extreme "lows" of the past two days, temperatures in Quebec, Ontario and the Maritimes still remained far from mild today.

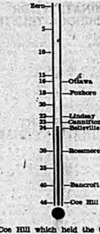
The coldest section of Ontario was the north west and central region where it was 20 below and under when official readings were made. Haileybury reported 22 below, Parry Sound 22 below, Southampton 24 below, and Ottawa 18 below. To the south Toronto had seen the mercury shoot from 21 to 10 below, London was 16 below, and Kingston 14 below.

The promise of moderating weather came as equally good news to Quebec where Saturday dawned on shivering citizens, turning up their coat collars against the 20 below zero winds. Montreal had found the mercury had risen to 10 below today, and Quebec 10 below, St. Hubert, just outside Montreal recorded 22 below.

The Maritimes were feeling the tail end of the cold wave and the temperatures hovered in the vicinity of four and five below the cipher. West of Winnipeg over the Prairie provinces and the Pacific coast spring-like weather prevailed.

Lord Bishop of Diocese Dedicates New Church to the Worship of God

DID YOU SAY COLD?



Coe Hill which held the title of Ontario's coldest spot and lacked just two points of capturing the Dominion title on Thursday with a temperature of 56 below zero, retained its laurels on Saturday for the coldest spot in the county with a mark of 46 below. Bancroft in the north came a close second with a low mark of 40. From this point, ranging up the scale of thermometers, various registrations were recorded, as the above chart shows. Belleville basked in the comparatively high temperature of 24 below. A nipping wind which blew through the district during the night and on Saturday morning made it appear even colder than it was. But, according to experts, it wasn't the cold . . . it was the humidity which made local residents blow on frosty fingers and hold tingling ears. According to a humidity guage the water content of the air over the district was extraordinarily high. Several of the above official registrations are furnished through the courtesy of the local office of the Canadian National Railways.

St. Mark's Anglican Church at Bonarlaw is Completed

RECTOR ASSISTS

St. Mark's Church, Gift of Late George Simpson of Parish

Regardless of bitterly cold weather, parishioners of St. Mark's Bonarlaw, congregated in such numbers Friday morning at 11 o'clock, that the seating capacity of the new church, which they had assembled to witness dedicated, was taxed to its utmost. The early hours of the morning had sub-zero temperatures of 43 to 45 degrees in that little north-Hastings' community. Devoutly, reverently and with thankfulness to God in their hearts those who come under the pastoral administration and spiritual guidance of the Rev. Canon W. G. Swayne, met yesterday forenoon in their new abode of worship and joined with their Lord Bishop in the ceremony of dedicating it to the service of God through Jesus Christ His Son and humanity's Redeemer.

Made possible by the benificence of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Simpson, former members of St. Mark's parish, erection of the new structure started the first of August of last year. On the twenty-sixth of September, under Masonic direction, the corner-stone was laid by Most Worshipful Grand Master W. S. Herrington, K.C. of Napanee, with a splendidly representative gathering of members of the Masonic Order from throughout the district present. His Lordship, the Bishop of Ontario, conducted the religious ceremony on that occasion and with him were fourteen other clergymen from the parishes of his diocese.

"PETTING" UNKNOWN IN DARKENED ROOMS

Hamilton, Ont., Feb. 10 (CP) — "Petting" in darkened rooms during college "formals" is unknown at McMaster University here according to the gowned authorities. Upon learning that such practice had been scorned by the student organ of one Canadian University, Chancellor H. P. Whidden said: "I never heard of anything like that at any university. I certainly don't know about anything like that here. The students' council would never permit it."

Child Dies of Rat Poison Taken by Mistake

Simcoe, Ont., Feb. 10.—(CP)— Investigation into the death of Mabel Brown, 15, at the Norfolk General Hospital Wednesday night disclosed she had consumed by accident a large quantity of rat poison. The rat poison had been bought for ordinary purposes in her home and how she came to consume it, was not revealed.

SEVEN TRANSIENTS AT POLICE STATION

But seven transients applied at the local police station for a warm night's lodging on Friday night. According to the police records kept a marked falling off of transients desiring a warm bed these cold nights has been in evidence during the past week. The present cold weather experienced is accredited to the diminished numbers of transients on the tramp. Thursday night of this week saw the largest number taken care of at the police station, when ten applied for warm quarters in which to sleep.

City and District News

NORTH ROADS IN GOOD CONDITION

Warmer weather is needed before county employees tackle the job of repairing roads, stated Mr. Simeon Fox, county road superintendent today, following his return to the city after a trip of inspection through North Hastings this week.

"Roads are in fine shape, considering everything" stated the superintendent. Considerable work, however will be necessary ater on, it was intimated.

Three gangs are at present working on road repairs in the north section of the county. One crew is repairing roads south of Ormsby, while two more gangs are working near Egan's Creek and Hall's Hill.

CONNECTING LINK IS SURVEYED

Government surveyors at present according to reports, are busy laying out the route of the extension of No. 37 Highway to link up with No. 7 at Actinolite. The road will proceed along the west side of the river and a bridge will be built across the Moira near the storage plant of the Belleville Creameries, north of the Sulphide road. It is said that the bridge will cost in the neighborhood of $12,000, and if built will provide work for a large number of men.

COST INCREASES SINCE THAT TIME

A forgotten man, who served the city back in 1888, when the first work of installing the waterworks system was commenced, left behind him an account book with neatly pencilled figures of paid accounts incidental to the work, which contrast vividly with present day prices for labor and material.

The small book, dusty with age, was unearthed in one of the executive offices at the city hall this week. It contains as one item the following account:

Two picks sharpened.
Two cape chisels sharpened
One pick sharpened
Quarter of a cord of wood.
Total cost: $1.40.

The book was at one time owned by Frank Mills, evidently a timekeeper or foreman, whose name has long since been forgotten by officials at the city hall.

MANY SERVICES ARE THAWED OUT

With scores of phone calls still being received at the office of the department, waterworks employees were laboring again today since dawn on the job of electrically thawing the hundreds of frozen water services, which had been put out of commission in all parts of the city by nipping fingers of Jack Frost yesterday on the coldest day in memory. With only one thawing machine in use, the emergency crews found themselves unable to keep up with the demands from arid householders for service. It is expected that all employees will work throughout the day Sunday to catch up. One frozen fire hydrant the first since the cold weather was being thawed today on Front Street.

FIRE OFFICIALS INSPECT CITY

There is little likelihood of any serious conflagration starting in this city owing to lack of water to fight it caused by frozen hydrants, or the failure of chemicals through freezing in their containers. A sharp watch is being kept by Fire Chief Lynch over the equipment and supplies needed to fight a fire at the first outbreak. An extra stove has been necessary at one of the halls to keep things from freezing up, while all chemical tanks have been carefully wrapped and insulated against the unprecedented cold. Through the night special watch is also kept of the stove fires used to heat the halls. Just one hydrant was reported frozen today by the waterworks department, who were working valiantly during the morning on Front Street near Victoria Avenue to thaw it.

FULL FORCE OF WORKERS AT ISLAND

A full force of workers returned to the job today on the relief work at Zwick's Island, determined to put in the whole day on the job in spite of the cold weather and cutting winds. The same average number of 200 were being employed. Excavation work on the island is made doubly hard owing to the extreme hardness of the earth by the penetrating frost.

NOMINATION FOR SCHOOL TRUSTEE

Nomination for a representative from Bleecker Ward to fill a vacancy from that ward on the Board of Education will be held at the city hall on Monday. It is expected that a representative will be named without the formality and trouble of balloting for choice.

FIRE EQUIPMENT IN GREAT SHAPE

In company with Fire Chief William Lynch of the local department, and city engneer Chas. A. Mott, Mr. C. Clarmount of the Ontario Fire Marshall's office at Toronto made a complete tour of inspection of this city on Friday afternoon. The inspection of local properties is a routine one that is being carried out by the department in municipalities throughout the province.

DWELLING IN MAYO BURNED

The dwelling of Robert Peacock in Mayo Township, North Hastings, was destroyed by fire. Some bedding and personal clothing was saved. Mrs. R. OBITUARY

ROBERT THOMPSON BUSH

STIRLING — The funeral of the late Robert Thompson Bush, who passed away at his home in the Eight Concession of Sidney early Wednesday morning, was held on Friday, February 9th at 2 p.m. Services were under the direction of the brethren of Oddfellows Order and were conducted in St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, by Rev. F. G. Joblin of the Rawdon circuit in the absence through illness of the pastor, Rev. E. W. Rowland. The hymns sung by the choir were "I do not ask Oh Lord that Life may be a Pleasant Road" and "Jesus, Lover of My Soul", while a pleasing duet, "Across the River, One by One" was rendered by Mrs. J. G. Butler and Mrs. Percy Hubble. Rev. Joblin took as the Scriptural reading, the Twenty-third Psalm and as his text for the sermon, John, Chapter 13, verse 7. The minister spoke with feeling of the deceased man's devotion to his church, his family and his home and while sympathising with the bereaved ones on their tribulation, asked that God might mitigate their grief and lighten the burden. Owing to the severity of the weather, the burial services were conducted in the church, likewise under the auspices of the Oddfellows. The funeral cortège then proceeded to Stirling Cemetery for interment. Six intimate friends of the deceased man and all members of the Oddfellows acted as bearers: Messrs. Arthur Vandervoort, Arthur Pyear, Jack Thompson, Bert Sarles, Sheldon McIntosh, and Harry Hulin.

Death occurred following a comparatively brief illness. Deceased was born in the Eighth of Sidney, forty-five years ago, the son of the late William Bush and Annie Miller Bush and has been engaged in the farming occupation for his entire lifetime. Fifteen years ago, he was united in marriage to Frances Hessman Bush who survives her husband. Two children are also left to mourn Evelyn aged 12 and Eleanor aged 6. Three sisters and six brothers survive, the death of the late Robert Bush, being the first break in the family circle. These are: Mrs. Jared Hanna, Corbyville, Mrs. Mary Vandervoort, 8th Sidney, Mrs. Percy Utman of 9th of Sidney; Arthur of Glen Miller. Will of the second of Sidney; Ross and Roy of the 8th of Sidney; George of Detroit and Alex of the 8th of Sidney.

MR. JOSHUA DUFFIN DIES

Former High County Officer of Hastings 84 Years of Age

Joshua Duffin, one of Hastings County's oldest residents, passed away in Toronto on Feb 9. The late Mr. Duffin was born near Plainfield 84 years ago and lived there for many years, later living in Belleville until retiring 15 years ago.

The late Mr. Duffin held the position of High County Constable for thirty-five years, also the position of Division Court Bailiff. His wife Cynthia Parks predeceased him two years ago.

He leaves five sons, Robert of Cobourg, Dr. Ward of Toronto, Roy Duffin of Stirling, Dr. Harry of Toronto, and James Duffin of Toronto, and one brother, Joseph, of Port Huron, Mich.

Sunday School 112 Years Old

Though Methodism had its foundation in Belleville early in the nineteenth century the Sunday School now known as Bridge Street officially dates from the year 1822 and on Sunday February 11th, the one hundred and twelfth anniversary of the founding of the school will be celebrated with appropriate ceremonies and services.

The school was first organized in 1822 according to records. There in the little church on Pinnacle St. a Mr. Osborne assembled the people and told them his plan in coming out from England was to organize Sunday Schools in the interest of the Sunday School Association of the Church of England. His efforts succeeded and Dr. Marshall, Dr. George Cooper, James Bickford and P. G. Sheldon undertook the organization of a union Sunday School. The School service of that period was the reading of scripture and recitation of verses from memory.

In 1829 came to Belleville Billa Flint, later Senator, who became school secretary and then for nearly forty years superintendent. He made a canvass of the village for scholars and the school of sixty became the school of over two hundred. In 1831 St. Thomas Sunday School was organized out of the Union School which then became a Methodist one. In 1832 Mr. Flint held the first Sunday School picnic in the world to "The Grove" now in the vicinity of Grove St. In 1883 Saint Andrew's Sunday School was organized when the St. Andrew's Church was opened. Bleecker Street School was formed. In 1865 the new Bridge Street Church was opened. In 1875 the school again divided, in the formation of Holloway Street School. In 1886 the church was destroyed and a year later the new church opened, but the school had been opened in December of 1886. Mr. Flint died in 1894.

Man Is Taken Ill

"Just a hospital case. One of the men took sick and was taken to the Belleville General", stated the Adjutant at the Royal Canadian Air Force Camp on the Trent Road today, explaining the hurried trip by the camp ambulance through city streets early last evening. "We've been remarkably free from accidents at the camp considering the number of men quartered here", it was added.

HUNTINGDON MAN SUICIDE

David Wickens, 60, of 12th Line Hangs Self to Tree

Climbing upon a block of wood and carefully tying a rope around his neck David Wickens, aged sixty years, ended his life by hanging to an apple tree in the rear of his brother Wesley's farm near Crookston about 3:00 p.m. yesterday afternoon. Mr. Wickens nonchalantly walked to his death when he left the home of his brother, where he had been residing for some weeks past, without making comment to any members of the family as to his intentions. After placing the block of wood in position, he carefully secured the rope tightly about his neck and apparently kicked the block of wood, upon which he was standing, from underneath him and died practically as soon as the noose tightened about his neck, which was found to be broken when the body was cut down and examined by Dr. S. Eagleson of Madoc.

The first knowledge of the unfortunate affair came when the dead man's sister, Mrs. Wesley Wickens, glanced out a southerly window and saw her brother-in-law dangling at the end of a rope suspended from an apple tree some thirty yards south of the house. The alarm was immediately given and Provincial Constable Hill of Madoc summoned. The dead man's body was cut down and identified before the coroner, Dr. Eagleson.

According to statements given out by the family Mr. Wickens had been in a rather despondent state of health for some time back, grieving from the fact that he possessed no home. He had been living with his relatives for some years past. The dead man walked to his death clothed in his ordinary working apparel and securely fastened one end of the rope to the limb of the tree climbing upon the block of wood from which he dropped to his death.

No inquest was ordered by Dr. Eagleson, the coroner, as nothing of a suspicious nature warranted the looking into the unfortunate affair. The entire proceedings came as a heavy shock to the surviving relatives and more especially Mrs. Wickens who first saw him hanging limp from the death tree. Mr. Wickens had not seemed any deeper depressed of late than usual regarding his not having an adequate home of his own.

Their offering, "They Refuse to Be Resurrected" opening the regional competition of the Dominion Drama Festival at Kingston last evening, The Young Thespians gave a performance of their play in a manner that drew encouraging comments from the adjudicator, Mr. Rupert Harvey of London, England.

Mr. Harvey criticized in detail the good points and faults of the production and his remarks on the whole were most encouraging to the young actors. Those taking part were Sylvia Tett, Jack Carmichael, Douglas Newby and Harold Carruthers. They were accompanied to Kingston by Miss N. P. Merry, the director of the play, and the stage staff, Miss Rose Lazier, Bill Gerard, Jack Lill, Albert Hillman and Henry Liddle.

Fairbairn, presented by the Ottawa Drama League, directed by Dorothy White; "Wurzell Flummery," by A. A. Milne, presented by the Theatre Guild of Brockville and directed by Mabel Roberts. It will be followed by "From Their Own Place," by Merrill Denison, presented by the Faculty Players, directed by May Chown. Act 3 of "Marco Millions," by Eugene O'Neill will be the offering of the Ottawa Drama League on Saturday evening. It will be directed by Julia MacBrien, the young Ottawa lady, who played opposite Lord Duncannon in the recent production of "Romeo and Juliet" in Ottawa and Montreal. The Festival will be concluded with the presentation of "The Wood Carver's Wife" by the late Marjorie Pickthall. This will be presented by the Kingston Drama Group and will be produced by Nadine Harty.

Letters to The Editor

Dear Editor, Intelligencer,—

Seeing my name in your paper yesterday eve in front page headline regarding death of Wm. Beebee west of Port Hope, night of 6th of Feb., it would be reasonable to expect you in fairness and justice in defence today to state in your paper those circumstances given out last night, will be looked into by the court and judge at trial in the case.

It does seem something out of the ordinary that the Crown and his officers of the law, give forth only to the press such findings as news favorable to the prosecution and if news, none whatever in defence, and that before a judge and jury of a British court of law decide on the matter or while they have it in hand.

1st.—May I state that three main conclusions printed and for publication in your paper last night, are false. First, for 4 years my Chrysler has been licenced in Toronto and each year done in one cheque with our heavier type licences not procured in small towns for Highway work. I still have one heavy truck. I have had a whim for a Toronto licence on my car as well.

Second—The bead on my fender was broken through and damaged in front, before leaving Belleville for Toronto, as the Riggs Motors men will vouch for in writing; they being busy the day I showed them it. I got it done at my special welders in Toronto.

Third—The remarks given out as said to transient with me, were never said, but remarks were made to him that will come out at trial that will prove to be not wrong, but right quite in order to say. We struck what to me was a small passing object a glancing blow in a blinding snowstorm and a frosting windshield, on our right side of road, and stopped and returned to find it. Not seeing or hearing anything we proceeded.

JOHN PRIDMORE.

POLICE NEWS

The present week has set a precedent for modern times as not a single case was heard before Magistrate Mikel in the local police court rooms. One juvenile case was heard in the Master's Chambers on Wednesday but, owing to the absence of corroborative evidence was later dismissed. Automobile accidents in this immediate district have also been at a minimum for the past week, and especially during the recent cold snap. A few minor crashes resulting in fenders being crumpled have been reported to the police but no major motor accidents have been listed.

"It seems as though nature herself steps in occasionally to curb crime and lead us in the path of Christianity," stated His Worship, Magistrate Mikel, when speaking of the recent sub-zero weather that has been so prevalent of late. No reports of crime or breaches of the law have been reported in this city during th present cold weather.

Dancing was enjoyed until the wee small hours and then the folks departed to their respective homes. The bride and groom received many useful presents which were opened and exhibited during lunch hour.

The bride and groom will reside at the home of the groom's mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Thompson, South George Street. Music was furnished by the Haymakers' Band.

Lord Bishop of Diocese Dedicates New Church to the Worship of God

Fifty Years After

Peculiarly fitting was the dedication of the new St. Mark's Church yesterday. It was just fifty years ago this month that the old St. Mark's Church was consecrated. That brick edifice still stands to the westward of Bonarlaw on the twelfth concession road of Rawdon.

To the Bishop of Ontario, more particularly to the rector of the parish, to his brother clergymen, to the church wardens and members of the building committee, to the members of St. Mark's parish, to its architects and those who so ably carried out and through his designs, plans and specifications, and to the residents of the community of Bonarlaw, regardless of creed or sect, the dedication of the new church Friday morning was a matter of satisfaction, for gratification and thanksgiving.

Consecration of the building is to take place at a future date, not yet designated by those responsible for naming such a fixture.

A description of the new structure was given in yesterday's issue of this paper together with the names of those responsible for its splendid construction. There is still further work to be done on the outside of the building and the grading of the grounds yet to finish. The work has been retarded by the severity of the weather, which started October last, but this delayed work will be actively prosecuted the coming spring.

Picturesque in design, the beauty of the structure will enhance with age, and add another unit to the fine Anglican churches of the province.

DEDICATION

To the Glory of God, and in Memory of George Simpson and his wife Mary Ann
by whose Beneficence
this Church was erected

So reads the tablet on the west wall of the new Church of St. Mark's at Bonarlaw, dedicated at 11 o'clock Friday morning to, "Eternal God, mighty in power, of majesty incomprehensible, Whom the heaven of heavens cannot contain, much less the walls of temples made with hand."

Dedicated by one high in the Orders of his Church and high in the affectionate esteem and love of the parishioners of his diocese, St. Mark's Church of Bonarlaw was yesterday morning set aside "with all humility and readiness of heart" by those gathered together, "to the honours of Thy great Name; separating it henceforth from all unhallowed, ordinary, and common uses; and dedicating it entirely to Thy service, for reading therein Thy most holy Word, for celebrating Thy holy Sacrament, for offering to Thy glorious Majesty the sacrifice of prayer and thanksgiving, for blessing Thy people in Thy Name, and for all other holy ordinances."

His Lordship, the Rt. Rev. John Lyons, M.A., D.D., Lord Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario, officiated at the dedicatory ceremony, and the Rev. G. G. Wright, rector of Christ Church, Belleville, acted as Bishop's Chaplain. His Lordship later celebrated the first Communion in the newly dedicated house of worship, which he administered to a large number of communicants. The Rev. Canon W. G. Swayne rector of the parish had charge of the service, while his son, the Rev. G. Hope Swayne of Tweed was given the honour of reading the first First Lesson in his father's new church, the younger Mr. Swayne being epistler of the service. The Gospel was read by Rural Dean the Rev. A. B. Caldwell of Marmora, and the Venerable Archdeacon Dumbrille, vicar of the Church of St. Mary Magdalene, Napanee, and newly appointed Archdeacon of Frontenac, preached the sermon. Other clergymen of the Church of England in attendance were the Rev. A. F. McConnell of Stirling and the Rev. Gerald Graham of Belleville.

Windows Dedicated

Two memorial windows of stained glass in the chancel of the church were also dedicated by Bishop Lyons, Friday morning. That occupying the centre, and depicting Christ on the cross is the gift of Jesse and Mary Sophia Barlow of Bonarlaw to the memory of "William and Theda Frost". The window to the left of it, is to the memory of "Olive Beatrice and son, A. Ross Brown," and is the presentation to the church, of their husband and father, John Brown, a member of St. Mark's congregation.

"The Church's one Foundation" the hymnal acknowledgement of Christ as the Church's Head, was chosen by Canon Swayne for the first hymn of the service. The hymn of dedication of a church, "Christ is made the sure Foundation" followed that ceremony by His Lordship, while "Great God to Thee our hearts we Raise" was sung by the congregation after the dedication of the special offerings of the memorial windows. The other hymns for the morning were "Pleasant are Thy Courts Above" and "We love the place, O God, Wherein Thine Honour Dwells." During the offertory, with Mrs. (Rev.) W. G. Swayne as accompanist, Mr. J. P. Baker, a warden of the church sang most acceptably "Jerusalem". Friday's congregational offerings are to go to the furnishing of the hall in the basement of the church.

The office the Rt. Rev. John Lyons occupied was of a ritualistic character and his brief remarks previous to the dedicatory ceremony proper, were tinged with the dignity his high place in the councils of his church called for. His Lordship heartily congratulated the rector and wardens and members of the church on the completion of the outstanding little church, "the little house of God", where they, and the generations to come, could assemble to praise His Holy Name and humbly worship Him, with penitent heart, seek Divine guidance. The new church he prayed would be a blessing to the community. It was one of the finest of the small churches in the diocese. The Bishop then proceeded with the service of dedication of the church and that of the two windows in its chancel.

Sermon of the Morning.

Venerable Archdeacon Dumbrille found theme for the thoughts conveyed to the parishioners of St. Marks Friday forenoon in the 17th verse of the 28th chapter of Genesis, "And he was afraid and said, How dreadful is this place! this is none other but the house of God, and this is the gate of heaven", and associated with that first text he had chosen a second from Isaiah 62 and verse 5, "For as a young man marrieth a virgin, so shall thy sons marry thee; and as a bridegroom rejoiceth over the bride, so shall thy God rejoice over thee." This latter quoted part of the scriptures was the first developed by Archdeacon Dumbrille in his discourse.

Previous to the Archdeacon's expounding of his theme he offered his congratulations to all who had aught to do with the erection of the new church. "It was, dear brothers, a matter of satisfaction and pride to be privileged and invited to speak this morning at the dedication of this beautiful church," said the speaker. "The church formed one more gem to those devoted to the worship of God. It compared most favorably with any in the diocese of Ontario. It was," Archdeacon Dumbrille continued, "the loving gift to you and the generations to come, by one who must have had the deepest love for God, for God's church and His service in his heart." The speaker referred to his long cordial associations with his friend, Canon Swayne and his wife, and the ever growing deeper and richer affection existing between his revered brother clergyman and himself.

The devotion of the great prophet Isaiah to God's church was described by the preacher, and "that is the spiritual enrichment and growth I would covet for all church people," said the Archdeacon in referring to his text. "Change in life has evolved from those days of the prophet but in the human heart is [illegible] ed by Divine wisdom, the love of man for his mate. Thus the [illegible] showed devotion of people for the church." As the bride was the idol of the bridegroom's heart, the apple of his eye; the bride who he served with reckless devotion, from whom he could withhold nothing, who he served with devotion and ecstasy of devotion whole heartedly given, so should the churchman show his devotion to God's church. The church gives to us in service, withhold nothing from it, exhorted the preacher. Give the greatest and best in you to the service of the church as the bridegroom gave to his bride in thought and deed. Absolutely, wholly entirely give the devotion of a consecrated heart to its cause. Let no imaginary insult or slur separate you from the church, let nothing drive you from the church of God or separate you from its sacraments. There was no thought of companionate marriage or divorce in the thoughts of the bridegroom of the prophet's picture, this contract was till death, so with the churchman and his church his devoted adherence to it till death.

The second thought the minister developed was the sanctity of God's house, and how it was the gate of heaven to those who served Almighty God within it. Eloquently and forcefully Archdeacon Dumbrille brought this phase of his theme to the attentive minds of his hearers.

Following the sermon, His Lordship the Bishop of Ontario celebrated holy communion.

Pursuant to the close of the ceremonies a luncheon was served to His Lordship, the visiting clergymen and some score others in the hall of the new church. The rector conveyed the thanks of himself and the members of his congregation to Bishop Lyons and the other clergymen for their loyalty in coming to his assistance on such a very cold morning. Canon Swayne also voiced his gratitude and appreciation to members of the building committee, the architect and foremen and artisans, "they were a very agreeable lot of people and had worked harmoniously together." He also appreciated all the ladies of the congregation had done and extended thanks for the bountiful luncheon they had provided.

Bishop Lyons spoke briefly and church warden J. P. Baker made a happy and genial reply to the words of appreciation of his rector. Archdeacon Dumbrille also made further congratulatory remarks.

HELEN OUTWITS DOCTORS AND DANCES ON HER WAY

Pretty Helen Petch, ABOVE, 19-year-old Riverside, Calif., girl, has proved that sometimes even physicians can guess wrong. When Helen was eight years old, doctors declared she would have to give up acrobatic dancing because of physical difficulties. But Helen refused and proceeded with her studies. On her recent nineteenth birthday, she gave an exhibition before a group of critics, executing feats which experts assert never before have been accomplished in acrobatic dancing.

EVIDENCE IN CASE HEARD

McCaughrin Incident Closed And Findings Expected Soon

(By Jack Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer).

Toronto, Feb. 10 (CP)—The Legal Bills Committee, of the Ontario Legislature mulled over its findings in the now-famous McCaughrin incident. For many hours yesterday the committee heard witness after witness tell what each knew of the charges made by the former Orillia Magistrate, who claimed Hon. William Finlayson and Hon. W. H. Price, both Ontario Cabinet Ministers had tried to "buy him out of office."

The committee will sit again on Tuesday, and there is a possibility its findings may be presented in the House shortly thereafter, for all witnesses have now completed their testimony.

Magistrate Daniel McCaughrin resigned from his seat on the Bench subject to receiving a "retiring allowance" of $2000 from Magistrate Howard Gover, who was to take the position, the evidence showed. But McCaughrin, claimed that when he found Gover and not the government was to pay the money, it constituted "trafficking in public office" and sought to withdraw his resignation.

Gave Affidavit to Globe

He signed an affidavit containing the charges and gave it to the Toronto Globe, which published it. The affidavit, he admitted, was written at Orillia by Harry Johnson, secretary of the Ontario Liberal Association, and held "for release" until he had seen E. W. Bayly, K.C., former Deputy Attorney General, asking for an extension of the time before he was required to quit.

Before arrangements could be reached with Mr. Bayly, however, the Magistrate telephoned Johnson to release the affidavit and certain other documents in connection with the case, including letters from Messrs. Price and Finlayson and between the Magistrates.

Both the Ministers and the Superintendent of legal offices testified Mr. McCaughrin had been the subject of many complaints by the residents of Orillia, and on the occasion the town council had passed a resolution asking the Attorney General to dismiss him.

NEAR RECORD AT WINDSOR

Firemen Busy Answering Alarms, Most Fires in Roofs

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 9—Fifteen below zero was registered officially here early today with little promise of much relief from sub-zero weather for another 24 hours at least according to the United States weather Bureau in Detroit.

Only twice in the 64 years records have been kept in Detroit have lower temperatures been recorded. February 5, 1918, the record was 16 below and the all-time record for the area came on February 9, 1875, when the mercury dropped to 20 below.

While Detroit has had many cases of frost bite and hospitals are hard pressed to care for victims there have been few in the Border Cities so far reported. None of the local cases are serious.

Fire departments in the border have been busy responding to alarms but in no case has there been any particular loss. Most of the fires have been in roofs from sparks with a few inside houses as a result of overheated stoves.

B. C. Coal Miners Seek Government Protection

Ask Same Subsidization as Given to British Coal

Ottawa, Feb. 10—(CP)—With a final shot or two from the government side and a few more critical speeches from the opposition the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne is due to end early next week. Yesterday speaker after speaker from the opposition side, mostly from the West addressed the House while Conservatives sat silent.

George Bouchard, Liberal member for Kamouraska, a Professor at an Agricultural College whose family has farmed in Kamouraska County since 1680, held out farm settlement as a remedy for unemployment. In the development of Canada, he said, the farmer had been neglected and the manufacturer over-protected. Governments willingly spent large sums for direct relief in the cities but refused to contribute to efforts to keep farmers on the land.

Coal Miners Suffer

From Dr. Thomas Donnelly (Lib. Willow Bunch) came a demand for information on the operation of John I. McFarland's operations on the wheat market as general manager of Canadian Co-operative Wheat Producers. These operations he claimed, had placed the price of Canadian wheat out of line with that of other countries and had given Australia and the Argentine an advantage in the British market.

Imposition of dumping duties on the importation of British anthracite coal was demanded by A. A. Neill, (Ind., Comox-Alberni) British Columbia coal miners, he claimed, were suffering from loss of markets while British coal, subsidized by the government and aided by low marine freight rates was brought in. If a similar condition prevailed with respect to manufacturers in the east dumping duties would be applied at once. He thought the miners were entitled to protection as well as the manufacturers.

WINTERS MAKE STYLES

It would not take many winters of the 1933-34 class to bring about radical changes in dress for the dull season of the year. Folk today are accustomed to look with a sign of a snicker on their faces at those who would wear a cap with earlaps, a muffler, or some such adornment.

Such a snicker is, of course, the height of ignorance. It means those those who look so upon the wearer of these accoutrements have never had the experience their ancestors had. There were winters just as this is a winter, which people will remember until the end of their lives. Those long ago winters were not forgotten in a day or two days. They lingered and it is no wonder the ear-lapping cap held sway, that the muffler or "cloud" were cherished.

And those were other days. Time was more leisurely and folk on travel-bent had to dress themselves according to the needs and conditions of travel. Today folk are accustomed to a brief ride from home to shop or office and the need for extra-warm clothing is not felt.

But it took the more-than-Arctic temperature of the last few days to bring out from places into which they had been thrown for discard mufflers, caps with protection for the ears, and toques for the class of men and youths who usually spend the winter bare-headed.

Let but a series of winters like the present one come and the old style of clothes with modifications will come back.

Many an old scarf, many a muffler did pioneer service to children and adults as they made their trembling way through the sunny but stinging cold.

The older style of winter garb may smile —fur-caps, mufflers, scarfs, mackinaws, and so on.

NATURE IN ONE FORM

Nature has put on her roughest treatment of man, temperatures are worse than Arctic cheerless wastes and all the while she smiles. Clearer days have not been than those since the cold spell set in.

But it has been healthy. Colds have gone by the board, though there have been undoubted suffering and distress, as well as worry in maintenance of heating in homes and buildings and in keeping the waterworks and other services in running order.

On a night like Thursday's one could look at the chilly stars which did not seem to care—there seemed to be a very absence of everything but the calm blue sky with the starry lights above and humanity snuggling in the homes upon homes trying to keep the wolf hand of winter outside the doors. A city in the spell of a night thirty-nine degrees and more below the zero line was one never to be forgotten. From every home in section after section of this city rose straight above the chimneys the grey, ghostly wisps of smoke, no wind blowing them as they formed a moving picture up the forehead of the cold blue sky. Never did smoke look so comfortable, so indicative of the comfort within the modern homes of Belleville.

But nature's rage, (if the quiet calm of thirty-nine below zero can be called a rage) cannot hold out for ever. The summer's tempest passes and in like manner winter's cold must soften, even if the strain is the most severe on record.

FIFTEEN DOLLARS A WORD

The interest in religion and in human individuals was never more clearly marked than in the excitement which has arisen over the purchase of the booklet of fourteen thousand words containing Charles Dickens' written opinions on religion. The manuscript is the only one of the works of the great novelist not yet to see print. Now in the course of time it will be published.

The fourteen thousand words brought fifteen dollars a word or $210,000 for the manuscript. The purchasing newspaper has not doubt that it will make back the money it has expended.

Any unknown words of Dickens would be eagerly awaited by a world which knows his books.

Additional in interest is the ever-insatiable appetite of the public for matters of religion, particularly when opinions are those of a man who saw in his boyhood the seamy side of life when things were very cruel for the poor.

What the publication will be like and when it will be made public no one knows but the buyers of the manuscript.

It should prove a world's best seller.

Liberty has restraints but no frontiers. Lloyd George.

SIDELIGHTS

GRAVE and GAY (Supervised by The Lamplighter)

GHOSTS

The flapping of a shutter in the wind,
The sudden creaking of a storm-bent limb
Can send strange fancies surging through the mind,
Survival of times primal, dark and dim,
When every sound which through night's blackness crept
In shriek or whisper bore its menace dread
To waken fear (that all too nightly slept)
Of travelers from realms unguessed, the dead.
Mere echo of forgotten awe, no more
Is any power vested in the ghost
Which comes in garments from some far shore
To visit scenes once loved, forever lost.
But here are ghosts no man would have depart,
Loved hopes and memories dwelling in his heart.

PRINTED EVERY THURSDAY by Robert Quillen "for his own amusement and the entertainment of his friends," the Fountain Inn, (South Carolina) Tribune is a publication in a class by itself. The Tribune has weathered twenty-five years and is still going strong, subscription $1.50 per year, hopefully in advance, and the publisher's name is given as Marcelle Quillen, the author and editor evidently being Robert Quillen, well known internationally to newspaper readers for his syndicated contributions to the world's supply of wit and wisdom. The Fountain Inn Tribune is mostly editorial comment, the first page of a recent issue being entirely devoted to twelve-point editorials, the first one having to do with the golden anniversary of a local firm of undertakers, which is echoed in a page adv. on page three, and a quarter page on page eight, which is carrying a thought rather far, from the front page to the last page. The second editorial is a defence of the small town against the big burg in the matter of living attractions, following a criticism of Fountain Inn by a city slicker writer saying that nobody would live in Fountain Inn who could get away. "Hick Stuff" is the way Robert Quillen heads his answer to the city critic of his beloved Fountain Inn, and he closes a two column leaded tribute to Fountain Inn with these words:

"It so happens that the only things I greatly enjoy—the only things that seem essential to my pleasure in living are things that the poorest nigger in the land can share. All of them are found in the country. Big town people berate and ridicule the village because its people gossip. But metropolitans also gossip about the few people they know, and village gossip is nearly always fair. It handles you rough if you are a thief, or a dead-beat, or a drunkard, but it is generous so long as you pay your debts and behave yourself. And despite gossip you are free at all times to do precisely what you please, and none dare tell you to quit this or that, or stop, or move on."

APPLICATION OF EUGENICS TO MARRIAGE

Principles Once Scoffed at Now Better Understood

By LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

(Copyright 1934)
(King Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Modern youth may be criticised for many follies but surely no one should point the finger of scorn when our up-to-date young men and women are sophisticated enough to apply at least the fundamental principles of eugenics to marriage selection.

Not so many years ago eugenics was scoffed at and made fun of. "How absurd," people said in effect, "to want to mate human beings as though they were horses, cattle or poultry".

Nowadays, however it is better understood what eugenics really stands for. As the Eugenics Record Office, of Cold Spring Harbor, N. N.—a branch of the Carnegie Institute, of Washington, D.C.—puts it: "Eugenics seeks to improve the natural physical, mental and temperamental qualities of the human family."

Could any program of life be more praiseworthy than this?

There can be no question that people, who are absolutely unfit to mate because of disease, still continue to marry and bear children. And in every such case it is the offspring who suffer.

That is the chief reason why laws restricting marriage in one way or another have been enacted in almost every State of the Union. Such laws aim to promote a more healthy and vigorous stock for the nation as well as protect the ignorant and the misinformed.

"Eugenics seeks to improve the natly applied to matings of epileptivs, the insane, the feeble-minded, the incurably criminal and the like, but to race betterment primarily. Eugenics also applies to personal and family happiness. Temperamentally, misfit matings are as certain to lead to discord and distress as are the physical misfit ones.

Happily, men and women are no longer allowing pure romance to blind them to the point where they do not know what they are doing. Nowadays they are adding at least a bit of reasoning and foresight when they fall in love.

And particularly, in harmony with eugenical ideas, it is becoming customary for each of the contracting parties to consult a physician before the announcement of the formal engagement, with a view to finding out whether a clean bill of health, mental as well as physical, is obtainable.

Marriage and its obligations are a serious business, as we all known. But youth often is over-optimistic and over-confident. Disasters, that may happen to others, it does not believe could possibly happen to itself. It likes to think that it is an exception to all the known rules.

Later, of course, such young folks wake up. They find that they, too, have made a mistake. Then, however, it is to late.

Love and romance are beautiful states of being and the world needs both and needs them badly. Nevertheless, it is far better to apply reasoning and science to a proposed marriage, and even defer it if necessary, than it is to plunge headlong into an entanglement that can only lead to misery.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

Contrary to popular opinion, gastric or intestinal symptoms are not caused by the teething infants, except in rare instances. During teething the diet should remain the same except as changes are indicated due to the growth of the child. Giving the baby toast or crackers to chew upon, however, is good practice since this activates the salivary glands, develops the jaw muscles and hardens the gums.

A very amusing hockey match was played at the arena last night between teams drummed up by Dr. Dolan and "Doc." Truaisch. Following are given the names of the players: Dr. Dolan, captain; M. Connell, Ed. McGinty, W. Kennedy, S. Flagler, W. Meagher and B. Taugher. "Doc." Truaisch captain; W. Belair, P. Meagher, S. St. Charles, C. Bawden, G. Fitzgerald and P. Buckley. The final score was 5 to 2 in favor of "Doc." Truaisch's team. The losers had to pay for the use of the rink and feed the hungry winners who demanded a banquet. John Perkins was referee and he had his hands full. One player "fired" the puck into the net with his hand and was penalised for disgracing the O.H.A. rules.

30 YEARS AGO

Mr. W. C. Springer is in the eastern part of the province on business.

The hockey match of the season and which attracted a large and enthusiastic crowd was played at the rink night before last. It was the tinsmiths' night and their admirers were out in full force. The teams represented the Lewis Company and McGie's establishment. It was a great game, the spectators being treated to an exhibition of shinney as played in the improved style. John Cordineer was referee and during the game called four offsides. The result was victory for the McGie team, the score being 5 to 4. The following composed the teams: Lewis team—Brower, Hogan, Barragar, Geary, Deacon, Addison, Langman. McGie team —Coulden, Huffman, Prechette, McGuire, Perkins, Carter, Campbell. After the game the players and a few invited guests partook of an oyster supper.

CARRYING PLACE WINS 4-1 GAME

Interesting Budget of Weekly News Briefs

Carrying Place—To the tune of crunching snow, snapping trees, protesting motors, red noses and frost-bitten ears, Old Man Winter has moved in once more. Local thermometers registered 20 degrees below the zero mark on Tuesday night and 28 degrees below on Wednesday night. Travel and traffic have been reduced to a minimum with only the mail carriers and those who must travel on the roads. At that, we are considerably warmer in so far as degrees of cold are concerned than residents of Coe Hill, where, according to radio reports, the mercury touched 50 degrees below on Wednesday night. Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Hanthorn and family, formerly of Coe Hill, are not sure but that perhaps 53 degrees below there, might be warmer even than 28 degrees below here.

Braving the snappy cold of last week, a number of Smithfield young men made the trip down to defeat a team of locals 4-1 after a see-saw battle of rather makeshift hockey. The game was played on the ice surface of the gravel pit at the junction of the Belleville-Consecon-Trenton roads, where for several weeks past some of the boys have been keeping the ice clear of snow and adding a bit of water at intervals. A large crowd of players, skaters, and even a dozen or so hardy spectators witnessed the game. The Smithfield team had a decided advantage in experience over the locals, as they have been hard at work on their own rink for most of the present season. Kirby, lanky centreman, was a threat at all times and scored three of his team's four goals. Most of the others went well although few failed to get in scoring positions. Two of the goals were of the soft variety bouncing into the net from awkward angles. Their superiority in play was marked, however, and they deserved a win.

For the locals Bill Hanthorn in the net made some fine saves, becoming increasingly effective as the game progressed. On the forward line, Hicks, Quakenbush, Frank Harris and Harold Herrington were perhaps most effective, although many a fine scoring chance was lost as passes went wild with no one to take them. Fred Hicks scored for the locals on a nice solo effort. Ross Hennessey acted as referee. Players for the locals were:—F. Hicks, E. Quackenbush, Harold and Gordon Herrington, Frank and Henry Harris, Bill and Gordon Hanthorn, V. Westfall, Erie Weller and A. Norrington. If weather permits the locals expect to go to Smithfield for a return game next week.

The unusual and colorful phenomenon of a solar rainbow plus a number of additional sun spots was witnessed by many curious people on Tuesday afternoon. At about two-thirty o'clock the spectacle was at its best, and many an old-timer has stated that nothing just like it has ever been seen before hereabouts. Around the sun at about the usual distance was a particularly bright halo or circle with a mock sun at either of its sides. Two other mock suns were noticeable at the top and bottom of the same circle, while running almost entirely around the entire dome of the sky in a line horizontally with the sun itself was a luminous streak with two light spots at the north and east. Most surprising of all, high overhead two small rainbows bent their backs together, while an astonishing array of spots and circles decorated the sky. It is believed that the phenomenon was due to the unusual amount of moisture in the air on Tuesday and Wednesday. Those who observed it will not soon forget.

Several carloads of local hockey fans made the trip to Trenton on Wednesday night to see the Trenton Intermediates down Cobourg Waverleys 4-2 and win the round 6-2. The game was fast and packed with action. Many declared it one of the best games of the season.

Among those attending from this community were: Messrs. Bernard Macdonald, Legis Brown, Ted Young, Vernon Westfall, Bill Hanthorn, Henry Harris, Roy Church, Fred Hicks and A. Norrington.

Despite the zero weather and bitter breezes, a near-capacity crowd greeted the cast of the recently seen laugh sensation, the play "Spinsters' Convention," as it was presented in the Orange Hall in Consecon on Tuesday evening. Many who saw the play both here and in Consecon expressed their appreciation of the great improvement in the performance. The cast performed excellently, and the hearty applause of the audience was a decided encouragement.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hennessey spent Monday evening with Mr. and Mrs. A. Norrington.

Mr. and Mrs. Will LaTour and Bobby were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Miller of Trenton.

Although church services were scheduled for Sunday afternoon in the United Church, ill health and weather conditions kept the minister, Rev. E. F. Swayne, from reaching here.

Your correspondent wishes to correct slightly a statement recently made concerning the recent illness of Miss Grace Hanthorn. Instead of having been removed from the Ontario Hospital at Whitby, where she is employed to the Toronto General Hospital, Miss Hanthorn, has remained in the infirmary of the Ontario hospital and is much improved.

Mr. and Mrs. Will LaTour and Bobby spent Saturday evening with Mr. and Mrs. A. Norrington and Barry.

Miss Helen MacDougall is spending several days as the guests of friends in Belleville.

Work on the canal progresses in spite of the cold snap. At present the workers are engaged in repairing and replacing concrete work at the west end of the canal and at the third bridge. Among those employed at present are Messrs. Everett Weller, Arthur Hewton, Bill Hanthorn, Henry Harris and Ernest Hennessey.

A report from the Belleville Hospital tells us that Mr. Charles Davis, despite conflicting stories as to his condition, is progressing favourably and is even able to move about his room. Mr. Davis has been in the Belleville Hospital since the Christmas season.

Mr. Tom Young has been spending several days recently as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. B Young and family.

Miss Gertrude Kemp, after having been employed in Trenton for some time, is spending a short holliday with her brother, Mr. George Kemp, and Mrs. Kemp.

Trenton industries, in their present expansion, seem to be drawing on the ranks of even this community. Among those who are at present employed in Trenton are:—Messrs. Clifford Baker, Alec Campbell, Eddie Quackenbush and Jack Davis at the Trent Cottons plant, and Gerald Lafferty at the Trenton Cooperage Mill.

Mrs. E. Hennessey spent last Monday afternoon with Mrs. J. G. Dusenbury.

Several dozens of sore arms have resulted from the injection of the diphtheria toxoid at the local school on Wednesday, January 31st; but to date the thought of benefits to be derived have outweighted objections. Three injections are necessary, the next to be given here on February 21st.

Marriage of International Interest at Ottawa Today

(By Isabel C. Armstrong, Canadian Press Writer)

Ottawa, Feb. 10 (CP)—Canada's capital, city of soaring towers, has witnessed the wedding of many important persons but none of greater charm or international interest than that of Irene Helen (Sunny) Robbins and Alexander Cochrane Forbes which takes place this afternoon. Miss Robbins is the beautiful daughter of Hon. Warren Delano Robbins, United States Minister to Canada and Mrs. Robbins and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Murray Forbes of Boston.

Names in the first rank in official and social life in the neighboring republic are borne by guests and a number of the most distinguished citizens of the Dominion are to attend the impressive service in the Basilica and the reception held after by the bride's parents in the spacious Legation facing the Canadian Parliament Buildings.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt offered his young kinswoman, the bride, a White House wedding. Deeply appreciative of this, she and her fiance had decided a marriage in Canada would be quieter. They were not reckoning, however, on their friends coming from Washington and ties of friendship established by the Robbins family here.

Typical Winter Setting

To enhance picturesqueness and convince strangers that Canada is a great winter playground, nature had provided a typical winter setting of high-piled banks of snow between which cars clipped along, their occupants glad of fur wraps over fashionable wedding garments as they drove about the city.

The marital vows will be exchanged in a brief ceremony conducted by Most Rev. Mgr. Joseph Charbonneau, Vicar General, in a chamber of the Archbishop's Palace, with only two witnesses present. A favorite uncle of the bride, George B. St George of New York, was her witness. They will then enter the Basilica.

Despite her 79 years Mrs James Roosevelt, mother of the President of the United States, invaded the Canadian winter to attend the wedding. Mrs. Curtis Dall the President's daughter is also present for the ceremony as the Roosevelt and the Robbins families are related. Mrs. Price Collier of New York, grandmother of the bride and sister of Mrs. James Roosevelt is here and the Canadian Minister to Washington and Mrs. William D. Herridge attended.

Prime Minister R. B. Bennett heads the list of distinguished Canadian guests.

MISSION SOCIETY IS ENTERTAINED

Mount Pleasant Members Meet at Mrs. Hoard's

Rawdon—On Thursday afternoon despite the severe winter weather twenty-three ladies and two children gathered at the home of the President, Mrs. Ross Hoard for the February meeting of the W. M. S. All repeated together "Search Me O God" and joined in singing "Listen The Master Beseecheth", a number offered Sentence prayers especially for the adopted Missionary Miss Lillian Hinton in China. Plans were made for the Day of Prayer and Mrs. Thomas McKeown will entertain the ladies in March. It was decided to have Mrs. MacMullen bring back report of the coming Presbyterial. Treasurer reported $8.76 for January. Mrs. M. Rose read the lesson in Luke 18 and thirteen members answered Roll Call.

Mrs. Roy Thrasher gave the Devotional talk on the subject "The Joy of Giving" and emphasized the value of a smile, a kindly word of cheer as well as the giving of money.

Mrs. Kenneth Smith delighted with a beautiful solo "Anchored Fast".

Mrs. George Weaver told of some of our work in China.

Mrs. A. H. Bailey read a leaflet "Alcohol from a Social Standpoint" and Mrs. Morris Rose read "Preparations for the Master's Work.

Mrs. Kenneth Weaver sang in good voice an appropriate selection "Love is the Key".

Mrs. Frank Smith gave a timely talk on "World Peace".

The offering for the day amounted to nearly four dollars. Mrs. Blake Sharp read a letter from Mrs. Reddick re our supply work.

At the close the hostess served a dainty lunch, the main feature being a scripture cake. By means of Bible questions and answers the company was divided in groups of two and they then guessed the proper proportions of the cake and the accompanying scripture texts.

Before returning home Mrs. Hoard was tendered a hearty vote of appreciation for her hospitality.

Mr. and Mrs. John Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Johnson and Marion spent Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. Jay Weaver at Belleville.

Mrs. Gertie Denyes of Foxboro is holidaying with Mrs. Clarence Reid.

Mrs. George Weaver entertained several ladies to a quilting one day recently and two quilts were completed. In the evening their husbands and families came and all enjoyed supper and a jolly evening together. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Percy Tweedie of Campbellford. During the evening an impromptu program was staged.

Mrs. Thomas McKeown was a dinner guest on Thursday of Mrs. John Holmes.

Mr. Frank Smith is employed at Madoc Junction.

Mr. Morley Bailey of Windsor is holidaying with his parents Mr. and Mrs. John L. Bailey and notices a big difference in the weather as it is much colder down in this part of Ontario.

"Isn't this some weather"? is the general exclamation these days. Day after day the weather gets colder and early Thursday morning the thermometer registered 33 below with 19 below at noon. Surely a real old-fashioned winter. Sickness is raging everywhere and a large number of the older people have passed on to their reward. Death and sickness seems to come whether the winters are mild or cold.

Messrs. John Coggins and Herb Higgs were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Reid on Sunday evening.

CHAPTER ONE

Nothing ever happened to Charity Jones! That is—nothing that mattered.

Not once had a gay, impudent, tall dark young man passed her in a shiny car and tossed a fascinating come-on smile that invited her to go adventuring.

Not once had her phone brought a laughing masculine voice to flatter or coax her into a warm glow of happiness. Nor had a messenger boy appeared at her door to deliver a long box of flowers into her trembling, expectant hands.

There had never been a moment when she sat in the soft light of a summer moon—half hoping, half fearing she was about to be thrillingly kissed.

Charity possessed all the homely, old-fashioned virtues.

Perhaps that is why Cupid seemed to look past her tall, businesslike figure hurrying through the crowd and to touch every girl but herself with his magic love dart.

Charity had been envied by other women for her efficiency. But never once in her life had she been given a sour glance by one of her own sex because she looked a little too attractive for their comfort. Or because one of their men had turned and given her a second appraising eye.

Other girls spoke of her as "nice", or "sweet". Which is certainly no compliment when coming from one woman to another! It would have been more flattering to have been spoken of as "that Jones dame". But Charity evoked no such feminine flattery.

And so it was that anybody, should they have happened to give a second thought to Charity Jones, would have said that Fate, however prankish, could have no plans for the girl in room 311.

The switchboard operator yawned, looked at her call chart and plugged into her board.

"Good morning It's 7.30, Miss Jones."

"Thank you." Charity's voice was as crisp and business-like as though she had been up and about for an hour when she hung up the receiver.

Without giving herself a chance to get sleepy again, she bounded out of bed—if you could say that Charity's room at the Secretaries and Stenographers Club was big enough to bound in—and turned on the shower.

It was a two-by-four shower in a cubby-hole of a bath-room—but the water was just as cold and refreshing as a pool on Park Avenue to Charity.

Charity's only toilet articles were a comb, a hairbrush, a toothbrush, a can of rice powder and a large puff. She stood in front of the little mirror in her bathroom briskly brushing her strong, white even teeth.

Then she ran a comb through her long, black hair, bringing it back from her face in a nondescript bun at the back of her head—and dusted a little powder on her nose.

Charity walked to the one little cretonned window that looked out on the Ninth avenue elevated tracks on New York's West Side in the Forties and put her head out for just a second. It was late April and the air felt as though the day would be mild. So Charity decided on last year's blue serge dress with the plain serge matching coat. It was businesslike and would wear like iron—and that was all Miss Jones looked for in clothes.

At 7.45 Charity locked her door and walked down the long hall leading to the elevator. She was always one of the first girls to breakfast in the large cafeteria. She was due at 9 o'clock at the Wall Street Trust Company but she was always at her desk a little after 8.30.

Charity always looked for the Twenty-Cent Economy Breakfast on the cafeteria menu board. This morning it happened to be prunes, one poached egg, toast and coffee. Charity did not care for prunes. But she ate them because they were cheap and because they were good for her.

The Secretaries and Stenographers Club was built by a group of philanthropic women for office girls, and it boasted "all the comforts of the smartest hotel or club—for the lowest rates to be found anywhere."

The rooms were just large enough for a single cretonned bed, a small chifferobe with a little mirror hung over it, one comfy chair a telephone table and a small desk table built over the radiator. But the place was economical and respectable—the only two things that interested Charity in her quest for a home in New York.

The swimming pool was the only one of the club privileges of which Charity took advantage. She loved to bathe in its blue and white tiled depths.

No men allowed beyond the well-chaperoned lobby. But that was the least of Charity's worries. She had no men friends. And that had been the one thing that convinced her that the "Stenogs Club" was the proper place for an unchaperoned young lady to live.

Once in a while she sat in the lobby a few minutes after dinner and watched gay groups of girls join their boy friends and rush off to a party. Or saw a pretty young thing come out of the elevator to join a handsome cavalier who looked as though he were going to kiss her then and there.

Occasionally Charity wondered what it would be like to be one of these other girls. To have pretty clothes and go to dances and night clubs, and drive away in lovely cars to enchanted spots. But she soon put those truant thoughts out of her mind when she remembered that not once in her life had a man asked her for a date—or even as much as called her on the telephone.

Once in a while she sat in the lobby for a few minutes after dinner and watched gay groups of girls join their boy friends and rush off to a party . . . . . . Not once in her life had a man asked her for a date.

Her happiness lay in her work. And in the half of her salary she was able to send her mother and father every week so that they might be able to keep their heavily mortgaged little farm in Iowa as a haven in their old age.

Charity thought of her father and mother as she ate her cheap little breakfast. Her mother—little and bent from overwork—her father tall and gaunt, and a slave to the soil. They asked nothing of life—and it had given them nothing.

It had astonished them more than a little when Charity somehow worked her way through high school and then took a business course in Des Moines. She had taken care of children, waited on table in a restaurant taken tickets at a movie window—she did any work she could realize her ambition.

When she announced her intention of saving enough money to go to New York her parents had thought her a little crazy. But in a year after her graduation from business college she was in New York and wrote that she had found a job in a bank called the Wall Street Trust Company. Since then the check she sent every month had seemed like a fortune to them, and had eased the burden under which they were struggling, until they felt almost rich.

Charity's mother had worried a great deal at first over the dire things that might happen to her only child in New York—a girl alone in that wicked city! But the father had smiled at her fears—and been proud of his daughter's determination. Charity could take care of herself! She was too smart to let any man put anything over on her!

Charity ate her breakfast slowly—lost in homesick thoughts of her father and mother alone on the farm. If she could only save enough money to visit them! Five years it had been since she had slept in her little bed under the old tin roof and dreamed of becoming a successful business woman.

The first three years in New York had been one long unpleasant grind of routine work in the bank. Then one day she had been called in by the office manager and told that for a few days she was to substitute as secretary to old Douglas Brookhart Temple, 2nd, who had just lost his assistant through marriage.

Charity had been panicky at the thought of working for the stern looking, hard driving old Temple. But she hid her fears and plunged silently and grimly into the task of keeping Temple's affairs straight. And one day, when the manager of the employment service announced that he had found just the woman Temple needed for his secretary and that she was waiting outside to be interviewed, the old man said curtly:

"Send her away. I have a secretary."

Charity's heart had gone down into her shoes then. When she looked up, her face pale with the tremendous import of the words, she saw the first ghost of a smile she had ever seen on her employer's face turn up the corner of his mouth. It disappeared almost as soon as it had been born, and the old man said hurriedly, fumbling with some papers on his desk:

"And I don't want you coming in with a lot of paint and powder on your face and spending half your time in the ladies' room putting more on."

"Yes sir, n-no, sir," Charity had stammered, reddening.

Then Temple had asked, "You don't use cosmetics do you?"

And Charity's answer had been an embarrassed affirmation of his suspicions.

"If I catch you talking about my business you'll be looking for a job," the doughty president added then, looking straight into Charity's honest gray eyes.

Charity forgot her embarrassment and sat up, primly defiant.

"If there's any doubt in your mind as to my integrity. Mr. Temple," she said, "you'd better get some one else."

"I'll take a chance." Temple had almost smiled again.

From that day on Charity had lived for her employer. In a few months, she was his right hand. He had given her two small raises after the end of the first year. But Temple did not believe in over-paying his employees. He had often said of salary increases, "It makes 'em think they're too durn important around here. Then they start taking vacation and acting like vice-presidents."

Charity had come to know, after a few months with Douglas Temple, that he was not as hard-hearted as he seemed. The softest spot in his armour, she knew, was his only child—Doug, the third—who always seemed to be in some gay corner of the earth, looking for excitement.

It seemed a pity to Charity, since the boy's mother was dead and all the wealthy banker had left was his son, that they could not be together Charity had come to think of Doug as a worthless, pleasure-mad, spoiled millionaire. She could tell on days that old Temple received a letter from his son that he was starved for a sight of him. And that he was worried constantly at the young blade's escapades.

Charity knew also that the father was bitterly disappointed that his son had taken up painting as his profession—or rather as something to play at. She knew Temple wanted his son to follow in his own successful footsteps.

The subway was packed wher Charity joined the strap-hangers. Men never got up to offer her a seat. She quickened her steps when she left the subway and saw the bank. The sight of the building always gave her an urge to get in and roll up her sleeves for battle. She loved big business with all its intrigues and buzzing activity.

It was thrilling, helping to handle the affairs of one of the biggest financiers in New York. Sometimes Charity found herself wondering if it were not a dream. It was a tremendous step from the little wooden farmhouse in Iowa to the towering skyscraper that was the Wall Street Trust Company.

Most of the time Charity asked nothing more of life than the thrill of her job. Only once in a while did disturbing thoughts of becoming an old maid, with nothing to live for, enter her mind. When such thoughts intruded she thrust them aside and plunged all the harder into making the most of her business career.

Surely, she would say to herself then, a woman can be happy without a husband and family and a lot of housework to do. Why shouldn't she? And she would picture herself working for the Wall Street Trust Company all her life—and being pensioned when she was too old to hold her job any longer. It would be nice then to go back to Iowa to end her days.

Charity was convinced that she was a born bachelor girl—and a lot luckier than a great many of her old Iowa girl friends, drudging their lives away. Having a baby every year. Washing, and ironing, cooking for farm hands—milking cows. Not for Charity!

Such were her thoughts when she took her key and walked into the side door marked "Employees Only". Charity had a key because she was often the first one of the day force to arrive. And sometimes she worked till all hours.

Only Pat, the old janitor, was in when Charity walked through the lobby into her office. Pat was dusting her desk. He greeted her excitedly:

"Good morning, Miss Jones. And I suppose ye've heard the big news?"

"News?" Charity flashed a friendly smile to the old Irishman and picked up a package of letters. "Now what has happened?"

"Sure, and I though ye'd be knowin' about it, Miss Jones. Young Temple got in from Paris this mornin', he did, I read it in the mornin' paper on the way down."

Charity was glad. She knew what it would means to his father. She smiled again.

"That's good. I know Mr. Temple will be happy."

Old Pat shook his head solemnly.

"Sure, and he will. Precious little time that young scallywag has spint at home. He's not worth his salt, between you and me, Miss Jones, beggin' your pardon. Give a bye too much money—and nothin' to do but play—and he ain't no good—from thin on."

Charity wasn't sure but that she should scold Pat for getting so personal about his employer's affairs. But instead she hung her hat up and sat down to look over the mail, ignoring him completely. Embarrassed lest he had gone too far with the sedate Miss Jones, Pat hurried out silently.

But in a moment he was back. It was several seconds before he could speak. Charity sat frozen to her seat with premonition when she saw his white face. Before she could ask what was wrong, Pat told her stumblingly:

"The boss—he—he's dead."

Charity had scarcely grasped Pat's words when Milton Simmons, for years attorney for the Temple interests, opened the door. He sank into a chair before he spoke.

"Miss Jones— I have sad news. Mr. Temple died about two hours ago of heart failure."

Charity's face blanched and she clung to her desk for support.

"Oh—so suddenly. I can't believe it."

"I've expected it any moment—for several weeks. His doctor warned me. That's why he sent for his son. He got home just a few minutes too late to see his father alive."

"How—dreadful!" The tears began to trickle down Charity's white cheeks as she realized that her employer was gone.

Simmons shook his head sadly.

"Too bad he didn't see his boy."

He got up and walked around the room several times before he went over to stand by Charity's desk. She had laid her head on her typewriter and was sobbing softly. Simmons reached out helplessly and patted Charity on the shoulder. When she looked up, the lawyer was shocked at the keen misery and pity that stood out in the kind, gray eyes.

He said then, bruskly:

"You must go back to your hotel until the funeral Miss Jones. Don't make any attempt to work. I'll take care of everything."

When Charity opened her mouth to protest, Simmons held up his hand.

"Please do as I ask, Miss Jones. You'll need all your strength. I'll see you at the funeral. I'll have my secretary phone you when it will be."

Simmons hesitated.

"I'll let you know when Mr. Temple's will is to be read," he said. "I'd like to have you there."

"I'll come, if you'd like," Charity said, dully.

"I think," Simmons said then, slowly, "it is no more than fair to warn you to be prepared for a tremendous shock. Your employer was very fond of you, Miss Jones. In fact—you have been remembered handsomely in his last will and testament."

Charity looked bewildered. Simmons walked to the window.

"You'll will be a rich woman—Miss Jones. Providing you are willing to carry out the terms of the will. It is a strange document. A very, very strange document."

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

Simmons sat staring out on the windows of his law office in the Wall Street Trust Company the day after the Temple funeral. He scarcely saw the buildings towering around him—or the boats plying lazily up and down the Hudson.

He looked at his watch. Any moment Charity Jones would arrive. He threw away his half smoked cigar and got up to pace the floor.

"This is a hell of a job," he said to himself aloud, fiercely, and sat down again. "The old boy must have been out of his head to make such a crazy will."

At that moment the door opened and Charity walked in, smiling at him unsteadily.

"I—I see I'm the first one here."

Simmons got up and shook hands with her gravely.

"Yes, I wanted to talk with you a little while before young Temple came." The lawyer sat down nervously and fussed with the paper on his desk.

Charity clasped her hands tightly together and fought to control her trembling knees. Her face was white as chalk and Simmons saw that there were tired, dark circles under her eyes. The strain of the last four days—the unexpected death of her employer and the blow of learning that he had left a queer will in her favor—had worn her nerves to the edge.

Simmons felt deeply sorry for the sensitive, unhappy girl who stared at him through eyes that begged him to hurry and get the suspense over. With a resigned sigh he reached in the drawer of his desk and drew forth a long envelope.

CHAPTER TWO

"Miss Jones," Simmons said, "I believe it would be better for you not to be here in the room when the will is read. Mr. Temple wrote this letter to you a few hours before he passed away, and another to me."

Charity looked as though she were going to faint. She could not speak Temple went on:

"In the letter to me he said his letter to you was an explanation of the whole matter. So, I'm going to save you the embarrassment of being here in the presence of young Temple when I read his father's will."

"That's very kind—of you—" Charity said, haltingly.

"If you'll take this," he crossed over and handed the envelope to Charity, "and go into the small office here, I'll call you later."

With a great effort Charity walked stiffly into the other room. Simmons closed the door behind her.

For a moment Charity's hands trembled until she could not open the envelope. It was uncanny. Like a message from the dead. She dreaded, more than she had ever dreaded anything in her life, to open it. She fought for self-control. Then with a mighty effort she tore the letter open and began to read.

"My Dear Charity:" She saw that it was in Temple's handwriting. He had never called her by her first name. It touched her deeply.

"I hardly know what to say to you. Like every one else, you are going to think me an insane man when you hear the will I have left behind me. But I want to assure you, my dear child, I was never more sane in my life than when I made it.

"It will surprise you a great deal, since I have always been such a crochety old codger, to learn how fond I was of you. There were many times when I wanted to show you how much I admired your ability, your courage and your rare old-fashioned common sense. But I have never been one to show my feelings, even to my own family. Hence, I have been very lonely, and lost out on a great many of the things that make life worth while."

A little sob caught at Charity's throat and she held the letter to her before she read on.

"I have known only one woman in my life who had all your fine qualities and womanly virtues. That woman was my wife—my son's mother. To her I owe everything I have ever done that amounted to a pinch of snuff.

"If it had not been for Sally, who married me in spite of all the warnings of her family and friends when we were 21, I should never have been anything but a wastrel. I'm sure I can't see now what such a lovely girl saw in a wild oat like me."

Charity almost forgot she was reading a letter—and for a moment felt as though her employer were sitting there beside here talking. A faint little smile touched her lips and all the fear and strangeness went from her.

"My boy," Charity read then, "has been a great disappointment to me so far. But, in all fairness to him I have to admit it is probably my own fault. His mother died when he was 15 and for ten years he has had nothing to do but play at studying art and throw my money all over the world.

"Knowing him, as I know myself I feel certain that only the influence of a good woman will make a man of him. I have a deadly fear that he may marry someone frivolous and pleasure-loving—like himself. Or that some girl will try to take him over for his fortune.

"And so, my dear child, you must both forgive me for the strange thing I am about to do to you. You must believe it is because I love both you and my son and want the best that life can give you children."

Charity began to tremble so that the letter shook in her hands. She realized she was about to reach the climax of Temple's message. With a supreme effort she forced herself to read on.

"I am leaving half of my money to you—the other half to my son—with the provision that you are to marry within a week after the reading of my last will and testament."

The letter fell from Charity's hands and for a moment she swayed as if she were going to faint. A buzz of voices came to her, and she realized that Simmons must be reading the will to Doug Temple and the others gathered in his office. She struggled bravely to regain her composure. She dared not go to pieces there.

Mechanically she picked the letter from the floor and forced herself to finish it.
